Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Your idealism is showing! You want to see and hear the best — but really hear its head. Control desires to believe. Wait for all the facts. Then action. You'll be happier in long run.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): What appears irrelevant — may be quite significant. Tune which features appeal contradictions. There is confusion — but it is "ordered confusion." One in position of authority acts "strangely."

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Deal with neighbors. Make arrangements for activity which benefits many. Check details. Beware of ideas not workable. Sift through — find suggestions of value.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle continues high. Pleasant news . . . received . . . concerning money, income. Stress creative methods. Communicate. Test mailing list, advertising program. Find out the why of events.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Excellent for attending hearts, group activity. Get together with those who share your interests. Avoid individuals who quarrel just for sake of "something to do."

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Explanations due. Listen carefully. You can find the reasons behind recent actions. You can hurdle obstacles . . . if you get the facts. Today insist on knowing. Take nothing for granted.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Friendship due to be "proved." Ingredient of confidence will be provided. You stand on ground more solid than you imagined. Now you can proceed "on course." No time to procrastinate!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): If your head- advice from "teacher," all goes well. Know that some obstacles are necessary- "toughening" process. Have faith. Check diet, get proper rest. Ambition due to be fulfilled.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Spread your wings — enlarge contacts. You can put across ideas where they do most good. Gain indicated through reading, writing. Key is being "in touch" with proper persons.

If today is your birthday . . . you are introspective, attracted to the study of religion — and could succeed as an attorney or teacher.

Govt. Gives All Convicted Slayers Every Possible Benefit in Case Reviews

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government procedures in dealing with condemned murderers have evolved in the last decade into a highly complex system resulting in every possible benefit of the doubt going in favor of the convicted slayer.

As the royal prerogative of mercy now is exercised, cabinet ministers and officials involved in making the final review of capital cases before the hangman's trap is sprung are convinced there are few refinements that can be made.

These views were obtained in a series of interviews with solicitor-general, past and present, and others whose duty it is to prepare for the final review by cabinet.

J. Watson MacNaught solicitor-general in the present government, said that much more than the transcript of court proceedings in each case is studied. "It has been my desire to get as complete factual reports on the life history of a man as it is possible to get," he said.

MACHINERY STARTS

When someone accused of capital murder is found guilty, whether or not there is a recommendation of mercy from the jury, machinery is set in motion for a careful review of the case.

It is the presiding judge's obligation to sentence the accused to death by hanging, and in notifying the justice department immediately. The review of the case starts then, whether or not the case is appealed and the conviction upset or a new trial ordered.

In addition to the transcript of the evidence, the case file includes confidential police reports on the accused, the victim and the witnesses. Character studies are compiled and psychiatrists are assigned not only to the convict but to review all the evidence and confidential reports.

Leon Balcer (PC—Trois Rivieres), solicitor - general for more than two years in the former Conservative government, said: "We always made a very thorough examination. We surveyed every piece of evidence and information, and matters that could not be brought into court.

MAKES REVIEW

The review is made personally by the solicitor-general, assisted by officials of the justice department who are expert in criminal law. All the facts and extenuating circumstances, if any, are included in a report circulated by the solicitor-general to his cabinet colleagues several days before the case reaches a cabinet meeting for its final decision.

A capital case is always the first on the cabinet's agenda for the day. In recent years, discussion has been both general and detailed, with such pictures as the scene of the crime and related objects or persons circulated.

One cabinet minister recalled that 20 years or so ago cabinet decisions were often taken quickly and simply on the oral report of the solicitor-general of the day.

In fact, there is a well-known story on Parliament Hill of one particularly taciturn minister who objected to cabinet being troubled and having to spend its time on such cases. When-ever one arose, he was his custom to demonstrate his feelings by gathering up his papers, declaring "Hang the bastard," and stomping from the cabinet room.

Solicitors - general find the capital cases an excruciating burden — during a finally whether or not a man or woman should be hanged. One with lengthy experience in the portfolio, which has few other duties, said he was certain that all solicitors-general ultimately come to believe in total abolition of capital punishment.

INDICT NINE

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted nine men Tuesday in the alleged theft and sale abroad of multi-million-dollar U.S. drug-making secrets. The case involves wonder drugs and the U.S. firms' fight against Italian antibiotics coming into the U.S. market.

Brief Says Canadians Being Fleeced by Loan Companies Charging Excessive Interest

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—The Credit Unions National Association said Tuesday that Canadians are being fleeced by some loan companies charging excessive rates of interest.

Robert Ingram of Hamilton, association manager, told the joint Commons-Senate committee on consumer credit that one Canadian loan company recently charged an interest rate of 68.2 per cent on a loan of $134.50.

The association said users of consumer credit in Canada are not being dealt with fairly in the marketplace and must be protected by adequate legislation strengthened by constant supervision.

A brief presented to the committee called for legislation requiring extenders of every kind of credit to give the borrower in writing the total cost of credit in dollars and the rate in terms of simple annual interest. This should also apply to all credit advertising.

"Victims of unconscionable transactions should be granted redress by the courts and those who have exacted the unjust terms should be penalized under the law," the association said.

Credit unions in the 10 provinces, Mr. Ingram said, are required by legislation to restrict all interest, charges and penalties to a maximum of one per cent per month on the unpaid balance of any loan.

However, in practice many credit unions charge only three quarters of one per cent on the unpaid monthly balance. Many also made a rebate at the end of the year on interest paid which further reduced the effective rate of interest and the cost of the loan.

Mr. Ingram said this policy is in line with the aim of credit unions to keep interest rates as low as possible.

GOLDWATER WINS ON FIRST BALLOT

All-Party Meet On Rhodesia Is Advocated

Commonwealth Leaders Adopt Pearson's Words

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Black Africa leaders headed for an African "summit" meeting in Cairo today and, says Prime Minister Pearson, they carried something worth while from the week-long London Commonwealth conference.

The feeling in this venerable hub of the Commonwealth is that nothing has happened before like the 13th conference of Commonwealth prime ministers that closed Wednesday night.

"Nobody has 'triumphed,'" says The Daily Express.

But encouraging words both those views when he met reporters at 11 p.m. Wednesday after a day that began at 10 a.m. and saw perhaps the most vigorous argument of any Commonwealth meeting.

On Southern Rhodesia, the rock on which some feared the Commonwealth might founder, the conference formulated a communiqué statement that Pearson described as "an achievement of compromise and consensus."

DECLARE EQUALITY

It was significant that the mammoth 6,000-word communique plunged straight into racial questions, using word-for-word the description of racial equality submitted by Pearson.

Debate was longest and hardest over white-ruled Southern Rhodesia and on this issue Pearson, who took a key role, said substantial concessions were made by Britain on the one hand and by the African premiers on the other.

The 18 Commonwealth leaders expressed the view that a conference on Southern Rhodesian independence should be convened with the leaders of all parties there to discuss stipulation that would mean freeing political prisoners.

Retired Clergyman, 89, Plans Sentimental Trip to Mission

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — More than half a century after he left the islands, woods and isolated communities of Newfoundland, Rev. Charles R. Durrant, 89, plans to return this month to the scenes of his ministry where once he walked up to 100 miles a week preaching to his scattered congregations.

The retired United Church clergyman's sentimental journey will take him back to such places as Fortune Bay where he worked as a missionary in the $225 a year days of stormy seas and blizzards and making full day's marches to reach his flock.

It was in 1907 that Mr. Durrant came west to Ontario, from which he still calls "Canada" for a Newfoundlander. He has been back only once, in 1913.

Mr. Durrant went to Newfoundland as an Sutherland, England, in 1906 to take up the ministry of Carbonear. In 1908 he took over charges at Port De Grave, Clark's Beach and Bay de Nord.

Every Sunday he walked 11 miles to preach to the three congregations in all weather and, in the year he was there, never missed a Sunday of three services and Sunday schools and one prayer meeting.

After three years of probation Gamary went to the Methodist Church. Mr. Durrant was ordained at St. Mary's and stationed at Port Islande mission in Placentia Bay.

Once when he was stationed at Botwood, with about 15 lumber camps in his charge, Mr. Durrant and his wife Isabella came out of the woods on an improvised sled—an overturned table covered by lumber team. It was in the lumber country that he often walked 100 miles a week to preach to scattered camps.

Mr. Durrant retired in 1948 from Emmanuel United Church Windsor. Before that he served at various churches in southwestern Ontario.

His wife will not make the sentimental journey with him, starting July 20, but he will travel with his son John, superintendent of secondary schools at Etobicoke, a suburb of Toronto.

Today's Chuckle

Until a husband can get allmony by crossing his legs and whistling at ladies, there's no such thing as equal rights.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—Warmer, drier weather is developing over most of the Great Lakes area under the influence of a nearly stationary ridge of high pressure. Temperatures should rise above normal in southern Ontario today. Cooler air from Hudson Bay and James Bay has pushed into the northeastern parts of the province but it is not expected to penetrate very far south.

Want PM To Act As He Talks

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson returns late today from the Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London to face questions in the Commons about what he plans to do in Canada to reinforce his plea for racial equality in the Commonwealth. He is expected to report to the Commons Friday on the London talks.

His address to the conference Monday emphasizing the need to recognize racial equality in fact as well as in principle spurred questions immediately in the Commons about Indians and Eskimos in Canada's far North, and about immigration procedures. Government spokesmen denied there is any racial discrimination involved in either question.

Gene Rheaume (PC — Northwest Territories) asked whether the Eskimos—Indians and Eskimos would be given the right to vote. All Indians and Eskimos do have the right to vote in the Yukon Territory and in the District of Mackenzie, the most westerly of the Northwest Territories.

The district of Keewatin, representing the eastern part of far northern continental Canada, and the district of Franklin, which covers the Arctic islands, have no form of elected government—

Of this nearly 23,000 people living in the Northwest Territories 14,000 live in the Mackenzie River district.

On the immigration question Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue) asked Wednesday whether the Immigration Act and regulations would be revised "in the light of the hopes expressed" by the prime minis-

'Not-Baby-Kissing Blintz-Eater' Is Goldwater's Estimate of Self

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — While the campaign crowd cheered him, Arizona's Senator Barry Goldwater stood smiling and waiting—and a trifle impatient.

For nearly 10 minutes the ovation thundered through New York's Madison Square Garden, last spring, and the chant We Want Barry became a roar.

"You'll get him if you'll just be quiet," the senator shouted.

Goldwater's reaction to that burst of cheers may be unique in presidential campaigning, but he is many ways, is Goldwater.

The biggest triumph of his primary campaign — in California — wrought no change in the senator's nonchalant outlook. He welcomed it with a word of thanks to his supporters—then took the back door out of his hotel to avoid the crowd of jubilant fans.

"He's not a man who likes to exploit his triumphs," said campaign director Denison Kitchel. "He acts pretty much in victory as he does in defeat."

By his own account, Goldwater is bucking the trend of history in seeking the presidency as a senator from a small western state.

And he has said some things on the campaign trail that would have had other politicians washing their own mouths with soap.

"I'm not one of those baby-kissing, hand - shaking, blintz-eating candidates," he said once. "I don't like to insult the American intelligence by thinking that slapping people on the back is going to get you votes."

An Episcopalian, (Anglican) Goldwater doesn't campaign on Sundays. He has walked briskly through more than one Sunday-morning crowd at airport gatherers.

Goldwater has never minced the quick and easy handshake—the hello-goodbye style of a Nelson Rockefeller. His is at his best when there's time to stop and talk.

But Goldwater fans turn out for message, not style. And the Senator gives them that—two-fisted attacks on Democratic President Johnson, demands for an end to big government, and a promise that he will lead the United States to a stronger stance in the world and a balanced budget at home.

A friendly, free - wheeling westerner, Goldwater is at home swinging beer mugs at a paper cup at an Arizona rodeo, or chatting by radio with a fisherman as he pilots his little twin-engine airplane near the border.

English-French Split

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's student loan schems bogged down in the Commons Wednesday as an English-French split crystallized on the broad issue of federal aid to education.

Two French-speaking Conservative MPs broke with their party colleagues and announced they will vote against the bill in its present form. Remi Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) and Louis - Joseph Pigeon (Joliette - l'Assomption-Montcalm) joined the 13 Creditistes in arguing that the federal loans would interfere with provincial jurisdiction over education.

English-speaking MPs replied that federal action is needed to cope with a national crisis in higher education. The universities' problems transcend provincial financial resources and provincial borders, they argued.

Europe Uneasy at Choice of Goldwater

LONDON (AP)—The nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater aroused widespread apprehension in Britain and most of Europe today.

Government officials restrained from public comment, but newspapers in general described the choice of the Arizonan as a victory for the forces of reaction and a threat to world peace.

Bitterest of all, predictably, was the Communist press.

Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, said Goldwater was running on the most reactionary, bellicose and adventurist pre - election platform in American history."

The Moscow newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya declared that Goldwater was backed by a coalition "consisting of the most aggressive capitalist groups, fascists, trade union opponents, crusaders of anti - communism and Ku Klux Klansmen."

There were hard words for the Republican standard bearer from anti-communist journals of Western Europe as well.

Stockholm's liberal Expressen, the biggest daily in Scandinavia, described the nomination as "a catastrophe to the Republicans, a threat against the United States, a danger to the world."

Copenhagen's liberal Ekstrabladet asserted:

"The blackest reaction won the battle in the Cow Palace. The progressive forces that have ruled in the Republican party since 1940 were trampled down under hooves this morning."

Said Oslo's Liberal Dagbladet: "Those who once made up the 'Eisenhower wing' within the Republican party have suffered a catastrophic defeat, which also will turn out to be a catastrophe for the party itself. With Goldwater as Republican general it will meet its Waterloo in November."

"The corpse of much that is decent and wise and tolerant in American society is in the coffin although the lid has not yet been finally screwed down."

Goldwater has won because he appeals to the frustrations of millions of Americans who are dissatisfied with the apparent ingratitude of foreign nations, who are sick and tired of communism and who, at home, dislike the political and economic emergence of the Negroes."

The Daily Sketch took a similar line:

"He has a powerful appeal to two of the most sinister—but secure — emotions of some American voters.

Promises He Will Carry 'Conservative Cause' To United States Voters

Crushing Defeat for Liberal, Moderate Wing of Republicans

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Senator Barry Goldwater, the grandson of a pedlar, captured the presidential nomination Wednesday night with ease on the first ballot and promised to carry "the conservative cause" to the the American voters in the November general election.

It was a crushing defeat for the liberal and moderate wing of the Republican party — the "party of Lincoln" — and charted its future path on the course of hard conservatism.

Twenty - three minutes after the roll call of the 50 states began, Goldwater became the nominee when South Carolina cast its 16 ballots to put him over the 655 total needed to nominate.

By a motion of Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton, the nomination was made official unanimous.

Victory for the 55 - year - old Arizona senator, who once lamented there was no major place for conservatives in his party, came amid all the traditional hoopla, deafening uproar and sheer pandemonium that accompanies an American presidential convention.

NICE RUNNING MATE

In the midst of the confusion, Senator Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the convention chairmen, told a reporter that he had been informed Goldwater had picked Representative William E. Miller of New York, the Republican national chairman, had offered him the vice-presidential nomination, and that Miller had accepted.

But Goldwater and Miller both appeared on television later to say that it wasn't as settled up as Morton had. It was.

Goldwater said he hadn't phoned Miller to ask him to accept second place on the ticket. But he added that he is "favorably inclined" toward the upstate New York representative.

Miller said he thinks that after a meeting of Goldwater with state chairmen today some definitive announcement on the vice-presidential nomination — which he said he wanted — would be forthcoming. The vice-presidential nominee will be formally elected at tonight's

Health Ministers To Meet

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal and provincial health ministers will meet in their sixth annual meeting of the future of hospital insurance and other health programs and initiate discussion on the Hall royal commission recommendations for comprehensive medical care program for Canada.

Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh has asked provincial health ministers to come to the meeting prepared to "let the cat out of the bag" and tell the federal government which programs they would like to see expanded.

The meeting will be held behind closed doors, but press conferences will be held during the meeting.

The medical care question has been placed first on the agenda of the conference, which was called before the Hall commission reported, to follow up discussions on federal-provincial prime ministers conferences here last fall and at Quebec the spring before.

Apart from medical care, federal authorities expect a major discussion on the question of extending the present hospital insurance program, in which Ottawa pays half the cost, to cover

Cease-Fire Takes Hold In Cyprus

By PETER BUCKLEY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — A cease-fire took hold Wednesday in the Kyrenian Mountains between Greek and Turkish Cypriot positions and Canadian members of the United Nations force worked cautiously to prevent further outbreaks of firing.

However, the situation remained tense and Wednesday brought the first exchange of fire between the newly-stationed Turkish defenders at the all-Turkish village of Temblos and surrounding Greek-Cypriot positions just north of the mountain battleground.

Firing in the mountains started Monday night and continued regularly for 24 hours. After an overnight lull another fierce exchange started before dawn Wednesday and lasted half an hour.

In all, nearly 1,500 bullets were fired between opposing hill positions, most of them from Greek-Cypriot forces. The only casualty reported was one Turk who was slightly wounded.

Reinforcements from the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, who have done continuing liaison work with both sides of the area since the start of UN operations, have been rushed over by other officers of all levels in a bid to halt firing and negotiate a return to peace.

FIRING CEASES

Firing ceased all day Wednesday with the exception of six shots from Greek-Cypriot positions on the southern side of the mountain near the Turkish village of Krini.

However, no formal cease-fire had been arranged and there was fear the battle would be renewed unless some form of substantial agreement was reached in continuing negotiations.

So far, Greek-Cypriots are understood to have refused to

Goldwater Picks Running-Mate, Tough, Slam-Bang Gut-Fighter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. Rep. Lawrence Winthrop Miller of New York is Barry Goldwater's choice for vice-president on the Republican party ticket for the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential election, it was announced today.

"Pugnacious" "slam-bang," "rock-em - and - sock-em" are some of the term writers have applied to the 42 - year - old, dark tense 50-year-old lawyer and congressman from the "Niagara Frontier" country.

A congressman for 14 years, he has been chairman of the Republican national committee for the last three.

—The day after he became national chairman in 1961, while President Kennedy was meeting Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna, Miller said "I can only hope and pray that it wasn't to negotiate some under-the-table deal in order to increase his prestige, which was lowered as a result of the Cuban incident."

—In 1962, when the Senate rejected the administration's medical care for the aged bill, Miller accused Kennedy of putting on "a smoothly rehearsed cry baby performance."

—Speaking of President Johnson at Dayton, Ohio, in April, Miller said: "There are only two businesses better off today than they were under the Republican party. That's the seat belt business in Texas and the paint business in Washington (because of the investigations."

He was referring to President Johnson's driving habits around his Texas ranch, and to the investigation of Bobby Baker, a Democratic fund raiser.

Goldwater Promises Republican Unity

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Barry Goldwater promised Wednesday night to unify the Republican party and to carry the fight for the presidency to the people.

"The party of Lincoln is not dead," he told the Republican national convention after he had been nominated on the first ballot.

"It is not going to die. It is not going to be destroyed. It is not going to be split asunder. It is going to be united."

Goldwater said he would carry the fight to the people.

"I will not be a candidate of any one group," he said. "I will be a candidate of all Republicans and all Americans who want to see their country strong and free."

Goldwater said he would campaign on the issues.

Memories Kindle The Spirit

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the golden bonfire by which we warm our hearts in chill times.

The more you have to recall the warmer is the glow. Nostalgia is an interior stove that keeps away the outside cold.

It kindles the spirit to look back now, for example, and remember when—

You couldn't put on your shoes without an instrument called a buttonhook.

No one could judge a woman's age for sure, but half the male citizenry were convinced they could tell how old a horse was by looking at its teeth.

The favorite two-line joke was this: "Who was that lady I saw you with last night?" "That was no lady. That was my wife."

Elizabeth Taylor was a promising child actress, and Hamlet had never heard of Richard Burton.

Repair costs around the house were negligible, as the only mechanical gadget that ever needed fixing was the well pump in the back yard.

The doctor would sometimes give you a nickel if you fed and watered his horse while he was making a house call. And if he really liked you, he'd let you ride in the buggy with him to the next string on his rounds.

BAD NEWS FOR SURE

Anybody who got a long-distance call on the telephone knew at once some relative must be dead or mortally ill.

No bitchen was complete without a rolling pin or a basement without a tub and washboard.

Air - conditioning was simple. On hot summer days a housewife could always cool off by taking her rocking chair down into the cellar, and doing her darning there.

Christmas shopping for dad was no problem. If his only necktie was still in good shape, he could always do with a new pair of suspenders.

No schoolteacher who wanted to keep her job would think of smoking a cigarette in public.

You were a real sport if you wore a pair of pearl-grey spats, and gave the barber a dime tip when you got a two-bit haircut.

Any teen-ager who had to ask his parents for spending money was regarded as a stuffed-shirt, and it was felt he was bound to come to no good end.

Those were the days. Remember?

Farmers Get Into Hassle Over Ownership

Magistrate T. T. Wills patiently sorted out an involved wrangle between two Sidney township farmers' today that involved allegations of trespassing, damage and the disputed ownership of cattle.

The upshot was a $1 fine —and $15 costs—fined against George Zebedee for damage to a wire fence on the property of Joseph Storms, R. R. 2, Frankford.

The dispute boiled down to the fact that Mr. Storms had, on his property, several head of cattle, ownership of which was in dispute between Mr. Zedee and Mr. Storms' stepson.

On June 23 Mr. Zebedee cut a wire fence and drove the cattle off the property.

Mr. Zebedee claimed the fence was on a township road allowance — not on the Storms farm.

However, the magistrate dismissed the claim and convicted him of wilful damage.

Defence Motion To Quash Charge Is Denied

TORONTO (CP)—The trial of Dr. S. P. Penny, chief pathologist at Toronto East General Hospital, proceeded Wednesday despite a defence motion to quash the charge laid against the doctor in February of failing to notify the coroner of a death.

Defence counsel Charles Dubin submitted the charge lacked specific details but Magistrate F. C. Hayes dismissed the motion. Dr. Penny later pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The first two witnesses testified Dr. Penny saw a surgical clamp which was discovered in the abdomen of Patricia Morgan, 32, during autopsy the day after she died in hospital last November.

Mr. Dubin is also defending Dr. Alexander J. Kennedy, a senior intern in pathology at the hospital, and Eric Willcocks, the hospital administrator, who are appearing on similar charges as the one against Dr. Penny.

Two other doctors have been convicted and one acquitted of not reporting the death to a coroner.

The five doctors and Mr. Willcocks were charged after a week-long inquest into Miss Morgan's death. It was determined her death was the result of a surgical clamp left in her body after an Oct. 18 operation.

UNEMPLOYMENT TOTAL DOWN — The number of unemployed in Canada in mid-June was an estimated 283,000, down 11,000 from the mid-May total. The drop in unemployment was less than expected for the time of year, reflecting in part a large influx of students into the labor market. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the federal labor department said the total unemployed represented four per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.4 per cent in June, 1965.

Juvenile Court Judge Reserves Decision

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Juvenile court Judge W. H. Fox reserved decision Wednesday on a request by defence counsel to quash charges against Rev. D. Hordern, of Chatham United Church minister.

Judge Fox said he would give his decision July 21.

Mr. Horsburgh was charged Wednesday with contributing to juvenile delinquency. It was alleged that he encouraged sexual intercourse among certain juveniles and provided accommodation for sexual intercourse in the church building.

The actual charges against the minister read that he did: "Unlawfully and wilfully by act, word or deed did promote sexual intercourse by a child or did provide accommodation for sexual intercourse for a child."

Although the trial is being held in juvenile court, Judge Fox has ruled that reporters may attend and record the proceedings as long as names of juveniles involved are not published.

The charges were laid June 29 and grew out of Mr. Horsburgh's work with Youth Anonymous, a group he organized at his church three years ago to help young people who had been in trouble with authority.

Should Protect Aged Parents Committee Told

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's committee on aging was told Wednesday that it is unusual for an adult son or daughter in this province to consider signing over power of attorney in order to grab the parent's savings or property.

Gordon Carton, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Armourdale, urged that government - sponsored legal counselling services be set up to protect aged persons from such actions.

Mr. Carton, a lawyer, said most cases where parents are asked to sign away power of attorney as a precaution against accidents are genuine. But in many cases children used it as a excuse to get at the parent's savings.

Other times, he said, children get their parents to sign over their homes, promising to care for the parent. Sometimes they not only fail to take care of the parents but evict them from up papers if he considered the the property.

Lawyers are powerless to stop this, he said. Their only right is to insist the parties have full legal implications, although the lawyer could refuse to draw parents smile.

Concer about another legal problem facing the aged was expressed by Lawrence Crawford, a social worker with the department of public welfare.

Mr. Crawford said his department was concerned about the matter of legal protection for old persons who have been repeatedly swindled by persons claiming to repair homes.

Pete Scranton Only One Who Didn't Cry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tan-year-old Peter Scranton made a fist like a microphone as Senator Barry Goldwater read the Republican presidential nomination. The lad asked his dad about it.

"And how do you feel about being defeated?"

Along with Bill Jr., 16, and Joel, 14, the four children of Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton cheered their father Wednesday night down to the last votes, but they knew from the beginning the total would not be enough.

But as his father began to speak, young Bill's eyes began to redden. He dropped his head in his hand.

Susan continued to smile, fighting back tears. She lost the battle. Tears streaming down her face, she cheered her father.

Joel's eyes began to redden. But he dabbed at his nose and listened to his father.

Peter grabbed a cowbell and jangled it furiously as the crowd cheered. Sitting on the lap of one of his father's aides, Peter was the only one who didn't cry.

Lack of Light Lost Police A Conviction

He admitted his interior car lights weren't working when stopped by a Provincial Police officer on the night of June 23.

Because of that, Rorsbeck confessed to Magistrate T. V. Wills, "I'm not the wrong ownership . . . I was driving a 1965 Chev."

Assistant Crown Attorney Tom Lally said the 21-day deadline allowed for amending an incorrectly-worded charge had not yet expired.

"We might as well give him the benefit of the doubt," countered the magistrate. "I'm going to dismiss the charge and you can start another one if you want to."

Only $8.42 Contributed by Citizens at Large

As community-minded citizens in a community of 30,000 Belleville Jaycees confess to a sense of loneliness these days.

The Jaycees latest civic project is the rehabilitation of a vacant lot on Bridge Street East near the Four Corners as a downtown beauty spot.

Cost of the project, began two weeks ago, was estimated at $650 — after pledges of time and material by Wilson's Concrete and the Belleville Horticultural Society.

Downtown businessmen were approached, canvassed and contributed $234.

In the meantime, public donations were sought and a milk can deposited on the lot to take deposits.

Yesterday the Jaycees emptied a nearly-empty milk can. It contained $8.42 contributed by citizens at large.

Assoc. Honors Two Couples From England

TRENTON — A husband and wife team from Nottingham, England, all members of the Translantic Brides and Parents Association in that city, met last night for the first time. 3,000 miles away from England, at the Masonic Temple home of Mrs. Sylvia Thomson, in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brailsford, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bloodon, were guests of honor at the Trenton and District branch of the association.

The Brailsfords are in Trenton for a two-week's holiday with their daughter, Mrs. Frederick Lawrence, Rideout Street. The Bloodons are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Eric Saunders, Middleton Park. Mrs. Thomson is secretary of the local club.

Speaker at the meeting last night were Mr. and Mrs. George Bean of Leeds, England, who are visiting a daughter in Belleville.

The man were presented with a gift from each of the club members; the visiting ladies received brooches, suitably engraved with the name of their Trenton visit.

The Trenton branch of the association was formed only two months ago, now boasts 18 members. Mention of the formation of the club was made in the June edition of the association bulletin, published in England.

Talking Car, Elmer, Coming To Town

TRENTON — Kids! "Mr. Beep," your old friend, the Talking Car, will be in Trenton next week. And that's not all. Coming along with Mr. Beep will be Elmer the Safety Elephant, you know, the one you have on your special school flag.

Mr. Beep and Elmer will be at North Trenton School on Monday, at 10 a.m.; at Sidney's School at 11 a.m.; at Hanna Park at 1 p.m. and at the high school at 2 p.m.

On Tuesday, Mr. Beep and Elmer will greet their friends at Frankford Public School at 9.30 a.m.; at the Allison Park playground at 10.15 a.m. and at the Rotary Park at 11 a.m.

Wednesday, the two will move down to Middleton Park primary school at 1 p.m.; they'll be at Bleecker School at 1.45 p.m. and at the Recreation Field at RCAF Station Trenton at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. Beep, sponsored by the British Petroleum Company of Canada, Ltd. is a small, yellow car, with bright eyes and a black peaked cap. He will "talk" safety to the youngsters and Constable Jack Graham from the Trenton Police Department will also be along to help Mr. Beep's manager, Donald McLeod.

The program is guaranteed to keep youngsters from four to eight years old entranced and to provide a few chuckles for those older."

Centennial Year Project Said Off the Ground

TRENTON — Monday, ex-mayor Kenneth Couch took over the guiding light for Trenton's Centennial Year project . . . the development of a waterfront park on the former sanitary landfill area south of the community garden.

By Tuesday, Mr. Couch had arranged with the McNamarra Construction Company of Toronto for fill, taken out in the process of widening Highway Two at the airport, to be conveyed to the waterfront park area and soon, to build a roadway around the area for easy access of service trucks to all parts of the proposed park.

Two other members of the special committee Mr. Couch heads will soon be appointed.

Town officials now feel that the town's 1967 project is "off the ground," and the development plan for the park has been modified to the extent where it seems entirely possible that all will be in readiness to help the rest of Canada celebrate our country's 100th birthday.

Many Square Miles Covered In Plane Search

TRENTON — An RCAF Atlantora search air craft, from 102 Composite Unit at RCAF Station Trenton, entered upon its third day of searching for an American light aircraft, missing since Sunday, with the pilot, Stuart Simons and his wife, aboard.

The Albatross has covered 3,000 square miles of territory on the south shore of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie to date, and today is scouring the area between Cleveland and Buffalo.

Simons had filed no flight plan, but was checking with his mother in the eastern states, each time he and his wife landed. The couple was on a trip northward from Key Nevada. Mrs. Simons Sr. reported the aircraft missing, when her son failed to check with her on Sunday.

Only One Man On Duty in Fire Hall

TRENTON — At 9.20 p.m. yesterday, a fire truck left the hall on the quiet main street on duty left with St. For a full ten minutes, nobody was in the hall as Chief Cecil Ellis was at supper and went to check out the alarm before going back to the hall.

Since under the new agreement between the Firemen's Local, 1323, International Association of Firefighters and town council, the firemen are forced to take statutory holidays, during their day shift, and 17 weeks of summer holidays for the men are now in effect, only one man and the chief are on duty during the day. Senior Citizens Enjoy Picnic At Cobourg

Over seventy members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club made the trip to Cobourg yesterday for the annual East Central Ontario Senior Citizens Picnic. There were 735 senior citizens in attendance from various centres such as Marmora, Campbellford, Colbourne, Cobourg, Trenton, Warkworth, Port Perry, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg, Orono, Picton and Belleville. The eldest citizen present was a gentleman from Cobourg, who was 100 years old. Two men from the Belleville club namely John Robinson, aged 90, and John Preston, aged 88, are batting a good average and were active participants in the day's proceedings.

The day began with races and other appropriate competitive activities with the Belleville prize winners being, Mrs. Clapp, Mrs. Wellman, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Bleasbarger, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Lofthan, Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Accorn, Mrs. Livingston, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Haley, Mrs. Law, Mrs. Goodfellow, Mr. Beddell, Mrs. Milne, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Doyle, Mr. Hodgson, Mr. Register, Mr. Campbell, Mr. J. Young.

After lunch a show was put on in the bandshell by members from each group present. This proved to be a very good and varied show, with choruses, recitings, comic skits, solos and a rhythm band.

When the show was over, a hearty picnic lunch was enjoyed by everyone. Many people met old friends from other centres and made many new ones.

Weather at 4 was very threatening in the morning but improved as the day progressed.

With the picnic being over for another year, the Belleville group are now looking forward to their trip to Kingston on Saturday August 8th. Any members who have not yet given their name in for the trip would they please contact President Jim Bowman or phone the Recreation Office at WO 9-1402.

Park Rangers Hold Contest On Water Safety

To aid in the promotion of water safety in Ontario, the Park Rangers at Outlet Beach, with permission from their district forester, announces the opening of a water safety essay contest with a first prize of $20.

The contest is open to anyone under 17 years of age excluding relatives of the Outlet Beach Staff. The essay, not to exceed 250 words may be written in either English or French. Any age submitted should show that the contestant has given serious intelligent thought to the question of water safety.

The contest, sponsored entirely by the Park Rangers was planned because of the alarming water safety habits practised by many people visiting Outlet Park.

Since the Park opened May 15 this year park staff have found it necessary to issue warnings. The majority of these warnings were the use of air inflated articles capable of supporting a body in the water. All such articles are prohibited in Provincial Parks.

A second warning which is becoming all too common is directed at boat drivers who insist in driving their power boats too close to swimmers in swimming areas.

Essays complete with contestants' name, age and address must be mailed or delivered to "Let's Be Water Safe" Contest, Provincial Park, R.R. 10, Picton, Ontario, not later than August 17, 1956.

Winners will be announced on August 31, First prize is $20 with second and third prizes being miniature models of Smokey the Bear.

CATCHES SHARK

LOOE, England (CP) — Engineer Sidney Miller, holiday-ing in this Cornish seaside town, set a British shark-fishing record when he caught a Mako shark weighing 433 pounds and measured nine feet long with a five feet girth. Previous record catch was a shark that weighed 428½ pounds.

Jaycees to Assist Hosting Eight Exchange Students

Belleville Jaycees will assist in hosting eight exchange students from the Province of Quebec, who for the next two weeks will be guests of families in the Belleville district.

During the two weeks' stay tours will be arranged, taking in interesting aspects of the city and district, while other group entertainment is expected to also be arranged.

The exchange students from Quebec will arrive in the city by train this afternoon in the company of eight local students who for the past fortnight have been the guests of Quebec families.

Friday the group will be officially welcomed by Mayor Jack Ellis at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce offices on Pinnacle St.

Hosting of the exchange students while they are in the Belleville area, is the latest of a number of projects undertaken this year by the Jaycees.

Projects completed by the club within the past month include improvement of the Belleville animal shelter at the Belleville Fairgrounds with provision of new pens, and the big dance and bootsenany held during Railway Week.

Armed Bandits Tie up Postmen At Sherbrooke

Conrad Cayer, district postmaster in this Eastern Townships city, said the bandits apparently were after money orders and bank notes sent through the mail. He was unable to give an estimate of the cash value of the stolen mail.

DELAY TOUR

OTTAWA (CP) — August is too hot a month for the Commons agriculture committee to travel around in a bus looking at farms, Agriculture Minister Hays said Wednesday in the Commons. That's one reason the proposed two-week visit of the committee to agricultural communities in every province will be postponed to late September or early October.

TRY A SPORTAMATIC VACATION HOLIDAY ! !

Summer is here and the weather is hot,
The car is all ready, she sure holds a lot.
Clothing and bedding in trunk with the gear,
Seems to be right; One thing missing I fear.
A radio, my friends; It's a SPORTAMATIC for me,
Plays in the car, or down by the sea.
Installation is simple and appearance the best,
And it's made in Canada, unlike all the rest.
So let's go vacationing from East and from West,
Buy SPORTAMATIC—Canada's best.

This ode wasn't written by Wordsworth or Keats, but it does illustrate the convenience of owning the SPORTAMATIC MODEL PA-3285 — Canada's finest portable car radio — built by Canadians for Canadians to buy. See them now at Circle TV Service, 260 Coleman Street, Belleville. 7r15-21

Last Portion Of Property Has Been Sold

The last portion of the former "Sloeckee's Woods" property on the west side of North Front Street has been sold by Donald Burr of the Whalen Real Estate staff.

The original entire block was sold by this firm to Elliott Motors who have just completed their new building; another new section was sold to Carousel Motels Ltd., and this latest sale completed disposition of the entire property.

The name of the latest purchaser was not revealed but it was learned that a commercial building would be constructed next year.

Bowling Notes

Belleville bowlers secured two of the major prizes at the mixed trebles tournament held at Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon. A rink from the Trenton Club, unexpected with the Belleville Club won the top honors. Mr. and Mrs. Chouinard captured the trophy and the accompanying prizes, while a rink of Mr. and Mrs. Mary Hulin and Mrs. (Dr.) Allan of Brighton were second with five games won.

A local rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs Millie Smith with "Ab" Woodcock as skip won the two-game high score, while Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vince with Walter Elliott won the one-game high score.

Other Belleville rinks to compete were Mrs. Lil Mascere, Mrs. Grace Clapp and "Shit" Vandervoort, Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy Price with Mrs. Jessie Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Avery with Wally Lavergne. The greens were reported in excellent condition and the hospitality superb.

On Saturday the Trenton Bowling Club will stage a mixed doubles tournament on the Belleville Greens. The Benedict-Proctor trophy will be up for grabs and this is one of the most beautiful trophies in the district. The entry list is growing by leaps and bounds and it may be necessary to hold a double draw.

New Building Will Be Added To Holloway St. United Church

Construction of a new $102,000 Christian education building at Holloway Street United Church to be completed in about five months time was announced yesterday by the church finance committee.

The new two-storey building will be constructed by Mironwiggers of Trenton.

Mr. O. E. Wagar, chairman of the church finance committee, in announcing the new Church addition, said the building was made necessary mainly by crowded Sunday School quarters.

The Christian education addition, to be joined at the southwest corner of the Church, will provide Sunday School space, classrooms and nursery on the second floor with a banquet hall and new kitchen in the basement.

TURN SOD ON SUNDAY

An official sod turning ceremony with senior church members taking part, will be staged immediately following the Sunday morning church service on July 29th.

The new building about 49 by 90 feet will have a recessed entrance joining the structure to the present church. The new entrance will provide access to the church basement and also the sanctuary which is on the same level as the second storey of the new addition.

Russia to Stockpile Grain

Nikita Khrushchev has announced that Russia will build a huge stockpile of grain to guard against "accidents."

There was a time when this would have been bad news.

Stockpiling against "accidents" has been commonplace for thousands of years. The accidents have generally been wars.

We doubt, though, whether there will be much alarm in military circles over Khrushchev's stockpiling plan. The stockpile which Khrushchev could ignite the fastest would be the result of dissatisfaction within Liberal ranks with the way Lester Pearson does this particular kind of unpolitical thing.

True, the Prime Minister dressed it up in fine-sounding words.

"Despite our differences in political views," he murmured in statesmanlike fashion, "I consider Roland Michener an outstanding Canadian and I think me great personal satisfaction that he has accepted this appointment."

"STILL A TORY"

That might read very well in the news columns or the second line over radio and television, furthur burnishing the Pearson public image as a diplomat rather than a politician.

But, few, if any, of the Liberals around Parliament Hill there will be surprised with such "delight" as his "great personal satisfaction" with the appointment.

For one thing, being Canadian High Commissioner to India is the best job in the world. The post that customarily goes to a trained career diplomat, or to some reasonably well-known public figure in recognition of his political services to the party in power, is given as a reward, as with George Drew's appointment to the post of High Commissioner in Britain, to a working politician.

For another thing, the post is financially attractive. Last year it paid $12,700 in salary and $18,-960 in expense allowance. That's good enough for a $50,000 a year mansion fully staffed with servants. Moreover, of all, it carries a quite adequate pension, some $12,000, payable immediately on retirement. It is a diplomatic assignment and retirement.

Such appointments usually come under the heading of the "fruits of office." In line, incidentally, with the once distinguished Canadian who may have contributed handsomely to "the party, could accept it, like former Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier, currently settling down to life as George Drew's successor. A deserving, if defeated former MP might dearly love such a post.

But Rolly Michener, six years a Conservative MP, and to hear the Liberal grump about it, "still a tory!"

DEEP AND UNCOLE LOUIE

Down the line, from Cabinet Ministers to weekend polls the men and women who knock on doors and get out the vote all alike to boost what the Party takes care of its own.

When it doesn't — when, instead, breaking all the rules of the ancient political game, it rewards the enemy camp inside or its friends — its partisans become unhappy and restive with the leadership.

Former Liberal Prime Minister "Uncle Louie" St. Laurent found that out when he appointed Senator Hartland Molson who if not a real "c" conservative, was at least a converting Liberal. Senatorships, by all the rules, are supposed to be rewards for party work well done. And when he started breaking those rules, there was never quite the same again for "Uncle Louie."

Former Prime Minister Diefenbaker, if he didn't himself break the rules, allowed others to ignore them in appointing outand-out Liberal partisans to Federal posts to which any number of dedicated Conservatives considered themselves entitled if not always qualified.

Much has been made by the Conservatives since the fall of their Government of the suppression that a Canadian Press Gallery contributed largely to the Diefenbaker defeat.

If it did, the coolness of the working Press to Diefenbaker developed when he ignored it completely in filling "prestige

Ottawa Offbeat
Pearson's Latest Appointment Could Become Festering Sore

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — From London and the Commonwealth Conference, Prime Minister Pearson flew home to the Capital and a "family situation" within the Liberal Party that may surprise, certainly disappoint and just possibly shock him.

For he will be finding that a great many of the Party faithful are finding over his well-intentioned appointment of former Conservative MP and Common, Speaker D. Roland "Rolly" Michener as Canadian High Commissioner to India. He waited, wisely, until he was out of Ottawa and in London's smog before prudently flew off to Britain, hoping, perhaps, his burning partisans would cool off before he returned.

It was the seemingly small matter of a few appointments of Liberals to plum posts during the six years of the Conservative Administration that set off the first discernible groundswell of party discontent with John Diefenbaker's leadership.

So too, now, the naming of Rolly Michener could ignite the first small flames of dissatisfaction within Liberal ranks with the way Lester Pearson does this particular kind of unpolitical thing.

True, the Prime Minister dressed it up in fine-sounding words.

"Despite our differences in political views," he murmured in statesmanlike fashion, "I consider Roland Michener an outstanding Canadian and I think me great personal satisfaction that he has accepted this appointment."

Airlines Find Pilots Scarce

Montreal Star

Any airline pilot who put his uniform in mothballs instead of the garbage can when he was laid off five years ago can congratulate himself on his foresight.

When the big jets came into airline service—each one doing the work of about three piston-engined planes — there were too many pilots. Many looked for other jobs or went to work for smaller airlines all over the world.

Now that's all changed, and the airlines seem to be headed for a situation that they haven't prepared for. The ragpiles of ex-World War II pilots they've been depending on for years are beginning to feel stiff age, and the Dalmadministered air forces of today are not training enough pilots to assure the airlines of a safe source of recruits.

The only way out for the airlines is to open their own flight schools. BOAC - BEA have done this in England and Alitalia has done it in Italy.

The costs are formidable, but why not a co-operative school for North Americans?

Parliament Disappoints

Cape Breton Post

After reading several recent issues of Hansard, the official record of debate in Parliament, a Glace Bay man sighed and said: "You know, Frank, I don't believe I'll attend Parliament after reading all that blather."

Perhaps, others also are made despondent by the long-winded speeches nowadays in the House of Commons. The Parliament of Canada has grown old, we are told in the public regard, when it discourages the country's voters.

This not only is melancholy, it is a dangerous situation, it's the sort that breeds dictators and other unhealthy isms to encourage demagogic upstarts. It provides a climate in which one could undermine the foundations of democracy.

Well, there are indications in Ottawa that the MPs of every political category are aware that they are in a general disappointment to the country. Let us take heart in the faith that seeds of greatness are growing in a new generation which in due course will endow the Canadian Parliament with a reputation for noble statesmanship.

Rallying Point

Cape Breton Post

To state an old adage in reverse: Often it is true that familiarity breeds respect. People who resent something new because it's unfamiliar sometimes grow to accept it comfortably. If Mont Canadiens of French and English speech can agree on anything, this is to say, accept also a new flag, the importance of the acceptance would be greater than any other consideration. This country must have a focal point — it might well be a flag around which to develop national unity.

Don Messer Real McCoy

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

It may be that pseudo-intellectuals will look down their noses at Don Messer and his Islanders. It may be that there are better singers and instrumentalists in Canadian television.

It is indisputable, however, that this group, launched in the rural dance halls of New Brunswick, matured by radio in Prince Edward Island, and a growing comfortable in the sunset years on the proceeds of, among other things, a national television show emanating from Nova Scotia's capital, has found a place in Canadian hearts shared by no other band of performers in our entertainment history.

Honorable Maritimers in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver have been accused of weeping during a Messer program — and that after only one pint-sized drink. But this does not mean that the Islanders have only a regional appeal; their devoted audience includes who have never seen Atlantic Canada are, as a rule, avid circus entertainments used to say, "the numerous to mention."

The reason is obvious: Don Messer, a fiddler and not a violinist does not dance band or symphony orchestra employee dressed up in monkey suits, but a real live money playing slick and totally unselfconscious fiddler of the favorites. The network has had many song programs but only one kind of fiddling. That is why, last night, Don Messer and his Islanders, to the delight of millions, celebrated their fifth anniversary in Canadian broadcasting.

They are the genuine article, and good things last, and last, and last.

To Your Good Health
Arthritis Does Differ From Bone Degeneration

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between arthritis and bone degeneration? Does the former cause pain? Is it true sodium salicylate (10 gr.) be taken twice a day indefinitely with no harmful effects? — Mrs. A. G. O.

Both of the terms (arthritis and bone degeneration) are general and cover a multitude of conditions.

Osteoarthritis, in fact, is often called degenerative arthritis. Essentially, wear and tear on the joints, over a period of many years, reduces the pads or bearings of cartilage, and the ends of the bones change shape. The result — stiff, painful, stiffened joints. Or osteoarthritis.

We customarily use "bone degeneration" for other meanings, however. Loss of calcium in the skeleton, as a result of aging of the bone texture. It has nothing to do with arthritis directly. Osteoporosis is very frequent in women that is men: it tends to appear after menopause rather than before.

Arthritis can be of many varieties, and some of them require specific treatment. Acute rheumatoid arthritis calls for prompt and careful treatment, including drugs and rest and cold, skilled physiotherapy. Gouty arthritis, being a result of gout, requires continued drug therapy. Arthritis resulting from infections is best treated by antibiotics. And so on.

It is important to remember that these are general classifications. It is then necessary to know what kind of arthritis (or bone degeneration) is involved, so you can choose the appropriate treatment.

The sodium salicylate is not an effective dosage. Considerably larger ones have been taken for many, many years without harm.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that formaldehyde is put in milk during the pasteurization process? I have just been told that this is the case. — D. G.

No, this is absolutely untrue. Formaldehyde is a powerful killer of bacteria, but (if sometimes other foods) to a moderate temperature which destroys bacteria.

It is, in fact, against the new Food and Drug Act to add chemicals to foods, and that takes care of this rumor about formaldehyde.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-year-old daughter has had an ulcer of the duodenum for two years. She has taken medicine and watched her diet but it still has not healed. What is your opinion of the new freezing method? Maybe you have heard of this. Or do you disapproved the method. — Mrs. V. S.

Yes, I've heard and read a lot about this method, and I respect the brilliant mind which developed the idea. But it is no magic panacea.

It entails some risk, regardless of how skilful control can be guaranteed to succeed for everybody, and it is not an easy way to get results. I would not ignore their diets and other methods of preventing new ulcers from forming. It doesn't give you a brand new stomach or duodenum. It should only be used only in carefully selected cases . . .

Never take a chance on dietetics! For better understanding of this disease write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 128, Dunellen, N. J., for a copy of the booklet "Diabetes — the Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed envelope and 30 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Strictly Personal
Author Gives Vent to Some Of His Gripes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is a mistake of immaturity to regard pain and suffering as things that "happen to" life, like so many raisins in a cake; they are, rather, the modes in which life itself is expressed, like the flour in every cake; and a person (or a people) who refuse to accept this truth may forever be afraid of life.

Woman is like a private fortress, and men who regard her like a public building are always shocked and surprised after they have successfully surmounted the "No Trespassing" sign, to find on the other side an even more implacable sign reading "No Exit."

To most persons, "symbolic" means the opposite of "real"; to a poet, symbols are the most concrete. The symbolic is more real than anything we call real in time or space.

The companies who make them, and the restaurants who serve them, have a lot to learn from labelling as "whipped cream" those luxurious, aerated toppings for pies, cakes, ices and sundaes, which bear about as much resemblance to whip, pot-cream as tinsel does to silver.

The only trouble with the "miracle dialog" is that if there are two men in the room, both of whom imagine they are geniuses, the issue is never joined.

I wonder if a speaker at a college commencement has ever dared to quote Valery's trenchant observation: "The diploma is only a phantom passe-partout, and its holders phantom rights. The holder of a diploma receives only the possessing knowledge . . comes to believe that society owes him something. Every form of examination seems created which is more unfortunate for everyone — the student, the instructed, in particular culture)."

An artist must be like an athlete, severely disciplined in his craft before he can take liberties with it; and nothing is more dismaying than the artist who has "gone beyond form" before he has demonstrated that he can come up to it.

To succeed with a crowd, one must seem two things at once: a part of them, and yet above them; for masses of people are afraid first of any identification in leadership — an unconscious common man.

Once a year we examine his conscience and find it "clear," there is no limit of the amount he can spend in that year.

"Everything absolute belongs to pathology," said Nietzsche, not realizing that his absolute statement is self-rejecting.

For the ancient and contemporaries, the danger lies in failing to see the subtle; for the expert, the danger lies in failing to see the obvious, in "thinking himself" out of blessed simplicity.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Tormont took over the role as the glamor issue of the stock market today as it more than doubled in price in active dealings.

In the first hour of trading it turned over more than 350,000 shares and climbed to 42 cents from 20 cents. Other speculative issues were also active. Glenn dipped four cents to 36 cents and Windfall 15 cents to $4.30. Genex eased five cents to 47 cents and Goldfields three cents to 65 cents. PCE explorations was ahead three cents to 61 cents.

Industrials made a ragged advance with the index climbing .02 to a new high of 159.20. Federal Grain was ahead 1 to a new high of 94 on continued rumors of a stock split and a takeover. Algoma Steel advanced ¾ to 73¾ and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 30¼.

Senior base metals pursued a lower course. Labrador slipped ¾ to a 1964 low of 33 while Denison declined ¼ to 15. Letch, sharp gainer Wednesday, shed off 45 cents to $5.30.

On Wednesday the market moved through a day of higher prices and heightened speculative activity.

Windfall and Leitch provided the largest changes among speculatives. The former gained 60 cents to $4.45 on volume of 206,200 shares. The company is drilling on its land in the Timmins area.

Leitch, after remaining dormant most of the day, came alive in a last-minute burst of trading and tacked on 80 cents to $5.75 on volume of 118,700 shares. The move had no apparent explanation.

Other speculative trading featured Glenn Uranium, which dipped 14 cents to 40 cents. Company President P. C. A. Gisdine said Wednesday the company had not encountered

The muskies are biting!

At least they are biting for Gordon Cooper of Belleville who has come up with the first big muskie of the season.

Gordon hooked the 22-pounder last night north of the city in the Moira River. The big fellow took nearly three-quarters of an hour to land.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was active on most classes of livestock on offer Tuesday. Steers, heifers and cows sold steadily, veal calves were lower. Fat hogs sold steady, sows were lower and weaned pigs sold steady. Good springers sold readily on a good demand, with smaller type heifers under pressure.

Following quotations:

Good heifers 18 to 20; medium 17 to 18; common 15 to 17.

Good cows 15 to 17; heifery cows as high as 18; medium 14 to 16; common and cutters 11 to 14.

Good heavy bologna bulls 17½ to 19; medium 15 to 17; common 13 to 15.

Choice veal 26 to 28; good 24 to 26; medium 22 to 24; common 20 to 22; boners 15 to 20.

Grade A Hogs 21 to 22 on live weight basis.

Light sows 15 to 16; heavy sows 13 to 14.

Shoats 22 to 23; weaned pigs $10 to $14 each.

Choice lambs 25 to 26.

Good work horses $100 to $150 each. Meat horses 7 to 8.

Need Amendments Says Magistrate

Set to impose a $10 fine against a driver who had his car improperly lighted, Magistrate T. Y. Wills discovered today the law allowed only a maximum $5 fine.

"I think some of these penalties need to be amended," commented the magistrate.

ONTARIO
LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATURE ON MINING

The Select Committee appointed by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario " . . . to enquire into and report upon methods of facilitating prospecting and mining exploration and development in Ontario and, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, such matters as the services available to the mining industry, regulations governing the financing of mining prospect and developments, the effects of mining taxation on the growth of the industry, health measures in the mining industry, and any other related factors the study of which would bring about renewed interest and activity in that industry and thus strengthen the economic position of the northern communities and Ontario as a whole", will begin to hold public meetings throughout the Province of Ontario commencing September 30th.

Mining and mining development, exploration and financing companies, mining associations, mining engineers, geologists and prospectors, labour unions, health and welfare agencies, municipal industrial commissions, community organizations and service clubs, groups of persons and individuals are invited to present submissions pertaining to any aspect of the mining industry in the Province of Ontario.

Notice of intention to make a submission to the Select Committee should be sent to the Secretary, not later than September 11th, accompanied by a copy of the brief, if available at that time, or at least a detailed summary of its contents and size.

The time and place of public hearings to be held by the Select Committee will be scheduled and publicized in the daily press of the communities concerned.

Miller, 46 and a Roman Catholic, would be calculated to bring to the ticket a skilled campaigner most for his experience and - terrible, political battling. Goldwater is an Episcopalian (Anglican).

Thursday night's single roll call, pursued to the end in the overcrowded Cow Palace, showed the overwhelming manner in which the Arizona senator had made his views popular with the 1,308 delegates. The count showed, Goldwater 883 and Scranton 214.

At this point a chipper and smiling Scranton appeared dramatically to walk the long length of the platform to the rostrum where he moved to make Goldwater's nomination unanimous. The hall burst at the seams with the thunder of approval.

Scranton, his face solemn for the moment, told the delegates that the time had come when "an honorable man can say that the sense of this great convention has become abundantly clear." His view had not prevailed, he conceded.

"The Republican party . . . must now emphasize its unity, not its differences," Scranton said. "We must now be about the business of defeating Democrat Lyndon Johnson and fully support the ticket chosen by this convention."

Former president Eisenhower commented that Scranton's call for party unity "has vastly increased our chances of victory in November."

Michigan Governor George Romney, withdrawing as a "favorite son" candidate, said the delegates were witnessing "the rebirth of Americanism in America."

To soften the bitter attacks they had made on him in the pre-convention campaign, New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and Scranton hurried to Goldwater's headquarters to talk with the winner.

In Washington, democratic national Chairman John M. Bailey issued a statement saying that the Republican party "has been captured by a radical minority . . . completely divorced from the heritage and principles of our nation."

In a obvious indication of the kind of campaign the Democrats intend to launch against Goldwater, Bailey added: "The radical minority has dictated the choice of a candidate whose purpose is to divide rather than unify the country and whose philosophy has been described by his own party members as a menace to the peace and progress of America."

Goldwater told reporters he accepted the nomination with humility. He referred to his grandfather, a Polish Jew who had emigrated to California to peddle wares more than 100 years ago. The family had gradually built up a department store fortune in Arizona. Now he wanted to do something for his country and his party. He wanted to stop the drift to dangerous centralism in the American government.

He would face a vigorous but clean battle against President Johnson in the fall campaign. He would try to strengthen American leadership abroad and help support the constitutional rights of states at home. And particularly he would try to reduce the high American crime rate so that it would be safe for American women to walk the streets again.

His subdued humble tone contrasted with his sharper response earlier in the day when he described Johnson as one of the "phoniest" individuals and the "biggest faker" he had ever met in United States. Goldwater said that if Johnson brought up the racial situation in the campaign, he would dig into Johnson's Senate record when he allegedly supported segregation.

Goldwater's acceptance speech, on which he began work several days ago, will follow that of the vice - presidential nominee's acceptance and wind up the convention today.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, July 15, 1964

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker again demanded a parliamentary inquiry into CBC operations be set up at this session of Parliament.

State Secretary Lamontagne again refused, noting that a special committee he appointed in May still is studying broadcasting laws.

René Paul (PC—Berthier-Maskinonge - Delanaudière) and Louis - Joseph Pigeon (PC — Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm) opposed the student loan bill.

Maurice Cote (SC—Chicoutimi) said he would support the student loans bill for practical reasons.

Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said Canada must not fall behind countries in spending on higher education.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said the loans bill needs some techni cal amending and Barry Mitchell (L — Brant-Haldimand) agreed.

Douglas-Home said later he did not know whether a constitutional conference could be called. He told a midnight press conference he could not express an opinion until he had been in consultation with Southern Rhodesia's Premier Ian Smith.

The communique also said the granting of independence was a matter to be decided by the British government but, as Pearson pointed out, Sir Alec showed considerable flexibility on the whole issue. The British had been saying at the beginning of the conference that the communique must not contain anything that might upset Smith's right wing followers, threatening to declare unilateral independence.

The Africans also gave ground as Douglas-Home refused a demand, spearheaded by President Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika - Zanzibar, that he should take the initiative now in calling a conference.

Always in the minds of the premiers here was the imminent summit meeting in Cairo. The African premiers did not want to arrive empty-handed on the colonial question at that meeting, which is under the chairmanship of Egypt's President Abdul Nasser.

It was finally agreed that:

—Southern Rhodesia should be given independence only under an African majority.

—The 200 African political prisoners there should be released.

—The only solution to the crisis was a constitutional conference.

The communique, which took some nine hours to draft, was not times a masterpiece of indefinite prose and practical interpretations on its meaning were expressed later.

Nyerere and Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya both expressed the opinion that Britain would use its powers of persuasion to induce Smith to attend a constitutional conference.

But New Zealand's Keith Holyoake commented that the Commonwealth failed to find a "strong statement" on Southern Rhodesia — "perhaps too strong for some."

Taking the temperature of the Commonwealth has become almost a full-time occupation for some circles in London at this time of change. The consensus is that it is too early now to make a long-term assessment of the just - concluded conference.

to pioneer stock and a grandfather who crossed the desert from California to Arizona to open the family store. One of his favorite campaign lines: "How he did it without federal aid, I'll never know."

Goldwater is six feet tall and weighs about 185 pounds. He has a well-developed tan. And he doesn't like to sit still very long.

He has spent more than 8,000 hours aloft as a military pilot and covered well over 1,000,000 miles as a Republican party fund-raiser.

Goldwater served six years as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee. That thrust him into national prominence as a relatively junior senator.

He is a major-general in the U.S. Air Force reserve, and one of two senators qualified to fly military jets.

Goldwater was born in Phoenix, the son of department store owner Baron Goldwater and a former Nebraska nurse. His mother had gone to Arizona when she supposedly developed tuberculosis. Doctors gave her six months to live. She proved them wrong.

In Phoenix schools, Goldwater was an athlete, a class president—and no scholar. His parents sent him to Staunton Military Academy in Virginia, and he was graduated in 1928.

Goldwater spent a year at the University of Arizona, but quit shortly after his father died and went to work at the store. He became general manager in 1936, later president and then chairman. The family sold the department store business in 1961.

He got into politics 15 years ago, running for the Phoenix City council on a reform ticket.

A year later, he managed the campaign that made Republican Howard Pyle governor of Arizona. In 1952, he took on Democratic Senator Ernest W. McFarland, then rated Arizona's top vote-getter, and beat him by 7,500 votes.

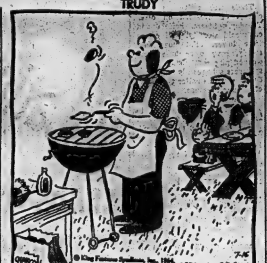
His wife, Peggy, has been at Goldwater's side on many of his campaign swings. She is sometimes shy, and it is no secret that she doesn't care for the campaign circuit. But in Phoenix, a person chats with women along the campaign path, she has helped spread the Goldwater image and message.

Sons Barry Jr. and Michael have done more travelling than their father at times, carrying the word to states the senator has not reached, speaking at colleges and thanking campaign workers.



Daughters Jo Anne—who is Mrs. Thomas Rose of Torrance, Calif., and Peggy—newly-wed to Richard Hoit of Los Angeles—have chipped in, too, at teas and ladies' gatherings.

hospital care of mental and tubercular patients.

The emphasis here seems to be on filling in existing health programs, such as hospital insurance, and pressing forward with the Canada Pension Plan before tackling such a sizable problem as medical care.

LEFT HISTORY

However, federal authorities indicated that they have a list of priorities on the medical care recommendations a d hope to compare that with the priorities of the provinces. Expanding medical education appears to be among the top federal priorities.

The hospital insurance extension was recommended a year ago by the Dominion Health council, which includes provincial government representatives, but federal authorities see big problems involved.

One estimate is that another $53,000,000 would be added to the federal government's share of the cost of hospital insurance without covering all mental care. The federal government expects hospital insurance to cost $420,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Federal authorities consider hospital insurance costs are getting out of hand and they are expected to initiate discussions on some form of cost control. Two other shared programs—hospital construction grants and health grants to the provinces—also are on the agenda for discussion.

withdraw from a hill position below Turkish-held St. Hilarion Castle. Greeks set up four new fortified dugouts on an uncocupied hill Monday night in what was believed to be a bid to cut Turkish supply lines between St. Hilarion and Temblos.

At Temblos itself, which lies in a valley almost directly beneath the ancient castle 2,000 feet up the mountain side, 36 shots were exchanged between Turkish defensive positions and nearby Greeks at noon.

It was the first such firing in months. Until the weekend there had been an unofficial understanding that the Turks would not defend Temblos if the Greeks left it alone. When Greek-Cypriot police enforced new restrictions on Turkish movements around the village during the weekend, Turks sent fighters into the village. Greek police now are threatening to begin patrols of Temblos and the Turks are likely to resist if such action fiercely.

Officials in Nicosia, who had been comparatively silent about growing tension, began indicating open concern Wednesday when pressed by reporters at a press conference. A UN spokesman said in reply to questions, that there had been a "deterioration" in the situation. He said negotiations were going on at all levels "to get things back to a normal level."

its third day of debate on second reading—approval in principle—of the bill which provides for federal guarantees of bank loans of up to $1,000 annually to needy university students.

The government will pay 5% percent interest on the loans for the duration of the borrower's studies and for six months afterward. Labor has announced it will opt out of the plan and accept a direct grant in compensation for lost benefits.

Opposition MP's indicated Wednesday they will introduce several amendments in committee-of-the-whole and the debate is expected to continue next week. Friday's sitting has been set aside for study of spendig estimates.

Wednesday's debate boiled down to a confrontation of "federalist" and "provincialist" attitudes to Confederation. The "federalist" view was argued in detail by Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard), who called for a strong central government.

"I am becoming alarmed at the constant attempts we see here to whittle away the power of the central Parliament," the 33-year-old lawyer said.

Mr. Pigeon and Mr. Paul said the provincial governments are closer to the people and better equipped than the federal government to assist and control education. The contribution clearly gave the provincial exclusive jurisdiction over the whole field.

Mr. Pigeon said some Liberal backbenchers have called for a federal department of education and he wondered whether the student loans represented the first step in that direction. Liberal governments had always strived to centralize powers in Ottawa.

Sisters Are Married In Double Ceremonies

A double wedding was solemnized at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville by Archdeacon A. S. McConnell when Patricia Jane Spry became the bride of Richard Wellesley Staples, and her sister Edith Ruth Spry exchanged vows with Charles Henry Stedall.

Miss Patricia Jane Spry and Miss Edith Ruth Spry, both of Peterborough are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spry of Belleville. Mr. Richard Wellesley Staples is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Staples of Peterborough, and Mr. Charles Henry Stedall of Peterborough is the son of Mrs. Lena Stedall of Margate, Kent, England, and the late Mr. Stedall.

The altar of the church was decorated with yellow shasta 'mums. Traditional wedding music was played by the organist Mr. Don Davenport for the processional and recessional airs and he also accompanied the junior choir boys who sang sacred selections.

Miss Patricia Spry was gowned in an elegant floor-length sheath form of French re-embroidered Alencon lace with a scalloped detachable bolero, delicately hand beaded at the neckline and accented with three-quarter sleeves. Her skirt flaring low at the back was complemented with a long cathedral watteau lace train caught to a tulle petalled headpiece worn in Anne Boleyn fashion.

Miss Ruth Spry looked charming in a silk organza sheath gown designed with a rounded neckline, long sleeves and chapel train. Hand clipped Alencon lace appliques adorned the front of the sheath at the neckline. Both brides carried yuletide roses and white stephanotis.

Miss Marie Eccles of Toronto was maid of honor for Patricia, and the bridesmaids who attended her were Miss Jerrine Spry, Peterborough, and Miss Deanna McCoy of Toronto.

Mrs. William Jones of Delaware was matron of honor for Ruth, with Miss Pearl McCaw and Miss Carol Stevens, both of Peterborough, as bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids of the former wore floor-length gowns of lemon yellow slub linen, and carried white and yellow 'mums. The latter's bridesmaids were aqua gowns and carried flowers tinted to match.

Mr. Edward Ward of Peterborough was groomsman for Mr. Staples, and Mr. Michael Godden of Montreal was groomsman for Mr. Stedall. Mr. William Cole of Belleville, brother-in-law of the brides, and Mr. Verne Hope of Peterborough were ushers for Mr. Staples. Mr. Michael Doyle of Peterborough and Mr. Kenneth Spry, brother of the brides ushered for Mr. Stedall.

A reception held at the Tope Motor Motel where the brides' table held two round three-tiered wedding cakes with crystal goblets filled with pink rosebuds, surrounded by matchmaker fern and baby's breath.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue dress of Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white and pink carnations.

Mrs. Staples wore pink linen with white accessories, and a corsage of a pink rosebud cluster. Mrs. Ed. Bateman, who received in place of Mrs. Stedall, wore beige lace with yellow 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Staples are spending their honeymoon in New York State. The bride wore a pink belted suit, black accessories and a single pink gardenia.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stedall are taking a wedding trip to England where they will visit relatives. Mrs. Stedall's travelling outfit was an aqua linen coat over a flowered silk sheath of aqua and white. Her corsage was light pink sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Staples will reside in Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Stedall will live in Peterborough.

The two sisters were honored at a personal shower in Toronto given by their cousin Miss Marie Eccles. Miss Sally Shrotter was hostess at a miscellaneous shower for Patricia Spry in Peterborough. A surprise shower was given for Ruth Spry by Miss Carol Stevens and Miss Pearl McCaw in Peterborough. Miss Jerrine Spry, Miss Deanna McCoy, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Kay McCoy and Mrs. Max Simmons entertained at a miscellaneous shower at St. Paul's parish hall in Marmora in honor of the two sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wellesley Staples and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Stedall are shown after their wedding in St. Thomas' Anglican Church on July 11th. Mrs. Staples was the former Patricia Jane Spry, and Mrs. Stedall was formerly Edith Ruth Spry. Both girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spry of Belleville.

Business Women Refuse To Discuss Flag Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Delegates to the biennial meeting of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs backed up their resolution committee Wednesday by refusing to discuss two resolutions proposing the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

The 400 delegates agreed with the committee's decision that the two flag resolutions were outside the organization's jurisdiction. The resolutions, submitted by clubs from Calgary and Nanaimo, B.C., called on the federation to petition the federal government to adopt the Red Ensign.

Earlier in the day federation members criticized the proposed Canada Pension Plan. A resolution submitted by the North Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club said the plan discriminated against unmarried contributors and contributors who had dependents other than wives or husbands.

The resolution, passed by a wide margin, said the federation will ask the federal government to broaden survivorship provisions of the plan.

The biennial convention, which ends tonight with an address by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, also set up a centenary year foundation, which hopes to collect about $42,000 from its members by 1967 for use in a centennial project. The project has yet to be chosen.

PORTER — ALLEN

Empey Hill United Church was the setting for the double-ring wedding ceremony when Sandra Jane Allen, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Allen, Marysville was united in marriage to Gordon Ralph Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Porter, Pontypool, at 3 p.m. on Saturday, July 4. Rev. R. Sweeney of Selby officiated before a background of potted ferns and sprays of orange blossom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length white bridal gown of peau de soie highlighted with a flowing shoulder to floor train. The bodice was enhanced with long illy-point sleeves. A finger-tip veil was caught by a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a spray of Shasta daisies interspersed with yellow roses.

Mrs. Joyce Owens of Kingston as matron of honor and Miss Patricia Allen, sister of the bride as bridesmaid, were identically attired in lime green chiffon over taffeta dresses and carried nosegays of tinted lime green 'mums. The little flower girl Miss Pamela Anne Morden of Belleville was ring-bearer dressed in white linen with yellow bontonnieres.

Mr. Cameron Porter of Pontypool attended his brother, while usher brother Kenneth Porter of Pontypool was the usher.

A reception was held in the basement of Empey Hill United Church where the bride's table was most attractive centred with a traditional wedding cake and flanked with white candles. Bouquets of red roses and pink and white streamers added to the attractive nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige dress trimmed with beige lace; a toque style hat with beige, brown and light orange trim with beige net, and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a blue lace dress with pastel shades, white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the honeymoon trip to a summer lodge in Muskoka the bride chose a white suit and hat, navy blue gloves and shoes and a corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a community shower by the women of Lonadale and Malrose; by women at Empey Hill at the home of Mrs. W. Sexsmith; at the home of Mrs. Jim Owens of Kingston; at the home of Mrs. G. Wakeling of Kingston, and at the home of Mrs. V. Foley, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter will reside at Scarborough.

Mr. and Mrs. John David Luffman are pictured following their marriage on Saturday, June 27, in the rectory of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Patricia Louise Rouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rouse, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Luffman, Belleville R. R. 5.

LUFFMAN — ROUSE

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized in the rectory of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, June 27, when Patricia Louise Rouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rouse, Belleville, became the bride of John David Luffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Luffman, Belleville, R. R. 5. The Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of white chiffon highlighted with a lace jacket enhanced with three-quarter length sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil flowed from a crown headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Alice May of Belleville, as maid of honor, wore a dress of pink chiffon accentuated with a lace top. She carried a bouquet of carnations. The little flower girl was Miss Jenna Rouse, sister of the bride, who wore a pink nylon frock and carried a basket of carnations.

Mr. Edward Luffman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception following the marriage was held in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Front Street, Belleville, where the bride's table was highlighted with a three-tier wedding cake with pink and green decor and flanked by pink and green candles. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a pink linen dress with lace jacket and a corsage of yellow carnations. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, attired in a white lace over powder blue dress with a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Cobourg, Port Hope, Hespeler, Sarnia, Orton, London, Shannonville, Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Luffman are residing at 3 Charles Court, Brampton.

BUSKARD — ALLEN

Rev. R. Sweeney of Selby officiated at a twin double wedding ceremony on Saturday, July 4, at 3 p.m. when Sylvia Joan Allen, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Allen of Marysville was united in marriage to Cameron William Buskard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Buskard, Foxboro. Potted ferns and sprays of orange blossom adorned the altar, while white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Throughout the ceremony traditional wedding music was rendered.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was identically attired to her twin sister Sandra, wearing a floor-length white bridal gown of peau de soie, highlighted with a flowing shoulder to floor train. The bodice was enhanced with long illy-point sleeves. A finger-tip veil was caught by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a spray of Shasta daisies interspersed with yellow roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Morden of Belleville, sister of the bride and the bridesmaid, Miss Diane Nicholson of Stouffville, were similarly attired in yellow chiffon over taffeta dresses and carried nosegays of yellow 'mums. The little flower girl for both brides was Miss Pamela Anne Morden of Belleville who wore a yellow chiffon over taffeta frock and carried a nosegay of tinted yellow 'mums. Master Christopher Morden of Belleville was the ring-bearer for both, dressed in white linen with yellow bontonniere.

Mr. Larry Buskard of Wapella, brother of the groom and Mr. Roger Pearce of Belleville was the usher.

A reception for both couples was held in the basement of Empey Hill United Church where the brides' table was most attractive, centred with a traditional wedding cake and flanked with white candles. Bouquets of red roses and pink and white streamers added to the attractive nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige dress trimmed with beige lace, a toque style hat with beige, brown and light orange trim with beige net, and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece linen suit edged with pink lace, white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to Upper Canada Village, Montreal and Ottawa the bride chose a yellow suit, yellow and white flowered hat, white and beige accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

Previous to the marriage a shower was held by the teachers of Bendale Public School in Scarborough; by the women of Lonadale and Melrose communities and by the women of Empey Hill at the home of Mrs. W. Sexsmith.

Mr. and Mrs. Buskard will reside in Brampton.

Ann Landers

Good Listener - Like Crane Is a Vanishing Breed

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a psychology major who seems perfectly content when it comes to handling other people's problems but I can't seem to handle my own.

My friends call me the poor girls' Ann Landers. Everyone pours out his troubles to me because I am so "patient, so understanding, so easy to talk to."

At parties I'm always stuck with the bores and the drunks who have no terminal facilities. They corner me and unravel stories of unrequited love, miserable relatives and the secret fears and doubts they just "couldn't discuss with anyone else."

ANN LANDERS

Frankly, I'm sick of it. My ears are battered and torn. What can I do? — CORNERED CORA.

• • •

DEAR CORNERED — Paste up those tattered ears and stay with it, Honey. The world needs you.

The good listener, like the whooping crane, is a vanishing breed. Everyone wants to talk, but few people are willing to listen.

I know about such things, because I hear from thousands of people every day who need to unburden themselves. Just listening can be a service.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 85-year-old mother is alert, pleasant and has a world of friends. She was getting along well until her companion and housekeeper died of a heart attack. The woman was only 57 and mother was deeply disturbed by her death. She now wants to move into a home for the aged.

My two sisters and I have offered mother a place in one of our homes but she is very stubborn. She promised herself a year ago she would never live with her children and nothing can change her mind.

Frankly, Ann, we think these homes are all right for people who have no other place to go, but when a mother has children right in town, it looks to outsiders as if they don't want to take her in.

Will you please tell her she is wrong and we are right? — LOVING DAUGHTERS.

• • •

DEAR DAUGHTERS — I suspect you girls are primarily concerning to know that a 13-year-old boy is going to sleep every mother feels.

She sounds like a wonderful woman and a smart cookie. I'm with her.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you please tell us what to do about a 13-year-old boy who still sucks his thumb?

Hugh is a good student and a fine athlete. We have never had any problems with him. He gets along fine with neighbors, friends and relatives. He started to suck his thumb when he was an infant and has never stopped.

When Hugh was four years old I spoke to our doctor about his thumb-sucking and he advised me to ignore it. A few years later I spoke to the doctor again because I had heard that thumb-sucking makes teeth grow in crooked. He said, "Nonsense. Forget it."

We have not mentioned this to Hugh in years but it is disconcerting to know that a 13-year-old boy is going to sleep every night with his thumb in his mouth. Do you have any advice—M.L.

• • •

DEAR M.L. — You doctor gave you good advice.

Parents should never shame, scold or threaten a child who sucks his thumb. Concentrate on giving the boy more attention and praise — and reassurance that he is loved. He clings to this childish habit because it gives him a feeling of security.

• • •

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with other problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped-self-addressed envelope.

Cookie Maker Special Baker

by Mary Moore

Good cookie bakers are in a class by themselves for they need patience and daperment. Here, about to give you a cookie recipe that will promote those who try it to the upper cookie class.

It is called Jelly Sandwich Cookies. The jelly has two purposes. It gives the cookies an attractive appearance and it serves to sweeten them too, for the lovely tender cookie dough calls for only ½ cup icing sugar.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Boiled Cured Ox Tongue; Horseradish Sauce; Buttered Broad Noodles; New Butter Beans; Cole Slaw; Lemon-Lime Sherbet; Tea.

SUNDAY (Guests)

1 cup soft shortening (¼ cup butter and ½ cup shortening are recommended), ½ cup icing sugar, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons milk (Gerald).

Cream together the shortening and icing sugar until light. Add vanilla. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add to the creamed mixture and stir in with the milk. Press into a ball, place on large piece of wax paper, flatten with the palm, wrap up and chill. (I put my dough in the freezer for 20 minutes.) Break off half of dough. (Keep remainder cold.) Pat out on lightly floured board. Turn dough over to lightly flour other side. Roll out to ⅛" thickness, patting and coaxing edge to make it even as you would shortbread. (This is a lovely plastic dough that handles easily, but do not dawdle or it will warm up and be difficult to lift.) Cut out half of dough with 2½" cookie cutter. (Top of a clean 10-oz. soup can is exactly right size.) Transfer to ungreased cookie sheet, placing them 1" apart. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 8 minutes (no more!). Roll out remaining chilled dough as above but cut them out with 2½" doughnut cutter and bake as above or if you do not have a doughnut cutter, cut out with 2½" cutter and make holes in centre by cutting them out with a cutter about 1" in diameter like a cap from a soft drink bottle. (Press all the cut-out holes together and roll and cut out bake them too.) Bake as above. Be sure not to burn any of these thin crisp cookies. Cool on racks. On solid cookies put a mixture of 1 teaspoon strawberry (or raspberry or red or black currant) jelly, spreading it a little to 2 sides to make cookies stick together. Put cookie rings on top. Now take a bite! (Gerald)

NOTES: 1) If you want to decorate these bothersome morsels, before baking moisten the tops of the rings by dipping your fingertips in milk and neatly brushing surface with it. Then sparingly apply shaved Brazil nut fibers or almonds. Milk will hold nuts on. Then bake as above. When the jelly sandwiches are made up with these pulpy top rings they look like French pastries. 2) This cookie dough could be cut out smaller (no rings) and used for sandwich cookies put together with icing such as lemon or chocolate or any icing you fancy.

END OF SIDNEY—The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held its meeting in the form of an interesting tour of the Erie Technological Products at Trenton on Wednesday evening, with Mr. L. R. Norton and Mr. Bud Hazelwood conducting the tour.

This company employs approximately 220 people who work in two eight-hour shifts. The boilers never shut down as it takes so long to obtain the degree of heat required. The work is so delicate that one wonders how the girls can pick up the minute parts as some are like mustard seed.

There are several laboratories where the engineers have worked out many projects to help the company. They have had to branch out since coming to Trenton. A great deal of work is done here for the Canadian government Erie produces a complete line of disc ceramic capacitors. They have also an outstanding reputation for quality and performance in meeting all requirements for radio, TV, industrial electronics and military equipment.

All space vehicles, missiles, or their ground support equipment depend on Erie Technological Products electric components and assemblies for reliability of launch, flight or data reporting. Erie engineers developed many of the electrical components so vital to these projects and these parts have to operate under extreme of temperature, humidity, vibration, shock, acceleration and barometric pressure. Even now they are at work on more complex, more exotic electronic devices for the future.

The new addition of Erie Products is most attractive with offices and laboratories with a special room where the officers of the company gather to discuss any problems, which is known as the conference room.

Mrs. Donald Sandercock expressed thanks to the gentleman in charge for a most enlightening tour.

BUSINESS MEET

Later the ladies gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Morgan for a business meeting. Mrs. Frank Sandercock, convener for agriculture and Canadian Industries was absent due to illness, so her daughter-in-law Mrs. D. Sandercock took over.

The president, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery took charge of the business portion when it was decided that members would bring plants to the showing at the Belleville Fair, with Mrs. John Reid to be convener of the display. Mrs. Reid also gave a report of a convention which she attended at Nova Scotia recently when over 500 delegates were present. She told of the election of the new president, of the Federated Institutes of Canada, Mrs. Philip Matheson, at Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

A contest was conducted by Mrs. Sandercock with Mrs. Bill Reid winning the prize. She also read a poem after which refreshments were served.

Subtlety Is the Keynote When Using Food Spices

TORONTO (CP) — The potentialities of Mrs. Indira Gandhi, the late prime minister Nehru's daughter and India's new information and broadcasting minister, are being widely discussed here.

There are reports in the press that the cabinet appointment, her first in the government, is only the beginning of a full-fledged political career. Prime Minister Shastri is said to be grooming her for the post of external affairs minister.

At present, Shastri himself is looking after portfolio of external affairs, but there has been a persistent clamor in the ruling Congress party that there should be a separate minister for foreign affairs.

The fact that Shastri fell ill within three weeks of assuming the prime ministership has strengthened the demand that he should delegate more of his powers.

It is generally believed in political and official circles that Shastri designated Mrs. Gandhi to represent India at the London Commonwealth conference along with Finance Minister T. T. Krishnamachari to give her an opportunity to demonstrate her diplomatic talents.

Mrs. Gandhi was Nehru's constant companion and became acquainted with the top statesmen of the world.

Within the Indian cabinet itself, Mrs. Gandhi has an important role to play as the mediator between the right, centre and left groups.

Like Prime Minister Shastri Mrs. Gandhi believes in democratic socialism with the accent on peaceful co - existence and co-operation between the public and private sectors of industry.

Many Indians seem to think that Mrs. Gandhi is the best person to make an attempt to heal the rift with Communist China and with Pakistan if she becomes external affairs minister, these will be the two issues on which her ability will be judged.

But there are also Indians who strongly argue that a woman should never be their country's external affairs minister. They think that China is a man's problem and what is needed is a tough policy towards Peking.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

A newspaper reporter suffered a death in his family. He discovered that a lot of well-meaning friends had tried to be helpful to him in his sad hour, but that few knew what to say or what to do. As a result, he determined to interview ministers, rabbis and priests in various parts of the country, to see what their practised wisdom had to suggest.

HELP TO BEREAVED

1. "Don't try to 'buck them up.'" It only makes your friends feel worse when you say "Come now, buck up. Don't take it so hard." A man who has lost his wife must take it hard — if he loved her. "Bucking him up" seems as though you are minimizing his loss.

2. "Don't try to divert them." It is far better, when making a condolence call to sit silently and say nothing, than to make obvious attempts to distract. When the visitor leaves, reality hits the mourner all the harder.

3. "Don't be afraid to talk about the person who has passed away." One rabbi called on a woman who had lost her brother. I didn't get to my brother too well," he said. "Tell me about him."

The woman started talking and they discussed her brother for an hour. Afterward, she said: "I feel relieved now for the first time since he died."

4. "Don't be afraid of causing tears." To express grief in a normal way is far better than to stifle grief when friends are present, only to have it descend more crushingly when one is all alone.

5. "Let them talk." Friends worry about their ability to say the right things. They ought to be worrying about their ability to listen.

6. "Perform some concrete act." A concrete deed, though small in itself, carries the immense implication that you care.

7. "Swing into action." Action is the symbol of going on living. Sorrowing people tend to drop out of things By "swinging into action" with your friend, you help build a bridge to the future.

8. "Get them out of themselves." Once you have your friend doing things for himself, his grief is nearly cured. Once you have him doing things for others, it is cured.

Sympathy is the mark of our humanity. But we need to be trained in its art and its application. What that means is learned, more of us need to know.

Former Television Star Happy as Wife, Mother

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Charles Templeton, known to television audiences as singer Sylvia Murphy, is settled happily into a second career as housewife and mother while her husband is switching his career to politics.

Sylvia Templeton intends to continue devoting most of her time to looking after her four children and her luxurious suburban home even as her husband pursues the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party and campaigns for a place in the provincial legislature in Toronto Riverdale, where a by-election is due soon.

Charles Templeton has been an evangelist, television performer and newspaper man and gave up his position as managing editor of the Toronto Star to enter politics.

His wife, who starred in CBC's Music Makers television show in 1958, says she has given up television work.

"I was never really a career girl although I enjoyed my work, she says. "And I always have an audience of five at home.

MAKES CLOTHES

As a performer, she earned a little in the way of campaigning to help Chuck, but with four young children I'll have to spend most of my time at home.

U.C.W. Meeting

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — The July meeting of the Eggleton United Church Women was held on Thursday afternoon at Eggleton Church with 11 adults and three children present.

The president, Mrs. W. Hawlow opened the meeting by reading a poem. The commentary on the Bible lesson was given by Mrs. Bert Reid.

The community friendship secretary reported on calls made on sick and cards sent out during the month. Mrs. B. Reid reported on the finances of church treasury. A letter received from a member of Sidney Baptist Church was read, extending an invitation to attend special services to be held each Sunday evening during July and August at Bird's Beach, Oak Lake.

August meeting of U.C.W. is to be held on regular date at Eggleton Church with Mrs. Mervice Clancy and Miss Dianne Prest in charge of the program.

A chapter from the book "The Word and the Way," "The Bible — the Word of God" was well presented by Mrs. Raymond Chambers followed by a short discussion period.

Mrs. Carl Reid spoke briefly describing the Eskimos at Great Whale River and their sincere Christian attitude toward the Protestant faith.

Mrs. Hawlow welcomed all visitors present; expressed thanks to Mrs. Chambers, Mrs. Reid and all others assisting on program.

Mrs. Bridges gave the closing prayer.

'Artful' Apt Description Of Geisha Girls Who Prey On Frailities of Males

TOKYO (Reuters) — Whichever of many reasons brings foreign tourists to Japan this year, they will have one common denine—to see the geishas.

The literal translation of geisha is "art person"—but artful would perhaps be a more exact description of these women, young and not so young, trained in every wile to play upon the frailties of the gullible male.

Most geishas are affluent in their late 20s, particularly these days when patrons think nothing of buying them a sleek car for Christmas and blocks of company shares at weekends.

An evening with a geisha can be expensive. The equivalent of about $500 does not go far at a Tokyo geisha party today.

Nor is a geisha party anything approaching even a very discreet little "affair" on the side. The whole thing is so "cultural" that it has been known to bore many a foreigner even to the extent of going to sleep.

The atmosphere is restful, with the emphasis on simplicity.

The guests are ushered, by giggly maids and solicitous hostess, into a traditional Japanese all-purpose room.

The room has finely woven straw mats on the floor, a long low table with cushions and portable lacquered arm-rests, an alcove with a painted scroll and a vase with delicately arranged flowers.

SERVE SAKE

Sake (rice wine) and incredibly sweet cakes are served with bitter green tea. Then there is a meal.

Then come the geishas.

Much painted, with faces, arms and nape of the neck all stark white, bewigged and clad in exotic kimonos, they bow their foreheads to the floor to titillate the guests.

The geisha's costume without a single piece of jewelry, is worth about $1,000. And each geisha worth her salt has a couple of dozen costumes.

They sing, dance, play children's games, occasionally try the twist, snigger gracefully behind raised hands and make the Japanese version of sheep's eyes while pouring wine into tiny cups.

When the guests are sufficiently advanced toward a bangkok, unsuitable hints are given that the hour has come.

And that is it.

GEISHA LATER

And the cars and company shares? They are generally acquired when the geisha becomes the confidante of businessmen and politicians.

Madame Butterfly, vintage 1964, can sit with a financial czar and talk banking or oil or shipping. She knows retail chain stores and mass catering and could probably teach Monsoon how to run a tourist resort.

She can play golf, drive a sports car, bowl and probably throw an average male with a judo flip.

And she can strum a guitar, talk opera and the classics as well as naming every Beatle and the record on top of the Hit Parade in New York, London or Bombay.

Successful Living

True Love; Infatuation Are Really Poles Apart

What is this thing called love? A girl of 15 writes in:

"I love this boy and he says he loves me. But he insists on flirting with the other girls. How can I stop him?"

Or it goes like this: "We are both 17, and we plan to get married. Please do not tell me it is puppy love."

At 18 she says: "He wants me to go all the way with him because he loves me. Doris, do you think I should?"

Then there's the boy who says: "I really love this girl but she is not interested in a single thing that I want to do."

DORIS CLARK

It's not just the young people who falter. An ordained minister of 26 writes from rural Canada to ask, "What is real love like anyway? Is it supposed to hit you all of a sudden? I, like a girl of 29 whom I have taken out a couple of times, but I can't say I notice any sparks flying between us!"

The fact of the matter is that the satisfying, lasting regard that means wedded bliss is only distantly related to its step-cousin, infatuation.

When it happens between healthy adolescents of both sexes, when it's part of the glamor of going to school or to dances, or to ball games, you can be sure there is a devastating ingredient of masculine-feminine attraction to that butterflies-in-the-stomach feeling. It's wonderful! It's thrilling!

Sometimes it's so overwhelmingly strong that it takes uncommon common sense and control to recognize it for what it is and handle it accordingly.

Now the real thing is different again, and here are some of the earmarks:

1. Love is not possessive. It gives the loved one freedom to be herself.
2. Love is sympathetic. There is an eager interest in sharing what the beloved finds enjoyable.
3. Love is not jealous — which is a self-centred characteristic of an immature person.
4. Love "seeketh not her own." Never an attitude that, "If you really loved me, you'd give yourself to me!" Nor — "If you won't be my girl, I'll commit suicide!" But rather, "If you think you can find someone who could make you happier than I can, I won't stand in your way!"
5. Love shows a willingness to trust — to trust enough to discuss things which are serious, like finances, education, religion.
6. Love is outgoing; shows a willingness to protect and to help.

You can't find these things out overnight. It may indeed be that first dazzling physical spark can strike like lightning, but until we develop acquaintanceship into companionship, we cannot know whether the character behind the charming front belongs to "my kind of guy" or "my kind of girl."

It's easier to spot these things after you have been associating with the other sex for several years. At 18, or 19 or 20, you can believe the evidence of your eyes and ears better than you can at 15. Marriages after 20 have twice as much chance of succeeding as those happening all too frequently with teen-agers.

Love at its best means the kind of thing that the lucky ones observe between their parents: the devotion that makes mother and dad pull together with three children sick in bed and bills piling high; or two older people able to share a joke in the face of a family crisis.

—DORIS.

3 Women, One in Napanee, Become Deputy Sheriffs

TORONTO (CP)—If you depend on television Westerns for your idea of what a deputy sheriff should look like, you're in for a shock in several parts of Canada.

In three places you won't find a man at all. If you happen into Red Deer, Alta., you'll find Jean Clare Gillette, in Ontario's Muskoka district it's Annie Bruce. And in Napanee, Ont., W. Stitch is the deputy.

The existence of three women deputy sheriffs is among the intelligence turned up by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in its annual survey of women's accomplishments.

This year's list of women in public life, compiled by Nora Hoyt of Moncton, N.B., and published in the federation magazine, reports a number of firsts.

Beryl Russell is described as the first foreman of a murder trial jury in Vancouver and Dorothy Fleming Saint John the first woman member, of a murder jury in New Brunswick.

Vera B. Myers of Fergus, Ont., is the first woman in the 150-year history of Wellington County to be appointed county clerk-treasurer.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Mrs. Henry Krug of Kitchener, Ont., became the first woman citizen of the year by the Kitchener Waterloo Chamber of Commerce.

Marianne Cost is the first woman secretary of the French section of the Canadian Industrial Management Association.

Women also continue to make progress in cracking fields formerly the preserve of men a year ago there were two women bank managers. Now there are three—Nellie A. Wilson, of Calgary, Jean K. Begg in Halifax and Shirley Giles in Toronto. Mrs. Mellenthin is an assistant manager in Fredericton.

In Sandspit, B.C., Pearl Pearson is a governess-wharfinger, in charge of a wharf where cargoes are loaded and unloaded.

The number of women may even have risen since 1962. There now are 15 compared with 12. There are 13 women in provincial legislatures, the same as in 1962, and there are three women MPs, down two.

Women have accumulated a variety of honors. Simma Holt, Vancouver Sun reporter, was named honorary fire chief for work in publicizing fire prevention; Mona Wilson of Charlottetown won the Florence Nightingale Medal given by the international Committee of the Red Cross, and Dr. Ethlyn Trapp of West Vancouver received a citation from the Canadian Medical Association for work on cancer research.

TROOPS READY

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The commander in chief of the Chinese Nationalist Army said Sunday his forces are combat ready and could attack the Communist-held Chinese mainland once the signal is given. Gen. Liu Ao-Chi, in a television interview, said the army had continued to improve its equipment and training from the time the Chinese Nationalist government transferred its seat to Formosa from the mainland in 1949.

Greece Gets New Queen In September

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Greece will get a new queen when the Hellenes next Sept. 19—a strong-willed girl who soon see as headed into a "political symbol."

On that date, Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark, youngest of the three Danish princesses and by then 18 years old, will marry King Constantine in Athens.

The Danish press hinted at this soon after King Constantine ascended the throne following the death last March of his father, King Paul, husband of the strong-willed and energetic Queen Frederika.

One newspaper commented that the princess would be cast "straight from a girls' school into a political typhoon." It added that it would be difficult to "this very young girl suddenly to be forced to make important decisions."

Princess Anne-Marie was still at schoolgirl attending a school for princesses this year when her engagement to Crown Prince Constantine was announced.

FIRST IN CENTURIES

Princess Anne Marie will be the first Danish princess to marry a Greek king for nearly 300 years. The last one was Princess Ulrikke Leonore of Denmark, who married King Charles XI of Sweden in 1680.

Raised in the democratic tradition of the Danish royal family, the tall, graceful but rather shy princess was almost unknown in her country until when the engagement was announced.

She took a job this spring as helper at a day nursery in a suburb of Copenhagen where she learned to take care of young children.

At her finishing schools, the princess learned to cook, make dresses and do other household tasks. She grew close to the Danish court say that Princess Anne - Marie is a proficient dressmaker, and many of the dresses which she wears at official functions she has made herself.

She is also fond of cooking but she detests washing dishes.

During dairy month and throughout the year, garnish simple and elegant desserts with swirls of rich whipped cream. The Foods Department of Macdonald Institute, Guelph, describes the following hints for special whipped cream toppings. Sweeten whipped cream with honey or brown sugar to taste. For a chocolate flavored treat, whip 1 cup heavy cream, ½ cup confectioner's sugar, ¼ cup cocoa and a dash of salt. Almond or lemon flavorings, nutmeg, or ginger add a sparkle to whipped cream icings.

Whipped cream can be frozen satisfactorily in air tight containers report home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. To freeze left - over cream that is already whipped, just pack it in tightly closed cartons and store up to one month. These whipped cream in container until it can be spooned out easily.

Dairy sour cream made from cultured fresh cream containing 16 to 18 percent butterfat has a tangy flavor and smooth, custard - like texture. Combined with hot vegetables, gravies, casseroles or fruit salads, sour cream perks up any meal.

W.C.T.U. Sponsored Camp Enjoys Ten Days' Session

The annual 10-day session of the Consecon children's camp, located on Lake Consecon, in Prince Edward County, was held from July 2nd to 11th. This is sponsored by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Prince Edward, Hastings, and Lennox and Addington counties. This year the registration was 50 and a staff of eight members. The leaders included: Miss Edna Grant, Toronto, as director; Mrs. H. H. Langford, Napanee, as camp mother; Miss Gladys Hall, Toronto, registered nurse; Bible teacher, Mrs. E. Muscles, Belleville; temperance, Sharon Hall, Belleville, and Miss Edna Grant; swimming instructress Diana Parsons, Trenton; crafts, Miss Margaret Mitchell, Newburgh; cooks, Mrs. M. Bentley and daughter Margaret, of Milford. The campers came from Toronto, Picton, Belleville, Deseronto, Milford, Campbellford, Napanee and Trenton.

In Bible instruction, the theme was "Heroes of the New Testament." In temperance instruction, the course followed was "Uses and Abuses of Alcohol." There were also two groups based on the Mother Goose theme The Humpty Dumpties, the So-Peeps, the Bide in the Shoe, and the Blackbirds.

The highest award went to the Humpty Dumpties for cabin maintenance and co-operation. The best camper was Mary Kristan of Campbellford, who also won the award for the memorizing of 85 Bible verses. Anna Lyn Walker won the best mixer award and delighted the camp with her accordion music. Ruth Ann Mills also entertained the group with her accordion music at vespers and campfire. Highlights of the session were Canada Night, International Night, Music Contest, Sports Day and a Walking Church.

Kampus Kops took on the duty of keeping the grounds cleared up, exacting penalties also for litter bugs. Hoppers did fag duty in the diningroom.

VISIT CAMP

On Wednesday, a group of WCTU executive members from Belleville visited the camp, accompanied by Mr. Bram Humphreys, a Salvationist and temperance worker. He worked strenuously to promote the raising of funds and purchase of the campsite and necessary renovations, one of which was the erection of the new dining hall and kitchen in 1966.

He spoke briefly of the distressing cases he encountered in his work through the abuse of alcohol.

The other visitors were: Mrs. M. Farnsworth, Mrs. G. E. Coulter, Miss Myrtle Barnum, and Mrs. Packman of Toronto. She is the widow of Rev. Packman who took his ministry to the beverage rooms in Toronto.

At vesper service, Mrs. Packman spoke to the campers.

She was presented with a ribbon corsage of roses by Christine Thompson, which the latter had made in craft class.

Miss Margaret Mitchell ably instructed the campers in the making of snoney moc purs ribbon corsages, Christmas cal projects, octopus wool dolls "Animules," mosaics in porcelain tile, plaster bust framers, plaques and crushed stone pictures.

Gratitude was expressed to Mr. Don Welbanks and Mr. Q. Moniker, for the erecting of the new building with wash basins and flush toilets, and to Mr. James Dart for his excellent visit as farmers manager. All three are men upon whom the camp can call in case of emergencies and they always respond promptly and willingly.

Thanks were expressed to the OGIT girls from Wellington for cleaning up the camp and having it ready for campers at the beginning of the season. Their leader is Mrs. James Dart. Mrs. Don Welbanks assisted her husband and the camp in an enormous way, and was thanked also.

QUESTION: I visited a friend's home last weekend and she stayed with me in the guest room while I unpacked my bag. I had brought along a towel and face cloth, primarily because I didn't want to give her extra laundry, but when she spotted them she said she had plenty of towels and it was not necessary to bring my own bath things. I thought I was being helpful, but now I wonder if I hurt her feelings. Don't you think it's more considerate to bring one's own towel instead of putting an extra burden on the hostess' laundry? — C. K. Y., Cleveland, Ohio.

ANSWER: Unless one has a skin problem that necessitated separate laundering of towels and face cloths, one does not bring a special supply along when visiting overnight.

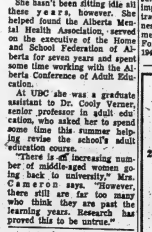
QUESTION My teen - age daughter visited her aunt for a week, and while she was there a neighbor's daughter invited her to several parties and picnics given by her crowd. I do not know the family, but I think my daughter should send the girl a little gift for showing her so much hospitality. My mother says it's not necessary since she often brings the girl gifts when she goes on a trip and always remembers her on birthdays and other special occasions. What would you suggest I do about this? — Mrs. W. A., Troy, N. Y.

ANSWER: Your daughter should send her a note thanking her for including her in the group social activities during the stay Even though your sister gives the girl occasional gifts it still would be considerate for your daughter to send her a slight token on her own behalf. Her mother also should be thanked, and I think it would be advisable for both you and your daughter to send her separate notes of appreciation. This may seem like a lot of thank-yous, but, when people go out of their way to be kind and friendly, I think their efforts should be acknowledged.

Mother Well On Way for M. A. Degree

CALGARY (CP) — Twenty-five years ago illness forced Mrs. J. G. Cameron to abandon studies she hoped would lead to a master's degree in adult education.

But she never gave up hope and today, having raised two sons, she is well on her way to her goal.



She spent two years completing her senior matriculation here, then spent four summers at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., getting a BA in psychology.

Mrs. Cameron has completed her first year at the University of British Columbia and in the fall will return to Vancouver to take the second and final year for her MA.

She hasn't been sitting idle all these years, however. She helped found the Alberta Mental Health Association, served on the executive of the Home and School Federation of Alberta for seven years and spent some time working with the Alberta Conference of Adult Education.

At UBC she was a graduate assistant to Dr. Cooly Verner, senior professor in adult education, who asked her to spend some time this summer helping revise the school's adult education course.

"There is an increasing number of middle-aged women going back to university," Mrs. Cameron says. "However, there still are far too many who think they are past the learning years. Research has proved this to be untrue."

Candidate for Leadership Asks for Reduction of U. S. Control of Canadian Unions

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Andrew Thompson, a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, Wednesday evening called for a special session of the Ontario legislature to amend the Ontario Labor Relations Act to restrict United States control of Canadian unions.

Mr. Thompson used the current strife between the three Toronto daily newspapers and the International Typographical Union (CLC) to illustrate his point at a meeting of the Kitchener Liberal Association. He was one of several leadership aspirants to speak.

In Toronto, Robert McCormack, president of the Toronto Typographical Union, angrily denied the charge of international control of the Toronto local and said that if Mr. Thompson is looking for trade union support for himself or his party he is going about it the wrong way.

Mr. Thompson said: "For the people of Ontario, one fundamental question is the unnecessary interference of American union bosses in our affairs. Whether it is interference from foreign management or foreign unions is not the point. These problems should be solved by Canadians.

"We are told agreement has been reached on three separate occasions between the bargaining representatives of the Toronto Typographical Union and the publishers during the last 22 months, only to be vetoed by an American hierarchy comfortably ensconced in Colorado Springs. One gets the impression these Colorado bosses are making suckers of us in Canada."

WANTS ACTION

He said the Ontario government must take action to make sure this sort of dispute is resolved locally.

"If our legislation does not provide for us being masters of our own house, whether with regard to foreign management or foreign labor, then Premier Robarts should call a special session of the legislature to amend our Labor Relations Act".

"By this I mean that once decisions have been made between Ontario management and labor, no foreign power should be able to change them. We must ensure Canadian disputes are settled by Canadians."

He said that through the years he had good relations with many of Ontario's labor leaders and had the highest regard for their ability. "There is no possible reason for their decisions to be vetoed by outsiders."

Mr. McCormack said his reaction to Mr. Thompson's statement is "is that it is a pack of lies."

GIVEN NAME

He said the union was given the name international in 1869 to accommodate the entry of Canadian affiliates and local members have expressed support of the international through choice and by democratic procedures. He said both Canadians and U.S. citizens are members of the international executive.

"I think Mr. Thompson should be a lot more careful in what he says and that he should check out his facts before he starts spreading such nonsense," Mr. McCormack said.

Such statements should get quite an adverse reaction from Canadian trade unionists connected with international unions, he said. How could 7,000 Canadian printers support the present dispute with Toronto publishers compared with 110,000 members of the international?

SWITCH ALLEGIANCE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The California Democratic central comittee reported Wednesday that the pending nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as Republican candidate for president had brought a flood of calls from Republicans who want to back Democratic President Johnson. Van Dempsey, the committee's executive secretary, said in a statement the headquarters phones were jammed with calls Wednesday.

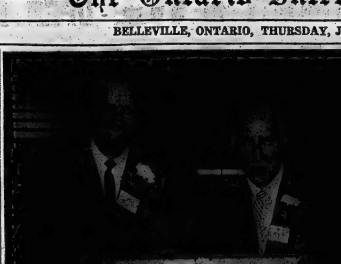
Three Toronto Dailies Bring Out Biggest Issues Since Strike Began Eight Days Ago



TORONTO (CP)—The three Toronto daily newspapers published relatively - full editions Wednesday, the seventh day of a strike by their 880 printers.

During a one-day lull in discussions sponsored by the Ontario government, the papers brought out their biggest issues since before the walkout. The morning Globe and Mail ran 30 pages plus its eight-page three-weekly Report on Business, and in the afternoon The Star had 36 pages and The Telegram 34.

Supervisory and office personnel were manning the composing rooms as well as filling in for the 200 mailers who refused to cross picket lines of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC). The mailers belong to a separate local of the ITU with their own contracts permitting them to walk out during a printers' strike.

The strike front was without incident during the day as both sets of negotiators maintained silence while waiting for the resumption of meetings today with Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer in the provincial labor department.

On their own, the negotiators were severally married in a series of issues. The key point originally was that of jurisdiction over electronic computers doing composing room work. Then the managements put into effect some work changes that had been agreed on individually but not yet written into contract. The union took on this as a major issue, and also as justification for calling the situation a lockout by the management.

For Many Britons, Goldwater Is the "Ugly American"

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Senator Barry Goldwater's advance to the Republican throne room in the United States has a faraway audience frozen in something akin to horror.

Bemused Britain watches the drama being played out in San Francisco with the inspection feelings of a remote spectator who sees a runaway vehicle approaching the cliff-edge and can't do anything to stop it.

"It has all the inevitability of Greek tragedy," a student of American politics.

International affairs usually consist of shades of grey, but to Goldwater Britain and Europe have fastened on a villain they can view in stark terms of black and white.

'UGLY AMERICAN'

For many Britons, he is the "Ugly American," a man whose over-simplified approach to foreign policy makes him seem the biggest sick joke of them all. Despite his quiet-spoken charm, he is seen as representing an upsurge of raw, raucous political primitivism.

So strong is the European view that Robin Day, a careful commentator, went on BBC television the other night and said without qualification that Goldwater represented a victory for "ignorance and extremism".

Such opinions, echoed in pubs and clubs and in street-corner conversations, shows the interdependence of the Western world. When Uncle Sam sneezes, Europe catches cold.

Just as the death of the late President Kennedy produced a profound reaction in admiring European, so Goldwater has a reverse effect. Perhaps the greatest fear is of a rampant, irrational isolationism, stoking an aggressive foreign policy that would be worse than isolationism as the "fortress America" concept.

POWER SWITCH SEEN

British Press comment, universally critical, sees Goldwater's apparently unstoppable march as reflecting a significant switch in American power from the sophisticated eastern seaboard, traditional stronghold of Republican strength, to the frontier societies of the south and west.

One result of Goldwater ascendancy, it is argued, may be to alienate the opposition political parties to reconsider their stands on nuclear defence. If a Goldwater is in power, the politicians may say, it behooves Britain to look to its own defences.

One further reaction in Britain involves a sharp devaluation in the reputation of former president Eisenhower. Once a symbol of a victory for freedom, he is being portrayed here as an old man, full of fumble and bumble, who by his "waffling" allowed the Goldwater victory to happen.

Stock Exchange Emphasizing Role as Public Watch-Dog

Criticized in the past for not fulfilling its job as policeman, there have been signs recently that the exchange has drawn a line.

Its most recent stand was taken with Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. The exchange told executives of Windfall Friday it must make a statement satisfactory to the Toronto Stock Exchange, outlining progress on Windfall's property in the Timmins area.

This demand on the company to inform the public came after a week in which Windfall traded more than 6,000,000 shares and climbed to $4.10 from 56 cents.

The exchange's action brought almost immediate results. Windfall outlined its progress, and two days later Glenn Uranium Mines Ltd. voluntarily issued a statement on its progress following a day in which it traded more than 2,500,000 shares and climbed to a high of 65 cents from a low of 27 cents.

Another example of the exchange's efforts to protect the public was demonstrated June 19 when a letter was sent to listed companies reminding them of their obligations to shareholders.

The letter says in essence if a company is doing something that will affect its market action, tell the public immediately.

During the great trading spree in April when volumes on the Toronto market reached unprecedented levels, Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, exchange president, warned speculators that they must be prepared to lose money or stay out of the market.

Recently the board of governors of the Toronto Stock Exchange suspended member firm John Frame and Co. for not having sufficient net free capital to satisfy exchange requirements.

In heavy trading the exchange has started to delay the opening of stocks frequently so that orders may be matched, thus ensuring that a stock would not rocket higher at the opening and then sag as the initial flood of orders ran dry.

Windfall Mines Starts Drilling To Finish Hole

TORONTO (CP) — Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. will recommence drilling shortly to complete the first hole on its property near Timmins, J. R. Kimber, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, said Wednesday.

"When this drilling has been completed, the cores will be assayed and the results announced forthwith," Mr. Kimber said in a statement.

"No information will be released by the company in regard to the cores until the assays are complete."

The company announced Monday that no further drillings had been done on its Fresser Township property and that core samples of the completed portion of the first drill had not yet been sent for assay.

The announcement followed a request from the Toronto Stock Exchange that the company clarify its position after the stock had fluctuated widely on the market.

Windfall rose 70 cents on the stock market Wednesday to close at $4.45 on a turnover of 506,200 shares.

Police Issue Warrant for Man's Arrest

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Wednesday issued a warrant for the arrest of Robert William Dale, 36, of Dearton, Mich., on a charge of capital murder in connection with the death of William Francis Charters, 27, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Police said Charters had been dead about a week when his partly decomposed body was found June 23 five miles south of here in some bushes by two youths. They said he left Sault Ste. Marie with another man June 27. The cause of death has not yet been determined.

Police said a man tried to sell Charters' car in nearby St. Catharines June 19 but failed to return to a used car lot after the owner said he wanted to check on liens against the vehicle. The car is still missing.

Inspector Archibald Eady of the provincial police said Dale was released from Michigan state prison in April.

New Terminal Warehouse Of Smith Transport Opened By Minister of Transport

The cabs of the newest transports have all the comforts of a deluxe auto, and when drivers pull off the highway for overnight stops, even sleeping accommodation is provided at terminal warehouses.

Bedrooms for the drivers are only a few of the fine appointments at the new Smith Transport warehouse at Belleville opened yesterday by Hon. Irwin Haskett, Minister of Transport for the Province of Ontario.

RECENTLY COMPLETED

Recently completed by The Patham Company Ltd., general contractors of this city, the new warehouse south of 401 Highway at 229 University Ave., in the former Hillcrest district, provides terminal facilities for the big Smith Transports rolling up and down the highways.

Thirty-six hundred square feet of domestic terminal warehousing space is provided along with a separate sufferance warehouse for custom bonded shipments. In all there are 16 unloading bays in the new terminal which represents an investment of $200,000.

The Smith warehouse is the first building in the city's industrial area in Hillcrest. A new paved roadway from 37 Highway was built by the city to serve the area.

In addition to warehouse space the new terminal has up-to-date office accommodation along with employees' lunch-room and sleeping accommodation for six drivers.

COMPANY PRAISED

Transport Minister Haskett congratulated Smith's on their new Belleville terminal warehouse, which he said was the fourth such structure to be opened by the company to serve its far ranging transport network.

He said Belleville was fortunate in being chosen as the warehouse site as from it will flow big benefits to the city and area.

Mayor Haskett spoke of the benefits to everyone as the result of the modern day trucking industry and said it would be difficult to visualize life without the benefits of automotive transport.

Since its inception 45 years ago Smith's has grown into an organization with 2,500 employees, the company handling between six and seven thousand shipments each day.

The local terminal provides employment for 43 men and four women.

The company will close out its former location on Dundas Street East from where it has operated for the past 31 years.

OFFICIALS PRESENT

Local manager for Smith's, Mr. J. A. Boyle, emceed the official opening program. Among company officials present were R. C. Barnstead, president and R. E. Wilkes, vice president.

In lieu of the official "ribbon cutting" ceremony, the transport minister aided by the two senior company officials trundled a cartload of freight across the warehouse.

Arriving guests received boutonnieres and name tags and were taken on conducted tours of the new building and displays of the latest in transport equipment. Following opening ceremonies a buffet luncheon was served.

Record Acreage Of Wheat Sown On Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—Prairie seeding of wheat this year rose to an estimated record of 29,080,000 acres, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

The preliminary report, based on a June 1 survey, showed that the 1964 acreage represents a gain of five per cent compared with the previous record of 27,750,000 acres in 1960.

This year's acreage, including durum wheat, is up eight per cent compared with 25,996,000 acres in 1963, third largest acreage on record.

However, the bureau said in its seventh telegraphic report, prairie crop prospects range only from favorable to poor. This report is based on information from selected correspondents received up to Tuesday night.

Only scattered showers fell in the Prairies during the last week and temperatures remained above normal. Crops in southern districts of all three Prairie provinces are developing well and prospects remain favorable in these areas.

Drought still persists in large areas of central and northcentral Saskatchewan.

Dr. S. Sheppard, Convicted Of Slaying Wife, Released But Will Face New Trial

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard, convicted of slaying his wife in one of the most sensational American murder cases, has been ordered released by a court from Ohio Penitentiary after serving nearly 10 years of a life term. But he must face a new trial.

And the former osteopath, only months away from possible parole, appears to have another battle coming up even for temporary freedom pending the new trial.

U.S. district court Judge Carl A. Weinman in Dayton ruled Wednesday that the 40-year-old Sheppard was denied his constitutional rights in his 1954 trial in Cleveland. The trial resulted in his conviction in the bludgeon slaying of Marilyn Sheppard. Weinman said Sheppard's custody is "void" and if Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) takes no action within 60 days the release becomes final.

Weinman's 86 - page decision denounced the coverage given the case by three Cleveland newspaper and said publicity by three well-known radio commentators and columnists.

The judge, acting on a request for a writ of habeas corpus, ordered Sheppard's release under $10,000 bond.

WILL SEEK STAY

John Corrigan, Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) prosecutor, who handled the state's case in the trial 10 years ago, said he will ask for a stay of execution to prevent Sheppard's release. Ohio Attorney-General William Saxbe said the decision would be appealed.

"The state law-wise on one indicted for first-degree murder may be admitted to bail," Corrigan said in Cleveland. Sheppard was indicted on a first-degree murder charge but was found guilty Dec. 21, 1954 of murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life but is eligible for parole in 1966.

Sheppard always has contended a "bushy - haired intruder" killed his wife the night of July 4, 1954.

Weinman said Sheppard's constitutional rights were violated by these actions:

—Failure of the trial judge to grant a change of venue for a continuance due to the great amount of publicity.

—Inability of maintaining impartial jurors.

—Failure of trial Judge Edward Blythin, now dead, to disqualify himself although there was uncertainty as to his impartiality.

RAPS PAPER

"If ever there was a trial by newspaper, this is a perfect example," Weinman said. The judge said the Cleveland Press "took upon itself the role of accuser, judge and jury."

"Suffice it to say that each of the three Cleveland newspapers repeatedly printed material which strongly suggested and, in fact, urged petitioner's guilt."

The other newspapers were the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the now defunct Cleveland News.

Weinman said Blythin erred "when he failed to question the jury regarding a broadcast of Robert (Bob) Considine which Weinman wrote "announced over the radio a comparison between petitioner and Alger Hiss."

The judge said evidence indicated two of the jurors had heard a broadcast by Walter Winchell quoting a woman who said she was the mistress of Sheppard. And Weinman referred to stories by columnist Dorothy Kilgallen concerning a pre-trial conversation she had with Judge Blythin.

Dief's Demand For Inquiry Again Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed in the Commons Wednesday a demand that a parliamentary committee inquire into CBC operations at this session.

The demand was again rejected by State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to the Commons on broadcasting matters.

The minister noted that he had announced in May establishment of an advisory committee to study broadcasting and possible amendments to broadcasting legislation. The government hoped to have the legislation ready for Parliament next year, when a Commons committee could be set up.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the CBC annual report, tabled Tuesday, suggested a public referendum broadcasting on a charter basis. The CBC received $88,000,000 a year from Parliament which should not be "evaded in this way."

Mr. Lamontagne said full opportunity will be given to consider any changes.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) asked whether the government is considering the CBC proposal for a $15,000,000 capital fund to provide television service for all Canadians not now receiving it.

Mr. Lamontagne said this aspect is being studied by the advisory committee and that he hopes there will be legislation to cover CBC financing next year.

Government: The Farmer's Wealthy and Silent Partner

Farming in Canada was once the very embodiment of free enterprise. Nowadays the farmer has a partner who is growing day by day. This story traces the development of the government's role in agriculture.

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Farming is still about as independent a career as can be expected in the 20th century, but the role of government grows steadily.

Governments in Canada spend about $40,000,000 each year on research alone, with perhaps two-thirds coming from Ottawa.

Governments help promote consumption at home and abroad. They establish standards to ensure quality. Since 1923 a Crown agency, the Canadian wheat board, has marketed Prairie wheat, oats and barley.

Governments provide low-interest loans, support prices on certain commodities, crop insurance and a variety of other services.

Agriculture Minister Harry Hays administers an annual federal farm budget of about $225,000,000, three per cent of the federal budget. It compares with 7¼ per cent in Britain and more than eight in the United States, Denmark, Norway and France.

Originally the government concerned chiefly with introducing new farming techniques. Thus, in 1886, the first of the experimental farms was established.

In the 1900s a start was made on marketing legislation, mainly to set standards and grades for produce.

FOUGHT DROUGHT

Rural rehabilitation and water conservation began in a major way in the 1930s, seeking to solve the Prairie drought problem and to reclaim marshland in the Maritimes.

In the 1940s, prompted by the demands of the Second World War, the federal government moved into price support. Recently, through the Agricultural Stabilization Act, it can pay support money on crops ranging from Eastern wheat, oats and barley to tobacco and turkeys.

The biggest single lump-sum payment in the last two years has been about $40,000,000 to butter producers to help the dairy industry. Canada has a butter surplus of 165,000,000 pounds and its floor price is 64 cents for top grades, twice as much as the international price level. Exports at fire-sale prices are trimming federal stocks.

The $40,000,000 is a consumer subsidy since the farmer gets 64 cents a pound more than the cost to consumers in an effort to keep butter competitive with substitutes.

CROPS INSURED

In the 1950s crop insurance was launched, although so far it has taken root only in Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Farm credit was boosted substantially and this trend continues. First such loans were made in 1929-30 and totalled a mere $48,000,000 to 23,800 farmers between then and 1943. Then, when expansion began. Since then it has pumped nearly $2,000,000,000 in credit for $200,000 farmers.

In 1961, Parliament approved legislation capable of changing the face of rural Canada through the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, or ARDA.

In broad terms, this latest and most powerful farm tool empowers the federal and provincial governments to undertake joint schemes ranging from development of a blueberry patch to community pasture, from family retraining programs or integrated development of an entire river basin.

ARDA grew from programs on the Prairies and in the Maritimes under different federal legislation, from studies by the Senate's land use committee and from a realization that the swift pace of farm change has stranded hundreds of small farmers hopelessly in Ontario, Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and elsewhere.

QUIZ OF QUESTION

The philosophy of ARDA as spelled out by its sponsor, former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton, is not "simply doing things like draining a marsh or building a dam but going to the guts of the question which is to raise the farm income in those marginal areas by looking for more opportunities."

ARDA, equipped federally with an initial $5,000,000 for three years, has launched more than 300 projects.

Under the Liberals, it is getting its own special minister in the person of rural development and forestry to be filled by Maurice Sauvé.

ARDA was designed to redirect the use of marginal Canadian farm land—perhaps back to trees or to cattle pastures, to nourish self-help community retraining projects in depressed rural areas, and to ease the pressure of rural poverty.

What happens to ARDA, experts say, depends on how much use is made of the program by the federal and provincial governments and by the people themselves.

NEED LOCAL INITIATIVE

Land use, security and soil and water conservation seem to be going well. But a major question mark is what many regard as the most vital part of the whole program: The marshaling of human and other resources within individual communities to find a new direction, more income and a better life than cultivation of marginal land or unsuitable crops has been able to provide.

This phase depends on the community itself.

ARDA is aimed at helping knit together some of the pieces of a sadly troubled industry, while other federal tools are basic to the continuing drive to make it even more efficient.

Price stability—through price support—can go some way to easing the impact of recited price recessions. But unlike the U.S. or elsewhere, Canadian policy is to avoid agreements that stimulate production of surplus commodities.

The last two glaring examples, aside from the chronic butter surplus, came from quickly geared farm moves to turn out eggs and pork in quantity, spurred by government purchase guarantees as in butter.

CREDIT IS KEY

The incentive to over-produce vanished when federal payments in each case were trimmed to apply to limited amounts for each farmer and only when the average market price over a year fell below previously specified levels.

A main item of the immediate past and of the future for the changing face of Canadian farming has been low-interest credit at the rising rate of more than $200,000,000 annually.

Government-backed bank or federal loans are made available at a time when farmers depend increasingly on volume for operating profit, when greater mechanization raises the cost for young men launching new careers and when the disappearance from the farm scene of some small operators makes land available for more efficient economic farm units if the investment capital can be obtained.

More than any other feature, farm credit may bring the day closer when Canada's commercial farm population ends its long decline and evens off at perhaps 250,000 or even fewer.

Tomorrow: International barriers worry Canadian agriculture.

Kensington Gardens Signs Warn Dogs About Sheep

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—Signs in Kensington Gardens still warn dog owners not to let their pets "annoy the sheep."

There aren't any sheep left there but not long ago they grazed in a green forest in the heart of teeming London.

Kensington Gardens, formerly the "back yard" of Kensington Palace, and adjoining Hyde Park combine to form a leafy playground nearly three miles long and more than a mile wide.

People get lost in it. So did the sheep.

The gardens are popular in summer with people who would otherwise have to wait out the season in the sun - drenched steel-and-stone city.

They come early on their days off work. Some are retired folk and spend nearly all their time in the hush, tree - open-air.

One elderly woman comes when the weather is fine. She brings a bottle of wine, curls up in a canvas chair—rented for six pence—and tipples until dusk.

AGING SUN BATHERS

There are many old people lying in the sun under the minimum of clothes in a fair in this Cumberland town in 1954. She has just received a reply from the finder in Finland.

The sun also prohibits annoying the ducks.

Behind them is a statue of Peter Pan, always popular with children. There are copies—of this statue in Canada—in cities including Toronto and St. John's, Nfld.

The land was declared public in 1670, although Kensington Palace still is royal territory. Princess Margaret lives in a flat there with her husband Lord Snowdon.

Dogs get as much enjoyment out of Kensington Gardens as people do. Avid trainers come from miles around to let their animals romp.

"Heel, Crown, heel!" one middle-aged woman was screaming at a giant St. Bernard. The dog hundered on as over it earnestly, dragging its mistress at the end of a leash.

APPEASES JITTERS

LONDON (CP) — Youngsters waiting to appear before the East London Juvenile courts will soon have their jitters eased by cream buns and pop. The Woman's Volunteer Service is to supply refreshments as part of a modernization plan.

let's talk "cents" about entertaining!

Mostly everybody likes to entertain. And everybody wants to be considered a good host or hostess.

Problem is that a family income budgeted for mortgage, car payments, insurances and other fixed expenses won't stand big entertainment bills. It doesn't make economic sense.

So what to do —when you know that among your guests some prefer gin, others rye, vodka, rum, sherry or beer—and your budget won't stand such an assortment?

Here's the solution that will delight everyone—and keep your entertainment cost at a minimum—

Buy just one liquor: A special brand of extra light rum. Its name: TROPICANA. Made by Woods, who have been distilling fine rums for over 75 years . . . And with a special about TROPICANA?

It's so versatile, it's practically a one-brand bar! Besides being a superior light rum by itself, your guests will enjoy it in any rum drink imaginable.

It makes delightful versions of almost any drink you can name! Just try TROPICANA with three or four quite different mixes. You'll realize you're on to something good!

Tropi-cola, for instance! Lots of people have already discovered Tropi-cola. They will be delighted with your Tropicana and Ginger, Tropicana and Tonic, Tropicana and Bitter Lemon, or what will you have!

"A refreshing change" . . . "a delightful idea" . . . "mighty satisfying" . . . With TROPICANA your reputation is established . . . and your budget saved!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

"Sweet Daddy" Siki, the Battling Beatnik of Broadway, is one of the more unique wrestling sensations to appear here.

And his raiment is cool, man. He wears peppermint-striped trunks and an assortment of dazzling jackets, which he says range in cost from $1,000 to $3,000 each.

He has considerably more than looks to offer. A highly-skilled wrestler with a superbly-muscled frame, he's five-eleven and 240 pounds—and rates in the top bracket of the sport.

His specialty hold is a form of reverse chinlock which he calls the "Beatnik Hangman" and once he applies it there's no wiggling out of it for the unlucky victim.

He was born in Kingston, Jamaica, and later moved to Los Angeles where he attended school and subsequently college. He started wrestling and boxing when he was fifteen years of age.

He is as modest as a bull elephant on the rampage. When asked "How come the Sweet Daddy tag," he said:

"The first time the ladies saw me in the ring they just naturally called me 'Sweet Daddy.' When I look in the mirror every day I see the most beautiful body in the world. I cannot find one fault with it."

But Siki will have his hands full when he tackles likeable Ray Villmer. The smallish Missourian is a package of dynamite when he goes into action and the Beatnik will need all his tricks and more to make Villmer say "uncle."

And lookit who's back after a prolonged absence. None other than Lee "The Lear" Henning, one of the best known heavies to skulking his way through a main bout. Lee teams up with the un-Masked Destroyer Joe "Killer" Christie in a tag-team brawl with Rip and Chuck, the Rainstock Scuffin' Hillbillies.

And Big Ike Eakins, who allegedly rendered Yukon Eric hors-de-combat last Friday night in the shortest main bout on record, is back facing Eric Froehlic in the preliminary bout.

SAY IT ISN'T SO

A top-ranking New York baseball expert paints a dire picture of the future of the American Baseball League. On the basis of 1963 alone, he says, it looks to a good many observers as if the American League has had all chances of equality, let alone supremacy. If the Yankees cannot provide a happy ending to an unhappy season, who can?

The league is in so much trouble that perhaps it will never right itself. As the years go by the National League will get better and better while the American League will get worse and worse until, finally, there will be only one baseball league, no world series and pro football will truly be the national pastime. End of nightmare!

There's no question, he says, that the American League has headaches. Nobody knows what happened in Cleveland where attendance fell more than 150,000 to 820,000. The Senators drew barely 324,000, down 700,000. Nobody knows how to keep Charles Finley from straying all over the landscape seeking a more lucrative home than Kansas City.

Nobody knows how to keep Mickey Mantle healthy or snow out of Minnesota in April. Nobody knows how to build a natural rivalry comparable to that of the Giants and the Dodgers. Nobody knows the secret of making losers like the Mets draw like winners.

Western Clubs' Target

Lions 'Over Confident'

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Dave Skrien says the biggest problem facing his British Columbia Lions this season will be overconfidence.

"We're the western champions and all the other clubs will be shooting for us," said the man who led the defending Western Football Conference champions into the capital for tonight's exhibition game with Ottawa Rough Riders.

"Our biggest job will be maintaining our desire, and not getting too complacent," he told a reporter.

Skrien also said: "We're not as far advanced in conditioning as we were last year. That's because of the cold, rainy weather we've been having out in B.C. However, we're more set in more positions than we were last year at this time."

Skrien expects Lions' toughest opposition in the West to come from Calgary and Winnipeg, while in the East, he picks defending Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats to finish first with Ottawa a close second.

DAY LIFE

Whitey Ford of New York Yankees has pitched his seventh shutout of the season. But he allowed only three hits.

That's the easy way.

He allowed 13 hits.

Ford hurled the Yankees into the American League lead Wednesday in a head-to-head battle with Baltimore Orioles, blanking them 3-0 while Joe Pepitone took care of the runs with a two-run single in the second inning.

Pitching one of his strongest games of the year, Ford prevented the Orioles from getting a man beyond first base as he brought his record to 12-2, lowered his earned run average to 1.96 and extended the Yankees' winning streak to six games.

Hours later, Grant took the mound for the Twins and started laboring. He gave up eight hits in the first four innings—three in the fourth—but managed to keep Washington Senators from scoring as he wound up with a 6-0 victory.

Grant stepped up to a platter that hasn't been reached since May 26, 1960, when Lew Burdette of Milwaukee Braves allowed Pittsburgh Pirates 12 hits before winning 14-0 in 13 innings.

The loser that time was Harvey Haddix, who pitched 12 innings of perfect ball against the Braves.

Available record books list one 14-hit shutout in each league—by Chicago Cubs in 1913 and by the Senators in 1928.

One other shutout was turned in Wednesday, Dean Chance of Los Angeles getting his second straight in his nightcap as the Angels swept Detroit 5-4 and 1-0. Elsewhere, Dick Stuart hit his three-run homer as Boston Red Sox crushed Chicago White Sox 12-3 and Kansas City Athletics took two from Cleveland 5-3 and 3-2.

MANTLE STARTS IT

The second game of the vital Yankees-Orioles series was decided in the second inning when Mickey Mantle opened with a single off Dave McNally, Tom Tresh walked and the two worked a double steal. One out later, Pepitone lined a single to right and Ford took it from there.

Grant won his fourth in five decisions since being acquired from Cleveland and brought his over-all record to 7-3. Home runs by Dennis Hall, Rich Rollins and Jim Snyder supplied the Twins with more than enough firepower.

The Angels also got the job done with homers by Leon Clinton and Felix Torres connected in the opener in support of Barry Latman, who snapped a six-game losing streak. Bob Ferry's eighth inning homer off Tiger starter Phil Regan enabled Chance to win the nightcap.

Stuart's first homer in the opening inning put the Red Sox ahead 2-0 and they never trailed. Arnold Earley got the victory by scattering four White Sox hits.

Reliever Wes Stock, who hasn't lost since July, 1962, brought his record to 6-4 and won his 13th straight in the opener by allowing the Indians only two hits over the final 3 1-3 innings. Ted Bowsfield, the southpaw from Penticton, B.C., was the starter and hit a bid of homers by Bill Bryan and Rocky Colavito.

Balding Birdies Eight For 65

TORONTO (CP)—Three-time Canadian Professional Golf Association champion Al Balding scored eight birdies for a record 65 to lead the field Wednesday in the qualifying round of the 27th Canadian professional match play golf championships at Pine Valley golf course.

The 37-year-old Toronto professional fashioned the first round of the 6,540-yard, par-71 course in a two-under 33 and came back with a sizzling four-under 32.

One stroke behind was Bob Breen, 34, of Toronto, host assistant. Third place went to John Davis, 32, of Bontington, Ont., who birdied the last three holes for a 66. Tied for fourth spot with 67 were Bob Rose and Ken Duggan, both from Toronto.

Tied at 70, five strokes off the pace is sixth place, were Leon De Cairo of Hamilton, Bill Yee Jr., of London, Ont., Ross McIlree of Whitby, Ont., and Ken Jacobs and Moe Norman, both of Toronto.

Toronto pros Gus Maus and Murray Tucker tied at par in 11th place. Maus collected the only bole-in-one among the 215 golfers who sought to qualify. Of the starters, 84 made the cut-off, 18 with par or better.

Two rounds will be held today with the quarter-finals set for Friday and the semi-finals and finals Saturday.

Minor Baseball Results

Lions Club chalked up their ninth Tyke baseball league victory in a row last night, downing Keiller's Little Giants 14-3, widening their first place spread.

Larry Hughes allowed only seven hits on the losers' mound but issued 14 walks. He struck out ten. Danny Lupenette was his receiver.

Paul Vogel collected two Little Giant singles and the others went to Danny Lupenette, Larry Hughes and Clifford Allen.

Brilliant Mound Duel

Ajax Nips Joyces In Tenth 3-1

Bill Latchford, Joyce's ace hurler, struck out 16 batters, allowed six hits, walked five and lost his first game here last night.

The Ajax Merchants snatched a 3-1 ten-innings mound thriller when Latchford's hand in relief-leading city team their third setback in twelve starts. The winner's record is now 7-3.

Equally brilliant was the Ajax righthander Bob Hopper who battled a three-hitter, whiffed nine and walked two.

Latchford whiffed Art Resnick the lead-off man and walked Roy Cooper. Hopper tossed three strikes past Bob Tripp and Eric Peterson drove out a long fly to centre fielder who had stolen second and third. Bob Hopper's hot drive sent Peterson home from second—and that was the ball game.

Joyces missed a great chance to snatch the victory in the bottom of the ninth. With two out Cooper stopped Mavety's fly to left and Moe Hunter got him to third with a fence-bouncing double. Hopper struck out pinch-hitter Larry Soule to stop the rally.

Hopper was brilliant in the clutches coming through to retire the losers despite the fact his mates committed seven errors. Two smart double plays helped two Belleville rallies in the bud.

The game was frenzied with frantic over borderline official decisions. Joyces argued long and loud over Herb Hunter's safe drive in the third base. Argument over Resnick's ground-rules two-bagger in the fifth caused further delay.

It was a perfect ballgame until the bottom of the third their only run of the pastime.

McKibbon struck out and Latchford drove the first walk of the game. He stole second, reached third when Latchford's grounder was bobbled and scored on McGrimmons' ground out. Assist.

The winners set the stage for a rally in the sixth after Hopper was the victim of a third strikeout. Ted Tetlock rapped out a sharp single as did Garry Hill. Larry Cooper made a brilliant strike from deep in the field to nip Tetlock going into third.

Another fielding gem was Pat Asselstine's fine one-handed running catch of Bill's bid for a single in the ninth.

Resnick and Tripp hit doubles for the winners with Peterson, who struck out four times, singling and scoring the first run of the game. Tetlock and Hill hit singles.

Moe Hunter had two of Joyces three hits, a double and single. Pete Weston got the other first single in the fourth.

The teams:

The score:

Ajax 000 010 002 2 - 3 6 4
Joyces 001 000 000 0 - 1 3 0

Umpires — Kelleher (P), Pointer, Adams.

Soule Sparks Rally

Juniors Stop Trenton 9-7

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — Larry Soule ignited the tying rally with a booming triple in the ninth, then delivered a two-run single in the tenth to spark Ellis Juniors to a rousing 9-7 victory over Trenton Commercial Printers here last night.

The victory clinched at least a tie for the B. and D. softball loop's top spot for the Juniors. They can wrap up the pennant with a win over Trenton Memorial Tuesday night's 6.45 game at the CNRA Park. Trenton and Tweed complete the regular schedule with a postponed game at Tweed on Monday.

Tied for first going into the tilt, Belleville jumped into a 5-0 lead in the first, but Trenton pecked away and finally evened it up after five innings.

Soule crashed a triple to the trees in left field with one out in the ninth. Ebbert's infield hit plated him and Gardiner followed with a double putting men on second and third. Bob Moon's fly ball to left allowed the tying run to score.

Trenton got a man to third with none out in the bottom of the ninth but Ebbert got the next three men without the ball leaving the infield.

In the tenth Chatland was hit by a pitch, Boyle sacrificed and Woods struck out before an error on Boomhower's ground ball put men on first and third. Boomhower stole second and Soule lashed his game-winning hit. Ebbert followed with a tremendous blast to deep centre, but Don Cole pulled it down. Eddie got his revenge, getting three men in a row, two of them on strikes, in the bottom of the tenth inning.

Ebbert struck out 16 batters and limited Trenton despite 13 hits. Trenton hits to get the victory. He walked three. Pat Marsele was the loser, allowing six hits. Ellis' 11 hits after replacing Mike Ratushniak in the third. Marsele fanned ten and neither Trenton pitcher issued a walk. Ratushniak whiffed one.

Four hits, including Moon's triple, and four errors built the 5-0 lead before Trenton got into stole four bases, including home twice, in a three-run second. Hits by Boomhower, Dowatt and Kennedy and mental errors by the Juniors held the cause. Victim of his hand in error got one more for Trenton in the third while Drake singled and scored Soule with the grand's pop doubls to tie it in the fifth.

Howie Cole's homer was the big Trenton blow, while Don Cole, Leroy Wannamaker, Al Beaugrand, Les Mowatt and Neil Kennedy each got two hits. Roger Drake and Don Simmons one.

Stu Malloy was tossed out of the game in the ninth inning and league officials later warned that both he and teammate Wayne Woods would be suspended if caught using abusive language again.

Emerson Sure Starter In Cup Round

Opens Friday

MONTREAL (CP) — The exhibition singles... of Australia's Roy Emerson and Australian Newcombe will... into the last today along with Canada's Francois Godbout and Keith Carpenter to decide the pairings for the first-round singles matches of the Davis Cup tie.

Emerson, Wimbledon champ and top-ranked Aussie, was assured of a starting assignment even before practice began for Friday's opener of the best-of-five elimination. Newcombe received the nod over Tony Roche for the second position and Wednesday's workout only confirmed captain Harry Hopman's selection.

Newcombe, 20 - year - old former junior star playing on his second Davis Cup team, trimmed Emerson 6-3 in the first practice set and then divided the next two contests 6-4 and 5-7.

The Canadian contingent, well aware they'll need a miracle to upset the top-rated Aussies, hoped Emerson and Newcombe Carpenter so that the more able Godbout would have a better chance in a match with Newcombe. But Hopman said he had no preferences.

WANTS NEWCOMBE

Carpenter said he'd rather play Newcombe.

"It's not that I don't want to play Emerson," he explained. "But I'd rather not open against him. I guess I wouldn't stop taking him on, but not in the first match. The pressure would be great."

The fourth member of the Australian squad is 19-year-old Owen Davidson, a freshman at Long Beach College in California. Canadian reserves are Reider Gets and Val Haritz.

The second stringers, however, may well see action in singles. If two matches is decided after Saturday's doubles, as expected, the reserves may get the call for Sunday's singles. Hopman is confident his team will easily handle the Canadians and that the Aussies will be in Mexico City the two weeks to play the winner of the New Zealand-Mexico tie.

Willie Mays Clouts Homer 28

Phils Drop Six Of Seven; Giants Beaten

BY MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia, manager Gene Mauch said, is having trouble with left handers.

The Phillies had some more Wednesday night. Jerry Lynch, a southpaw swinger, clouted a three - run homer, powering Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia.

In talking about the Phillies' recent problems, Manager Mauch was referring to left-handed pitchers. But Lynch's blast—to the opposite field—did just as much damage as pitchers have been doing.

The Phillies have dropped six of their last seven games since vaulting into first place in the National League. The slump has dumped them back out of first—although not by much.

San Francisco Giants also lost Wednesday night, to the surging Milwaukee Braves, keeping Philadelphia just one game back.

FIELDING HURTS PHILS

Shoddy fielding contributed to the Phillies' latest loss. After Manny Mota led off the fourth inning with a single, Roberto Clemente reached first baseman Richie Allen.

The rookie let the ball get by him for an error. Two batters later Ruben Amaro, backing the play, picked up the ball and lasered it to second, permitting the runners to advance one base each.

Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati Reds edged Houston Colts 2 - 1, Los Angels Dodgers bombed St. Louis Cardinals 13-3 and Chicago Cubs nipped New York Mets 3-2.

Bob Friend of the Pirates scattered seven singles, evening his record at 8-8. The Phillies put the first two men on in the eighth, but Manny Gonzales and induced John Herrnstein to hit into a double play. Bunning, the perfect - game pitcher, lost his fourth against nine victories.

MAYS CLOUTS ONE

The Giants took a 2-1 lead on Willie Mays' 29th homer, a two-run blast in the fifth. But the Braves rallied in the seventh, scoring three runs. Hank Aaron singled across the tying run, and Lee Mays followed with a two-run double.

Ed Mathews added a two-run homer in the eighth.

Ron Fairly smashed two homers and drove in five runs for the Dodgers. Willie Davis and Tommy Davis also connected as Larry Miller recorded his first major league victory.

Dick Farrell was frustrated for the second time in his attempt to win his 11th game for Houston when Marty Keough hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning. Jim O'Toole picked up his 10th victory against four defeats.

Chicago edged New York behind the hitting and pitching of Lee Elia (7-6). The veteran right-hander scattered nine hits in boosting his mark to 5-2 and homered for the deciding run in the eighth inning. Charlie Smith hit a homer for the Mets.

EROS ABSENT

EXETER, England (CP) — Telephones in residences at Exeter, Devonshire, have been removed because they are not paying for themselves. "Not enough love calls," suggests the telephone company.

City Hotel, Cementmen Win Tilts

City Hotel clipped Barriage Landscapers 4-1 in a Commercial softball tilt last night, snapping the loop-leaders' winning streak and at the same time taking over sole possession of the runner-up position.

The Barriage—City game was played in just 54 minutes as the winners' Dave Feeney stopped Landscapers on three hits. Feeney struck out a pair and did not walk a batter.

Barriages led 1-0 in the first on two errors and a base hit. City got a pair in the fourth on Hawkins' single and back-to-back, two-out doubles by Martin and Rutherford. Feeney singled, F. Donovan walked and Moreau singled them in for a clinching pair in the fifth.

Barriages	100 000 0	1-3-2
City Hotel	000 220 x	4-5-2

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Earl Marvin scored twin perfect rounds, scoring 50, to head a large field at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular mid-week shoot last evening.

Meet Stamps Tonight

Argos Unveil 'New Look'

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts unveil another "new look" tonight in an exhibition football game that will match the big 1963 disappointments in the East and West.

Argos had a new look last year, lashuring former Edmonton Eskimo star Jackie Parker at quarterback, but wound up dead last in the Eastern Football Conference.

Tonight's opposition, Calgary Stampeders, were picked by many to ride into the Grey Cup game on the pitching arm of quarterback Eagle Day, but the Stamps despite an impressive start that included a 50-0 slaughter of the Argos in Toronto, finished second behind B.C. Lions in the Western Football Conference and lost to Saskatchewan Roughriders in the playoffs.

Argos' new look isn't as new as last year, with most of the backfielders back. One rookie who could make a difference is Sherman Lewis, who has the speed that Argos have been lacking for a couple of years.

Others in the backfield will be Parker at quarterback, veteran Dick Shatto, Dave Mugliery, a late addition to the 1962 team, and Ron Hatcher.

Veteran centre Norm Stoburgh ended his retirement plans over the weekend, but he won't be ready to play for a couple weeks yet.

Calgary will have many new faces, but one newcomer, halfback Mike Davis, made a determined bid for a job Tuesday with two touchdowns in Calgary's 33-7 triumph over Montreal Alouettes.

Olympics Yacht Trials

KINGSTON, Oct. (CP) — Strong winds forced small-boat skippers to remain ashore and watch the larger craft racing Wednesday in the Olympic yachting trials.

Ed Botterell, skipper of Serendipity of Montreal, retained the lead in the Dragon class series with 3,790 points, although placing second in the fourth heat of the trials. Pierre Desjardins of Montreal, steered Passe Partout to victory in the heat and holds second place with 3,343 points.

Winds gusting to 30 miles an hour and high waves prevented the Finn, Star and Flying Dutchman classes from racing. Veteran Dick Stanbury of Toronto in Ariadne moved into the lead of the 5.5-metre class with 3,059 points. Edgar Barker of Toronto took over second place from Dr. A. A. MacDonald of Montreal when a broken boom on the latter's chartered yacht broke, forcing him from the race.

There are three more races scheduled for the Dragon and 5.5 - metre classes, while the Finn, Star and Flying Dutchman classes have four races each.

Bruce Kirby of Montreal leads the Finn class with 2,234 points; Dave Miller of Vancouver heads the Star class with 3,003 points; Fred Paul Henderson of Toronto leads the Flying Dutchman class with 3,666 points.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

Four-Time Winner of the Masters

LONG SHOTS FROM SAND

Long shots from sand seem to cause the average golfer lots of trouble. I think the problem in most cases is simply that the player doesn't know how to execute this shot. It really isn't difficult at all.

All you must do is contact the ball before your club enters the sand (see ❶). Here is how you make sure this happens:

First settle your feet in the sand so that they won't shift during the swing.

Play the ball from the same position in your stance that you would use on a normal fairway shot with a club at hand.

As you will note, everything I have mentioned is designed to keep body movement to a minimum so that your club will meet the ball first.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Gentry Yates led from start to finish to capture the junior invitation pace Wednesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The 4-to-5 choice, Gentry Yates recorded his third win of the season for M. J. Hyatt of Leamington, Ont., picking up $1 000 of the $2,000 purse for the effort.

William Wellwood quickly took the lead from five other rivals and brought the horse home in 2:05.

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club announced Wednesday the minimum stakes prize of $7,500 has been raised to $10,000 for the Fort Erie summer meeting.

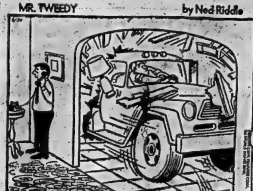
Fort Erie's 42-day meeting, extending from July 20 to Sept. 5, lists 15 stakes races of which the lowest purse is $10,000 and two of them are $25,000 added.

The increase in prize money will affect six races—the Fort Erie Stake, the Bison City Stakes, the Bonifece Stakes, the Colin Stakes, the Vandal Stakes and the Fury Stakes.

Hot Tigers 'Chew Up' The Cats

HAMILTON (CP) —The Tigers chewed up the Cats 27-7 before 19,000 fans Wednesday night as the Canadian football champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Conference played their annual intra-squad game.

Former Alabama star Ed Versprille bulled his way across the four-yard line and Bobby Jack Oliver added the convert on the only scoring play for the Cats.



The Tigers showed their power on the ground, charging 254 yards to 73 for the losers. Halfback Gene Fredericks rushed 77 yards on 13 Perrier. Hal Patterson grabbed five passes for 85 yards.

First-string quarterback Bernie Faloney played only during the first quarter and figured in the first touchdown, completing 29 yards' passing. Frank Cosentino and Hamilton high school quarterback Ernie Turner took over the pivot for the Tig ers.

MAKE STADIUM START

MONTREAL (CP)—An official step was taken Wednesday on the construction of a proposed new stadium in suburban Ville d'Anjou for Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

"Talk a little louder. A jet is passing over."

Minor Softball Results

Vikings topped the Lions 8-5 and Cubs outscored the Steelers 14-11 in a pair of West Hill Squirt division softball games last night.

In another scheduled contest, Cardinals won a 9-0 default over the Cowboys when the latter failed to field a team.

DANCER PICKED

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Northern Dancer, Canadian bred winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, was picked Wednesday to run in the New Hampshire Sweepstakes horse race Sept. 12. A sweeps ticket obtaining a number representing Northern Dancer was drawn from a huge drum. It had been purchased by Fred Gardner of Seattle, Wash.

Leafs Edge Wings 5-4, Jets Drop 2

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ken Hamlin went to the plate four times Wednesday night and accounted for four runs on four hits, including a game-winning homer, as Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Rochester Red Wings 5-4 in the second game of an International League doubleheader.

Hamlin hit a pair of singles and a double before slamming his third homer of the season. He crossed the plate twice and drove in two other runs.

In other action, Jacksonville Suns defeated Columbus Jets 1-0 and 4-1, Buffalo Bisons downed Syracuse Chiefs 8-6 and Richmond Virginians walloped Atlanta Crackers 7-1.

Reliever Ron Nischwitz, who got the third out in the ninth on a strikeout, gained the Toronto victory and evened his record at 2-2. Tom Phoebus, 7-8, was the loser.

Larry Burright hit his first homer of the season for the Wings in the opener and Joe Pignatano slugged his third in the nightcap while Bobby Del Greco clouted his 12th for the Leafs.

The league-leading Suns were pitched to their victories by Jerry Walker and Gordy Richardson. Walker won his own ball game in the eighth inning by hitting a double off the Jets starter Fred Green.

PLAN LABORATORY

MONTREAL (CP)—The biggest nuclear physics laboratory in Canada, outside Chalk River, is to be built at the University of Montreal. Plans for the $4,-2-,000 laboratory, scheduled for completion in the summer of 1966, were announced at a press conference Wednesday.

Track Stars To Perform At Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers of Toronto, Canada's big hopes in the track events in the Tokyo Olympics this fall, will be featured in the Eastern Canadian Track and Field Championships at Royal Military College Friday and Saturday.

Also among the approximately 300 athletes who will take part is Bill Dotson of Kansas, a miler. In competition with Dotson will be Jim Irons and Ergas Leps, both of Toronto.

Jenny Wiegerson of Toronto is favored to win the women's 80-metre hurdles and 10-yard dash. Nancy McCredie of Toronto, another Olympic prospect, is expected to have little trouble in winning the shot-put event.

Army Team Wins Cup At Bisley

BISLEY, England (Reuters)—A six-man Canadian Army team won the Mappin Challenge Cup Wednesday for the best aggregate in the rapid-fire and snap-shooting events at the British National Rifle Association meeting.

In three individual events at ranges of 200, 300 and 500 yards, the team collected 734 points out of a possible 900 to beat the cup holders, Royal Navy air command, by 35 points.

Top scorer in the Canadian team, each out of a possible 50, was made by Pte. Marvin Dyck, Kelowna, B.C., 126; Pte. David Moffatt, Calgary, 125; Lt.-Col. John Matthews, Vancouver, 126.

Moffatt also won the NRA Bronze Medal, bronze badge and a pair of binoculars for the top score in the first stage of the Queen's Prize—104 of a possible 105.

All the overseas contingents will be represented in the second stage on Friday.

Sgt. Joseph Daigle (Royal 22nd Regiment) of St. Charles, N.B., won the Stephens rapid-fire competition at 200 yards, scoring 49 out of 50, and Lieut. William J. Molnar (Black Watch) of Fort Macleod, Alta., won the Wantage snap-shooting competition, scoring a perfect 50.

The Tracks

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Barbara Johnston, a four-year-old mare, turned in the fastest mile of the night in capturing the second division of the featured Stratford Exhibition Pace at the Western Fair Raceway Wednesday.

The smooth - pacing brown mare was clocked at 2:04 3-5, leaving no doubt of her superiority as she led from start to the wire. As favorite of the crowd of 3,239, she paid $2.80 for the win.

There was an upset in the third division of the feature when Highland Girl emerged the winner over odds-on favorite Danny K Grattan, to pay $15.60.

First division of the Stratford Pace went to Irish Chief's Sundance which paced the mile in 2:09 4-5 to pay $6.20.

Ladies Open Tourney

Sue Hilton Eyes Title

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Sue Hilton of London, defending champion, advanced her bid for her third success in the Ontario Ladies Open golf championship when she turned back a quarter-finals challenge Wednesday by Una Wickham, 1950 New Zealand women's champion.

The only casualty among the favorites Wednesday was Betty Stanhope Cole of Woodbridge. She lost 1 up to Margaret Masters, former Australian champion, at the 18th after hitting her drive into the trees.

Sandra Post, 16-year-old from Tyralgar, Ont., unnerved Nancy Smith of Beachgrove, Ont., with her accurate shot game. Miss Post won 4 and 3 but held a six-up advantage after nine holes. Miss Smith holed two 30-footers on the back nine, narrowing the gap, but never got closer.

HARVEY ADVANCES

Gail Harvey of Scarborough, Ont., also advanced to Thursday's semi-finals, playing straight and true with her woods and long irons to beat Ontario junior champion Nancy Stoddart of New Uplands, Toronto, 5 and 4.

Miss Hilton was forced to scramble on the front nine but still managed a one-up lead at the turn, despite three-putting three times. She put her tee shot in a fairway bunker on the 10th but recovered well enough to gain a half with Miss Wickham, who three-putted.

Miss Wickham fought back, holing a short iron from about 40 yards off the 14th green to win the hole.

But the defending champion took the 15th and 16th, sinking putts of 10 and 25 feet, to sideline Miss Wickham.

SETE RECORD

CERVINIA, Italy (AP)—Luigi di Marco of Italy set an unofficial world record for speed on skis Wednesday when he was timed at 107.36 miles an hour in the Silvio Rivetti competition.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Barbara, four-year-old filly, got the ride of her life from one of North America's youngest jockeys Wednesday and came from last place to win the $12,700 Nassau Stakes at Woodbine.

With 15-year-old Wayne Harris beating a steady tattoo on her hide, Barbara moved from last place in the 12-horse field to be sixth at the half-way point, then charged on the extreme outside of the turf course to beat Royal Spirit by a nose. Sweet Cee Cee was third.

Barbara returned $47.70, $15.70 and $8.40.

Riders Meet BC Lions Tonight

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair has passed the word around the Ottawa Rough Riders camp that pass-defence is the key to success in tonight's exhibition football opener against British Columbia Lions.

"We have some fellows who have shown pretty well so far" says Clair, "but we'll know for sure when Kapp starts throwing the ball."

He was referring to Joe Kapp, the quarterback who led Lions to the head of the western conference last season.

"The boys will have to be on their toes. Practice is one thing and a game against a passing master like Kapp is another."

RELEASE TEMPLE

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds gave veteran infielder Johnny Temple his unconditional release as a player Wednesday but said he would remain as an inactive member of the club to handle special assignments. Temple was released to make room on the roster for catcher Don Pavletich.

CUT BY ESKIMOS

EDMONTON (CP)—Quarterback Stu McIlmrie, a Tulsa University graduate who fired two touchdowns in the 'all-stars' to help his team to a 33-20 intrasquad victory last Friday was released today by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference. His departure reduced Eskimos' roster to 50, including three import quarterbacks—Holmes Lynn Amedee and James Earl Wright and rookie Gary Hertzfeldt.

Under Way Today

PGA Tourney Criticized

By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"The way we play it now, our championship is just another swinging door 'open,' snorted one golfer.

"I listen the object of professional golf is to make money, and this is the only way to make it," says another.

Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and red hot Tony Lema are co-favorites in the field of 165, which will be cut to the low 90 after two rounds and to the low 60 for the final 18 holes Sunday.

The PGA is the last of the big four, which includes the Masters and the U.S. and British opens, and despite the money involved, it is the least important of the four.

Some players would like to go back to the old head-and-head match play format that was used up to 1958 in an effort to restore the popularity of the tournament.

But it was also the only major tournament that was already money loser.

"We couldn't give it away," says PGA tournament director Joe Black. "Clubs didn't want it. You couldn't sell tickets, and you couldn't sell it to television.

"Some years all the big names would get knocked out the first thing. There went your drawing cards. And on the last day you only had two players, and only four the day before. There's a limit to the number of people who can watch just two players."

Pitching—Whitey Ford, Yankees, pitched New York into the American League lead with a three-hit, 2-0 victory over Baltimore Orioles, posting his seventh shutout of the season while bringing his record to 12-2.

Batting — Dick Stuart, Red Sox, hit a pair of three run homers and ran his American League - leading runs - batted-in total to 73 as Boston crushed Chicago White Sox 11-2.

Planes Win Over Latta At Cannifton

Plane's Concrete made the most of half a dozen hits and five errors by the visitors to down Latta 6-2 in a South Hastings baseball game played at Cannifton last night.

Butch Clapp hurled steady ball for Plane's scattering seven hits and fining three strikes past 11. He did not walk a batter.

Howard Meeks was the loser, giving up the six hits and a pair of walks. He struck out four.

Plane's used a three-run rally in the bottom of the third to erase a 2-1 Latta lead, adding singletons in the fourth and sixth. Both Latta runs came in the top of the third.

Ross Parks, Pat O'Connor and Ross Empey looked after the Cannifton hits. They rapped one double and one single apiece.

Billy Chisholm rapped three Latta singles and Lorne Cronkright hit a double and single. Meeks and Gary Ray got the other base hits.

Cannifton will play host to Oshawa Merchants in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior game at the Belleville Fairgrounds tonight. Game time is 8.30.

Awkward Age Just State Of Mind Says Patty Duke

Young Patty Duke, who portrayed Helen Keller as a youngster in "The Miracle Worker, tells of her TV series in the following column for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

Written for AP
By PATTY DUKE

NEW YORK (AP)—I think the awkward age is just a state of mind. I don't believe that child actors need fear that dreadful, dark, never - never land somewhere on the other side of limbo where they are supposed to disappear while waiting to outgrow the awkward years.

Work and a positive attitude can help the young actor overcome his or her youth.

I'm aware that waiting to mature can be the most tiresome and unnerving time in the life of a young actor or actress. The main reason, aside from the fact that the individual may be changing physically, is that there are not many parts written for 13 to 17-year-olds.

However, I think an actor's attitude can make a big difference. The only example I can give is myself. When I was 16 I didn't feel particularly awkward nor did I feel that my career was going through a transitional stage. On the contrary, I felt that I was standing on the threshold of my career. All that was uppermost in my mind was to continue working and learning how to become a better actress.

So, instead of waiting for the right part to come along, my manager, Mr. John Rook, and I kept on the lookout for something worth doing. Thus when the opportunity for me to do a comedy series on television presented itself it seemed to us that here was the next logical step in my career.

It turned out to be one of the most exciting years I have ever experienced. Of course, the fact that The Patty Duke Show was so well received by all our television friends added to my pleasure.

As the show moves into its second season I can't help but hope that the series goes on an working long time so that I can make the transition from a teenager to an adult without any break or gap in my career.

AT THE BELLE — Two Elvisses mean two romances for Elvis Presley in his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, "Kissin' Cousins", in which he plays a dual role as an Air Force Lieutenant and a Tennessee hillbilly. Left, he snuggles up with Yvonne Craig. Right, his romantic partner is Cynthia Pepper. Others in the Panavision and color attraction opening Today, Thursday, at the Belle Theatre are Arthur O'Connell, Glenda Farrell, Jack Albertson and Pam Austin.

Tenders Will Be Called For New Garage

PICTON (Staff) — Tenders for the county's proposed new garage on Lake Street are to be called immediately, according to Ron Thomson, county engineer. Plans have now been approved for the building by County Council's road committee and by the Department of Labor. At the July meeting of County Council, the road committee was given the authority to open tenders and award the contract so that work can proceed as soon as possible. Last date for tenders is Friday, July 31st.

Council has budgeted a maximum of $120,000 for the cost of erecting the 144-bay garage and installing all facilities. Engineer Ron Thomson, who designed the new garage, estimates that full cost of the job should not exceed $90,000. Hallowell Reeve, Del Huff, added that his township's new barn at Mallory's crossroads was estimated at $23,000 and turned out to be $38,000.

5 New Members Inducted Into Power Squadron

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting and banquet of the Prince Edward Power Squadron was held Wednesday evening at Picton's Prince Edward Yacht Club. Some 150 members and their wives were present for the occasion. Five new members were inducted into the squadron by D. D. Hickson, district commander for Quinte district from Belleville. New members who took the oath to help promote the Squadron and to practice the club's principles were, Harry Hudson, Wm. Lane, barrister, Dr. George Bowers, Howard Seeley, Dr. Earl Taylor, all of Picton. Mrs. Thera Faulkner was inducted as an associate member. Merit marks for work over and beyond regular duties of the squadron were presented to Fred Rose, Dr. John Pierce, Dr. Robert Clapp and Derek Fisher.

New officials for the year are Commander Prince Edward Fisher; Staff Commander, Lt. Commander Jack Cooper, secretary Dave Taylor, treasurer Dr. John Pierce. Five Lieutenants were also elected by the squadron, Ron Thomson, Dr. Earl Taylor, Howard Seeley, Fred Rose and Russ Alexander. Last season's Commander of the squadron, Dr. Carl Boyd, acted as chairman for the meeting and in congratulating the new executive said that he would like to see an effort put forth to obtain new members and increased some of this winter's classes to advanced courses.

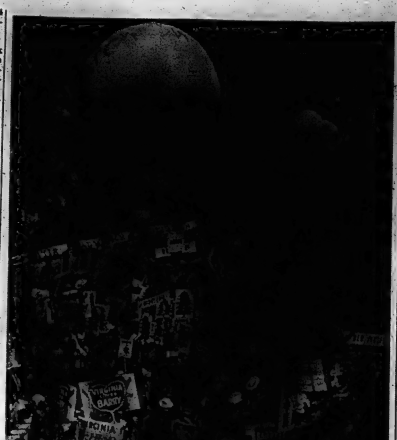
Brezhnev Takes Long Step Toward Goal

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev took a long step forward Wednesday as Premier Khrushchev's heir apparent. He relinquished his figurehead role as president of the Soviet Union to concentrate on work in the Communist party, the real source of power in the country.



Anastas I. Mikoyan, a close confidant of the premier who went on many a diplomatic mission abroad for Khrushchev, became the new president. At 68, he is reported to have asked for the easier job of president after recent illness. Brezhnev is 57, Khrushchev 70.

Khrushchev proposed the moves in the clearest public indication yet that he considered Brezhnev to be his successor as Soviet party chief.

The Supreme Soviet, or parliament, gave unanimous approval and long applause to the changes after Khrushchev had explained the reasons.

The impression said Brezhnev had done "fruitful work" as president for the last four years, but now he is needed for full-time work as a secretary of the Communist party's central committee. Khrushchev is first secretary.

The Supreme Soviet ended a three-day summer session that approved bills to provide pensions for 850,000 collective farmers and pay raises averaging 21 per cent for 18,000,000 public services workers.

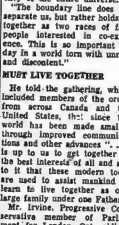
Grand Master Praises Bond Of Friendship

TORONTO (CP)—The bond of friendship between Canada and the United States is one of the wonders of the world, Masonic Grand Master John A. Irvine of Lambeth, Ont., said Wednesday night.

Mr. Irvine, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the province of Ontario, was addressing a general assembly of the lodge during its annual convention meeting in suburban Scarborough.

Mr. Irvine said Canadians and Americans have lived in "peace and harmony for 150 years without trouble.

"We have not found it necessary to protect our borders with guns, but have found it easy and wise to live as brothers of this great continent, thereby setting an example which is the envy of the entire universe.



"The boundary line does not separate us, but rather holds us together as two races of free people interested in co-existence. This is so important today in a world torn with unrest and discontent."

MUST LIVE TOGETHER

He told the gathering, which included members of the order from across Canada and the United States, that since the world has been made smaller through improved communications and other advances "... it is up to us to get together in the best interests of all and see to it that these modern tools are used to assist mankind to learn to live together as one large family under one Father."

Mr. Irvine, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for London, Ont., riding, announced that new Masonic lodges had been instituted under dispensation in Ontario this year at Brampton, Toronto, Oakville, Woodbridge and Stoney Creek.

He said this was "a step in the right direction" for the lodge and charged each incoming district deputy grand master "with the responsibility of forming at least one new lodge in his district in the year 1964-1965."

Senators Return To Desks After Long Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—Senators returned to their desks Wednesday after a controversial two-week holiday and swiftly gave second reading — approval in principle — to three government bills.

The Senate met in the afternoon and held a rare Wednesday night session at one hour after the House of Commons had ended its Wednesday evening sitting.

The upper chamber had voted to recess until July 21, but the government scheduled a special session to discuss measures in quick order last week and Monday. Senator Allister Grosart, Conservative, said senators should be careful in future not to interrupt the legislative machinery by such holidays at the wrong time.

Second reading was given to the following bills:

—Creation of an integrated defence command under a defence chief and the unification of a four-year merger of the three armed forces;

—Payment of monthly "youth allowances" to parents of students and disabled children aged 16 to 21;

—Approval of a $275,000,000 transaction among the American, Canadian and British Columbia governments to finance the Columbia River dams.

The defence bill was referred to the banking and commerce committee for clause-by-clause study. The other two measures are expected to receive final approval today.

Moira

MOIRA —Mrs. Blake Ketchabaw has been spending the past week with her sister, Mrs. Will Shaw, Ivanhoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stewart, Mr. Jack Stewart of Bancroft, Mrs. Hugh Stewart of Toronto were guests on Saturday.

Mr. Owen Ketchabaw left for Toronto on Monday for the departure ceremonies for the 4-H Club exchange where they will leave by air for Newfoundland and other places. They will return by July 27th.

Miss Linda Ketchason spent the weekend with Miss Nancy Fargey, West Huntingdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketchason were Sunday callers with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wood.

Makarios and Kuchuk

A Sharp Study in Contrasts

By PETER BUCKLEY

NICOSIA (CP)—It would be difficult to find two people who less resemble each other than his beatitude, the president of the Republic of Cyprus, Archbishop Makarios, and His Excellency, vice-president, Dr. Fazil Kuchuk.

ANSWERS TITFED

His eyes are calm and alert, but they do not usually share the polite half-smile on his lips.

After an exchange of greetings, he sleeps back behind the large, no-nonsense desk, sits down and hands over a typewritten sheet bearing the visitor's questions, with the government's answers.

Then an informal question-and-answer period begins. Depending on the press of state business and the caller's interest, it may last anywhere from five minutes to a half hour.

Throughout, the archbishop and the visitor are alone. The presidential answers are the impression of frankness, but generally contain a touch of quiet sarcasm.

Then the visitor has been given permission for a photograph in the garden, the archbishop changes into the full, stunningly ornate chain and cross, then his much - photographed episcopal hood, a cape of black silk flows from the head piece and all but envelops him.

He walks ahead through a large chamber, his black outer garment billowing majestically, and stands patiently on the lawn for photographs, surrounded by gardens.

Then he precedes the visitor back into the palace and the interview is over.

NARROW YARD

The road to Kuchuk's residence is by contrast, through some of the most crowded, illkept streets in the Turkish section of divided Nicosia. A gateway from a dusty street leads to a barren, dusty yard surrounded by small offices which make up what is reportedly called the "Kuchukeria" by the vice-president and his supporters since the dismemberment of the once-powerful Turkish Information Ministry.

A tent with the bunting of the Cyprus Republic flies over the door at a large two-storey house at one side of the yard, and through the doorway is seen his arched inner door into a living room. The room has an atmosphere of heavy richness too heavily used.

The vice-president and a Turkish - Cypriot cabinet minister enter. Kuchuk turns out to be a short, thick-waisted man in a rumpled business suit with yesterday's shirt on. His eyes protrude slightly and his short thick hands chop the air.

As with Makarios, the written answers to questions are handed over black Turkish coffee and cigarettes. It often takes an hour or longer.

MINISTER ANSWERS

Throughout, the cabinet minister is present, answering many of the questions when Kuchuk's English falters or when the vice-president indicates by an inclined head or a slight motion of the hand that the minister should reply.

Their conversation is heavy with derogatory adjectives about the Makarios government and descriptions of the evil times which have befallen the Turkish-Cypriot.

For a photograph, the vice-president steps through French doors to a terrace overlooking a small garden, then he leaves and the cabinet minister shows the visitor out.

Many veterans of the Cyprus scene say a visitor's first impressions of the two men can be a valid reflection of politics, realities here—that Makarios's self-assurance comes from a confidence in history that he is bound to get most of what he wants if the situation remains under control, that Kuchuk is something of a figurehead for more powerful men whose aspirations are to unify a Turkish homeland for Turkish-Cypriots are failing.

However history may deal with observations like that, a movie cameraman would have trouble shooting between the two men for the central figure in the Cyprus travelogue.

The biblical figure of the archbishop would win the film footage.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 19

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Some of your ideas may be impractical. No need for discouragement — just slight revision. Turn away from the lavish. Concentrate on simplicity to get message across.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Money won't buy what you really desire. Go come from sense of feeling "it." Be patient. Don't throw good money down drain. Hold off on legal agreement. Stress logical approach.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Don't waste energies. Have fun — but avoid frantic activity. Applies especially to affairs of heart. You attract people to-night who tend to "use" you. Be alert.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): You tend to be careless where details are concerned. Friend makes promises . . . but not all can be fulfilled. Stress self-reliance. You can gain through social affair tonight.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Recent events may cause nostalgia. Wise course is to look ahead. Realize you can gain through innovations. Break from tradition. Be original. Utilize wonderful sense of showmanship.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): You will gain through correspondence, visits, exchange of ideas. You lose if you are obstinate. Highlight versatility. Whatever you do today — do it with zest!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may be drawn between desires and ideals. Consider long-range aspects. Use logic. Don't try to impress with garnish display. Share appreciation of beauty, music.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your intuition concerning financial activity proves correct. Cycle remains high. But be wary of one who promises much . . . he will not be able to provide it. Maintain confidence.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You will have chance to display abilities. Present plans, hopes in clear manner. Key is building from bottom up. Leave no loose ends. One with capital can be favorably impressed.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Help others to help themselves. If you hold off on definite promise, you will actually help friend. May not be easy. But if you really care — that's course to follow.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Make position clear. Includes activity in community project. Profit indicated through new endeavor. Show that you have ability and confidence. Tonight fine for romantic pursuits.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Time to settle personal, professional policy — you can accomplish much. Important to make decision . . . then follow through. Long-distance call later in day could bring good news.

If today is your birthday . . . you have ability for comfort persons in time of difficulty. You are attracted to medicine, history and social work.

DUSSEK BROTHERS

1964 may be the year of the big boom for Dussek Brothers of Canada Ltd. The Belleville firm started to expand its field of operations with a 20-ton shipment of cabinoil, (one of its main products), to Peru in November of 1963. The customer has been ordering about five tons a month of the compound since then, and it looks as though the market may spread across South America. But selling oil to South America is just the start of the potential boom.

Early this year, Dussek Brothers took over the manufacture of "Concretol", an additive which allows the pouring of concrete during freezing weather and improves the quality of the cement for most purposes. Coast-to-coast distribution was arranged, and sales began to grow.

Now an English firm wants Dussek Brothers to handle a complete line of similar products throughout Canada, and a U.S. firm has made the same offer. S. V. E. Walton, manager of the firm, flies to England next week to discuss the English offer — and some other matters which may be even more important.

It is almost certain now, Mr. Walton says, that Dussek Brothers Ltd. will begin wax processing in Belleville within three months. The project will involve only a small addition to the present plant on Station St. for the time being, but the possibilities are tremendous.

There is also a strong possibility that the Station Street firm may get its own distillation plant, for separation of oils and petroleum acids, within the next year or so. This project is still in the discussion stage but so was the Concretol project last year.

By the end of 1964, the Dussek Brothers' plant will probably have one small addition and two or three more employees. But the addition and the extra employees will just be the start of a program that might make the firm one of the largest in the city.

While Mr. Walton is away, company president A. M. Haig will provide general supervision for the firm. Mr. Walton's secretary, Mrs. L. LaPense, will handle the office details and plant foreman Frank Westerhof of Hillier will handle the plant.

Mr. Walton will return from England about mid-September.

LABOR MARKET SURVEY

Belleville-Trenton area had a moderate labor surplus through most of 1963, with an approximate balance of supply and demand during August, September and October, according to a report issued by the Ontario Department of Economics and Development. The graph-type report lists the area as a minor labor market, with between 10,000 and 25,000 in the labor force. During 1962, the period of approximate balance began in July and lasted through October. In 1964 the period of approximate balance was about the same as in 1963, but there was a heavy surplus of labor during January, February and March. The graph for 1960 shows a short period of heavy surplus early in the year, and a moderate surplus from early spring on. In the ten years covered by the report there is no sign of a labor shortage in the city at any time, but on the other hand there is only one year shown in which there was at no time an approximate balance between demand and supply of labor.

INTERNATIONAL HARDWARE

It was just one year ago that International Hardware began a contributory pension scheme for retiring employees. The first seven employees retired under the scheme at the end of last month. The scheme requires that an employee contribute for at least one year before drawing benefits. The seven retired employees, Miss Mary Thomas, formerly a machine operator; Pat Drumm, formerly leading hand in the buffing shop; John Lafferty, formerly leading hand in the polishing department; Guy White, who has been machine shop foreman and retired as special expediter; Fred Kegan, plant carpenter; John Fitzpatrick, one-time machine shop foreman, retired as chief inspector; and Jim Cathcart, who retired as a tool and die maker, have a total of 265 years of service to the firm. Pat Drumm and John Lafferty started originally with the Springer Lock Co. and Jim Cathcart started with the Belleville Lock Company. The seven were honored June 27 at a party arranged by the company foremen at Lakeland Lodge, near the Outlet. Windsor Bunkell, machine shop foreman, was master of ceremonies at the party. Howard Hamton, vice-president in charge of manufacturing, and James Gill, factory superintendent, offered congratulations from the management and Arnold Bartlett, foundry foreman, offered the congratulations of the foremen. General manager D. C. Boyd presented long service scrolls and electric clocks to the retiring employees. John Fitzpatrick, Pat Drumm and Fred Keegan answered the speeches.

More than 100 families of International Hardware employees turned out last Saturday, with the employees themselves, at the firm's annual picnic at the Outlet Park. They brought their own lunches and the employees' recreation and entertainment club supplied ice cream and soda pop for the kids, paid for with profits from the club's vending machines. The picnic was organized by the recreation club chairman, Percy Graham and the treasurer, Bill Hunter.

Back at work, International Hardware is now starting to ship some of the finishing hardware for the new Toronto city hall. The firm got the contract last September for all the finishing hardware in the new building, and it was all made in Belleville. The custom-made door handles for the front doors are being cast by international Precision Casting of Belleville under a sub-contract. International searched the country for a firm willing and able to do the job, and found the local firm best qualified.

CORBY'S

Renovations started this week at the main office of the Corby Distillery in Corbyville. White Lumber and Construction Ltd of Belleville is doing the job, planned to increase office efficiency, and expects to have it finished in about a month. Carpenters and office staff are crowded together now, but the plant goes on vacation Friday and most of the office staff goes too, for two weeks, leaving the carpenters room to work.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

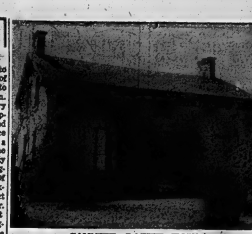
Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Last week we considered two typical cottages of the 1830's, built for urban businessmen. This week we will examine two farm homes of the same period.



The first of these is the Canniff-Lazier house on the Canniff-ton Road, near an old local landmark, Lazier's Dam. The land between Belleville and Canniffton was once part of the holdings of the Canniff family, who operated grist, saw, and paper mills on the site of the present-day motel at the curve of the river. In 1800, Mohra Mills passed into the hands of the Lazier family, by whose name the dam and the nearby house is still known.

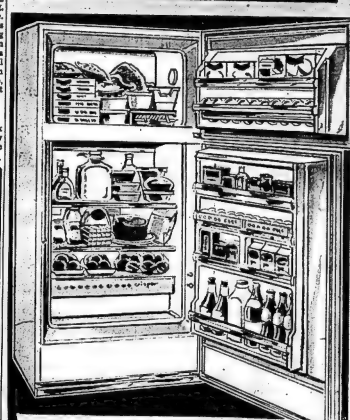
The Canniff-Lazier house was built in the 1840's by the father of Dr. William Canniff, the author of "The History of the Settlement of Upper Canada". Dr. Canniff's father's home is a stucco covered rubble-stone house, similar to, but larger, than the Mayhes house on Dundas St. East.

Fittingly, the Canniffs, who were Upper Canadians of American descent and British sympathies, combined features of the Greek Revival fad sweeping the U.S.A., with details stolen from the Regency cottages of their British settler neighbours. Both these divergent architectural elements were applied to a storey-and-a-half cottage of basically Georgian design, to produce a house of great charm.

At this period in our history almost every new house in Upper Canada had Greek-inspired trim — a wide flat cornice board below the eaves, with a short return cornice on the gable ends, and a big, heavily panelled front door. The Regency taste insisted on a cost of stucco to cover the rough-textured stone walls and to protect the masonry from the weather. It was omitted across the front of this house where an awning-roofed Regency verandah gave sufficient protection from the elements. The very large ground floor windows are another Regency-inspired detail. The Canniffs, like others who could afford to do so, eliminated fireplaces from their house plan, and substituted the new and relatively expensive stoves.

The Asa Yeomans house at the corner of Frank and West Moira Streets is a larger, two-storey version of the Canniff-Lazier house. It is of the same stone and stucco construction, with the same Greek cornice and door, and originally had an encircling Regency verandah. Its owner came from the wine-British-American background as a carpenter, credited in early Masonic records, with the construction of the Simpson-Wallbridge house. Like many craftsmen of his day, he farmed on the side, and bought the north 100 acres of the Zwirk's farm in 1833 for this purpose. Because he could fit his own carpentry he could afford a big house with the stylishly modern "French casement" windows introduced into Canada in the 1830's by Regency gentlemen. The Yeomans house was large enough to be used as a Children's Shelter and later as an isolation Hospital before being converted into apartments in the 1930's.

CANNIFF-LAZIER HOUSE
(Located on Canniffton Road)



The Canniff Lazier, the Yeomans and the two, Dundas St. houses reveal the taste and ingenuity with which local builders of the 1830's and 40's combined the best of the styles of their day to produce vernacular houses of enduring appeal.

Turks Believe Showdown In Cyprus Is Near

Look to United States To Clear Situation

By HAL McCLURE

By PETER BUCKLEY

ANKARA (AP)—Top-ranking Turkish officials think a showdown over Cyprus is fast approaching and only the United States can prevent the situation in the eastern Mediterranean from deteriorating into war.

The Turks have become increasingly pessimistic over the prospects for the United Nations to improve the situation. Turkish officials indicate that if matters worsen, their government will take up where it left off June 5, when it was on the verge of sending more troops to Cyprus.

Only swift action by President Johnson stopped the Turks that time. Deputy Premier Ke. mal Satir told The Associated Press that "if the situation develops, it is my personal opinion we will not listen to the United States next time."

NICOSIA (CP)—Two units of heavily - armed Canadian UN troops were rushed into the Kyrenia Mountains today as Greek Cypriot forces moved in heavy artillery for the first time and threatened to advance on the Turkish village of Tembios below the mountain range in northern Cyprus.

The Canadians, numbering nearly 100 men, succeeded at least temporarily in helping avert a major clash between opposing Greek and Turkish factions.

By mid-morning high-level negotiations were going on in Nicosia between UN officials and Cypriot government authorities to prevent the attack by the Greek-Cypriots on Tembios.

The situation was described as extremely tense but at least one deadline for a Greek attack was passed without incident and there were some hopes that the situation would calm down.

GREEKS DEPLOYED

Greek-Cypriots had deployed about 150 National Guardsmen around the village during the night and equipped them with two 20-pound field guns, two 60-millimetre anti-aircraft guns for ground use and eight mortars around Tembios, a little cluster of stone and mud-brick houses crowded with refugees. .

Turkish - Cypriots moved in fighters into the formerly undefended village since tension began building up in the area a week ago.

UN sources believe tension began mounting when a new Greek Cypriot police chief took over control of the Kyrenia district and began clamping up on movements of Turkish-Cypriots who control the Kyrenia Pass overlooking Tembios, on the main highway from Nicosia to the north.

Turkish leaders issued an ultimatum that Turkish - Cypriot fighters must withdraw by 9 a.m. today, otherwise Greek forces would attack.

In Nicosia, government security officials announced they had Turkish fighters from the Saint Hilarion castle in the mountains immediately above Tembios had advanced during the night, and this was the reason for the ultimatum.

To Set Up Advisory Council

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a commission on the status of women in Canada was suggested Thursday by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh.

Miss LaMarsh, in a major speech on women's affairs to the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, announced formation of a new 15-member advisory council of consumers to advise the federal government on consumer matters.

She also urged the federation to start an immediate campaign to put hundreds of Canadian women into government and business posts.

She suggested that the status of women commission might be similar in scope to an American one which submitted a report to the late President Kennedy last fall.

"As was done in the United States, we might well look into such matters as educational opportunities, more and communities services, employment in the federal and provincial governments, labor standards and the treatment of women in respect to civil and political rights."

DISCUSSES RIGHTS

Canada's only woman cabinet minister said she thought there had been "a great disparity" in the legal rights of women across the country.

The new advisory council of consumers was termed by Miss LaMarsh as "possibly the most significant development in some time for Canadians generally, but for Canadian women especially." It is to work in conjunction with the federal food and drug directorate.

She said the names of its members, 14 women and one man, would be announced within the next few days.

Only last month the 25,000-member Consumers' Association of Canada passed a resolution requesting the government to set up a separate department of consumer affairs. Liberal backbencher Pauline Jewett of Northumberland had suggested that such a department be created in a speech to the consumers' association annual meeting.

SUGGESTS LIST

She also said she had suggested that the federation's new national president, Nada L. Dane of Toronto, start a list of qualified women which could be submitted to the federal government when appointments to top positions were due.

By promoting more women in every field of public position, she said, the federation could help to celebrate the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage in Canada in 1971. Canadian women first received a federal vote in 1921.

Jean Casselman (PC—Grenville - Dundas) was among women members of Parliament and Senate attending the banquet at which Miss LaMarsh spoke.

Irate Water-Splashed Negro, 15, Pulls Knife, Killed by Policeman

NEW-YORK (AP)—Scores of steel-helmeted patrolmen poured into an Upper East Side neighborhood Thursday to prevent a riot after a police lieutenant shot and killed a Negro youth.

In the violence that followed, a Negro policeman was hit on the head with a full soda can and suffered what his doctor described as a concussion.

Police said the apartment superintendent accidentally splashed water on Powell and several of his companions. Some teen-age witnesses said the man did it deliberately, saying "I'm going to wash the black right off you."

Powell, police reported, be-

Higher Learning Approved

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Squads of MPs from all parties stood up in the Commons Thursday and came out squarely in favor of higher education.

After they had quoted statistics and surveys extensively to demonstrate the benefits of a university education, no time was left to make progress on a government bill to guarantee bank loans to needy university students.

The debate has lasted three straight days on the second-reading stage and is expected to roll on next week, with many more advocates of higher learning lining up to speak. Today, the Commons turns its attention to 1964-65 spending estimates for the post office and the public works department.

Three more Quebec MPs came out against the student loan measure Thursday on the grounds that it infringes rights of the Quebec government.

Satellites Will Detect Illicit Nuclear Explosions

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Two Sentry satellites and a tiny Pygmy satellite rocketed into great egg-shaped orbits today, in a complex triple launching that could lead to U.S. development of a fool-proof system to detect illicit nuclear explosions in space.

The trio of radiation-sensing packages rode into space atop a single powerful Atlas-Agena rocket. Early tracking information indicated the payloads were close to the intended course ranging from 100 to 62,000 miles above the earth.

All three space messengers were flashing clear radio signals to ground stations.

Because of an intricate flight path intended to station the twin Sentry satellites at the high point of the course, officials will not know until about 10:30 a.m. Sunday whether the launching is completely successful.

Small rockets aboard the pair are to arrest them at widely scattered points 63,000 miles up —one about 18 hours after launching, the other about 37 hours later.

The Sentries, each weighing 400 pounds, are forerunners of a network of satellites which will peer electronically more

Troopers Back in St. Augustine As Whites Raise New Barriers

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Governor Farris Bryant has ordered state troopers back to St. Augustine following a Negro vows to break new racial barriers raised by white segregationists.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro integration leader who led massive demonstrations a last month, planned to talk to Bryan today before deciding whether to resume the massive marches, wade-ins and all-ins which ended 20 days of hibracial committee was formed.

"We are not going to let the Ku Klux Klan run St. Augustine," King told a cheering audience of 300 at a rally Thursday.

"If it can be solved by negotiation, good. But if it means we must once more put on our walking shoes, we will do it that way. We are determined to be free . . . even if it means physical death."

Negroes attempted to be served at 26 places Thursday and were turned away at all but said a member of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. White segregationists have been picketing the businesses that first agreed to serve Negroes.

"We're damned if we do and damned if we don't," said one motel owner. He said that his name not be used.

SCLC contends that within the last 30 days, the city's motels and restaurants integrated under the provisions of the new Civil Rights Act and then resegregated with the beginning of picketing by whites a week ago.

White segregationists deny charges of intimidation. They say 25 business places have voluntarily agreed not to serve Negroes. Two of the restaurants face law suits under the Civil Rights Act.

Beat Off Communist Assault

By ANTOINE YARED

VIENTIANE (AP)—The Laotian Air Force's U.S.-supplied fighter-bombers and an artillery barrage beat off a Communist assault on the neutralist stronghold of Muong Soui the defence ministry announced today.

The Communists shot down one of the propeller-driven T-28 planes, a spokesman said. It was the second T-28 knocked down by Communist ground fire in the last three days.

The Communist Pathet Lao bombarded the neutralists Thursday with 105 - millimetre and 85-millimetre guns. Then four battalions of Red infantry crossed th. Nam Ngum river in what appeared to be the beginning of an all-out drive to capture Muong Soui.

But a defence ministry spokesman said there was no ground contact between the two

Practically Reads Moderates Out Of The Party

W. E. Miller of N. Y. To Be Running Mate

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Senator Barry Goldwater has set the stage for a gutter battle in the November U.S. presidential election campaign, accusing the ruling Democrats of collectivism and decay at home and cowardly fear of communism.

"Extremism in the defence of liberty is no vice," said the Republican candidate for president in his acceptance speech Thursday night at the Republican national convention windup session.

His right-wing ideological outburst came as he moved to cement control of the Republican party for his hard-line conservatives. "It is the cause of Republicanism to ensure that power remains in the hands of the people," he said in accepting the nomination.

Calling for a bipartisan foreign policy in which the power of the U.S. would be used to win the war in South Viet Nam and keep the East European satellites, the new Republican presidential standard - bearer virtually told the moderates to get out of the party if they didn't like his policies.

Rather than reject political extremists as the moderates had demanded, the 55-year-old Arizona senator got his biggest hand from delegates when he said: "Extremism in the defence of liberty is no vice. Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

EXTENDS WELCOME

He welcomed all those who would join his cause sincerely. As for others, he didn't expect them "to enter our ranks in any case."

Goldwater portrayed a world in which the U.S. would use "every sacrifice" to redeem the suffering of those in the world who wanted freedom from tyranny. He alluded to the idea of Eastern and Western Europe being joined and then linked with North and South America

Rhodesian Spurns PM's Plan

By BRIAN CHARLESWORTH

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Southern Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith made it plain today he has no intention of abiding by Commonwealth leaders' proposals for talks on a new constitution for this British colony.

A communique issued in London at the close of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Wednesday said Britain would consider delegates' demands for an independence conference to be attended by leaders of all parties in Southern Rhodesia. The delegates also called for the release of African political leaders detained by the government.

Within an hour after Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home told the Commons Thursday he was awaiting Smith's reply to an invitation to attend talks in London, the Southern Rhodesian leader rejected the conference proposals outright.

"I treat this interference with the contempt it deserves and brush it aside," he said.

CONTRARY TO PRECEDENT

Earlier, in an official statement, Smith said the detailed discussion of white-ruled Southern Rhodesia's affairs by the Commonwealth leaders was "contrary to precedent and against the principles of justice as we understand them."

He also said his government would continue to press for a negotiated independence based on the present constitution.

Britain has refused to grant independence on the ground that the present constitution would mean the domination of

Most Hair-Raising Peacetime Incident Recalled by Admiral

OTTAWA (CP)—Probably the most hair-raising incident in the peacetime history of the Royal Canadian Navy has been recounted for the first time by Vice-Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of naval staff.

Admiral Rayner told a reporter Thursday that the Sept. 23, 1953, incident, when 42 Canadian and American carrier-based aircraft were almost lost en masse, sticks out in his memory as vividly as his battle days as a destroyer commander in the Second World War.

At the time, Admiral Rayner was commanding the aircraft carrier Magnificent which was in company with the U.S. carriers Bennington and Wasp, the U.S. battleship Iowa and a host of other Canadian and American warships on Exercise Mainbrace in mid-Atlantic. The nearest landing field was an unmanned strip on the southern tip of Iceland, 460 miles north of the fleet.

"Weather information on that particular afternoon was unfavorable.

At 1:30 p.m. 32 aircraft from the Magnificent, Bennington and Wasp were launched in good weather to carry out an exercise some distance from the fleet.

"Without warning, fog rolled in. The aircraft were recalled at 2:20 and 10 managed to land. Repeated attempts were made to talk down more planes using radar and radio. But the weather got low enough to see the decks. . . .

"The planes formed up in the clear ceiling layer below the fog and were orbiting the position of the unseen fleet hidden in the thick weather. At 4:20 it was estimated the planes had enough fuel left for another two hours.

"Plans for a mass ditching of aircraft were made. Ships were manned with picked crews, ropes were rigged to hang down over the side, life rafts were readied for slipping and the sick bay was prepared.

"Then came a message from the Redfin, a U.S. submarine 110 miles to the west. The Redfin was in company with the fleet and was 110 feet with two miles' visibility. The carriers couldn't reach the fleet and ordered that the planes could. So we decided to head for the Redfin where the pilots could ditch in a group.

"That as darkness approached, there was a miracle. . . . The fog ahead began to lift and the fleet was able to make out other ships. The planes were recalled and came in one by one whichever carrier was most convenient."

Admiral Rayner, 53, leaves his office Monday, the last chief of naval staff. The position is being abolished under unification.

Goldwater Favors Old Dulles Policy

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Judging from his Republican leadership acceptance speech, a government under Barry Goldwater would practise a form of "brinkmanship" associated with the late John Foster Dulles. Historians have some doubts whether brinkmanship ever brought back the Communist frontier.

Dulles, state secretary under the Eisenhower administration constantly threatened the Soviet Union with "massive retaliation." But the Dulles policy, of showing willingness and courage to move to the nuclear abyss, did nothing to help the cause of the Hungarian freedom fighters in 1956. It didn't stop Soviet harassment and turmoil in Berlin.

Instead, the Soviet Union forged ahead with expansion of its own nuclear arsenal. Now the two giants are reputed to have enough thermonuclear bombs to blow up the world.

The new Republican presidential nominee not only suggests he is ready to challenge the Russians to a military showing match, he intimates he would cancel all trade with the Reds and deepen American opposition to trade with communism by the allies.

His aim, among other things, would be to free the Communist satellites in Eastern Europe which might include nuclear sacrifice—and work to bring the free countries into an expanded European Common Market.

His "flowering of an Atlantic civilization," as he calls it, would have the United States as the guiding pillar, though he doesn't spell out what the U.S. would demand as the price for this support.

The Atlantic civilization would encompass a new system of alliances in the Western Hemisphere, in which the countries of North and South America would be joined. Since Canada has shown acceptance to join the Organization of American States, it is clear from Goldwater's statement just how he would persuade Canada to change its mind.

The attractive quality about Goldwater's vision is that he makes it sound so simple. He doesn't say just how the Soviet grip on Eastern Europe would be loosened and he doesn't make clear whether, in fact, all of these satellite countries would want to join a Western alliance.

Nor does he offer any explanation of how France, for example, which blocked Britain's entry into the Common Market, would be persuaded to admit the East European countries.

Authority Considers Water Storage Dam Near Flinton

The feasibility of a water storage dam on the Skootamatta River north of Flinton is being considered by the Moira River Conservation Authority following representations made by the townships of Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham.

Proposed site of the dam is about three miles north of Flinton and 800 yards south of the junction of Partridge Creek with the Skootamatta River.

Preliminary investigations indicate erection of a dam providing an additional eight-foot head of water would be possible. This would flood a large area of waste land and increase the level of Deerock Lake by from two to three feet.

It is thought that a levelling crew from the Conservation Authorities Branch can be made available later this summer for further investigation of the site.

In the meantime further studies for a possible reservoir site on the west branch of the Moira River above Moira Lake are also being made.

At least two reconnaissance surveys of this area have been made in the past and it is expected that a more detailed study can be made next year.

This summer a low water control dam at the outlet of Moira Lake is to be constructed. This dam will have the effect of maintaining lake levels during the dry summer months.

ANAF Veterans To Sponsor Circus in City

Under the auspices of Unit 301, the wall known Sells-Gray Circus, rated the second largest in America, will be giving two performances in Belleville. The circus will pitch their big top on Zwick's Island, containing three rings. There will also be a menagerie.

The proceeds will go to assist the club in their work of looking after needy veterans and their families, bursaries for veterans' children and donations to other worthy causes in the city.

Advance sales of tickets are now going on and any member of the public may be able to purchase them from the new bride at the club at 167 Front Street, or any member of the executive.

This circus is well and favorably known all through the States and from coast to coast in Canada. The show will be playing here on July 30th with performances commencing at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Parking space will be roped off for patrons of the circus.

Everybody loves a circus and this is one of the best, so bring the children down and have a wonderful time and at the same time help out the well worthwhile projects of the club during the dry summer months.

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia has banned Newsweek magazine because of its anti-Indonesian articles, the newspaper Berjuang Daily reported today. Time and Life magazines have been banned for some time.

Bowling Notes

The first stage of the Women's Provincial Playdowns are being staged at the local greens today. Competition in triples, doubles and singles will be played with Belleville and Kingston in the triples, Kingston and Belleville in the singles and Trenton, Belleville and Kingston in the doubles.

A rink of Mrs. Lil Mascaro, Mrs. Phyllis Graham with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip will compete in the singles, Mrs. Anne Avery in the singles and Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Mrs. Elsie Humphreys in the doubles. All these rinks are from the local club.

The winners in each division will advance to the zone playoffs to be held later this month.

On Thursday afternoon a rink of Mrs. Rita Gentiles, Mrs. Irene Trudeau with Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon as skip won top honors in the afternoon league while Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Mary Argue with Mrs. Lilly Hermon as skip a close second.

The hostesses at the second hour after the games were Mrs. Jessie Hunter and Mrs. Gladys Tory.

And to keep the record straight, Mr. and Mrs. William Fuller with Larry Chouinard of the Trenton Club won the mixed invitation tournament at Campbellford on Wednesday. The writer was not trying to "hog" the glory, but good wife, Kay, and Larry out of any glory. It was just a slip of the typewriter when in a hurry. Please excuse the mistake.

O'Hara's Mill Will Operate This Sunday

Hastings county residents are history minded.

At least they are interested in old grist mills as was indicated last Sunday by the numbers who turned out in inclement weather to see the old mill at O'Hara's Mill northwest of Madoc in operation for the first time this season.

In view of the interest shown, Moira River Conservation Authority officials said the mill will be operated mill would be run again this Sunday afternoon.

Child Dashed In Car's Path

A three - year - old girl suffered concussion last night when struck by a car on Coleman Street near the bridge.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital was Elizabeth Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Glenn Lancaster, 69 Cedar Street.

Two Youths Held for Theft

Arrested and charged with break, enter and theft were Fred Elvin Scott and Walter Sadlack, both 18.

Police allege the pair stole a quantity of clothing from the residence of James Young, 245 Station Street. The articles were recovered.

Funerals

MRS. GERTRUDE HARVEY Deseronto

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Gertrude Harvey were held Thursday from the White and Morris Funeral Home in Deseronto.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. J. Soutter and interment was in Deseronto cemetery.

Mrs. Harvey died after a lengthy illness on Tuesday, July 14, in the Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 85th year.

Born in Tyendinaga, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCullogh. She was educated in Tyendinaga and was a member of St. Mark's Anglican Church.

She is survived by four children, Lorne, Sandy, Edwin and Morris, all of Deseronto. There are nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Fall Fairs, Farmers to Get New Deal

KITCHENER (CP) — Harry Hays, federal agricultural minister, said Thursday Canadian dairy farmers and fall fairs are going to get a "new deal."

Mr. Hays told some 1,300 farmers and their families at the annual Waterloo Cattle Breeding Association ball that "a whole new approach to Canada's long - standing dairy problem" would be in the money for the farmers, while "not raising the price to the consumer."

Donald Peacock, Mr. Hays' special assistant, said the bill would change the basis for butter supports, allowing the dairy industry "to stand on its own feet."

Mr. Hays also outlined a $1.5-per-000-per - week bill for exhibitions across the nation reramp their prize schedules. The exhibitions would match this sum, and pare the number of judging classes of animals in each breed to six or seven from the present 15 or 20.

This would increase the prizes to $130 or $140 from the $70 or $40 now offered.

Pathologist Acquitted Of Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. S. F. Penny, senior pathologist at Toronto East General Hospital, Thursday was acquitted on a charge of failing to notify the coroner of the death of 32-year-old Patricia Mogan.

Five other charges against the doctor in connection with the Nov. 4, 1963, death of Miss Morgan were dismissed.

Dr. Morton Shulman, Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner, testified earlier Thursday that he issued a ruling last May to all coroners and hospitals to report to him any deaths requiring investigation under the Coroner's Act.

An inquest into the death of Miss Morgan, who died after an abdominal operation, attributed her death to a surgical clamp that was left in her abdomen.

Is Bad Year For Bush Fires

It's a rough year for the Department of Lands and Forests. Ground water tables around the province are below last year's levels, and last year was considered a dry year. The rain early this week helped reduce the fire hazard to moderate for this weekend, according to Department officials but the hazard will probably rise again next week.

Eighty nine forest fires have been reported this season to the Department headquarters at Tweed. Only 92 fires were reported to the end of July last year. Half way through the month, 39 fires have been controlled during July alone this year. There were only 34 fires during the whole of July last year.

One fire is still burning, but under control, today in the Tweed district. The air - borne fire at Sebastopol, just west of Dacre, has been burning under control since July 10.

No Decision on Re-zoning Land in Fahey Street Area

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board made no decision last night following a public hearing on an application to have a 15-acre tract of land north of College Street in the Fahey Street area re-zoned to an R.M-3 district.

The asked for change would allow multi-storey apartment construction, but would not allow row housing.

At last night's hearing at city hall a small delegation representing about 30 area property owners presented a petition opposing the zoning change, and Mrs. May, land developer, outlined the type of construction he had in mind for the proposed sub dividing.

The board conceded that a higher density of population than possible under the present zoning was needed for the area in question, but at the same time felt that some ruling was needed to protect the interests of property owners.

Members of the city hall planning staff will have further discussions with Mr. May regarding the type of construction proposed for the area and consideration will be given to amending the zoning by-law to allow a more imaginative type of construction and still protect the interest of present owners.

Neighbors Say-Miller Family Friendly

His two youngest children—Stephanie, 2½, and Billy, 5—played under the watchful eye of a housekeeper, oblivious to the excitement created among the neighbors by the 50-year-old congressman's nomination as Republican candidate for vice-president of the United States in the November general election.

The neighbors described Miller and his family as the "kind of people you like to live next to—real friendly."

"We haven't seen much of them this summer," said Mrs. Robert Rooney.

SERIOUS ON POLITICS

"When he is talking politics, he is serious," said Allen W. VandeMark, Niagara County Republican chairman and a Miller neighbor.

"He really knows the answers and he never ducked issues. That's why he'll be tremendous."

"Hometown people recognize a person's ability and it's time when this ability is recognized nationally," said VandeMark's pretty wife, Ann.

Miller's next - door neighbor, lawyer, J. Carl Fogle, said "sure, I'll vote for him."

The number of vehicles using the Ambassador Bridge between Windsor and Detroit in 1963 rose six per cent to 3,707,106.

Prime Minister Pleased With Conference

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson, tired but obviously pleased with his 10-day trip to London, said Thursday night reflection by Southern Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith of the Commonwealth prime ministers' demand for racial equality was unfortunate.

Arriving aboard an RCAF Yukon to be greeted by a crowd of politicians and diplomats, Mr. Pearson held a brief press conference, noting that by his calculation it set on London time —it was after 2 a.m. He arrived at 9 p.m. EDT at Uplands terminal.

The most significant feature of the London conference, he said, was the fact that the 18 Commonwealth leaders with widely varying countries, people and colours "were present together and agree on a communique. That communique called for Rhodesia's return as well as in principle that the Commonwealth is a multiracial collection of states, in which there should be no racial discrimination.

In Salisbury Thursday night Prime Minister Smith said the conference was an intrusion in Southern Rhodesia's internal affairs, and "I treat this interference with the contempt it deserves and turn it aside."

STILL RESPONSIBLE

Mr. Pearson said Britain still is responsible for Southern Rhodesia "but it is now a independent member of the Commonwealth, and Britain put the subject before the Commonwealth conference agenda. It was only natural that other prime ministers would express strong views.

Of the conference as a whole, Mr. Pearson said it was a demonstration of the vitality of the new Commonwealth.

He said it was vital to recognize that more important than the number of new Commonwealth countries is the nature of the increase in the ones represented. All but four were Asian, African or Caribbean nations.

"This has introduced a new concept of multiracialism in our discussions. It had begun some years ago, of course, but it has gone a long way and it hasn't reached its resting point yet."

Holding Commonwealth prime ministers' meetings in other capitals than London also discussed but no conclusion reached, Mr. Pearson said.

Apart from the formal conference sessions, Mr. Pearson had lengthy talks on a wide range of subjects, including the Canadian proposal for an independent peacekeeping force to be kept in readiness for United Nations support.

Local Jail Governor Resigns

County officials today described the resignation as following "a difference of opinion on administration practice" at the jail.

The governor's resignation came after an inquiry by county authorities and officials of the Department of Reform Institutions last month.

Details on the "difference of opinion" were not divulged. The resignation was accepted last night by the property committee of county council.

Administration of the jail has now been vested temporarily with Wallace Thornell, chief turnkey at Frontenac County Jail in Kingston. Mr. Thornell has been in the post since the inquiry began.

The resignation ends a long association for governor Cook with the ancient county jail that once was a dominant feature on the city's Pinnacle Street.

He joined its service in 1942 and was later promoted chief turnkey.

He was appointed governor three years ago.

Luck Runs Full Cycle For Driver

Luck sometimes runs a full cycle.

Some days ago, Mrs. Van Norman, holder of a temporary driver's permit was told by her son she should polish up her technique in backing automobile. She decided to do it in her own driveway.

While backing out, she struck another automobile causing minor damage.

Police arrived on the scene and discovered she had been driving alone with the temporary permit. The law demands the holder of such a license be accompanied by a driver holding a full-time permit.

She was charged with having no driver's licence and hailed into court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning.

Enter good luck.

The magistrate noted Mrs. Van Norman actually did have a driver's licence — albeit a temporary one. The wrong charge had been laid.

City prosecutor Ralph Graham agreed.

"I think your honor that on the evidence before you, you could dismiss it," he said — which the magistrate did.

Hydro Doesn't Approve of Proposed Plan

TRENTON — Trenton council will find out this week that the Ontario Hydro Power Commission doesn't approve of the proposed plan to have the local utilities office collect an annual surcharge of around $70,000 on town water users' bimonthly bills, for approximately ten per cent of the cost. Minimum charge agreed upon was $7,000. If collections went up . . . the PUC's charge went up, accordingly.

The local utilities commission had agreed to have their office do the work, and the water bills were to have been upped in August. Now, the H.E.P.C. says the commission should get 15 to 20 per cent of costs of certain phases of operation of the utilities. Figured out on the 15 per cent basis, and estimating $83,000 as the annual cost of the operations named, the town would be paying an estimated $12,400 annually to have the utilities' office collect the surcharge.

At a meeting of the commission yesterday, chairman Charles Hilton directed utilities manager James Page to send a letter to the town office, outlining the Ontario commission's stand.

MUST REMOVE GARAGE

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell has been instructed by council to order the owner of a four - car garage on the waterfront side of Front St., to have the structures removed, as a . . . ger at top of water mains, which cross the river at this point. A permanent retaining wall at the east end of the garage unit will stay, but Mr. Carl Wessa, who erected the wall, will be notified that the Public Utilities Commission reserves the right to break through the structure at any time, if it should become necessary to repair the mains.

Special Award Will Be Made To Nap Miron

TRENTON — Opt. Napoleon Miron, a retired waterworks employee of the local utilities office, will receive a special award of merit from the Canadian Section of the American Water Works Association. Opt. Miron retired after 38 years of service, a few years ago.

The special award, for 25 years or more service, will also be given to utilities manager James Page, with 30 years of service in the water division, and an enquiry will be made as to former utilities' manager I. R. Smithrim's length of service in the waterworks' division. Mr. Smithrim, who came to Trenton in the early 1930s from Strathroy, retired in 1953. Recently, a hydro sub - station, near Strathroy, was named for Mr. Smithrim.

Flying Club At Air Station To Hold 'Day'

TRENTON — The Royal Canadian Air Force Station Trenton Flying Club will hold an open house for interested visitors on Sunday, July 26th club officials made known today.

The Club which is affiliated with the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs' Association began operation at RCAF Station Trenton in 1956.

Initially equipped with three Aeronca single engine aircraft the club has now graduated to two first line aircraft one a 90 horsepower Champion Tri Traveller and the second a Champion 85 horsepower TDC. Both aircraft are fitted with two way radio which is a club necessity as the Trenton Flying Club operates out of a military aerodrome. The club aircraft are both decked out in the club livery of red, white and blue.

The TDC CF-FMR was originally fitted with floats but last fall the floats were damaged in a landing away from base so that the club at the present time lacks water capability. The floats are now being repaired and with any luck at all the club should be back on the water next summer. Both FMR and CF-MNX affectionately referred to as "ham n' eggs" by the control tower crew are now on wheels with skis available for the tail wheel fitted FMR.

The club is authorized for night flying; instrument flying and can train up to and including commercial rating.

The RCAF Trenton Flying Club is a non profit organization and can provide flying facilities after hours and on weekends to service men, their dependents, department of defence employees and selected civilians of the local area.

Club members will be on hand to explain and demonstrate the club equipment and there will be three drawn prizes for free flights over Trenton and Belleville.

The Club open house will begin at 2 p.m. and conclude at 6 p.m. Visitors wishing to arrive in their own aircraft should either write to S/L Bowdery, Club president at RCAF Station Trenton or contact him by telephone at EX 2-3811 local 894 or at home EX 2-3626 for prior permission to land at Station Trenton.

The club has limited ground school facilities and intends to begin its summer classes on Wednesday, July 29 evening at 7 p.m.

Ground school is an open course and any one interested in taking this free course (excluding a small charge for the textbook) is welcome to attend. Details can be supplied by the club president Squadron Leader Bowdery.

It is emphasized that this is not air force day at Station Trenton. The RCAF Station Trenton Flying Club will be open to visitors who are interested in flying or flying training.

Visitors will be taken on a tour of the control tower and number 10 Hangar while they are at the club. Refreshments are available at moderate cost at the nearby Air Movements Unit snack bar.

PUC Requested To Maintain Warning Sirens

TRENTON — The Department of National Defence has asked the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to provide men to inspect, maintain and repair if necessary, Trenton's three emergency warning sirens.

Up until now, this work has been done by a general contractor. But the DND thinks a general contractor wouldn't be able to work "in such close co-operation with the town officials" as would the PUC . . . and wouldn't be able to guarantee a 24-hour watch dog service.

A man, or men, must be available on a 24-hour basis, should such things as a real emergency develop . . . or the sirens, or siren, "trigger," unexpectedly, and accidentally, to repair the fault within minutes and avert panic on the part of the public.

"An accidental sounding hasn't occurred in your area," said the DND to Mayor James MacDonald in a letter read at yesterday's meeting of the PUC, "but should it happen . . . and it has happened elsewhere . . . your public officials would be the first to hear about it."

James Page, utilities manager, told the commission yesterday it would cost $1,400 a year to conduct quarterly checks, $70 a check; do weekly checks in cold weather, at $35 a check, when freezing temperatures are apt to wreck havoc with the sirens' mechanisms and trigger them.

On top of this, it would cost $7 an hour for "special" calls. The $1,400 offer will be submitted to the DND.

Odor and Taste Of Water Due To Algae

TRENTON — The Ontario Water Resources Commission has told the local utilities commission that the objectionable odor and taste of water drawn from the river for RCAF and for east Trenton users from time to time, is due, 90 per cent to the presence of algae in the water.

Members of the local commission, meeting in Toronto Wednesday with OWRC officials, were told that algae in the Bay of Quinte and the Rice Lake section is the worst breeding ground for algae in the province."

However, an OWRC expert on such matters will be sent into the Trenton area to check waste dumping in the river by industries located above the utilities' intake pipe. The provincial commission representative will try to "diplomatically" suggest alternate methods of waste disposal to the industrial heads.

One suggestion from the OWRC that the local commission spend around $100,000 on micro-screens and filters for the filtration plant, will be mulled over by the commission.

Explosive-Laden Ship Blows Up; Seamen Escape

HALIFAX (CP) — Seventeen seamen escaped the burning Hood Trepassey early today shortly before she blew up and sank 100 miles off the Nova Scotia coast.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters here reported all members of the crew of the explosives-laden vessel were safe aboard two other ships.

The 336 - ton Trepassey was carrying 90 tons of explosives for underwater exploration work. The RCAF said the ship blew up and went to the bottom about 100 miles off Cape Sable on the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia.

A fire started in the ship's engine room and the crew abandoned her when they were unable to check the flames.

The Polar and North Star, working in the same area, took the men aboard.

All three ships are owned by the Trepassey Shipping Company of nearby Dartmouth and were under charter to Geophysical Service Incorporated doing offshore exploration for the Shell Oil Company.

Batawa Skier Attempting to Make Olympics

TRENTON — By the first of August, 12-year-old Peter Wellstein of Batawa, will be skiing down the Kokanee glacier in British Columbia. The youthful devotee of the slalom will leave Trenton July 29 for the west coast, and he was in Don Bell's Sports Shop yesterday, checking his own equipment and buying accessories.

Peter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wellstein, has been skiing since the age of two, coached by his parents, but it wasn't until this year that he really began to take the sport seriously.

Peter stood first in Ontario for slalom in his age classification, in tests at Sault Ste. Marie this winter; second in jumping in Southern Ontario competition at Parry Sound and participated in the Canadian Junior Championship tests.

Now, Peter has been chosen by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association's International Competition Committee to attend a summer ski camp at Kootenay, B.C., along with 14 other boys from across Canada. Also at the camp will be members of the National Ski team and the coach will be Verne Anderson, 1964 Olympic team coach.

The object of the special meet is to line up timber for Canada's next World Olympics team. The world meet will be held in France, four years from now.

A flight for Peter to Edmonton has been arranged by the Batawa Air Cadet Squadron, No. 732.

MANY GALLONS RECOVERED

Utilities manager James Page reported to the Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday that his workmen had located leaks in town water mains accounting for the loss of 721,000 gallons a day. Thirteen of these leaks have been repaired and 338,000 gals. per day recovered. Other leaks, smaller, and costlier to repair, have yet to be dealt with. Seventy five to 80 per cent of the town has been checked, at a cost of $4,000. Since the PUC had allocated $25,000 for this work . . . it is ahead of the game.

DENSE POPULATION

HERE'S ONE FOR A HOT DAY! . . . 15-year-old Peter Wellstein of Batawa leaves Trenton next Wednesday for British Columbia where he will join 14 other Canadian boys in ski try-outs on the Kokanee glacier ski run.

The Goldwater Bandwagon

Senator Barry Goldwater has scored an impressive victory.

He has made winning the Republican nomination for president of the United States look easy. Nobody should under-estimate the implications. This can only be the product of a high degree of organizational skill and a basic appeal to the yearnings of a large segment of the American people.

It is the common belief that Goldwater does not have a chance of defeating the Democratic candidate, who is certain to be President L. B. Johnson. But we should not forget that a few short months ago Goldwater was not considered likely to win the Republican nomination. Lightning can strike twice. There are many things which could happen before November which would reduce Johnson's popularity. On his shoulders rests the burden of making decisions. Circumstances may force him to make some unpopular ones.

Throughout much of the world, and this almost certainly includes Canada, Goldwater's policies have little appeal. That, though, does not mean that they will not find favor with a large block of American voters.

The United States and its people are suffering from frustration. It is the richest, most powerful nation on earth, yet it is finding it increasingly difficult to get its own way.

Frustration commonly results in one of two reactions, resignation or annoyance. Resignation is an attitude foreign to the American mentality.

Much of the world fears that a Goldwater victory would produce a hot war. This may be too pessimistic a view. Certainly, though, it would at least mean a return to the more frigid periods of the Cold War.

Appeasement, a word which fell into disgrace at the time of Munich, is anathema to Goldwater and his supporters. The rest of the world has been coming around slowly to the view that reasonable accommodations with a rival are no disgrace so long as one does not abandon one's own principles, or sell out one's friends. The late President Kennedy was obviously of the company who believed that appeasement is not. Many of his fellow citizens share his feelings. Still, he faces a tremendously difficult campaign.

The biggest obstacle that Goldwater must overcome is the situation that was created by the death of John F. Kennedy. John Kennedy was President for two years and eleven months. He was an astute politician but really was never able to master Congress and push through those programs he had promised in his election platform of 1960.

The opposition in any election must criticize the past administration. The problem for Goldwater and his forces is to do this without offending the name of John F. Kennedy. This will indeed be a difficult task because John Kennedy was a man who even though he did not have the support of all in life, certainly did have it in death. A direct attack on the past administration will most assuredly be counted by many as a slur on the memory of the late President.

Lyndon B. Johnson has been President for seven and one-half months. Can one really criticize a man in his position after a little more than half a year? Not really. And besides, Johnson has manoeuvered well in his short time. He has given the impression of getting things done, which is just what the public wants. The solution to the rail dispute, the Civil Rights Bill, the program on poverty and the many other sharp political moves, that only an LBJ is capable of are examples.

But Barry Goldwater is a fighter. He may be crushed in November, but he might win. Regardless of what happens, the next three months will see one of the craftiest and hardest-fought campaigns in the history of American politics.

How About Land Cruisers?

Hon. Pfiul Hellyer, Minister of Defence, is reported to have ordered a study of warships and their costs. He wants to discover a possible new ship for the Royal Canadian Navy which could be built in Canadian shipyards.

If he wants to utilize the full facilities of shipyards on the Great Lakes, which played a major role in equipping the Canadian Navy with corvettes and frigates for the Battle of the Atlantic, he had better settle on a design with wheels. Otherwise, lake levels being what they are, a flat-bottomed punt might prove the only acceptable solution.

Bees Sing and Dance

By Brice Pridham, in UNESCO Features

The humming bumblebee bumbles not. No, bee is an active, purposeful life, with little waste motion, precisely guided by "singing" and "dancing."

The "singing," however, is not singing as humans know it. It is limited both in communication based on simple sounds. In human society, the equivalent would be conversation carried out in "ughs" and "eeks."

But the complex social life of this hitherto little insect is accompanied and to some degree regulated by these simple sounds and by its so-called "dance."

The classical studies of Karl von Frisch, at the University of Munich, first revealed the importance of a curious kind of dance in the bee's food-seeking activities.

A humming little forager comes upon a flower which has tapped patch of nectar-laden flowers. She zooms back to the hive to inform her fellows.

There, on the vertical face of a honeycomb, she performs a waggling dance, in which her abdomen traces out, over and over again, a kind of a figure-8, though somewhat like two capital D's joined back to back. The bee will so perform her figure-8 in its orientation, with reference to a straight up-and-down line, tells other bees in which direction to go to arrive at the flower patch. Moreover, the rate of the dance, according to von Frisch, tells how far away the flower patch lies. (In 1950, a Unesco-po pointed international prize was awarded Professor von Frisch the Kalinga Prize, given annually for outstanding achievements in the popularization of science.)

• • •

Just recently, Adrian S. Wenner, of the University of California, and Professor C. King of Servomechanisms, Inc., investigated the bee dance further, their findings being described in an article in Scientific American. They concluded that there must be some supplementary means of conveying information, in addition to the dance, to direct other bees to the newly-discovered food supply. They found that "singing" (which they do not call it that) enters into the picture.

The dancing bee emits a peculiar sound at a frequency of about 250 cycles a second (this simply means that the air vibrates 250 times per second). This sound is approximately equivalent to the musical note of B below middle C, about the mid-point of a tenor's range.

But a simple sustained note cannot be itself communicate a message, so how is the necessary information conveyed? The researchers have overcome the answer. A dancing bee emits her B-below-middle-C note in bursts, or pulses, varying made up of number of pulses. The sound train is only emitted during the dance, and the pulses are directly proportional to the distance to the source of food.

But this is not the total extent of bee "music" or language. Experiments have revealed that these classic images of industriousness spend more time in the hive than was formerly realized. They emit at least ten different kinds of sounds, and these have been related to specific life activities.

For example, a disturbed hive appears to be soothed and pacified by a piping sound emitted by workers at 500 cycles per second, approximately the B-above-middle-C about the mid-point of a soprano's range.

When a virgin queen has reached maturity and emerged from her cell for the first time, she is fear down the other cells containing developing queens and sting their inhabitants to death.

In some cases, however, the is prevented from doing this by the workers. She will then proceed to emit "queen" sounds, of a particular pattern, and will continue to do so for a week or longer.

When the remaining royal bees mature, they are kept imprisoned in their cells by the workers. The imprisoned queens, hearing the tooting of the free ones, emit in response a "quacking" sound at a lower pitch, and in a different pattern, than the tooting. Toots, it is clear, are the free queen's clarion, quacks the imprisoned queen's challenge.

The workers release the imprisoned queens one at a time. Combat then takes place, with the victorious queen of each battle engaging the next released queen — usually until the fullest has survived.

The surviving queen will then mate in flight with drones who have anything other to do than this. (Males have a very unsophisticated role in the world of bees.)

• • •

While the toots of the first emerged queen are made at about the musical pitch of B above-middle-C, Wenner and King found, surprisingly enough, that the pitch was not as important as the sound pattern. When they mechanically mimicked the pattern of the toots — even though this was done at a number of different pitches — imprisoned queens responded with quacks just as if the toots had been emitted by a live queen.

But is it really "singing" that bees emit, and truly "singing" that bees hear? In other words how do bees make their sounds and how do they hear?

Bees and other insects breathe through spiracles, tiny openings in the side of the body. Early investigators thought that this was the ideal mechanism to provide bees with a voice. But so, however. A number of experiments have eliminated the plausible notion that spiracles have a sound making function.

At the present time, the most likely theory is that the bees' sounds are produced by the wings.

• • •

As for responding to the sounds, bees probably do not hear at all, as humans do. But ther they feel sounds, or more precisely, they feel vibrations.

When artificially - produced tooting was played to a queen encaged queen, with the sound being transmitted through the air, she did not respond. However, when the toot-produce ing device was attached to the hive so that the vibrations were transmitted by solid material, the caged queen responded with the usual challenging quacks.

Similarly, worker bees only respond to bee sounds transmitted by the hive structure, but not to sounds carried in the air.

So the bees possibly have a double sound-receiving system. This, it has been suggested, is a great advantage in the noise filled hive. Bees receiving the normal hive sounds through their legs can still pick up the special sounds emitted by a bee doing a food dance — touchdance with their antennae.

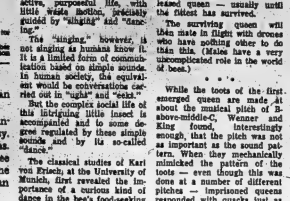
• • •

If these conjectures are correct, it would be as if the fortunate bees were provided with two pairs of ears — one everyday chatter and one for big news. In this they may be antic spating human nature.

The human skin itself is highly sensitive to vibrations in the range of 200 cycles a second, the same B-note frequency that is so common in bee life. Because of this, Harold T. Verrillo, a psychophysicist at the University of Syracuse (New York), has suggested that a vibration language may be developed to help communicating with the blind or with astronauts in flight whose eyes and ears are overloaded and crupled with other tasks. Messages could be conveyed by a small disk vibrator applied to the skin.

At the Israel Institute of Technology at Haifa, important research has also proceeded along these lines. Scientists there have developed a vibrating apparatus for vibration communication between two blind persons or between a blind person and a sighted one. In this method, the communicants rest their fingers upon keys both to "talk" and to "hear" (feel vibrations). The code is made up of three different vibration frequencies, a 5,000-word language is possible.

Disasters



Edmonton Journal

Last Good Friday, Port Alberni and neighboring Alberni were struck by tidal waves touched off by the Alaska earthquake. Loss was estimated at $1,500,000. The taxpayers of Canada were called upon to help make good this loss.

But, with the damage not fully repaired, the people of the area brought upon themselves labor strife that has been costing more than $1,500,000 a week. The loss in a strike of office workers ant a sympathy strike of millworkers is reported to be $650,000 in wages and $535,000 in production per day.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

This year the Ontario crops are expected to be very heavy and with the shortage of help on the farms the appeal has been made for volunteer help to go to work on the land and assist the farmers to harvest the crops The farmers of Canada have performed a great service in expanding their production in spite of the fact that there is no help available.

What volunteer help has been able to do in the past two years is well known. In 1942 there were sufficient volunteer helper, placed to harvest and save record field and orchard crops in the face of a reduction of 25 percent in regular farm man power. In 1943 with still further depletion in farm manpower, a greater acreage was sown, while important yield was saved under most difficult harvesting conditions of weather which required the crop to be handled many times in the fields.

The present year is an important one and the province is confronted with what may be the most crucial situation of any of the war years. With the possible exception of wheat, the so-called low-war surpluses of food products have all disappeared and difficulty is being experienced in maintaining even moderate stockpiles of commodities essential to wartime requirements.

At a recently attended meeting in Avondale school last evening the ratepayers of several schools discussed the township school area advocated by the Department of Education in an effort to reduce expenses of education. The meeting was addressed by A. W. McGuire, school inspector. The speaker outlining the objectives of the scheme.

Strap Not Part of Good Diet for Young Child

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I know of a mother who insists that her 4-year-old son eats his share. If he doesn't, she gets a strap and she says he's entitled to spank him until he does. That seems brutal to me. What do you think.

— Mrs. M. D.

It's not only brutal, it's also senseless.

Being hungry is Nature's way of telling us that we ought to eat. Not being hungry is Nature's way of telling us we've had enough.

I have no objection whatever to the common (and commonsense) practice in many families of telling a child to eat his dinner before getting any dessert.

A child (and adults, too, for that matter) need a balance of proteins, carbohydrates, calcium foods (milk being the main one) and fruits, especially citrus fruits or tomatoes or juice, to provide "building" materials or to help, plus vitamins, which regulate certain body processes.

Children don't need sweet stuff, except to provide energy and if they aren't getting enough energy from food, they keep on being hungry. Actually, it doesn't make too much difference if they die eventually, whether they get the energy from starches or from sugar, or from fats.

Sweet foods will kill the appetite. So that's a very good reason for having dessert last instead of first.

But forcing a child to eat a certain amount of food, when he doesn't feel hungry, makes no sense. If he's hungry, he'll eat. And trying to force him to swallow food by deciding how much he needs down to trying to set yourself up as a better judge than Nature, in deciding when he's hungry or "ought to be."

Now, I wonder, when I see such bossy mothers, would they like it to have someone set an arbitrary amount of food in front of them, and be forced to eat it with the threat of being whipped if they didn't?

Psychologically, the damage to a child is usually much worse than it is physically. If the child gives in, and eats too much, he gets fat.

But if (as most children sensibly do) the child just gets angry at being forced to do something he doesn't like doing when he isn't hungry) he gradually develops a resentment against authority. He refuses to do what his teachers tell him to do in school. And he doesn't learn. He refuses to do what his boss, later on, tells him to do. And he gets fired from his job. He won't obey traffic laws, and you know then what happens.

No, don't whip a child until he eats what you think he should eat.

Give him suitably balanced meals. Let him eat until he's full. If he experiments a little bit — up with candy or whatever between meals, and then refuses to eat his dinner, don't cave in to the whip. Just cut off the between meal snacks. And let him take his dessert with dinner. It will. And Nature, having exercised a long, long time, will take care of things.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor says I have cysts on my ovaries. Could this be the reason I can't get pregnant? — Mrs. J. L.

Yes, it could be.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does smoking cigarettes and drinking beer (not excessively) if a pregnant woman have any ill effects on her or her unborn child? — Mrs. J. D.

Smoking, in some instances, is thought to have some effect on the baby's delivery. Nicotine adds extra calories and might cause excessive gain in weight, which is not desirable. Beer in moderate amounts, and if your weight is not excessive, will not hurt the baby.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn to live with this serious lung disease, write to me. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Bookflex, P. O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of the booklet "How to Control Emphysema" which, being a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover cost of printing and handling.

Spelling Today Defies Reason, Rationality

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every few years, loud noises are heard in many quarters about the need to "reform" English spelling, which is the worst feature of our language. Most foreigners find English relatively easy to speak, but hideously difficult to spell. The same is true of children.

In his book, "Sound and Spelling in English," Robert A. Hall, Jr. of Cornell University points out that "the irregularities of English spelling originated between 400 and 500 years ago, at a time when English society was organized according to strict social class distinctions, when the upper classes wanted to keep the art of reading and writing as their private possession."

Our irregular, irrational, archaic, cumbersome and silly spelling system, then, was an excellent means to that end, and to maintaining class distinctions. As Shaw satirized, as Veblen said, consumes much time and effort; failure to acquire it is a sure sign of inferiority.

Proper spelling became a "shibboleth" to separate the learned from the ignorant, and the word "shibboleth" itself was the test by which the Gileadites in the Bible could detect the Ephraimites, who could not pronounce the "sh" sound.

Few persons, except scholars and historians, know what "Peck's Bad Boy" was; yet the use was boldfaced and in late as the reign of King George IV in 1827, Webster's Spelling was a passage from the Bible, beginning "Have mercy on me, O Lord," and it was the boy who had committed a felony, and then claimed "Benefit of Clergy."

If they were able to read and write — as reading this verse indicated — they were exempted from trial by a secular court, and saved their neck, because only those who could read and set at liberty. At first, this privilege was only for the ordained clergy, but later it grew to include everyone who could read and write — which only the upper classes could do in most times.

In surveying the proposals for reforming our spelling, Hall concludes that it cannot be done in a number of reasons, with which I agree. "We are saddled, therefore," he says, "with this paradoxical task: we must preserve an orthography which was deliberately loaded with difficulties in order to be accessible only to a chosen few; but we must teach it to all the members of a democratic society."

It is mainly our spelling that prevents English from becoming a truly universal language; its ease, grace, power and beauty recommend it to all other aspects. We are irretrievably wedded with the task of teaching our children to spell in a way that defies all sense and logic.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative activity slackened and price changes were small in moderate trading on the stock market today. However, industrial stocks strengthened and moved to a new index high.

Aluminium led the main list higher with a 3/8 gain at 31¾. B.C. Telephone continued to improve, gaining ¾ to a 1964 high of 65¾. Consolidated Paper tacked on ¼ to a 1964 peak of 43¾ while Bank of Nova Scotia was ahead the same amount at 75¾.

Massey-Ferguson gave up ¾ to 29½, Sicleo ¼ to 25½ and Imperial Oil ¼ to 51¼.

Speculative trading lacked zip. The wide price swings, characteristic of the last two weeks, trading were lacking. Windfall climbed five cents to $4.15 as one of the few winners in the list PGE Exploration was down four cents to 54 cents.

Senior base metals were firm. Cominco, a sharp gainer Thursday, improved ¼ to 37¼ and troubled Rio-Algom ¼ to 10¼. In golds, Dome gained ¼ to 29¼.

Trading was active with 8,406,000 shares changing hands compared with 10,184,000 Wednesday.

Speculators picked Tormont as their favorite. The stock traded 1,011,330 shares and climbed 11½ cents to 31½ cents.

Windfall, the stock which triggered the current speculative spree, settled into a fairly conservative trading pattern as its wild swings of the last week abated. It closed at $4.10, off 25 cents. Slightly more than 195,000 shares changed hands.

Bunker Hill rocketed from 31 cents to 64 cents in less than an hour and just as quickly dropped to its closing level of 57 cents Glenn was down one cent to 39 cents and Geneo three cents to 40 cents. Gulf climbed four cents to 33 cents in orderly trading.

Industrials took an index loss of .9 to 192.73 but there were signs of a rally at the close.

LEADS LOSERS

Leading loser was Massey-Ferguson which dipped ¾ to 29¼ after announcing it will redeem its 4½- and 5½-per-cent convertible preferred shares. Profit takers dropped Quebec Natural Gas ¼ to 10.

There was a sprinkling of good gains. Canadian Utilities climbed to a 1964 peak of 35⅜ with a ¾ advance. Bank of Nova Scotia inched on ¾ to 75. Bank of Montreal ¾ to 66¾ and Toronto-Dominion ¾ to 66¾. John Labatt was ahead ¼ to 23½ and Algoma Steel ¼ to 17¾.

Base metals rallied late in the session and were the only group to show a plus sign on index. Cominco gained 1 to 36⅞, Noranda ¼ to 47⅛ and Falconbridge ¼ to 73¾. Leitch dipped 40 cents to 55.35 after Texas Gulf Sulphur officials denied that a settlement had been reached in a dispute over the ownership of Texas Gulf's ore body in Kidd Township near Timmins.

Golds were fractionally lower but Dickenson rallied to post a 10-cent gain at $4.85 after trading in lower range for most of the day.

On index, golds were down .19 to 99.43 and base metals off .09 to 149.03. Base metals were ahead .75 to 85.16.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices steady on good and choice dry-fed steers at the Ontario Public Stockyards this week.

Grass-fed steers were steady on a moderate demand, dry-fed heifers lower and grass heifers sharply lower and in narrow demand.

Good cows were steady with canner and cutter cows trading actively, bulls met a good demand at steady prices. Stear replacements all weights traded actively at higher prices, while sales on heifer replacements were at a near standstill.

Veal calf prices opened higher but lost the gain to close steady. Hog prices were generally lower and lamb prices higher.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 9,000 head, about the same as last week and some 2,100 head more than the same week in 1963. Western cattle receipts totalled 863 head compared with 388 head last week. Included in the western receipts were several loads of slaughter cattle. Western stock calf receipts are in short supply. There were no shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers nor exports of the animal to the United States.

May Ask Hees To Explain Contract Award

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands were made Thursday that Transport Minister George Hees explain the award of a Montreal International Airport contract in 1960 that left the federal transport department holding debts of more than $700,000.

The Commons public accounts committee was told that a contract to provide the airport dining and lounge facilities was awarded on Mr. Hees's recommendation despite departmental urging that an experienced catering firm undertake the task.

Mr. Hees is Conservative transport minister from 1957 until October, 1962, when he became trade minister. He left active politics before the 1963 federal election and now is president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) proposed that the public accounts steering committee call Mr. Hees to appear "and explain why he made a recommendation that treasury board grant a significant tender for catering against the recommendation of his officials."

It was noted that the report of Auditor-General A. M. Henderson said two unsuccessful bidders for the job were large, well-established catering services while the successful bidder was a group of Montreal businessmen of varied background including some restaurant experience. The men involved were not named but the committee was promised a list of their names by transport officials.

SINATRA BARRED

BEIRUT (AP)—Actor-singer Frank Sinatra has been barred from entering Lebanon because of his moral and material support of Israel, the daily newspaper L'Orient said Friday. The newspaper said the foreign affairs ministers also voted Wednesday to ban Sinatra's movies and records.

Four hundred and thirty six people in Belleville earned more than $10,000 each during 1962 and 1,340 of the people who filed income tax returns earned less than $3,000. The biggest single income group in the city was those people, 2,897 of them, who earned between $3,000 and $5,999.

If all the income-taxable people in Belleville had put their income in a common pool during that year, and divided it equally, they would have had $4,389 each. If they had all put it in a common pot and drawn lots for the total, some lucky person would have won $48,546,000. The income tax on that amount would have been $28,788,000. (figured without allowance for exemptions), for an individual.

All the figures are in, or derived from, the Department of National Revenue's book of "1964 Taxation Statistics, part one — individuals". It's about the size of your Belleville and district telephone book, and tables analysing the general income taxation picture in Canada, the distribution of taxpayers by income classes, by occupational classes, by cities or places of residence, by counties or census divisions and selected localities, by marital status or dependants, by income and occupational classes in the different provinces, distribution of gross and net income for the provinces and for the nation and income distribution by occupational classes. Two additional tables analyse the history record of taxpayers and the distribution of taxpayers by income classes for the 20 years before 1962. The figures are a year out of date because it took about that long to make the analysis and to put the tables together.

BELLEVILLE Fith

As a book, the report will probably never hit the best seller list. But the tables are interesting, if a person has the time to figure them out. One list at the front of the book shows, for example, that Belleville has 11,060 income taxpayers earning an average of $4,389 each for a total income of $48,500,990. The average income tax was $625 and the total of income taxes paid in Belleville was $4,700,000. That's 0.23 percent of all the income tax paid in Canada. Of 63 cities listed in the table, (cities with more than 7,000 taxpayers), Belleville's citizens had the 27th highest average income. Highest average in Canada was in Sarnia, where the average taxpayer earned $5,125 and paid $529 in income tax. Lowest average income was in Drummondville, where the average taxpayer earned $3,725 and paid $234 income tax. Kingston had the 33rd highest average income, at $4,475, (average tax was $457) and Peterborough had the 15th highest average, $4,663, (average tax was $445).

Belleville's total of Belleville citizens' collective $48 million income came as wages or salaries. More than $2 million was business income, about one-and-a-half million dollars came as professional income and slightly more than one million dollars was collected as commissions. Less than $11,000 of the city's money was farm or fishing income. (This refers to fishing or farming as living within the city. It does not make allowances for money spent in the city by farmers who live outside.)

Belleville people claimed $866,000 dollars as pension contributions during 1962, and $169,000 as medical claims. Charitable donations totalled $579,000 according to the income tax returns and $40,000 went to union and professional dues.

DOCTORS HIGHEST PAID

On a national basis, Canada's 14,169 doctors and surgeons were the highest paid people with an average of $18,146 each. As an occupational class they earned 1.54 per cent of all the personal income in the country, and paid 2.98 per cent of the total of income taxes. Lawyers and notaries were the next highest paid group with average earnings of $15,364, then came engineers and architects, dentists, accountants, investors, salesmen and other professionals. More than four million people were classified as employees, the second lowest paid group in the country, and they earned an average income of $4,227 each. Lowest paid taxpayers in the country were pensioners, at $1,292 each, with average incomes of $3,217 each.

The historical tables show that the total of all taxpayers in the country increased from 1,781,244 in 1942 to 4,681,227 in 1962. Total income including business income rose from $3,523,223,000 to $20,764,226,000 between 1942 and 1962. Personal income was up from $7,233,000,000 to $20,704,000,000 in 1942, 313,913 people earned less than $1,000 and only 2,252 people earned more than $25,000. The largest single income group was made up of 913,944 people who earned between $1,000 and $1,999. In 1962, only 30,811 people earned less than $1,000 and 20,718 earned more than $25,000. The largest single income group included the 1,172,963 people who earned between $3,000 and $9,999. There were only 6,434 people in that income class in 1942 and there were only 563,160 people in 1962 in the group earning between $1,000 and $1,999.

In the highest income groups, there were some very rich people paying very high taxes. There were 487 people in Canada who made between $100,000 and $199,999 in 1962. Their income totalled nearly $13 million and their taxes totalled more than $24 million. Seventy-one people received more than $200,000 each — their total was more than $22 million and they paid taxes totalling nearly $10 million. The largest single income group in the country were those people who earned $5,000 to $5,499.

Some Reap What Others Sow, The Man Said Yes But Also No

Mics and men may see their plans "gang aft agley," as Burns said, but public relations men often see it happen with a new twist. Consider the problem of R. Killough, public relations officer for the Ontario Hydro's East Central Region and chairman of the public relations committee of Belleville United Appeal.

About the end of June, he heard, about the British Travel Association's plans to send a double-decker London bus on a four from Montreal to Vancouver between September 14 and October 28. The tour, as it had been laid out, did not include Belleville.

Killough wrote the British Travel Association's office in Toronto, asking if the bus could be diverted to Belleville, to cooperate with a Belleville United Appeal promotion. While he waited for the answer, he thought up a half dozen public relations promotions based on the bus. Then came the British Travel Association's answer.

The bus' schedule is already laid out between Kingston and Peterborough, with no time allowed for even an hour-long detour to Belleville. The Association likes the idea of supporting United Appeals, though, and has written the Community Funds and Associations' plans to send a double-decker London bus on a four from Montreal to Vancouver between September 14 and October 28. The tour, as it had been laid out, did not include Belleville.

So Belleville won't see the double-decker but, and the Belleville United Appeal will not be able to use it in any promotion. It's because of the Belleville United Appeal though that the bus is coming at all. The directors of the Belleville United Appeal thought of it, because of the time it would be in town, and offered the use of the vehicle.

Nearly everybody likes to entertain. And everybody wants to be considered a good host or hostess.

Problem is that a family income budgeted for mortgage, car payments, insurance and other fixed expenses won't stand big entertainment bills. It doesn't make economic sense.

So what to do —when you know that among your guests some prefer gin, others rye, vodka, rum, sherry or beer—and your budget won't stand such an assortment?

Here's the solution that will delight everyone—and keep your entertainment cost at a minimum—

Buy just one liquor: A special brand of extra light rum. Its name: TROPICANA. Made by Woods, who have been distilling fine rums for over 75 years . . . And what's special about TROPICANA?

It's so versatile, it's practically a one-brand bar! Besides being a superior light rum by itself, your guests will enjoy it in any rum drink imaginable.

It makes delightful versions of almost any drink you can name! Just try TROPICANA with three or four quite different mixes. You'll realize you're on to something good!

Tropi-cola, for instance! Lots of people have already discovered Tropi-cola. They will be delighted with your Tropicana and Ginger, Tropicana and Cola, Tropicana and Bitter Lemon, or what will you have!

"A refreshing change" . . . "a delightful idea" . . . "mighty satisfying" . . . With TROPICANA your reputation is established . . . and your budget saved!

BAYVIEW SCHOOL

Last Wednesday night the mothers defeated the fathers by a score of 31 to 1 in a father and son softball game held at Bayview Playground.

The game was hard fought all the way and with the exception of one run in the first innings the game was very close.

Homeruns in the game were hit by Lori Hall and Dancork Thompson for the sons while the fathers failed to deliver any. The winning pitcher was R. S. Cretney while "Father Watson" took the loss.

The sons, however are hoping that the "old" fathers can organize another team so preferably the same one and take on the power hitting sons of Bayview School.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

This was a very close ball game, in which 22 players participated. Bob Rowbotham started the game by singling to left and finally stealing home giving the initial lead to Alexandra. However, the score was close until the sixth inning when Alexandra came up with six runs and held St. Paul's to four. Bob Barrage gave up 16 hits, walked 9, and struck out six for St. Paul's. For Alexandra Bob Thomaso gave up 4 hits, walked 4 and struck out 12, to give a final score of Alexandra 11; St. Paul's 4.

QUEEN ELIZABETH

On Thursday, 39 children of Queen Elizabeth Playgrounds decorated their bicycles and "three-wheelers" for an "On Wheels Day". The children were given 90 minutes to decorate their vehicles with the materials provided. After words there was a contest to see who could pick up the most scrap paper.

The results of the decorated bicycles were; first Rick Pomeroy, second Judy Platt; third S. Snell, K. Davis and D. Theobald; fourth Barry McGarvey.

Principal Will Lead Bible Study

REV. HARRIET CHRISTIE

Rev. Harriet Christie, Principal of "Covenant" College, Toronto will lead the courses in Bible study at the Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Women school for leaders which is being held at Albert College. This is the first time in many years that this conference has been held in Belleville as formerly it was held at Whitby Ladies' College. The classes will commence on July 20 and continue to July 23rd.

On Sunday, July 19th at Eastminster United Church, Miss Christie will address the congregation at the morning service. The United Church Women are responsible for this service while their minister is on holidays.

New President Says Women Are Too Shy

OTTAWA (CP)—Most Canadian working women are too shy about expressing themselves, and won't fight for the opportunities and jobs they want, the new president of the 7,000-member Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs said Thursday.

Wanda L. Dane of Toronto, a public relations executive with the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, told a reporter: "Today's women are exceedingly diffident—they tend to sit back and wait for things to happen."

Ii isn't lack of ability or education, she said, a self-confidence that prevents many women from reaching top positions, she said.

"If a woman wants a particular job she should ask for it. Or a man would. Half because of tradition, she must be a little more subtle."

A tall, attractive person with greying hair and a low-pitched voice, Miss Dane does not fit the image of the aggressive career woman. She revealed one of her major interests—Canadian history—immediately after her election as president, when she suggested that the federation might commission a book on the progress and achievements of Canadian women as a centennial project.

RAISES TEMPERATURE

Smoking, eating, drinking, exercise and just opening the mouth to talk can affect the body's temperature.

Ann Landers

Public Exhibition of Grief Ignorance and Weakness

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was interested in the letter from the woman who signed her letter "Exaggerated Grief" She was scheduling a friend who fell apart at the funeral service of her husband. The writer hinted that the widow might be a candidate for an Academy Award, since her husband had been ill for a long time and his death came as no surprise.

Your answer seemed to support the mourner. You said, "The death of a loved one — expected or not — can be a traumatic experience." Candidly, Ann, I was surprised at the answer.

ANN LANDERS

Highly civilized, cultured, well-educated individuals are in control of themselves at all times. The more primitive the people, the nolder the funeral.

I believe in the therapeutic value of tears. But the shedding of tears should be private. Public exhibition of grief is a sign of ignorance and weakness. — FROM IOWA.

DEAR IOWA — How wonderful if all of us could be in perfect control of our emotions at all times. Humans—since we are human — cannot always achieve this level of perfection. Even machines have been known to break down occasionally.

The notion that only the weak and ignorant shed tears in public indicates such a lack of compassion that I would not dignify the observation by commenting further.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know you are against mixed marriages. I wish you would also come out against marriage between people of different political parties. I think it would help reduce the staggering divorce rate in this country.

I married a Republican. He tells me I would vote for a ring-tailed monkey if he ran on the Democratic ticket. My husband insists that although he is a registered Republican he votes for the man and not the party.

Something is wrong with this approach to politics but I can't put it into words. Can you? — POLLS APART.

DEAR POLLS — Many strong party members believe it the party is to be preserved they must support the party, no matter who the candidate. This oldfashioned, machine-type approach is losing out, and it's a good thing.

The voter who refuses to support his party's poor candidate is a healthy influence on both parties.

The notion that any second-rater can be crammed down the voter's throat as long ah he is on the "right" ticket should be knocked in the head.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother-in-law minds her own business, my kids don't give me any lip and the neighbors keep their dog off our property. So what am I writing about? My problem deals with business ethics and I need advice.

In our state a law prohibits the sale of cigarettes to anyone under 18. We own a small neighborhood store. Occasionally kids come in with notes from their mothers asking us to sell them cigarettes. I tell them I'm sorry but I can't do it.

This makes the mothers mad and I have lost some good customers because of it. They then send the children to the chain store on the corner where they can get what they want.

My wife says I should stop being a simpleton. What do you say? — ARGUE ARGUE ARGUE.

DEAR ARGUE — It's unfair of people to ask you to break the law and then take their business elsewhere because you refuse.

The next time a mother sends her child in for cigarettes, phone her and tell her the law is law. Maybe she'll be mad at both of us, but it's worth the try.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of heavy drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

A well-mannered person refrains from making discourteous remarks behind the back of another. Do you manage to remain quiet when a less tactful acquaintance:

1. Criticizes someone's appearance?
2. Indulges in gossip?
3. Snipes at the way another is doing his job?
4. Makes an unkind remark about another's behavior?
5. Offers a behind-the-hand comment about the hostess' cooking?
6. Criticizes the table decorations and the food?
7. Wonders out loud how much the family paid for the wedding reception?
8. Compares the party she's at with better ones she's been to?
9. Makes snide remarks about the other guests?
10. Pooh - poohs the ideas and beliefs of others if they weren't entitled to them?

Coffee-Table Sized Hats Are Shown

All-black, all-white or black and white outfits still remain a favorite color choice with the Parma sisters, who plan to open a ready-to-wear clothes factory here next year. Their suits had long, roomy and often short-breasted jackets, with drop-seam or raglan shoulders, and sleeves usually extended to their wrists.

A collection by Sarli featured low waistlines often marked by loose leather belts at thighline. Bowler hats went with most morning model and mink was largely used for collars and cuff dickies.

Horse Trainer Likes Women For Grooms

TORONTO (CP) — One of North America's leading race-horse trainers says he's all in favor of having women care for thoroughbreds.

"Women are really love horse. are good at handling them because they have so much patience, aren't as temperamental as men and are more level-headed," says Frank Merrill.

"I'd have all women at my stables if I could get them."

Merrill, whose horses annually put him among the winningest trainers on the continent, got even further—he has his wife Sally working as an exercise boy.

One is 18-year-old Sherrie Cook who gets up at 4:15 a.m. each day to drive 30 miles from Hamilton. She earns about $90 a week for exercising 14 horses.

HOPES FOR LICENCE

Originally she wanted to be a veterinarian but, because women are discouraged from working with large animals, she now has decided she wants to become a trainer and hopes to get her licence when she's 21.

Housewife Mrs. Ken Orris is also an exercise boy and a lead pony rider, a job that involves riding the pony that leads racehorses from the paddock to the starting gate. She takes her two young children to a baby-sitter each morning before heading for the track.

Mrs. George Goodwin, who learned to ride at her uncle's Vancouver riding academy, is a groom in charge of four horses. She feeds and grooms them, cleans their stalls, takes them to the paddock for races and cools and rubs them down afterward. For this she earns $65 a week plus $20 for every winner.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walter Laney are pictured cutting the cake at the reception following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Dorothy Jo Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Brown, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Laney, Belleville R. R. 3.

LANEY — BROWN

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, July 4, at 11 a.m., when Dorothy Jo Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Brown, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Richard Walter Laney, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Laney, Belleville R.R. 3. The Rev. R. G. Fleming officiated before a background of white 'mums and white bows designated the guest pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white bridal gown of lace and net, with the bodice featuring a square neckline adorned at the front with seed pearls, and long filly-point sleeves. A shoulder length veil edged with lace was caught by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink tinted stephanotis mingled with trailing ivy.

Mrs. Keith Tripp, aunt of the bride, of Belleville, was matron of honor, dressed in blue chiffon with long sleeved last jacket. She wore a blue satin bow with veil, matching shoes and carried a bouquet of blue tinted 'mums. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Kevin Holloban of Almonte, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Sandra Hardcrchuk, cousin of the bride, from Timmins, were identically attired in the matron of honor, but in pink. Their headdresses were matching pink satin bows with veil, matching shoes and each carried a bouquet of pink tinted 'mums. The Miss Flower girl was Miss Cindy Tripp, Belleville, cousin of the bride, who wore a white lace frock with blue satin cummerbund, a white and blue flower headdress, matching shoes and gloves and carried a nosegay of matching white and blue tinted flowers.

Mr. Graham Rowe of Ottawa was groomsman, while Mr. Kevin Holoban of Almonte and Mr. Ricky Laney, Belleville, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

A reception was held in the Prince Edward Room, at Hotel Quinte, Belleville where the bride's table was most attractive and centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a peacock blue chiffon over taffeta dress, matching shoes, white wedding ring chiffon hat and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a lime - piece blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at showers in her honor by Mrs. Keith Tripp and by the staff of Zeller's Limited at the home of Mrs. L. Gilpbant.

The couple are at present staying at the bride's home, but will take up residence in Toronto in the fall.

Local Branch Ballet Guild Lists Officers

Since the main objective of branches of the National Ballet Guild is to provide an audience for the local performance of the National Ballet Company and to raise funds for its operation, it was agreed that the past season had been a success for not only had the Belleville branch been able to provide a full house for the performance but had been able to raise a small sum of money through the successful wine and cheese tasting party held last November.

In view of the success of the wine party, in spite of the fact that it was held on a night when Belleville suffered one of its worst storms of the season, it was decided to hold another party of this or similar type in November. Such an event, it is hoped, will again provide a means of raising funds for the National Ballet Company and also of stimulating interest in the ballet performances which will take place this coming season on the first Saturday evening in February. Belleville is still the smallest community in Canada which plays host to the National Ballet Company, which is a tribute to the cultural consciousness of the city.

DISCUSS MEMBERSHIP

Membership was discussed an dit was pointed out that unlike other organizations there are no meetings to attend. Membership is a visible evidence of interest in the welfare of the National Ballet Company which, incidentally, is owned by the National Ballet Guild of Canada.) Membership also entitles one to receive the National Ballet News which is issued regularly and carries stories concerning the company and highlights of the tours and other items of interest.

A little human interest sidelight was given to the meeting when it was reported that information had been received indirectly that members of the National Ballet Company always look forward to the supper party held for them following the Belleville performance. Artists in the ballet world are like young people anywhere—they have good appetites and the Belleville Guild has apparently won a reputation for the supper it provides for the dancers, who, like singers must eat after, rather than before, performances.

NEW EXECUTIVE

The nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. Paul Kelly (chairman), Mrs. F. Carscallen and Mrs. John Buchan, presented the following slate of officers which forms the executive for the coming years: Past president, Dr. Joan Bronskill; president, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. L. Acton; 2nd vice-president, Mr. Roger Ing; treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Bateman; recording secretary, Mrs. H. R. Gibson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eva Doolittle; members-at-large, Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mrs. Paul Kelly; business manager, Don Thomas.

Death Duties Discussed by B. P. Women

OTTAWA (CP)—Death duties on survivors' pensions should be payable in instalments, the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs plans to tell the federal government.

Federation members, winding up their national convention Thursday, protested a ruling that they felt was undue financial hardship suffered by widows who have to pay estate taxes on their husbands' pensions in a lump sum.

The 7,000-member federation will urge the government to make changes in the Estates Tax Act so that taxes levied on pensions payable to survivors, although calculated at the same time as other assets, will be payable by monthly deductions at source.

A resolution urging the changes, submitted by the Oshawa club, was passed unanimously. Mrs. Marjorie Pewtress of Cobourg, Ont., introducing the resolution, told delegates she knew of widows who had been forced to sell their homes in order to pay taxes on pensions.

Playground Activities

CHURCHILL HEIGHTS

A costume ball was held at Churchill Heights Playground on Thursday, July 16 at 2.00. Among the participants were cowboys, underwear man, ladies, bridesmaids, a beatle, skeletons, witches, Mexican lady, hockey player, football player, ghost, Arab lady, Zorro, Little Bo-Peep, and a clown.

Among the winners for this very special event were: Wendy Pringle, Jeanette Molaski, Dorothy Rice, Doug Campbell, Raymond Shoebridge, Mary and Dicky McVicker, Jimmy Assistino, Phillip Lynch, Janet Dall, Suzie Kelly, Joey Molaski and Cecil Graham.

I would like to thank everyone who dressed up for this occasion, and also my judges, Carol Percy, Vicki Tucker, Jane Swoffer and my assistant, Wayne Gallinger. I would like to thank also Mrs. Brickert who helped me clean up on Wednesday morning.

Playground supervisor, Carolann Kelly.

Day Hospital Run for Those Lacking Money

WINNIPEG (CP)—A mother of three children arrived at the Mount Carmel Clinic here one day recently with a case of pneumonia and a 103-degree temperature.

She needed treatment and bed rest urgently but, as a clinic official explained, "to put her in a hospital would have either broken up the family or resulted in the father's unemployment."

The answer was the clinic's seven-bed day hospital in which patients are treated during the day and released around supper time, returning the next morning if necessary.

In the case of the mother of three there was a relative who could watch out for the children during the noon hour and after school. And so each day the woman was treated in the hospital until she recovered.

The day hospital, which has been filled almost to capacity since it opened recently, is operated by the clinic's treatment centre set up 37 years ago by Henry Wise Wingley, Jewish community to give free medical attention to those who can't pay.

It now is run under the province's hospital care program and 90 per cent of its patients are non-Jews.

Successful Living

Answer for Bored Wife May Be Part Time Job

DEAR DORIS — I have as good a husband as anyone could ask for. Yet I'm so tired staying at home with just my little girls for company, I think sometimes I'll go absolutely mad.

I'm happiest when I am up to my ears in activity involving others. I've worked as receptionist, welfare clerk and teacher. Then I decided to stay at home as most people felt was proper for a married woman with children. But I can take about one week of washing, ironing, making beds, making meals, scrubbing, and I'm ready to scream, or cry, or just go to bed and stay there permanently.

Can you tell me where I can find help? — SUFFOCATING.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR SUFFOCATING — Your original mistake was being born with talents other than housewifely. And then saying "Yes" to that nice man.

Strange as it may seem, women are people. Women have native skills. Women need self-expression. And the world needs what women, as people, have to give.

So I'd urge that you (1) engage a day worker to do your heavy cleaning; (2) identify your particular talents, even if this means a series of tests and interviews with a vocational counsellor or reasonable facsimile; (3) take extension courses to develop those talents into a vocation; and (4) find part time work, paying or volunteer, in line with your new-found skills.

Not only will you jump for joy, but life will be bigger, better, more satisfying for your whole family from then on.

I'm sending you the name of a recent best seller which discusses this modern dilemma.

DEAR DORIS — Can you advise me how to remove the blue markings on stamped goods after they have been embroidered?— A READER.

DEAR READER — Soap and water will do it; maybe not on first washing, but certainly after second or third.

(Longer, fuller replies were sent to correspondents enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

SALEM U.C.W.

MINTO — The July meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Harold Holden as hostess. The president, Mrs. Everett Sine opened the meeting by reading a poem and extended a welcome to members and visitors.

Business was discussed as which time a report on the bale sent recently was given by Mrs. Sine. Mesdames Lorne Hagerman, Tom Clements and Everett Sine were appointed as a committee to arrange for catering at a wedding.

Mrs. Hagerman was in charge of the program which opened with the reading of an appropriate Scriptural poem. The Misses Joyce and Linda Sine sang a duet, Mrs. Harold Holden conducted the Bible study and discussion followed. Mrs. Bert Sine gave a reading and Miss Jane Clements rendered a piano selection. The program concluded with a reading by Mrs. Stanley Keller.

Mrs. Orval Jackson extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Holden as hostess and to all who contributed to the program.

Young Six Up on Their Toes

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Many a ballet-struck teen-ager would envy the life of six young Canadian girls now studying at London's famed Royal Ballet School

They come from widely separated parts of Canada. Three are Judy Donaldson, 18, Dawn Macdonald, 17, and Sheron Koshley, 19—are from Vancouver, the city that produced British's newest ballet star, Lynn Seymour. Judy Margolik, 17, is from Montreal; Irene Drudge, 17, from Winnipeg, and Susan Davies, 18, from Edmonton.

Recently they all appeared in the Royal Ballet School's annual public matinee. This year's production, The Sleeping Beauty, gained favorable notice in the authoritative columns of The Times and The Daily Telegraph.

Susan Davies now is in the top class and hoping to be offered a place with the Royal Ballet Company, but she already has a contract lined up with a German company, so her future is assured for at least a year.

She and Sheron Koshley, who has also been offered a chance with the company, have been in Britain six years; the others only two years, an average training.

RETURNING TO CANADA

"We are told we must not think too much about the prospect of a contract with the Royal Ballet," said petite, dark-haired Dawn Macdonald, spokesman for the group. "We have to work for the moment and get as much out of each day as we can."

Dawn, who returns to Canada in August, is not distracted by daydreams of Covent Garden. She would like to join a Canadian company, possibly the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

English training is extremely valuable, she says.

"People can tell the English style, just as they can the Russian. English-trained dancers are noted particularly for neat footwork and precision, just as the Russians have that great jump in the air that is their specialty."

Along with classical ballet exercises, there are classes for mime and character work, essential to an art that has to interpret a story through dancing.

SCHOOL IN ARTS

Students are also encouraged to visit art galleries and generally develop an appreciation of art in its widest sense.

"There's more emphasis on education as a continuous thing than in Canada, where you probably stop learning when you leave school," says Dawn.

The students get the occasional free pass to a ballet performance featuring the top stars, or better still, a chance to work on stage with them as extras. But they are encouraged by the school to develop their own style rather than model themselves after the big names.

Outside school hours the Canadian girls lead a full live. They mostly live in pairs either in apartments or with families in unfashionable, redbrick Victorian suburbs of London such as Golders Green and Parsons Green.

They find living expensive—rooms are on grants, others financed by their parents—but are entranced by London's variety of cheap entertainment.

Being a ballet student imposes certain discipline on leisure activities. Sports such as swimming or tennis are frowned upon because they develop the wrong muscles. But it is by no means an single-minded a life as some people suppose.

"Contrary to what many people think we don't live, eat and sleep ballet," said Dawn. "In fact we try to get away from it when we can—watching tennis at Wimbledon, going dancing or to parties. Otherwise one might get tired of it."

10,000 Hunger Deaths Daily
"Scandal of the 20th Century"
Farmers Forced to Under-Produce

While thousands die daily of hunger, Canada's farmers are forced to under-produce. Agencies exist to channel food to have-not countries from the haves, but the hunger problem grows as world population explodes. This story discusses the international challenge to Canadian farmers.

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The irony of the Canadian farmer's situation today lies in his need generally to under-produce while 10,000 human beings die daily of hunger or malnutrition.

This phenomenon has been called the scandal of the 20th century, in which the population has doubled to the current 3,000,000,000 and is expected to redouble to 6,000,00, by the year 2000.

The question by that time, in the view of scientists and economists, will be how to over-produce, how to get the last ounce of food from land and sea. Some people predict that livestock, competing directly with man for grain, will have to go.

But now, except during spot periods of commercial demand like the current wheat boom, Canadian farming must restrain itself.

Canadian agriculture's international ties are on two levels, one commercial trade and the other tied to the World Food Bank, the Colombo Plan and other agencies created in an attempt to alleviate world hunger and want.

Commercially, Canadian farm exports have come some way since 1938 when wheat and flour exports totalled $22,725,000 cheese $17,575,000 and pork $6,082,000.

WHEAT FIRST

Last year, Canadian farmers accounted directly or indirectly for about $1,850,000,000 worth of exports—better than one-fifth of all Canadian sales abroad.

Wheat and flour exports, worth $850,000,000, was the biggest single earner of dollars abroad.

Live cattle sales to the United States alone last year, while down substantially, amounted to more than $40,000,000.

It was a good year, particularly for the Prairie grain economy, due mainly to failure of weather - harried Communist agriculture in China, the Soviet Union and elsewhere to match the accomplishments of the Canadian farmer. Big wheat sales are assured into 1966.

Former Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton had this to say in 1963 about Canadian agriculture and the world scene:

"In the over-all picture today, we have one basic fact to consider—that the industrialized countries where agriculture has led the way in technological changes have a capacity to produce far greater than the ability of their domestic populations to consume.

"That fact can be looked on as a threat to the well-being of our farmers or it can be looked on as a great asset to be used in the over-all process of developing the income of our country and serving the people of the world in general."

FACE TARIFFS

A major challenge to Canadian farm exports is the six-nation European Common Market's system of barriers against imports and the reaction of the United States and other trading nations to common market policies designed to protect internal farm output from competition.

One example of the tension produced is the European market's "chicken war" with the United States in which the U.S. retaliated against levies imposed on its poultry exports by raising tariffs against some European exports.

Canada's chief concern is about exports of cereals, poultry, apples and some other fruits and vegetables. She is not so concerned about meat or dairy products—since she herself imposes restrictions on any possibility that cheaper foreign butter, for example, would invade the market.

The whole issue of agricultural trade is part and parcel of the talks in Geneva on a General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, where the U.S. is pressing for tariff reductions—for agriculture as well as for industry—of 50 per cent across the board.

As a primary producer generally, Canada has declined to accept this approach completely, since a 50-per-cent reduction in tariffs on primary goods would give Canada little fresh advantage and yet open Canada's markets to a broad range of manufactured items.

Many observers hold that agriculture may make or break the talks and that the tariff reduction trend will falter unless the European Common Market—and especially Sharp personally—makes key concessions. Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp personally stressed Canadian concern.

SEEK STABILITY

Canada exports to the six some $500,000,000 annually of which 35 to 40 per cent is farm produce, or approximately $200,000,000. Wheat is a major item, slightly less than $100,000,000. French wheat offers increasing competition. Sales also include other grains, oilseeds, livestock products, fruit, vegetable products.

The GATT talks are part of a growing trend toward efforts to inject more stability into international supply and demand through such multilateral pacts as the International Wheat Agreement and others on coffee and sugar.

Meanwhile, a variety of programs has emerged since the Second World War to assist less-developed countries.

One is the Colombo Plan for south and southeast Asia in the shape of capital, technical and commodity aid such as wheat and flour.

Canada has provided more than $400,000,000 for this since the start. Food accounts for about one-fifth.

In mid-1963—before the current wheat boom hit its peak—it was announced that Canada intended to boost food contributions over the next few years to about $180,000,000 or $150,000,000 worth in 1965, compared with the current level of some $120,000,000. Thus food aid might rise by about $40,000,000 annually.

Canada has contributed $6,000,000 to the first three-year phase of the world food program, another attempt since 1945 on the theme of a world food bank. More than 80 countries are involved.

It also remains a key member of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, founded at Quebec City, and ranks fifth in contributions.

But world food demand is huge and 71 per cent of the existing 3,000,000,000 people live in less-developed countries. Conversely, these produce only 45 per cent of the world's food and the rest comes from food-rich Europe, North America, Australia and New Zealand.

By 2000, this food gap will have widened, experts fear.

Meanwhile, everywhere, the birth rate tends to keep rising and infant mortality declines as more food is channelled into the depressed economies.

An estimated 160,000 infants are born every 24 hours and many fail to live long enough to make any contribution to their economies, say FAO experts.

There is thus growing recognition that the problem of global starvation has to be met in the fields of the have-not countries, through aid in teaching farming.

Western food output would have to rise by 40 per cent to meet global needs. Even now, more than half the world's 3,000,000,000 human beings are perpetually hungry — a jaded statistic that the West appears to have learned to live with comfortably.

POPULATION VERSUS PRODUCTION — While 10,000 persons die daily of hunger and malnutrition, Canadian farmers must reduce their production of foodstuffs. Farmers of industrialized countries can produce far more than the ability of their domestic populations to consume. This graph shows the relation of agricultural exports to total Canadian exports. Wellington Mill Rate Up Slightly PICTON (Staff) — This week Wellington struck its tax rate for the year. The residential rate is up approximately a quarter of a mill over last year from 66.82 to 67.06 mills. The commercial rate is much the same 74.31 last year to 74.10 this year. The school rate shows a decrease but the general village and water rates show an increase of two mills. County rate 20.74 mills, public school rate 19.70 residential and farm; 21.09 commercial and industrial. High school 11.97 residential and farm; 18.32 commercial and industrial. General village 8.31 residential and farm; 9.73 commercial and industrial. Total residential and farm 61.43 mills; commercial 68.49 mills. Water levy on the assessment is 5.61 mills. The rates raise a total of $30,766.69 compared to the 1963 budget of $84,738.61. A new by-law to increase remuneration to council members was passed. The reeve will now receive $9 per meeting and the councillors $7 instead of $4 as in the past.

Freezer Forum Gives Many Useful Trips

PICTON (Staff) — A group of forty interested men and women from various parts of Prince Edward County attended a unique Freezer Forum, Tuesday evening, at Church of St. Mary Magdalene Parish Hall, Picton. This Freezer Forum was conducted and sponsored by Home Economics Service, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture.

Miss Margaret Harrison, Home Economist for Northumberland and Prince Edward Counties introduced the representatives from the Foods and Nutrition Section of the Home Economics Service who ably conducted the program — Miss Kathleen Adams and Miss Marion Ivens.

During the evening the Home Economists discussed many pertinent topics in relation to the freezer itself and various foods to freeze: Why have a freezer?; Comparison of types of freezers; Size of freezer; Location; Packing; Defrosting and cleaning; What to freeze; How and when to freeze; Packaging; Preparation of food for freezing; Actual freezing; Preparation of food for serving. Good freezer management was stressed throughout. Several foods had been prepared and frozen in advance from baked and unbaked pizza to blanched and unblanched beans.

The audience had an opportunity to sample the various foods prepared at the conclusion of the program.

There was an opportunity for a lively discussion period at the end.

'Open House' For New Bank On Saturday

PICTON (Staff) — The Bank of Nova Scotia moves into it's new quarters on Picton's main street Saturday morning. The new structure which has been under construction for some time is located on the site of the old one next to the Post Office building. The bank during the period of construction took temporary quarters in the old Brewers retail building on Ross St. Open house for the public to inspect the new premises is from 2 to 4.30 p.m. Saturday. Guests will find the latest in efficient banking equipment installed. The vault in the new air conditioned bank has walls 18 inches thick constructed of reinforced concrete. The door of the vault is seven inches in thickness. Steel desks side the vault are designed to hold securities and cash. Floor space in the new bank is increased by 50% over the former Main Street building. Modern fluorescent lighting built into the 15 foot high ceiling provides lighting over a 65 - foot long blue panneled walnut counter that divides customers from working area. The 77' x 32' building was designed by Toronto Architects Hawkes, Irvin and Pearson.

The bank according to Manager Len Allen will be open for business Monday morning.

WATER SAFETY STRESSED

Local Rotarians listened to an important message concerning water safety methods at this week's meeting. This was given by this weeks guest speaker, Bill Strachan, to whom Picton and the community is indebted for swimming instruction to literally thousands of children in past years. "Children should never be unwatched while swimming," he said. Even adults should be advised against swimming alone and especially after dark when they could not readily be seen by a companion. In general he advised against swimming alone and stated that there were 343 persons drowned in Ontario last year. Water safety is much like traffic safety in that it requires common sense, Mr. Strachan said, when an adult drowns I feel it is the result of carelessness but children do not see the danger and need to be watched. The speaker was introduced by Don Andrews who spoke of his outstanding service as a swimming instructor Kiwanian and Scout leader.

Go Forward to Freedom

By Dr. Clarence W. Cranford

The faith of the Jew, like that of the Christian, is not based on philosophical argument, but on an event in history in which the providential watchcare of God is indicated. For the Jew, that event is the liberation of the Israelite people from bondage in Egypt. Gratitude for this deliverance is the springboard for Old Testament ethics. The Ten Commandments, for example, are not introduced by a statement declaring their moral and ethical value. They are introduced by the statement, "And God spake all these words saying, 'I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.'" (Exodus 20:1-2 RSV) Then follows the list of the Ten Commandments. This is why Biblical ethics have been called "gratitude ethics." People are called to live nobly in appreciation for what God has done for them in certain acts in history.

Back of the dramatic deliverance of the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage lies an intensive struggle of wills between two mighty men, one a political leader, the other, a religious leader. The one, Pharaoh, had behind him the military might of the nation, and the authority of his position as the political head of his state. The other, Moses, was backed only by the scared power of his faith that he spoke for God, and by the promises of his cause.

CONTEST OF WILLS

Moses began the contest of wills by requesting that the Hebrews be allowed to take a three days' journey into the wilderness as sacrifice to the Lord. Pharaoh countered by saying, "I will let you go, to sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness, only you shall not go very far away." Later, some of Pharaoh's staff advised him, "Let the men go, that they may serve the Lord their God." But Moses replied, "We will go with our young and our old; we will go with our sons and our daughters and with our flocks and our herds, for we must hold a feast to the Lord."

Again Pharaoh countered, "Go, serve the Lord; your children also may go with you; only let your flocks and your herds remain behind." But again Moses stood his ground, "Our cattle shall go with us, not a hoof shall be left behind, for we must take of them to serve the Lord, our God."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 19: "God Delivers His People," Exodus 5:1 through 15:21.

But Moses had right on his side, and after a series of devastating plagues, Pharaoh's will was broken. As Egyptian young men lay dead from a plague in which the angel of death had passed over the sons of Israel, so that they were spared, Pharaoh cried, "Rise up, go forth from among my people, both you and the people of Israel; and go, serve the Lord, as you have said. Take your flocks and your herds, as you have said, and go, and bless me also!" (Exodus 12:31-32 RSV) So after 430 years in Egypt, the descendants of Jacob, now numbering six hundred thousand men, plus women and children, marched out into the desert and freedom. As they prepared to leave in haste, Moses instituted a memorial meal to be known as the Passover, in which, Moses said, "You shall tell your son on that day, 'It is because of what the Lord did for me when I came out of Egypt.'" (Exodus 13:8 RSV)

But the struggle was not over. Faced with the obstacle of the Red Sea in front of them and the possibility of Egyptian reprisal overtaking them, some of the Israelites panicked. In fear they cried, "Is not this what we said to you in Egypt, 'Let us alone and let us serve the Egyptians?' For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness" (Exodus 14:12 RSV) Strange that they should want to surrender their freedom so quickly. Strange also that there are those in the world today who cry out to God and His church, "Let us alone, for it would be better for us to die in our sins than to disturb us some of the enslaving pleasures of the world."

WATERS DIVIDED

In an effort to calm the people, Moses said, "The Lord will fight for you, and you have only to be still." But God did not want the people to be too passive He said to Moses, "Why do you cry to me? Tell the people of Israel to go forward." And when they did, the miracle happened. God divided the waters and back by a strong east wind all night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided" (Exodus 14:21 RSV)

The Bible does not teach do-nothingism. Faith is not just standing still and waiting for something to happen. Faith is positive confidence that when our resources are at an end, God is not at the end of His resources. He can still give us the victory. Seas of trouble will often divide to let God's people walk, faith believing that even when we seem surrounded by difficulties on every hand, God will show us the way out. The plague of Communism now curses our world. Must we wait to be on the march for truth and freedom that God may use their efforts to help us to be the oppressed peoples of the world.

"The good Lord raised up this mighty republic to be a home for the brave and to flourish as the land of the free," he said, "not to stagnate in the swamplands of collectivism — not to cringe before the bullying of communism."

Died in a dark business suit and wearing, as usual, his horn-rimmed glasses, Goldwater marched triumphantly into the glare on the podium after his unanimous elected nomination. Representative William E. Miller of New York, had accepted the vice-presidential nomination. Balloons cascaded down on the Arizona senator as pandemonium broke loose.

Miller, noted as a rough-and-tumble campaigner, had broken his role with a short speech in which he said he was happy to be standing in the campaign at the side of "a man who more than any other I have ever known in American life speaks the truth to the people, courageously stands for principle and devotes himself completely to keeping America free."

The formalities having been observed and the 28th Republican convention over with, Goldwater turned his attention to taking over the command of the Republican national committee.

The presidential candidate acted to advance to pick Dean Burch, second man in his campaign command, to replace Miller as head of the committee.

The triumph of Goldwater's conservatism left some wounds unhealed among some of those who had opposed his nomination. Michigan Governor George Romney, who unlike the nominee demonstrates that he is willing to go beyond the platform he helped write, said, as civil rights. "I will go home and campaign for Michigan republicans."

Senator Kenneth B. Keating of New York, who was one of the most ardent supporters of the Arizonan before his nomination, left the Cow Palace immediately after Goldwater's speech. He was followed by Wooler half the New York delegation, setting off a stir of speculation that they were staging a protest walkout.

However, New York's national committeeman, George Hinman, said there was no such intention and other New York Republicans said all that was involved was an effort to beat the traffic out of the Cow Palace area.

Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton, badly trounced in the presidential nomination battle, described Goldwater's speech as "strong . . . very strong." A Pennsylvania delegate said the new leader had "virtually read the moderates out of the party."

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a Negro leader described Goldwater's nomination as "disastrous." He urged voters to deny support to any Republican candidate who "does not publicly dissociate himself from Senator Goldwater and his philosophy."

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Goldwater himself is not regarded by Negroes, as a racist, "but they note with dismay that among his supporters are some of the most outspoken racists in America."

Goldwater said the Democrats were responsible for the advance of world communism by failing to stand up to the Reds.

He has been during Democratic years that 1,000,000,000 persons were cast into Communist captivity and their fate cynically sealed. Today, we have an administration which seems eager to deal with communism in every coin known—from gold to wheat, from confidence to confidence and even human freedom itself."

As the convention continued to vote its approval, Goldwater pledged: "I do not intend to let peace or freedom be torn from us by any measure of lack of strength or lack of will. That I promise you."

Before introducing Goldwater to the convention, former vice-president Richard Nixon told the delegates that there were some who said "the polls are against us, the Communists are against us, President Johnson is strong and the Republicans are weak." But Goldwater and Miller were going to prove in November that all of these are wrong.

the country's 4,000,000 Africans by 250,000 whites.

Two American Methodist clergymen have been ordered to leave Southern Rhodesia by July 22.

The government gave no explanation for its deportation order against Bishop Ralph Dodge of Terril, Iowa, and Rev. Robert Hughest of Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. Hughes said he assumed it was "because of the firm stand which the Methodist Conference Church has taken against the practices of the government."

came outraged and started toward the superintendent with a pocketknife.

Gilligan heard the commotion and raced to the scene, finding the superintendent had locked himself in one of the ground floor apartments.

Powell, the lieutenant said, stood in the apartment entrance, a knife in his hand. Gilligan said he showed the youth his police badge and identified himself as a law officer.

Told to drop the knife, Gilligan said, Powell refused and advanced toward him. The policeman said he fired a warning shot which accidentally struck the youth's wrist, but that still he kept coming.

Several more shots rang out and Powell fell dead in the gutter, his knife several feet away.

Boys and girls began to advance on the handful of uniformed police but were driven back. Soon about 75 policemen were at the scene, some wearing riot helmets.

Finally, the teen-agers were herded into the school and classes began for 750 of Manhattan's youngsters who need the special instructions if they are to move ahead a class in the fall.

Order Sheppard Back to Jail, Free One Night

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samual Sheppard was expected back in prison today after spending his first night of freedom in years in a motel here.

The 50-year-old former osteopath prisoner, had made several in his room and visited with relatives. And he was reunited with a fiancee he did not know before entering penitentiary the years ago for the 1954 bludgeon slaying of his wife, Marilyn.

The controversial murder case which has attracted worldwide interest became even more bizarre in the last two days.

A federal district judge ruled Wednesday that Sheppard had been denied constitutional rights in his trial and ordered him released from prison, setting the stage for a retrial.

Thursday, the one-time Cleveland osteopath was back out of the penitentiary. About the same time, a U.S. Appeals Court judge stayed the federal court order. That meant Sheppard had to return to prison at least until a hearing can be conducted on the stay order.

PAPERS ARRIVE

The papers necessary to return Sheppard to the prison arrived here about 1 p.m., but state officials could not locate a federal marshal to serve them and take Sheppard back to custody. He was expected to be picked up today.

Meanwhile, Ariane Tabbenjohanns, a 34-year-old German divorcee, arrived at the motel Thursday evening. She professed for photographs and went for a 20-minute swim in the pool.

Sheppard's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said he is confident Sheppard will be released again by Monday or Tuesday. No site has been set for the hearing on the stay, which will be before a three-judge panel.

MAIL GOES THROUGH

LONDON (CP)—The royal mail didn't go through—but the queen's mail did. Despite the strike by Britain's 120,000 postmen, the Queen's personal letters and state papers were delivered throughout London as usual by a top-hatted person aboard a glistening one-horse brougham. The carriage has been leaving Buckingham Palace at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily for years to deliver the monarch's mail.

Chapdelaine (SC — Sherbrooke), both lawyers, argued that a section of the bill in effect amends the Quebec Civil Code. This made the whole bill unconstitutional and a threat to the autonomy of the provincial legislatures over civil laws.

CAN'T SIGN CONTRACT

The section they objected to would make loans recoverable from minors. The civil code prohibits anyone under 21 from signing any contract.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste—Roberval) said the bill interferes with provincial jurisdiction over education. He moved an amendment opposing second reading and calling on the government to bring in new legislation empowering the Bank of Canada to issue "credits" to provincial student loan funds.

Only the Creditistes supported the amendment and it was defeated by a vote of 135 to 13.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the bill represents a few crumbs compared with the federal action that is needed in education and what the Liberals had promised in the last two elections.

Grady Gray (Liberal—West) said he is confident the government will act at an early opportunity to implement the Liberals' promise of 10,000 annual university scholarships of $1,000 each.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Most people assume that the very act of selling their house to a new buyer automatically relieves them of any further obligation or responsibility. This is not true. The manner of sale and resolution or assignment of mortgage responsibility is most important — and often overlooked, as Mr. C. M. L. found out, as he says, "The hard way."

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I hope you will print this letter as a warning to your readers. In order to make an easy sale I simply transferred my V.A. mortgage to the man who bought my house, when I moved to another city.

After two years he simply stopped making payments and the house had been so neglected and run down that the foreclosure sale left a $2,000 deficit.

I was shocked to find out that I was liable for this. The government attorney was very courteous, carefully explained why and how I was liable, and is permitting me to pay off this debt in "easy" stages of $50 per month. Keep telling your readers to investigate before they buy — or sell! I learned the hard way. — Mr. C. M. L.

Answer: Your mistake, unfortunately, is quite common. A mortgage should never be transferred to a new buyer unless steps are taken to cancel one's personal liability for payment of the debt that is assumed when the mortgage is created.

If the lender, for any reason, refuses to cancel this liability, I strongly recommend that the owner-seller insist that his mortgage be paid off at the settlement and a new one issued to the buyer — even if the transaction seems less favorable.

It should be noted that the cancellation of personal liability on the original owner in his mortgage is true of all types of mortgages (F.H.A. and Conventional) not just those guaranteed by the Veteran's Administration.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My problem may not deserve any serious attention, but if you see your way clear to help I would appreciate it.

After five years of, payments and constant hard work, I finally finished our vacation cottage. Now I have to think up a name for it. All the other cottages around us have names like "Dew Drop Inn," "Kimmer Inn" and "Seldom Inn." They have used up all the names I can think of. Can you give me a good name? — Mr. H. K. M.

Answer: After all your long and arduous efforts, the first name that occurs to me is "All Inn," but I'm afraid that won't be good enough to win a prize. Perhaps our readers will have many better suggestions.

O. K. readers, send your Name the Cottage" suggestions to me in care of this newspaper. I'll pass them on to H. K. M. and use as many as I can in later columns.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Unless you solve my real estate problem I'm afraid my marriage will be washed up.

I am married to a widower and live in the house he and his late wife built. No day passes that some wonderful thing she did isn't pointed out to me: shelving, the tile patio, built in cabinets.... you name it she did it. I'm unable to stand it any longer.

My only hope is to move from their house and get one that will be our house. My husband reluctantly agreed — if we could sell this house for $20,000. Our broker did get a buyer at that price. My husband was like a madman. He became enraged, tore up the agreement of sale, and didn't speak to me for a week.

Finally he again agreed to sell — if we could get $22,000. It took longer, but our broker again produced a buyer. Same scene — and my husband still isn't speaking to me.

Is there any way I can force a sale? This house is my curse. — Mrs. J. H. T.

Answer: Your problem is more appropriately in the province of a psychoanalyst. Your husband's reluctance to break with the past, in your case, does not allow for a real estate solution, even on a basic level.

He is the owner of the house (subject to your rights) and unless he signs the agreement the house cannot be sold.

I might point out that your realtor seems more considerate of your concerns than your husband. In this instance, your broker has twice worked hard to produce a bona fide purchaser and has not demanded the commission that is due him for this service. This type of courtesy is not uncommon, but it is all too rarely appreciated.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am taking pen in hand in hopes of avoiding brush in hand again.

My screens are either bronze or copper, and after every summer I have to repaint the window sills and woodwork due to a greenish stain that comes off the screens when it rains. Is there any way to prevent this? — L. Z. P.

Repainting is not necessary. There are two approaches. One is to remove the stains by washing them off with a solution of ¼ cup of household ammonia in one quart of water, followed by a liberal rinsing with clear water.

The second is to prevent the stains all together by spraying your screens with a clear plastic that is now available in aerosol cans. One spraying should last the season. Respray annually.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through this column.

division force which has been placed on the alert for a possible landing on Cyprus to bolster the Turkish Cypriot minority against the Greek-Cypriot majority.

"We still maintain the right of intervention derived from international agreements," Foreign Minister Cemal Erkin said in an interview.

The 1960 agreements under which Cyprus became independent gave Britain, Greece and Turkey the right to intervene independently in Cyprus to uphold the constitution the Cypriots accepted with independence. The constitution gave the Turkish-Cypriot minority a veto over major legislation, and efforts of the Greek-Cypriots majority to end the veto resulted in the communal fighting which has racked the island since Christmas.

Each threat of armed Turkish intervention has brought a counter threat from Greece, although the two nations are both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the eastern anchor of the NATO defence chain against the Soviet Union.

The United States and Britain fear that a war between the two will wreck NATO.

Turkish officials say the United States should make a realistic, impartial appraisal and "try to make either Greece or Turkey accept a solution." But they add quickly that they expect any decision to favor Greece because "justice and right are on our side."

Greece and the Greek-Cypriots want a plebiscite on the island off Turkeys southern coast. With the Greek-Cypriots in a four-to-one majority, that would mean an end to the Turkish minority's special rights and probably "enosis"—union with Greece.

What does Turkey want?

1. Double enosis—division of the island between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots and annexation of the parts to Greece and Turkey.

2. A federal state, joining the two communities into a union of equals.

3. Establishment of a government for Cyprus which supports the independence agreements, the constitution and the Turkish minority's rights in the constitution.

The Greek - Cypriots and Greece oppose all three.

Deputy Premier Satir believes that if Greece does not listen to American advice, then Turkey should not be prevented from intervening. He says:

"When the United States tells the Greeks they will not stop Turkey from intervening, that should be enough."

H. Morrison Ne-v CP Bureau Chief in London

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Morrison, 64, Washington staff correspondent of The Canadian Press for five years, becomes CP bureau chief in London in August.

In his first overseas posting Morrison succeeds Alan Harvey, 45, head of the London staff for 10 years in two stretches of five years.

Harvey was to have been transferred to a North American bureau but is resigning to take another news appointment overseas.

In Washington, Morrison will be succeeded by Arch MacKenzie, 38, of Ottawa bureau staff.

Morrison, a bachelor of journalism from Carleton University in Ottawa, joined CP staff at Ottawa in 1943. He was a senior member of the parliamentary reporting team when transferred to Washington in June, 1959.

At present he is in San Francisco covering the Republican convention. He sails for England in mid-August with his wife Kathleen, a son and two daughters.

BORN IN OTTAWA

Morrison, born in Ottawa, was an army lieutenant during the Second World War and a partime Ottawa Citizen reporter while at Carleton.

Harvey, a native of Toronto, joined CP in 1940 and has been on staff since in Ottawa, New York and London, except for a year in Royal Canadian Navy service.

MacKenzie, who was in the army in 1945, is a graduate of University of Saskatchewan who joined CP staff in Montreal in 1946. Since then he has worked in every CP bureau from there to Vancouver, as well as spending 18 months on staff of the weekly Aitkokan (Ont.) Progress.

At Ottawa, MacKenzie has specialized in agriculture reporting. He moves to Washington next month with his wife and three sons.

CHARGE DISMISSED

TORONTO (CP)—A test case involving a Toronto couple, charged with leaving their two-year-old child unattended on the street for an unreasonable length of time, was dismissed Thursday for lack of evidence. Mr. and Mrs. Allan Mitchell had been charged under the Child Welfare Act last month after their daughter Shirley was struck and injured by a car outside their home.

There was no report of any casualties.

Muong Soui, 110 miles north of Vientiana, is the last major neutralist position near the Plaine des Jarres, strategic as the east-west road leading from the plain and controls the route running north and south between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The neutralists have feared a Communist drive on Muong Soui since the Reds ousted them from the plain in May. The Pathet Lao hold strategic high ground only a short distance from the government stronghold.

Right - wing and neutralist forces meanwhile began a rearguard action to relieve Muong Soui. Gen. Ouan Rathikone, the army chief of staff, said the right - wing troops would attempt to drive the Reds from Muong Kassy and open up the route between Vang Vieng and Muong Soui.

Satellites

than 200,000,000 miles into space to discover whether any nation cheats on the partial nuclear test ban treaty by exploding a rocket - borne bomb far from earth.

The 4.5-pound Pygmy was to aid the study by measuring electrons during wide-swinging sweeps through the Van Allen radiation belts.

The two nuclear detection satellites were to draw a radiation chart of space, including what happens when their sensitive instruments are struck by surges of charged particles from a solar flare or cosmic ray shower. With this knowledge operational satellites would be able quickly to differentiate between natural radiation and that created by a sneak nuclear burst.

Officials of the Atomic Energy Commission said the pair of Sentries could be used as a limited operational tool — just as two earlier satellites in the series have been utilized. The initial watchdog satellites were buried into orbit Oct. 16, just six days after the nuclear test ban treaty was signed by more than 100 countries. The treaty prohibits nuclear testing in the atmosphere, under water or in space, but does not forbid underground detonations.

Templeton Now Expects He Will Win

CHATHAM (CP) — Charles Templeton said Thursday night he is "enormously encouraged" with support he is receiving in his bid for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party.

He said in an interview during a support-soliciting tour of Lambton and Kent counties:

"A great number of delegates have committed themselves to me and many others have expressed themselves favourably. I believe now that I am going to win."

Mr. Templeton former executive news editor of the Toronto Star and now working for an advertising agency, is one of six candidates hoping to head the party.

WHALEN REAL ESTATE LISTING INSPECTION TOUR

A new method of creating interest among the sales staff has been inaugurated by Whalen Real Estate. The entire sales staff of nine is taken on a tour of the new listings by means of a chartered bus. This insures that each sales person is familiar with all properties and avoids much annoyance to the home owner in that the sales staff all arrive at the one time rather than disturb the home owner by many individual calls over several days. It is intended to make the ultimate in service available to clients listing with Whalen Real Estate in this and all other ways. — (Advertisement.)

Rambler No. 1 in sales for North American 6 cylinder wagons

now comes in a wide new variety of wagon models and engine options

Is economy your watchword? Take a look at the American, Canada's lowest priced 4-door wagon. Its 6-cylinder engine (90 or 125 hp) delivers the power you need with the gas-saving economy and utility you want.

If you're at the other end of the scale and want luxury combined with V8 power and performance, the wagon for you is the Ambassador V8 (250 or 270 hp). Its interiors are rich. Its appointments are tasteful. Its features are superb. But don't let its elegance fool you. The Ambassador combines luxury with ample cargo space and station wagon convenience. It's unlike any station wagon you've ever owned.

Maybe you want a happy medium between economy and luxury. The Classic is built for your needs. Choose a 6-cylinder engine (127 or 138 hp) or a V8 (198 hp). The Classic takes the kids to school, your wife shopping, you to the country. It's both a hard-working hauler and a Sunday-drive pleasure car. No wonder the Classic V8 leads all other 6-cylinder wagons in North American sales.

With a Rambler wagon, annoying station wagon squeaks and rattles are a thing of the past, thanks to exclusive Single Unit Construction and Unioide body panels. You can drive it as simply as a sedan, yet full-size cargo space gives it the convenient hauling ability of a pick-up. You get the world's best rust-proofing; Double Safety Brakes; Ceramic-Armored Muffler; distinctive curved-glass side windows; a gleaming Roof-Top Travel Rack.

We could tell you a lot more. We won't. A 15-minute test drive is worth a thousand words. You'll never know how versatile a station wagon can be until you drive a Rambler. Your Rambler Dealer has your test drive ignition keys. See him today.

YOU'LL NEVER KNOW HOW VERSATILE A STATION WAGON CAN BE UNTIL YOU TEST-DRIVE A

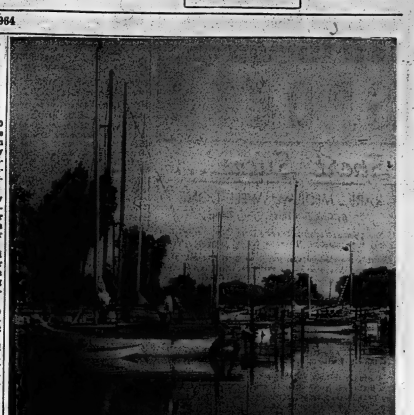
SMILE GIRLS — Even the cameraman . . . oops, cameragirl . . . smiles for this picture. Miss Martha Musgrove of Belleville turns photographer, (photographess?) to take a picture of three other Belleville girls and four girls from Quebec, as they arrive at the railway station in Belleville. A total of six girls and one boy from Belleville high schools went to Quebec two weeks ago, for a visit with French-speaking students there. A special train brought them and their hosts, (and a total of about 800 other exchange students bound for other Ontario cities), back yesterday. The Quebec students will now spend two weeks in Belleville, as guests of the Belleville students and of the Belleville Jaycees. In the front row of the picture Miss Musgrove is taking, are Miss Tawni Meades of Belleville, Mlle. Lyse Mongrain of Rimouski, Miss Sharon Sweet of Belleville and Mlle. Ghislaine Martel of St. Felicienne. In the back row are Mlle. Claire Gagne of Rimouski, Mlle. Lise Ouellet of Roberval and Miss Sally Farquharson of Corbyville.

30 Canadian Naval Cadets Dinner Guests

NEW YORK (CP)—About 30 Canadian naval cadets were dinner guests of the Canadian Club of New York Thursday and were received by Rear Admiral Desmond Piers, Canadian naval attache in Washington.

The cadets sailed to New York on the brigantine St. Lawrence II and the schooner Bluenose II and took part in a sail-past up the Hudson River Tuesday.



The St. Lawrence II arrived here from Kingston, Ont., after having a troubled passage down interior waterways, including groundings and engine breakdowns.

Bluenose II, a replica of the famed Nova Scotia racing-fishing schooner, was launched at Lunenburg, N.S., a year ago.

The Canadian cadets joined men from sailing vessels from 12 other countries earlier Thursday for a ticker tape welcome. They joined a parade to-lilling 2,500 men from sailing ships and marched up Broadway to City Hall.

TURKISH—PREMIER DIES

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — Former Turkish Premier Rauf Orbay, 83, died here Thursday. U.S. and South Vietnamese Deadlocked on Whether to Carry War to N. Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders appear to be locked in a disagreement. The outcome could mean the difference between a general war in Asia and a continuation of the current low-key anti - Communist fighting in South Viet Nam.

Saigon says regular troops from Communist North Viet Nam have begun coming into the south and are fighting as units against South Vietnamese troops. The United States says it isn't so.

Both allies are agreed that a real North Vietnamese offensive against the south would justify an immediate extension of the war into North Viet Nam. This, in turn, could lead to Chinese Communist involvement.

Foreign Minister Phan Huy Quat said the conflict with Communist guerillas is marked "by violent fighting by entire units of soldiers, coming from North Viet Nam."

NO INDICATION SEEN

The U.S. spokesman said: "There are no indications of the presence of any Pavn (Peoples Army of Viet Nam, that is, regular North Vietnamese) units on South Vietnamese soil."

U.S. intelligence men agree that many so-called volunteers from the North Vietnamese army have been sent south over the years to fill in leadership gaps for the Viet Cong guerillas. This is substantially different, they say, from coming down in combat units.

President Johnson and other American officials repeatedly have said the U.S. is ready to face the possibility of a general war over South Viet Nam if necessary. They have studied contingency plans for carrying the war into North Viet Nam.

But they never have specified the point at which the United States would move into the fight lock, stock and barrel. Asked about this point, a spokesman in Saigon said last week: "Well, we're certainly not going to let South Viet Nam go down the drain."

Presumably he meant the U.S. would move in to stop a general Communist take-over in the south.

DON'T BELIEVE IT

American leaders to not believe such a take-over is imminent and are strongly inclined to continue with current tactics, at least for a while.

There are growing indications, however, that the South Vietnamese government of Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh would welcome an escalation of the war. Khanh has repeatedly said "the best defence is offence." He also has said he believes there can be no ultimate solution until the war is carried to North Viet Nam or even China.

Some Americans agree with him on the theory that no major guerilla insurgency has been destroyed as long as the guerillas have had safe havens.

But other Americans see in the new belligerent tone in Saigon just so much talk. They do not believe the U.S. is going to allow itself to be panicked into the big one—unless the Communists choose to play it that way. And there is no sign the Communists want to start serious now.

73-Year-Old Walks 200 Miles To Convention

BUFFALO — It took Jesse Hyde Sr. 72 hours to cover the 200 miles between his home and here and it might take him that long to get home. He's walking.

Hyde, a 73-year-old five-foot-four bunch of energy, left Binghamton at 2 a.m. Saturday to make an appearance at the U.S. Army Ambulance Association convention. He arrived in Buffalo Wednesday, after spending 72 hours on foot.

Hyde, who claimed he ran 18 miles to celebrate his last birthday said he became concerned with health and physical fitness while a teen-ager.

Since his retirement as a building engineer several years ago, he has been "getting paid for exercising" by acting as groundskeeper for 21 large, private homes in Binghamton.

He began the homeward trek Thursday.

Grand Lodge Ends Session

TORONTO (CP)—The 106th convention of the Grand Lodge AF and AM of Canada in the Province of Ontario completed a week's convention of speeches and business Thursday by electing and appointing new officers.

Chosen to the board of general purposes were, Donald Gunn and M. Cam Hooper, both of Toronto; J. J. Talman, London; J. B. Salusbury, Sault Ste. Marie; Howard Polk, Ottawa; Erio Nanceklevil, Hamilton, and Bruce McCall, Kenora.

Among the 60 grand stewards appointed were T. H. G. Kenyon, Robert Officer and Robert Sloan, all of Ottawa; and Fred Fairfield of Smiths Falls.

Southeast Asian Situation Confronts Reds With Poser

MOSCOW (CP) — The tense military situation in Southeast Asia has served to bring sharply into focus a crucial problem now confronting Russia: Which country to suspect and fear more, the United States or China.

In a sense, Russia's position is more difficult than that of either the U.S. or China, since it is not a prime mover in events taking place in South Viet Nam and Laos and hence is denied the power of direct initiative.

Its policy therefore must be limited to one of response to the actions of other states, neither of which is likely to consult the U.S.S.R. before taking them. This fetter is no doubt highly frustrating to Soviet leaders who like to have the controlling hand in international situations.

Russia's response to developments in Laos has centred on third-party attempts to arrange peace talks among the warring Laotian factions. It has duly denounced U.S. air attacks on Communist-controlled parts of the jungle kingdom as "criminal and inhuman," but avoided giving anything in the nature of an ultimatum.

The Soviet Union's reaction to developments in Viet Nam has been marked by both caution and ambiguity.

On the one hand it has delivered carefully - phrased warnings about the "consequences" —unspecified — of the growing U.S. commitment there and criticized the ambassadorial appointment of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor as part of a program of "threats, intimidation and sabre-rattling."

On the other, there have appeared recently what many Western observers interpreted as hints to communist China that it might not be able to count on Soviet support in the event of a shooting clash between China and the United States.

One such hint was contained in an Izvestia article June 22. Noting that Chinese leaders still say the two Communist countries will stand together when the hour of trial comes, the writer, Yuri Zhukov, asked of the Chinese:

"How are you planning to secure that in the conditions of the filthy anti-Soviet campaign now on foot in China. . . ?

"Isn't this dangerous political game, with its aim of undercutting the very foundations of friendship, fearfully risky?"

Some Western diplomats say in this unconditional article an expression of anxiety that the Chinese and Communist North Vietnamese are rocking the boat too boisterously in Southeast Asia for Moscow's comfort.

The Russians, they suggested, may be at least as deeply concerned about Chinese intentions as they are about American intentions, particularly since the Soviets evidently have been having their own conflict of interest with an expansionist China.

It is generally accepted here by Western observers that there has been a number of incidents along the border between China and Asiatic Russia.

The consensus among Westerners here is that Russia has been on the defensive in the hostility of recent months.

All this has placed the Soviet Union in the painful position of having to weigh ideological and prestige considerations against reality in framing its Asian policy.

If it fails to support the Chinese in a showdown with the U.S., it stands to lose face among the Communist parties of the world. But if it supports China it may harden the day when Russia itself, from its relatively empty eastern reaches, has to confront the growing might of its populous neighbor.

Police Intensify Efforts To Smash Rival Underworld Gangs Working on Riviera

Police this week intensified their efforts to smash two rival gangs fighting for control of the drug and prostitution rackets in this Mediterranean playland of millionaires and their bikini-clad girl friends.

Radio-car patrols have been doubled and cafes and bars were being systematically combed for a lead on the shootings which in the last six weeks have killed two men and put four others in hospital.

Police said the victims were all known as members of rival gangs organizing immensely profitable traffic in drugs to the United States and prostitutes for wealthy vacationers.

But the police added that the men in hospital, either from fear or from loyalty, have said nothing about the men behind the shootings.

The latest outbreaks of violence have been traced back to events in 1960 when the calm in the Riviera's underworld was broken.

Two gang-bosses, Jean Giudicelli and Pierre Rossi, had agreed to divide the Riviera's most lucrative areas for their business. In principle this meant that Giudicelli had Cannes and Jean-Les-Pins while Rossi had Nice.

In July, 1960, Giudicelli was found dead with two bullets in his head in his luxurious villa at Cap D'Antibes. A year later Rossi was shot dead while playing cards in a bar he owned near the port at Nice.

The "peaceful arrangement" came to an end and the two gangs manoeuvred for total control of the Riviera, in addition to internal rivalry for the vacant leadership.

Affairs simmered until last month when Ange Bianchini, considered the leading candidate to take over Rossi's gang, was shot and wounded at his village near Antibes.

Three years ago Benoit Papa, another member of the Rossi gang, came out of prison in the Nice suburbs and was shot dead before he reached the city centre.

Last week two men who worked for Bianchini, Michel Dotez and Max Arrighi, were driving down a main street in Nice when another car pulled alongside, pumped them with machine-gun bullets and drove off Dotez and Arrighi survived but have so far told no tale.

The latest victims were found last weekend just outside Grasse, north of Nice. Jack Bermond was found seriously wounded on the road. He later told police that he fallen from a bridge and crawled back to the road. He was a Rossi man.

Not far from Bermond, at the bottom of a ravine, was the mutilated corpse of Jean Rochebillard, killed by seven bullets in the head. He was a Giudicelli man.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There's one on practically every team, club or association whether it be baseball, hockey or a stout game of croquet.

He's the chappie who stands as special crowd favorite, even though he has no particular talent as a home-run hitter, broken-field runner or goal tender.

The crowd likes him because of his all-out hustle, an unusual style of performance, some interesting mannerisms or because of an intangible "togetherness," such as guiding galleries have felt for many years with Sam Snead.

A Chicago sports writer says that such a crowd favorite is Ray Fleming, who tallied in the hockey uniform of the Toronto Marlies for the past four seasons.

During that time Fleming never earned a regular forward berth and scored only 21 goals while averaging more than 100 minutes a season in penalties and paying more than $1,000 in fines to the NHL.

Yet, the story says, on a team which had five of the six Toronto all-stars this past season in Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, Pierre Pilote, Ken Wharram and Glenn Hall, the most popular player was penalty-killer Reg Fleming.

The Chicago fans loved him. They saved their dead octopi, fish and other "missiles" for officials and opposing players but their cheers and general whoop-de-do was the loudest for Fleming.

Following the deal that involved some twelve players, one Chicago fan remarked: "The Hawks need aggressiveness and Fleming gave it to them. He was a great sparkplug and spot player."

"Without Fleming I'd just as soon forget about my season next year. I feel that way now but the're hard to get," said one.

The Hawks traded Fleming and Ab McDonald to Boston for defenceman Doug Mohns, Murray Balfour and minor leaguer Mike Draper to Boston for Jerry Toppazzini and Wim Rawlicz. Ron Murphy and Art Erickson to Detroit for John Mizuk, Ian Cushinen and Art Stratton.

Chicago fans think the Hawks traded away 30 per cent of the top personnel, a major shake-up usually reserved for cellar-dwellers and a move to more youth since only three of the players obtained, Mohns, Toppazzini and possibly Stratton, are likely to stick with the Hawks.

They think Murphy, Balfour and Erickson were expendable but the trading of McDonald raised some eyebrows and ire. The big left winger tallied 16 goals last season as part of the NHL's highest scoring line with centre Mikita and right winger Wharram, who scored 39 goals apiece. The line has been together for three seasons and was among the best in the NHL.

Another fan said: "I like the trades. Sure the crowd will miss Fleming, but the team needs help. He was like a bull in a china shop and spent a lot of time in the penalty box. He's like Red Kelly was with Detroit a few years ago."

The various trades have left the Hawks with only one established left-winger, all-star Bobby Hull. But general manager Tommy Ivan apparently is not perturbed.

"We're still looking," he is quoted as saying. "The other clubs know what we want and we've made some offers. If they are willing to negotiate we could make some more trades before training camp."

Tosses 4-Hitter; Hits 2-Run Homer ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Steve Barber, Orioles' Yankee Clipper

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

To Hank Bauer, he might be "the disappointment," but to New York Yankees he's the nemesis.

He — Steve Barber — pitched and batted Baltimore Orioles back into first place in the American League Thursday night, leading the Orioles to a 6-1 triumph over the Yankees.

The victory pushed the Orioles one-half game and two percentage points ahead of the Yankees, and further tightened the AL pennant race. Chicago's White Sox, a 9-3 winner over Boston Red Sox, stand in third place, only 1½ games from first.

Manager Bauer, recently discussing his Orioles, labelled Barber the disappointment of the team this season. After all, he was 12-7 with a 2.78 earned-run average at this time last year whereas he's 5-7 with a 3.95 ERA now.

The 27-year-old lefthander has won only two decisions in seven starts the past month, but both have been against New York and he improved just one run in each contest.

His victory Thursday night came on a two-run homer and single by Barber in the fifth inning.

In other AL games, Washington Senators knocked off Minnesota Twins 7-3 and Cleveland Indians outslugged Kansas City Athletics 12-9 in 10 innings.

Barber's homer was his first of the season and the fourth of his career.

Bill Skowron, playing only his second game with Chicago, drove in three runs with a double and two singles as the White Sox unleashed a 16-hit attack against the Red Sox. Johnny Buzhardt won his third straight game from Boston.

The Twins continued their home-run hitting, getting one each from Tony Oliva and Bob Allison. Don Lock and Don Blasingame each batted in a pair of runs in the Senators' five-run ninth that broke a 2-2 tie.

Cleveland won a wild game from Kansas City when it tallied five runs in the 10th, the winning run coming on Woodie Held's double and two more scoring on a double by Vic Davalillo. The Indians rocketed to a 7-0 lead in the first inning but eventually fell behind 9-7.

They tied the game in the eighth on Joe Azcue's homer and Dick Howser's run-scoring single.

Shade Trudeaus 3-2

Juniors Win League Pennant

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A three-run rally in the sixth, capped by Wayne Woods' bases-loaded single, gave Ellis Juniors a 3-2 win over Trudeaus Motors here last night — and with the Belleville and District Softball League pennant.

The victory completed a great come-from-behind first - year schedule for the Juniors. They marched from last place to first in the last five weeks by winning eight of ten games.

Ellis' ended the schedule with 11 wins and seven losses and Trudeaus, in the collar, wound up with seven wins and 11 defeats.

Second and third spots are yet to be settled. Trenton, two points ahead of Tweed, complete the regular schedule in Tweed Monday night and a Tweed win would force a sudden-death playoff.

Trudeaus, who could have caught Tweed by winning last night, moved ahead of the Juniors for the fourth.

In the bottom of the sixth, Moon led off with a single. The pitcher bobbled Muirhead's ground ball and Chatland singled to left, filling the sacks. Pete Westerby fly ball chased the first run home and Muirhead was forced at third for the second out.

Pinch-hitter Boyle kept the rally alive. McGuire knocked down his infield rap but could not make a play, loading the bases again. Woods then rapped out a clean single, scoring two runs for the final 3-2 score.

Doug Cook took over from Trudeau starter and loser Jim Clarke at this point and retired the final seven men in order — but the damage was done. Clarke, a big left-handed buzzballer, was having his first start and gave up nine hits in all, several of the scratch variety. He fanned one and did not walk a man.

Bobby Ethier hurled his second victory in as many nights, stopping Trudeaus on four hits. The young southpaw struck out half a dozen and walked four.

In the losers' fourth, Ralph Plaus dropped a perfect bunt, stole second and rode home on Paul Zakos' single to snap the scoreless tie. Zakos went to second when the ball was juggled, to third as Carr grounded out and one in when Chatland chose to get McGuire at first. The only other Trudeau hits were a double by Garry Duggan in the seventh and Bert Faulkner's single in the eighth. Neither runner got past second.

Mike Chatland had a pair of singles while Woods' loner was the "money" hit. Other singles went to Don Gardiner, Bob Moon, Stu Muirhead, Pete Westerby, Bob Boyle and Bob Ethier.

Campbell Sets New Mark

LAKE EYRE (Reuters) — Britain's Donald Campbell flashed to a new world land speed record on the 12-mile salt flats track at this Australian lake today with the tread ripped off one of his rear tires.

Piloting his giant car Bluebird, Campbell broke the 11-year-old record — being timed twice through the measured mile at 403.1 miles an hour. The previous record of 394.196 was set by the late John Cobb of Britain in 1947.

The speeds clocked by Bluebird were official but speeds accurate to within thousandths of a mile an hour were not available because of the absence of special timing film. Once these films are available they will be forwarded for official ratification, expected to take several months.

The tread of the 4,500-horsepower Bluebird's right rear tire was stripped off as it hurtled along and chunks of it littered the track for seven miles.

Campbell described his record speed as "disappointing," saying he had no doubt Bluebird could hit 450 miles an hour on a different track.

Rudy Pilous May Coach Victoria

VICTORIA (CP)—Rudy Pilous will "probably" coach Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League, Toronto Maple Leafs manager-coach Punch Imlach said here Thursday.

And the new team will consist mainly of personnel of the defunct Denver Invaders, which finished atop the WHL standings during the regular schedule.

Fresh from a holiday in Hawaii, Imlach said in a telephone interview from Vancouver he would be here "Saturday or early next week.

"We'll give Victoria a good team, you can bet on it" said Imlach.

Pilous coached the Invaders last season. Before that, he was with the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks.

TORONTO (CP)—Will Komenuk of Winnipeg, the only competitor from outside Ontario taking part in the Canadian professional match play championship, moved into the favorite's role Thursday by defeating Al Balding of Toronto 2 and 1 in the second round.

But the favorite's mantle is probably unwanted by the 162-pound Homenuik as the field of 16 survivors enters today's third and fourth rounds.

Balding was considered almost unbeatable after Wednesday's warm-up round in which he broke the Pine Valley course record by firing a six-under-par 65.

Other top Canadian pros to make it through both of Thursday's rounds included defending champion Alvie Thompson, Moe Norman of Toronto, Ken Kroll of Toronto, Frank Whibley of Kitchener and Gus Maue of Bolton.

MISSED PUTTS

Balding, the lanky touring pro, edged Bruce Campbell of St. Catharines 2 and 1 in the morning round but ran up against a sour putter in the afternoon. He missed at least five putts of less than four feet and Homenuik wrapped up the match with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

Homenuik had gained a second-round berth by defeating Frank Kobylnick of Kitchener 3 and 4 in the opening round.

Magee, another veteran of the U.S. pro tour, stayed in the running for fifth-place money and $1,000 by smashing past Bill Huestis of Thornhill 8 and 6 in the first round and downing Bob Rothmel of Brantford 6 and 5 after lunch.

Bob Rothmel of Toronto continued his fine play by knocking over George Gardiner of Guelph 6 and 4 in the first round and eliminating Ross Babcock of Kitchener one up in the second round.

Maue, a lefthander, advanced to the third round by defeating Gary Fawcett of Toronto 3 and 4 in the first round and taking a 2 and 1 victory over Don Taylor of Aurora in the afternoon.

Semi - finals and finals are Saturday.

SUSPEND YCAZA

NEW YORK (AP) — Hockey Manuel Ycaza was suspended for 10 days Thursday for interference while Boston Bruins were Tested at Aqueduct Wednesday. The suspension is effective Saturday and will keep Ycaza out of two major stake engagements. He was scheduled to ride Spicy Living in the $50,000-added New-Castle Handicap at Delaware Park Saturday and Iron Peg in the $100,000-added Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct July 25.

Aussies Win Cup At Bisley

BISLEY (Reuters)—The Australian national rifle team won the Field Memorial Trophy in overseas match at the National Rifle Association meeting Thursday night, breaking by one point the record set by South Africa in 1960 and Australia and Canada last year.

The Australian and South African teams displayed some of the most consistent shooting seen on the ranges for some years.

Total scores for the teams of 12 firing seven shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards, were: Australia 1,138 out of a possible 1,260, South Africa 1,135, Canada 1,130, Britain 1,128, Northern Ireland 1,128 out of a possible 1,260, Guernsey 1,121 and Guernsey 1,101.

Leading scorers on the Canadian team were Col. William J. Strachan, 51, commandant of the Canadian army team in Australia in 1963, and Lieut. Gerald R. Ouellette, 29, both of Ottawa, with 102 each, and Fit. Sgt. Michael F. Sage, 30, of Summerside, P.E.I., with 100.

FINED FOR THEFT

TORONTO (CP)—Ina Carson Thursday was fined $30 or five days in jail for stealing a newspaper. Edwin King, a news agent, said Mrs. Carson took the newspaper from a street box after dropping a cent in the coin box. She pleaded guilty.

Lightfoots George Young Robbed Of Perfect Game

Lightfoot Construction moved back into a second-place tie in Commercial Softball last night, downing Bleak Diamond Cheese 6-1, while Belvedere Motel upset City Hotel by a 3-1 count.

With his club up 6-0 and one out in the bottom of the seventh, Bob Cruickshank spoiled Young's no-hitter with a Texas-league single to centre. He scored from first on a dropped fly and another error at home.

Young fired third strikes past eight batters and did not walk a man. He had a perfect game going until Cruickshank's single.

Sonny Holloway was the loser, combed for 13 hits. He fanned nine and and walked but one.

Jack "Peacoat" Whiting slammed a solo homer and a single for Lightfoots while Jim Sharkey and Don Doiza struck out three singles apiece. Bev McLean got two hits, Rusty Young a double and Ken Brooks a single.

Belvedere spotted City a 1-0 lead in the first, tied it in the third and scored twice in the fourth to snatch the decision.

Junior Dey hurled the Belvedere victory, allowing six hits and leaving 11 City runners stranded on base. He struck out seven and walked one.

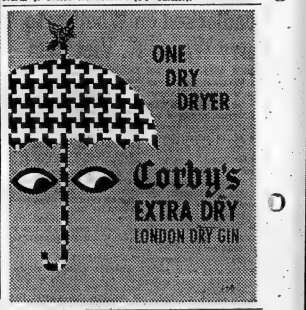
Smith rapped three City safeties and doubles went to Rutherford, Redquest and Morcash.



Belvedere and Lightfoots will play a postponed game at Prince Charles School Sunday at 6.30 p.m.

Ottawa, Argos Win Exhibition Tilts

Whip Lions, Stamps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Late action proved deciding Thursday night as Eastern teams chalked up victories over Western clubs in Canadian Football League exhibition action.

At Ottawa the Rough Riders came up with three late touchdowns to break up a defensive battle and down British Columbia Lions 21-6. At Toronto Jim Christopherson hooked a field goal with less than three minutes remaining to give the Argonauts a 13-12 decision over a Calgary Stampeders.

TD passes from regular Rider quarterback Russ Jackson and second - stringers Mike Mosoff and Bob O'Billovich ran up the Ottawa count. Jackson hit Emil While late in the third quarter, Mosoff tossed to Lan Sparks early in the final quarter and Jay Roberts gathered in the O'Billovich effort with just a second remaining.

B.C. halfback Lou Holland, a standout for the defending western champions all night, romped around left end for a 29-yard gain and 20-7 lead TD, also in the fourth quarter

Christopherson's toe accounted for two field goals for Argos, tall-enders in the Eastern Conference last season who must have taken some satisfaction in edging the Stamps. Calgary whomped them 50-6 in interlocking play last season.

Argos bounced back for a TD in the third quarter, quarterback Jackie Parker and halfback Dick Shatto combining on a 35-yard pass-and-run. They added a single and Calgary a pair of singles before the end of the quarter.

In the fourth quarter, Christopherson, a former Minnesota Viking in the National Football League, got his first three-pointer.

But Calgary quarterback Eagle Day got his club moving. The Stamps drove 80 yards in 10 plays and halfback Jim Dillard crunched through centre to go 16 yards for the touchdown. The convert was good and Stamps led 12-11.

Push Past Pirates; Giants Beaten

Phils Stagger Back Into National Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It doesn't take much to lead the National League these days. Philadelphia Phillies currently hold first place with the most difficult record of two victories in their last eight games.

Two doubles and a single by utility infielder Cookie Rojas and some unorthodox manager tial strategy highlighted a 7-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night that shoved the Phillies past San Francisco Giants, who took a 6-0 beating from Milwaukee Braves.

The Phillies went against the book in the eighth when Jack Baldschun, working in relief of Art Mahaffey, walked Jerry Lynch intentionally, filling the bases and putting the winning run on with two out. But Baldschun struck out Donn Clendenon to end the threat.

The third - place Cincinnati Reds closed the gap in the tightening race, moving within 3½ games of the lead by downing Houston Colts 3-2. Los Angeles Dodgers walloped St Louis Cardinals 10-2 and Chicago Cubs crushed New York Mets 11-1.

FAIRLY HOT AGAIN

Jim Grady again was the key to the Dodgers' attack, collecting his third homer in two nights, plus a pair of singles and driving in four runs while the Dodgers finished the three game set against the Cardinals with 30 runs and 39 hits.

Since the All-Star break, a period of nine games, the Dodgers have hit at an amazing .303 clip with Fairly showing the way at .412. More important, however, has been the awakening of defending batting champion Tommy Davis.

Davis, who hit .326 last season while winning the batting title for the second straight year, has hammered away at .342 since the All-Star game and lifted his average to a modest, but respectable .268.

Fairly, who has hit only six homers all season, provided the Dodgers with the only runs they needed by slamming a three-run homer in a four-run first inning uprising. He wound up the St. Louis series with six hits and 10 runs batted in.

BRAVES SURGING

The Braves handed the Giants their third straight setback and added to their own streak by posting their eighth victory in 10 games and the 14th in 19 games.

Nichols Leads Nicklaus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (CP) — A discarded $5 putter has given baby-faced Bobby Nichols a course record and a three-stroke lead over home-town hero Jack Nicklaus in the first round of the PGA golf tournament.

Nichols found his putter, which he used in firing a 64 in the first round Thursday in the back room of a pro shop. His round was a record for revamped 6,851 yard Columbus Country Club course.

He finished with a three stroke edge on Nicklaus, the defending PGA champion, who had his best opening round in a major championship all year.

Mike Souchak is one of 67.

Arnold Palmer had a 68, along with five others, including former British Open champion Bob Charles, Billy Casper and Don Januery.

Ben Hogan, the 51-year-old, two-time champion had 70 and Tony Lema, the new British Open king, had 71.

George Knudson of Toronto, the only Canadian entered, fired a 35 on the front nine but ran into trouble coming home to finish with a six-over-par 76.

Cannifton Bows To Oshawa 14-7

Oshawa Merchants, clustering their runs every third inning, doubled the score on Cannifton 14-7 here last night in a free-wheeling Eastern Ontario Senior baseball league affair.

Oshawa scored five times in each of the second and fourth innings and three times in the seventh. Cannifton also had a big five-run seventh but they then trailed 14-2.

Jim McConkey was the Oshawa winner but needed relief help from J. Wells and then Simms, both in the seventh. They gave up eight hits in all, striking out nine and walking the same number.

Gerry Hill failed to finish the second inning on the Cannifton rubber, giving way to Bill Hill who later passed the job along to Don Dafoe. They gave up 11 hits, struck out eight and walked six. G. Hill was the loser.

Ted Whitley poked a home run and a single to lead the Oshawa sluggers. Jack Cole, Ron Ball and "Locky" Wills each claimed a double and single. B. Dafoe added a double, G. Rollins and J. Fisher a single apiece.

Don Forsythe poked two Cannifton doubles and Don Dafoe an easy singles. Ken Forsythe hit a triple, Ron Urch, Ross Empey and Gerry Brennan a single each.

Oshawa 050 801 300—14 11 3
Cann. 101 000 500— 7 8 4

Batteries: McConkey, Wells (7), Simms (7) and Cole; G. Hill, Bill Hill (2), D. Dafoe (7) and Bud Hill, G. Breman (7).

Hilton Enters Finals

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Defending champion Sue Hilton of London sank a 10-foot putt on the 19th hole to eliminate Margaret Masters, former Australian champion, Thursday and advance to the finals of the 40th Ontario ladies' open golf championship today against Sandra Post.

Miss Post, a 18-year-old from the Trafalgar Club near Milton, Ont., about 25 miles west of Toronto, continued her hot pace, ousting Gail Harvey of Toronto 3 and 2 in her semi-final.

Miss Hilton, Open winner on two previous occasions, termed her match with Miss Masters "nerve wracking" but she steadied long enough to sink her clincher on the extra hole.

The Trots

LONDON (CP) — President Lee came with a rush from second place to nose out Prima Pick in the feature pace for a purse of $1,000 at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night.

President Lee lay back in second place for most of the mile. But Wilf Dolford took the gelding to the centre of the track and caught Prima Pick at the wire.

A daily double of only $14.90 was posted when Flemington's Sis won the first at $6.80 and Huron Boy the second for $5.70.

102 Minors Tee Off For Golf Titles

TORONTO (CP)—A field of 102 young players from tarough-out the province will tee off today in the 42nd annual Ontario Golf Association's junior championships.

The field is divided into three classes: Junior, 16 to 18 years of age; juveniles, 14 and 15; and tantams, 13 and under.

The junior and juvenile classes will play 36 holes at the Maple Downs course near here. Par for the 6,218-yard layout is 72.

Fifty - three juniors will be competing for the title vacated by Stu Hamilton of Brampton, last year; winner. Hamilton is too old this year.

Last year's juvenile winner, Peter Burner of Oak Ridges, has moved up into the junior category.

Twenty-seven juveniles and 22 tantams are entered. The bantams will play 18 holes at the Glen Shields club.

Minor Baseball Results

Park Dale Ratepayers, building a 3-0 lead in the first, defeated the Jaycees 6-4 in a Bantam baseball league game at Park Dale last night.

Johnny Noakes pitched fourhit ball over the route for Park Dale. He struck out half a dozen and walked five. W. McTaggart was the receiver.

Leo Baker started for Jaycees but failed to survive the first inning, giving way to John Holgate. They allowed seven hits in all, fanning ten and passing five. McKay did the catching.

G. Burnette spearheaded the winners' attack, clouting a triple, double and a single. Wayne McTaggart hit a double. Terry McTaggart, Jack Shortt and J. Noakes a single apiece.

Parliament rapped two singles. C. Scott and J. Holgate one each, for the Jaycees.

The victory increased Park Dale's league lead.

In an exhibition Peewee game, Belleville Merchants downed Frankford by a 10-7 score.

32-Pound Trout Waged Long Fight

KINMOUNT, Ont. (CP) — It took four hours of straining and fisherman's skill but it was worth it when K. J. Budd of this community 30 miles north of Lindsay landed a 32-pound lake trout.

Using a secret concoction of plugs plus live bait on a 10-pound test line, Mr. Budd caught the trout in nearby Crystal Lake Wednesday. It measured 37 inches from tail to snout and was 28 inches in girth.

The Canadian record for lake trout is 63 pounds, caught in Lake Athapapuskow, Man., in 1930. The world record is 63 pounds, two ounces, caught in Lake Superior in 1952.

AT THE PARK — "The Quick Gun", Audie Murphy film on location at the Queen's Park set, scene with co-star Merry Anders is preparing to do some shooting on her own "The Quick Gun", is a Columbia release in Technicolor and Technirama showing today and Saturday. On the same program, "Hey There, It's Yogi Bear", in color. Complete shows at 2 and 7.30 p.m. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian hopes of removing the sting from defeat ware carried today by veteran Francois Godbout as Canada and Australia met Canada in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup tennis playdowns.

Victory by Wimbledon champ Roy Emerson over Canada's Peter Keith Carpenter in the first match was all but conceded. Godbout, however, was given an excellent chance of upsetting Australia's John Newcombe.

The 26-year-old journeyman Quebec City Chipper from Waterloo, Que., has met Newcombe twice before on the European circuit and lost both times. But his showing in their last encounter has encouraged the Canadian camp.

"We played on the clay courts in May in Italy," Godbout recalled. "We both played badly — my wife's operation the day before upset me—and I lost 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. If I play well I can do better."

Emerson and Carpenter, 22-year-old Montrealer whose only previous Cup singles experience was an exhibition match, take to the courts at 2 p.m. for what is expected to be a one-sided match. The youngster has resolved himself to his near-impossible task.

"I didn't especially want it this year," he said after Thursday's draw. "But I have nothing to lose. You don't need excuses if you lose to the world's best amateur."

AT THE PARK — Cindy discovers a romantic use for her parasol in "Hey There, It's Yogi Bear!", Yogi's first full-length cartoon feature. Yogi discovers in the course of the film, a Hanna-Barbera production for Columbia Pictures release, that love makes him lose his appetite for stolen picnic lunches! Boo, Boo, Ranger Smith and other familiar Jellystone Park characters also are in "Hey There, It's Yogi Bear!" in color, of course! Showing today and Saturday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program in color "The Quick Gun", starring Audie Murphy. Complete shows tonight at 7.00 p.m. and 8.45. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

"BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI"
Returns Monday

Filmed on location in the tropical jungles of Ceylon, the CinemaScope - Technicolor drama opens with Holden, an American seaman in a Japanese prison camp, watching as British officer Guiness marches his surrendered troops into the jungle compound and though they were on dress parade, Guiness undergoes torture rather than acquiesce in camp commandant Sessue Hayakawa's order that British officers work beside their men in the construction of a war-vital railway bridge across the River Kwai. Holden, who intends to survive the war, fears Guiness' definition of honor as much as he fears Hayakawa's ruthlessness. He manages a desperate escape.

Guinness' stubborn courage forces Hayakawa to lose face but does, to prove that the prisoners are superior to their situation, Guinness takes command of the bridge construction and sees to it that the work is done.

Holden, meanwhile, sees his romance with British nurse Ann Sears ended when he is "drafted" by the British because of his personal knowledge of the Kwai River situation. While commandos Jack Hawkins and Geoffrey Horne, Holden desperately struggles back through the jungle to destroy the Kwai Bridge.

The screenplay for "The Bridge on the River Kwai" was written by Pierre Boulle based on his novel of the same title, too, won an Academy Award.

One complete show each evening starting 8.00 p.m. Doors open at 8.45 p.m. "Bridge on the River Kwai" at 8.30 p.m.

Yachtsmen Qualify At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Two yachtsmen qualified for the Canadian Olympic team Thursday and three other berths will be filled today in the final day of racing in the Olympic yacht trials.

Ed Botterell of Montreal in Serendipity led the Dragon class with 5,472 points after winning the first head Thursday and placing fourth in the second. His nearest rival, with just one race left, is Pierre Desjardins, also of Montreal, with 4,150 points.

Paul Henderson of Toronto sailing the Tyndl, has claimed a place on the Canadian team in the Flying Dutchman class by amassing 4,795 points. There are still two races to be held in the class, but second-place Tony Zerafa of Montreal has only 2,816 points.

Botterell will be accompanied by his crew of Lynn Waters and Joe MacBrien. Both contenders are subject to approval by the selection committee.

TRY FOR OTHER SPOTS

Canada will also be represented in the Finn, Star and 5.5-metre classes.

Bruce Kirby of Montreal leads in the Finn class with 5,075 points. A close second is Harry Jemmett of Kingston with 4,312 points. There are two races remaining in this class.

Dave Miller of Vancouver holds front place in the Star class with 4,425 points, followed by Dale Millar of Toronto, who was both heats Thursday and ran his total to 4,250 points with two races to go.

Most closely contested is the 8.5-metre class in which any one of three entries could finish on top with one race remaining. Edgar Barker of Toronto has 3,540 points. Stan Leibel of Toronto 3,361 and Dr. S. A. MacDonald of Montreal 3,236.

CZECHS BUY WHEAT

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board Thursday confirmed the sale of 18,400,000 bushels of wheat to Czechoslovakia. The $36,000,000 sale, reported Wednesday by reliable sources, was negotiated with the Crown marketing agency by a Czech delegation.

DESERONTO
School Records Of Value Found In Effects

DESERONTO — School records of undoubted value came to light recently with the clearing out of household effects from the home of the late Clare Malley, Deseronto Druggist.

The bulk of the records were in two cardboard cartons and consisted of a carton of class registers and another of miscellany. They dated from 1899 to 1907.

It is believed that these records were originally part of those of school and town lost in a fire some years ago.

In 1899 a female teacher (Emma Desmond) with a 2nd Class Provincial Certificate was receiving the handsome salary of $300 per annum and looking after seventy - two pupils.

By 1907 a female teacher (E. B. Styles) with ten years experience and 2nd Class Provincial Certificate was receiving only $1100 more, that is, $400 a year.

She too had over seventy pupils and was restricted, for instruction purposes, to 176 square feet of blackboard.

It would appear that Deseronto was well favored in teachers. An editorial from the Educational Journal of that day lamented the scarcity of well-qualified teachers and pointed out that "three - quarters of the Public School Teachers in Ontario taught under 3rd Class Certificates."

Sections from the Public School Act were quoted in the final pages of the Registers.

Under duties of pupils, some instructions were given that might well be used today. The paragraph stated that each student "shall attend punctually and regularly . . . shall be in his person and habits, diligent in his studies, like a gentleman, obedient and respectful to his teacher, and shall conform to such public discipline as would be exercised by a kind, firm and judicious parent."

It is interesting to note that the section on the Care of Teeth finds its place in later records supplanted a section of Civic Chapter 100 of the RSO of 1897. The latter section covered the law For the Protection of Insectivorous and Other Game Birds.

In the copy of the Educational Journal addressed to Miss E. Solmes) it is noted that a Toronto Book outlet has drastically cut down book prices and lists a number of stock remainders.

For Nic (reduced from $1.50) one can get a copy of Cucumber Chronicles — A Book To Be Read To Oneself, or, for the happy reduction from twenty to ten cents, one can learn the truth about The Cronin Mystery — A Complete History of the Murder and Clearrel in the Brotherhood.

Written up for the comfort of the teacher by essays on Studying Aloud and Whispering and on The Suppression of Stumbling.

Perhaps the most interesting note of all is that recorded in the Treasurer's Account of Transactions involving the Section.

Under the item showing the purchase of a lot of land for a high school, the Schoolboard for $3000 there rests the defensive note: "for the tranquility of the braves."

CLOSE BORDELLO

COLOGNE (AP) — Cologne's city fathers took a step Friday to make this Rhine city more beautiful. They closed a bordello section and announced they would make a park. Police closed 14 old houses and told 89 girls—one of them 68 years old—they would have to find other quarters.

Syracuse Clobbers Leafs 7-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A clutch single by catcher Ronnie Brand—his fourth hit of the night—in the top of the 11th inning scored the winning run as Columbus Jets edged league-leading Jacksonville Suns 2-1 in International League action Thursday.

The Suns had sent the game into overtime in the bottom of the 10th when Bob Wills singled George Williams across the plate.

John Ryan got his second victory of the season and Jim Northrup clouted his 12th for Syracuse as the Chiefs romped to their victory. Cliff Adams went the route to bring his record to 5-4 with an eight-hitter. Jim Brenstad took the loss, his fourth against seven wins.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Ullwater Frost (Avon) and Armstrong Brothers stable of Brampton Thursday night won the junior invitation trot before 5,411 at Greenwood Raceway.

Stevie Dares, owned by Ottawa fisherman Don Booth, captured the opening race and when Mike Marchuk of Otter Creek, Ont., won the second race with Soo Gin a daily double of $55.00 came up.

Waiting until the last minute, Harris moved his mount to the outside, then whacked So Smart with his whip. So Smart leaped into action and finished a length of Ballagelly to steal the verdict.

So Smart returned $10.50 $5.50 and $4.50.

Harris was also aboard Mangas Cake in the fifth and with Playamps combined for a $42.80 quinella.

DROWNS CHILDREN

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Pearl Grossfeld, 42, walked into a Brooklyn police station Thursday and told a policeman: "I just drowned two of my children. I'd rather see them dead than in a foster home." Police found the girls, Eileen, 11, and Sandy, 7, immersed in the bathtub. They were unable to explain the woman's reference to a foster home.

ASTRONAUT HURT

Promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, Major K. D. E. Willcocks took over command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment as of July 1st.

Former second-in-command, Col. Willcocks succeeds Lieut.-Col. Joseph B. Black, who commanded the unit for the past two-and-one-half years.

A formal change-of-command ceremony will be held later this year.

Born in Surrey, England, in September 1929, Col. Willcocks was educated and graduated from Solihull School in Warwickshire. He was an active member of the school's officers' training corps.

Later he served a four-years' automobile indentured apprenticeship with the Rover Motor Car Company of Birmingham.

He joined the British Army in October, 1950, took basic training and was commissioned into the Royal Electrical Mechanical Engineers in May, 1951. He joined 5 Armoured Workshop, British Army of the Rhine in Hamm, Germany, as recovery officer.

In 1952 and 1953 he attended college and graduated in mechanical engineering.

Col. Willcocks came to Canada in January 1954 and joined the 6th Technical Regiment RCEME in Windsor, while working for the Ford Motor Co.

He moved to Belleville in January 1955 and became associated with Northern Electric Company as a professional engineer. He took over command of the 27 Technical Squadron, RCEME, and was promoted to captain in January, 1956, and to major in June, 1957.

PASSES STAFF COURSE

He attended and passed the militia staff course at Fort Frontenac, Kingston in July, 1958 and in the following January joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment upon amalgamation of 27 Tech. Squadron RCEME. He served as training co-ordinator and second-in-command to Lieut.-Col. Black.

On the creation of the Quinte Corps of the St. John Ambulance Brigade covering Belleville, Picton and Trenton, he was appointed corps superintendent retiring in 1963 due to pressure of militia duties.

In March, 1959, Col. Willcocks was appointed emergency measures co-ordinator for the city of Belleville. He co-ordinated preparations in case of the anticipated flood.

He is married to the former Leone Yader of Bancroft, has three children and resides on the Bay of Quinte near Redmerville.

The change of command was authorized by Brigadier J. S. Rost D50, CD., commander Eastern Ontario Area, Kingston as effective July 1st.

NON-OP RAIL WORKERS' PAY RAISED

Gunfire Halts US Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The firing by a Soviet naval vessel of three shots across the bow of a U.S. grain ship in the Black Sea has been termed "excessive" and "clearly outside the norms of acceptable behavior" by the U.S. state department.

At the same time, the department concedes that the action "may have been within strictly legal rights."

The department said a Soviet vessel last Wednesday halted the SS Sister Katingo, boarded it and forced the captain to pay a fine. The U.S. ship had left the port of Novorossisk without permission following a wage dispute.

No injuries or damages were reported.

Officials here said Friday that the ship's captain, Arthur H Fertig, 44, of Wading River, N.Y., reported the ship was stopped when it was 16.3 miles from land—outside Soviet territorial waters. An oral protest was delivered here to Georgi M Kornienko, Soviet minister counsellor, by Acting Assistant State Secretary Richard Davis.

The department said the incident resulted from different means of paying Soviet stevedores. According to Fertig's report, it said, the ship had the choice to pay either $3 an hour per man for unloading its cargo of 22,436 tons of grain, or 50 cents per cargo ton. Fertig chose the $3-an-hour rate.

This apparently displeased Soviet authorities and the dispute was referred to the Soviet ministry of merchant marine in Moscow. It ruled that the dispute be arbitrated and that the Katingo be permitted to leave after discharging its cargo.

According to the captain's report the ship was pursued by a Soviet patrol boat firing international signals with orders to return. When it "failed to heed the order, a Soviet naval craft fired three rounds across the bow of the ship," the state department said.

After a search the Soviets forced the captain to pay a 50-ruble (about $56) fine and permitted him to continue to Istanbul.

Sign Agreement After Pearson Promises Help

Pact Based on Report Of Conciliation Board

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — The wages of some 100,000 non-operating employees of seven Canadian railways will go up by 7¢ cents an hour under an agreement that has brought expressions of cautious satisfaction from management and union spokesmen.

The pay increase provision is included in an agreement signed here Friday by the railways and 15 unions and based on the recommendations of a federal conciliation board.

"Only time can tell how the increased cost can be met," said D. I. McNeill, the CPR's vice-president in charge of personnel, after the negotiators emerged with news of the settlement.

Mr. McNeill, like his CNR counterpart, W. T. Wilson, had his eye on the $57,300,000 the railways estimate will be needed to cover the wage increase. The average hourly rate for non-ops has been $2.01.

The railways have estimated that their wage bill will increase by approximately $15,000,000 this year and by $30,000,000 in 1965.

The negotiations began again following a round of special meetings that involved Prime Minister Pearson, the presidents of the CNR and CPR and several key cabinet members.

The railways have contended that a current government freeze on freight rates limits their power to meet additional costs. But Mr. Pearson has promised a review of railway wage costs in six months so that the government can make a decision on "what additional temporary financial adjustments would be justified" to assist the railways until new legislation on the matter can be placed before Parliament.

18 Lands To Discuss Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representatives of 18 countries will discuss here next week an international letter venture to establish a global system of satellite communications, the U.S. state department said Friday.

Representatives of the 18 countries will meet Tuesday with the aim of reaching two inter-related agreements, one between governments on the organizational principles for the system, and the other dealing with the commercial, financial and technical operations.

Officials of the U.S. government and the Communications Satellite Corporation reported that much progress had been made toward such agreements in previous informal conferences.

The other countries besides the U.S. include Canada.

The CSC, established under the 1962 U.S. Communications Satellite Act, will sign the second agreement for the U.S. It is a private company. Fifty per cent of the $200,000,000 capital was subscribed by public stockholders and the other half by communications carriers.

Under the proposed international arrangements, the corporation would manage the global system on behalf of all participants.

According to the agreed plan 61 per cent of the new global system would be owned by the U.S. The ownership allocation of the European countries would be 30.5 per cent, and Canada, Australia and Japan would own a total of 8.5 per cent.

Ground stations would remain the domain of the individual countries where such ground stations are located.

Plaudits Greet Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson returned to the Commons Friday with an enthusiastic report from the Commonwealth prime ministers conference. The reaction of opposition leaders was that the prime minister's trip to London was well worth while.

"In recent years fears have been expressed . . . that the Commonwealth had outlived its real purpose and had become simply an amiable club with no real objective," Mr. Pearson said. ". . . The recent confer-

Peace Is Restored to Temblos After Day Under Gun Muzzles

TEMBLOS (CP)—Peace again settled over this crowded Turkish village in northern Cyprus Friday night after United Nations officials negotiated an agreement for Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot forces to withdraw from a potentially dangerous confrontation.

Greek and Turk-Cypriots began to withdraw to previous positions.

All through Friday the olive groves and scrub-filled goat pastures around Temblos had concealed an estimated 150 heavily-armed Greek-Cypriot members of the national guard who had moved into the position Thursday night.

Closer to the village were hastily dug trenches occupied by members of the Canadian Army contingent on Cyprus who had been rushed from beds and guard duties to defend the village from attack if necessary.

Stationed on the immediate fringes of Temblos itself in sand-bagged dugouts were armed Turkish-Cypriots prepared to meet a possible Greek offensive. The UN estimated 80 Turks were on guard, but the figure seemed high.

Some 500 refugees have moved into Temblos since the communal fighting started last December. Many of them have to share quarters with 150 residents already there, and others are in tents pitched in the immediate vicinity. Most are old men, women or children. Men of fighting age generally are assumed to be in the mountains towering above Temblos, fighting Greeks.

Dusty-looking children played handball and other games in the small open fields within the town Friday, oblivious of the formidable array of weapons trained on the village.

Their mothers went about their chores, walking along narrow dirt streets to the village well for water and gossiping in the shade of rough stone buildings.

Many of the Canadians slept. Those in trenches dotted beneath a sun which sent midafternoon temperatures to nearly 100 degrees. Armored scout cars of the Royal Canadian Dragoons slowly patrolled neighboring dirt roads looking for potential trouble spots, or parked in the shade of olive groves away from the sun.

Six Cars Involved In Crash

The 401 "suicide strip," north of Marysville, has done it again!

This time it was a freak delayed mishap involving a total of six cars which sent six persons to hospital. Two of them with lacerations and possible fractures.

The delayed action multiple car mishap was triggered when an eastbound car driven by Donald Cameron of Toronto went out of control where the four lane 401 Highway narrows to a two-lane stretch.

The mishaps occurred about 10.00 p.m.

Provincial Police officer Bill Stevens said Mr. Cameron was following another car which cut over to the south lane where a row of baled hay squeezes traffic into the one lane.

Seeing the hay ahead, Mr. Cameron jammed on his brakes with result that his car went out of control and into the south ditch.

Twenty minutes later Walter Thom of Fort Credit saw the Cameron car in the ditch and stopped well off the pavement

Church Names Full-Time Worker To Ease Load of Unwed Fathers

LONDON (AP)—The Anglican Church diocesan moral welfare council of Essex County has appointed Roy Demery, 33-year-old social worker, as a full-time welfare worker in the unmarried father field.

"Unmarried fathers," said Demery, "must be helped, not neglected and looked down on.

"The fact that a girl is having his baby obviously weighs heavily on many a man, especially if he is not in a position to marry her.

"Some are so badly hit that they let their careers slide and sink into a useless, pointless existence.

"Often they are bullied into weddings by angry parents. This should not happen if the couple don't love each other."

Demery estimated there are 1,000 unmarried fathers in Essex County alone. He will trace them down through the unmarried mothers department of the county council. Mrs. Violet McLaren, who heads the unmarried mothers department, explained:

"We have far too much work sifting the girls, so many material and psychological problems, to be able to help the men as well. But believe me, they need help too."

Goldwater Home Relaxing While Republicans Seething

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater relaxes today in his hilltop desert home while Republicans seethe with debate and discord over their presidential nominee's defence of extremism in the cause of freedom.

Aides said Goldwater was expected to transact one bit of business: A formal withdrawal of his bid for Senate renomination now that he has won top spot on the Republican ticket.

The conservative senator flew from San Francisco Friday night to a triumphant homecoming in his native city. Some 3,000 Arizonians cheered the state's first presidential nominee.

Goldwater left in the convention city a boiling party feud over the extremism remark he delivered in accepting the nomination Thursday night—and called it a second Friday in these words: "Extremism is no sin

Osteopath Surgeon, Free on Bond, To Marry German Divorcee Today

As Mrs. Tebbenjohanns' suit, heard by Colonel Ilesmon Gales, pulled away from a plush Columbus motel, Dr. Sheppard smiled and said they would marry "as soon as possible."

Besides Holmes, who has written extensively about the 1954 slaying of Sheppard's pregnant wife Marilyn, and the doctor and his fiance, the suit carried Sheppard's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey of Boston, and Mrs. Bailey.

Once in Chicago, Sheppard, 40, and his blonde fiancee were taken to the Tribune Tower, where they posed for pictures. Newsmen who had heard of the couple's arrival were not allowed in the Tribune building.

The Tribune said Sheppard and Mrs. Tebbenjohanns were taken to separate hideaways until the wedding, at an undisclosed place.

The doctor is free on order of a U.S. district court judge who held Wednesday that Sheppard didn't get a fair trial when convicted of second-degree murder in Cleveland in 1954.

However, a U.S. Court of Appeals later issued a stay, overruling the order which permitted Sheppard's freedom, but not directing his re-arrest.

Authorities are expected to file a motion to amend the stay order so H would return Sheppard to prison.

Think Goldwater May Win British Election for Tories

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Barry Goldwater may not win the American presidency but some folk figure he may win the British general election for Sir Alec Douglas - Home, that is.

Douglas - Home, the British prime minister, hasn't claimed so far that his chances of victory are enhanced by fears aroused in British hearts by the ascendancy of Goldwater in the U.S.

And Harold Wilson, his Labor party challenger, certainly isn't saying Sir Alec's chances here are zooming just because the Republican party chose Senator Goldwater as standard - bearer.

Wilson, in fact, said as late as Thursday night it would be foolish for the Conservatives to try to make long-range capital from the American struggle because that would be a two-edged weapon.

"We shouldn't get in their hair and they should stay out of ours," was the gist of his message.

Both Wilson and Douglas-Home, it seems sure, honestly hope for re-election of Democratic President Lyndon B. Johnson in view of his stalwart support of the Atlantic Alliance and his moderate stance on foreign affairs generally.

Yet Douglas-Home can point to Goldwater's policies—so eccentric in British ears — as showing how wise the Conservative government was to retain Britain's independent nuclear deterrent against all pressures.

Wilson, who claims the British nuclear force is neither independent nor a deterrent, has a sharp question on that one. It goes like this:

If Goldwater cannot be trusted to defend Britain against nuclear attack, how can he be trusted to supply the Polaris missiles without which Britain's "independent" force is no deterrent?

Wilson, going over to the attack, accuses Sir Alec of cynically plunging Britain into an election campaign at the same time as the one in the U.S., leaving the West weakened against possible Communist initiatives.

The U.S., he says, has a set constitutional election date but Douglas - Home deliberately chose autumn for political reasons although he could have called the poll at any time this year.

Some observers feel, however, that uncertainty in foreign and defence matters causes voters — rightly or wrongly — to turn toward the Tories, as if they were blessed with some sort of mystique in these affairs, springing from ages of diplomacy.

The U.S. developments have contributed to that perhaps. But really isn't so much difference between the Tory policy and those of France's President de Gaulle. Both recognize that some day there may be a U.S. leader who wouldn't defend Europe. As Sir Alec put it when he was foreign secretary:

"It is assumed that the United States will always in all circumstances agree at Britain with her strategic nuclear deterrent. I profoundly hope that is true."

New Soviet Constitution To Be K's Memorial to Self

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Evidence mounts that Nikita Khrushchev is preparing for the time when Soviet leadership will pass to someone. In apparent anticipation of that day, he now is constructing a permanent memorial to himself—the Khrushchev Constitution.

The Soviet leader already seems to have assisted Soviet Brezhnev, the beetle-browed former Soviet president, as his successor in the role of Communist party chief. Brezhnev has vacated the presidency—to the U.S.S.R.it is the chairmanship to the Soviet parliament and a largely decorative position—to pay attention to party affairs.

Now a report comes from the Soviet news agency Tass quoting Khrushchev as saying a new Soviet constitution is in preparation, with himself as chairman of the commission. This, replacing the Stalin Constitution of 1936, will be Khrushchev's monument and his claim to be the worthy successor of Lenin.

SNAGS HAVE DEVELOPED

The top Soviet leadership has been wrestling with this constitution project for some time, but it has run into snags, not the least of which is the intra-party war now raging in the world Communist camp between Peking and Moscow.

Before long a draft constitution may be unveiled, probably picturing the Soviet Union as far having reached a new stage of development and paying homage to a new era of Khrushchev theory.

Khrushchev contends the U.S.S.R. has achieved an "all-people state," without classes, a claim that Soviet boots of derision from the Red Chinese.

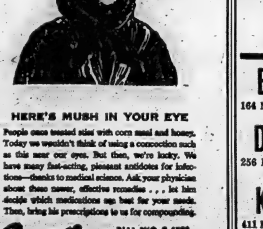
The Chinese say Khrushchev is leading the Soviet Union to capitalism, concentrating on economic development at the expense of aggressive Communist expansion.

The Khrushchev constitution, when it appears, probably will heraldic construction of a state with little resemblance to what was envisaged by Communist prophets. The basis of the constitution will be the Communist party program adopted by the 22nd congress in 1961 under Khrushchev's domination.

FARAWAY DICTATORSHIP

It will picture the Soviet Union as having passed beyond the stage of "dictatorship of the proletariat," which the Red prophets had seen as necessary until communism was achieved.

Khrushchev contends Russian have already reached "exploiting class," and have built socialism, which is supposed to be a stage on the road to "building communism." The country is supposed now to be building communism, which by definition is to be the time when each citizen will get what he needs and give what he can.



The state then is supposed to wither away.

The state will become, however, under the new constitution, which likely will tighten Communist party control of the whole economy. It probably will be predicated on the idea that a strong economy and well-fed, satisfied people can speed communism elsewhere by example.

That is hardly attractive for those impatient Communists abroad who want power tomorrow, not generations from now.

The new constitution will strengthen the arguments of Khrushchev's enemies abroad that he has dumped the old Marxist, Leninist and Bolshevik classics out the window.

Mrs. Doris Ray Murdered in Barrie Home

BARRIE (CP) — Mrs. Doris Ray, 52, was killed in her downtown apartment Friday night by an assailant who slashed her throat and stabbed her in the chest seven times.

Police were seeking her 17-year-old son for questioning. Robert, who lives with his sister Mrs. Joan Sawyer, 22, of Hamilton, had been staying with his mother for two weeks.

Police said Mrs. Ray has been separated from her husband, Stanley Francis Ray, believed to be living in the Belleville district, for several years.

The Falkland Islands, under British rule since 1833, are still claimed by the Argentine.

Scouting activities

The 20th Belleville Boy Scouts' Ladies' Auxiliary held a special meeting on June 18, at the Front Road United Church hall. The main purpose of the meeting was to complete plans for the Cub Camp, which was held from June 19 to June 21 on the property of Mr. Gordon Rice, near Flinfield.

With two leaders in charge of the camp, Akela Claude Hennessy, and Kim, Mrs. Norm Howard, were assisted by Norm Howard. Some of the parents prepared the meals for the Cubs and leaders.

On Saturday evening the group gathered around a campfire and the parents enjoyed a jungle dance performed by the Cubs with the assistance of Akela. The evening ended with a singsong, followed by a wiener roast.

On the following Tuesday evening, the Cub pack also attended their last meeting before the summer holidays. At this time prizes were awarded to the six Cubs with the highest ratings in the pack. Cub John Ferris was the Cub of the year. He also received his first star at this meeting.

The other five boys, to order of their standing were: Robert Perry, Peter Hulsman, Larry Graham, Donald Monteith and Arthur Monteith.

A family picnic for the group will be held at a later date.

Bancroft Club To Host Mineral Bodies

This weekend the Bancroft Mineral Society is host club for an inter-field trip of the various mineral societies throughout Ontario and Montreal.

Well over 100 visitors have registered for the two-day event which will see field trips broken up into three areas. The event will be repeated on Sunday.

Evening field- trips looking for fluorescent materials are also planned.

Special prizes for best mineral specimens are being given.

Egg and Fowl Marketing Plan To Be Set Up

TORONTO (CP)—A marketing plan for egg and fowl producers will be set up on the recommendation of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board.

The measure was approved by more than two-thirds of the 2,961 producers voting in a recent plebiscite.

The marketing board also recommended starting a promotion plan to stimulate the sale of eggs and apple products. A secret ballot of growers showed 69 per cent were in favor.

Money for the plan would come from licence fees paid by growers, depending on quantity and type of sales.

Negotiations Are Continued To Pacify the Temblos Area

By PETER BUCKLEY

NICOSIA (CP)—Negotiations continued today to pacify the Temblos area of northern Cyprus after the United Nations succeeded in getting both Greek- and Turkish - Cypriot forces withdrawn during the night from a potentially explosive confrontation.

A strong Canadian force remained on the scene, however, as a precautionary measure.

Denmark and Sweden meanwhile have agreed in principle to will withdraw their troops from the UN Cyprus force if the situation deteriorates further.

The Greek and Turkish sides had built up rapidly Thursday night and nearly 100 Canadian troops were rushed to positions at Temblos between the powerful Greek-Cypriot forces and the refugee-crowded villages behind them. They reinforced Turkish fighters.

No shots were fired and all-day negotiations brought agreement Friday that both sides would withdraw to former positions—about five miles—by miles back to the coastal town of Kyrenia and the Turks into the mountains around St. Hilarion Castle directly above Temblos.

Lt.-Gen. Andrew Macdonald Friday evening then picked up speed and both sides were reported out of the area by midnight.

ARMORED CARS REPORTED

This morning, however, there were reports that Greek armored cars on roads near Temblos and Lt.-Col. Andrew Woodcock commanding officer of the Royal 22nd Regiment, went with battalion headquarters in the Kyrenian Mountains to meet by Temblos to verify that the buildup was not starting again.

In a message to UN Deputy Secretary - General Ralph Bunche in New York, Denmark said it would pull out its contingent of nearly 1,000 men unless the buildup of both Greek and Turkish forces on the Middle-eastern island ended immediately.

Sweden urged UN Secretary-General U Thant, now in Cairo, to call an urgent session of Security Council to discuss Cyprus. Sweden said it would withdraw its 619 men unless all sides cooperate with the world organization.

Saskatchewan CCF Party Designs Brand New Crusade at Convention

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan CCF party launches a new crusade at its 36th annual convention in Regina.

Addressing discussions at the three - day affair, which wound up Friday, were crammed with references to the "technological revolution" and a need for government action to ensure a fair share for the benefit of individuals.

Stephen Lewis, 26 - year - old member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough West set the tone in what delegates described as a brilliant keynote speech Thursday night.

Mr. Lewis said the full forces of automation and cybernation —the use of computers — has only been in the world the last two or three years. Some economists estimated that two per cent of the present North American labor force would be able to produce the hard goods needed by North Americans in the year 2000.

Mr. Lewis said these facts indicate a need for more active government intervention to ensure that the continent's people do not become technically outdated.

LLOYD ACCLAIMED

Woodrow Lloyd, whose party leadership was affirmed by acclamation, said the CCF must apply its principles in a way that is better understood in the first half of the 20th century.

Mr. Lloyd and many delegates suggested that the CCF, a child of the depression years, made a success of its first crusade — the implementation of such basic social needs as public health insurance plans, social welfare programs and guaranteed minimum wages.

Now, while expanding these basic reforms, the time had come to undertake the second crusade, a grappling with the problems of the affluent, technological age.

The mood of the convention was self-critical as party leaders and delegates examined their policies and their election campaign methods. The CCF lost 10 seats in the provincial election Friday evening then picked up speed and both sides were reported out of the area by midnight.

Recovers Wallet

A Stirling man lost his wallet while watching a show in Belleville last night. According to police, the unidentified man discovered the loss after leaving the theatre, late at night. He returned to retrace his steps, and found the wallet behind the seat in which he had been sitting. Still in the wallet were two $100 bills.

Trucker Dies In Flaming Wreckage

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Natale Fusco, 28, of Windsor, died today when his panel truck burst into flames after it was hit by a southbound Ohio freight train at a level crossing on the city's southeastern outskirts.

Fusco — a year - old Wayne Cecile, also of Windsor, was thrown clear on impact and was in critical condition.

Police said the train tossed the panel truck into a ditch where leaking gasoline ignited within seconds. Firemen had to wait two hours to recover Natale's body.

Malay Premier Coming Here To Buy Planes

LONDON (CP)—The top man in tormented Malaysia visits Canada late this month to buy planes for fighting communism.

Peppery Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman Putra Alhaj spends three days in Canada starting July 27. One day will be spent at the Canadair Montreal factory in Montreal, where the prime minister will take a close look at the CL-41 reconnaissance planes.

Asked how many he would buy, the Tunku, who leaves for Washington Tuesday, replied: "Quite a lot."

In Ottawa July 28, he will see Prime Minister Pearson and Industry Minister Drury. meet other members of the Canadian cabinet and lunch with External Affairs Minister Martin as well as take in the usual social round accorded visiting ministers.

The funeral will be held Monday from the Bush Funeral Home at Tweed with interment in Toronto.

Free Trucker Who Killed Man Chasing Woman

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A grand jury refused Friday to indict a 32-year-old truck driver who responded to a woman's cry for help and shot and killed her alleged assailant.

Police said Deutsch and three companions were riding in a convertible and noticed that Shirley Compson walking home from a wedding reception. They stopped and attempted to approached Mrs. Compson.

Coffey told police he heard Mrs. Compson scream and assume dating.

Deutsch, who had a .22-Police said Coffey told his wife to telephone police and then ran from his home into the street. They said Deutsch and his companions approached Coffey, one carrying a baseball bat. Coffey, who had a .38-calibre revolver, warned the young men to halt and fired a warning shot into the air. He also fired two shots into their automobile and all but Deutsch stopped, police said.

URGE CARE

TORONTO (CP)—Drivers in Ontario have been urged to take more care to cut the wildlife toll on highways. Making the appeal, the department of lands and forests said more than 945 animals were killed by cars last month in the area of Lake Simcoe, 40 miles north of here.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The sisters and members of L.O.B.A. No. 6 and Lydia No. 6 are requested to attend a Memorial Service in memory of our late sister, Donna Savage, at the Thompson Funeral Home, Belleville on Sunday, July 19th, at 7 p.m. By order of the Worthy Matron Ruth Bateman.

Recording Sec., Lillian Wright

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away July 18, 1952.
Not from our thoughts will good-bye but memories of you will never die.
Wife, Elsie.

GALLOWAY — In loving memory of James Galloway, who passed away July 18, 1956.
Every day in some small way, Memories of you come our way. Happy memories fond and true, Thank God we had them with you.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Gladys and family.

WHALEN, WILLIAM — In loving memory of a devoted husband, grandfather who left us so suddenly, July 19, 1956.
It seems so strange that these we love Are taken from our sight, And those we love the most Are the ones we miss so much.
Sadly missed by wife, son and daughter.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of Ray Campbell, July 19, 1947.
Ever in our thoughts, ever in our hearts
Time's hand, as you were here, Nothing can take away.
Sadly missed by Mother, Dad and Dot.

Smile, dear Mary, as you recall
Many memories, now, you did smile.
With mother trips, each yearly turn.
Berries? Which one the worm?

Languid mother, happy still,
Sweet laughter, so merry filled.
Know you the joy
Of a child's first harmony?

Many years have sadly gone, since

Oh, age of dawn!
A puzzled one, and fewer too.
Sick, which one the first?

Fishing on old Trent River.
Quack — the medal fiver.
Canoeing, swimming, sailing,
Always with heart the mail?
Serene and still — never fail.
I love you dear — never fail.
Though time does pass, I'll be there.

Conscience has for each his roll.
Mary's was to be mother of all.
Leonard Hamilton.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation to all our relatives, friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy and kindness extended to us at the time of the passing of our dear husband and father.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the doctors and nurses, Rotalie United Church, Clarke Rolins and Mayflower Guild who were so kind to me, who sent sympathy cards and flowers during my brother Roy Hall's illness and death.
Mrs. Simon Robertson.

My husband and I wish to thank especially Mr. and Mrs. Wright, and Mrs. Rickards for their efforts and instructions during my illness and rehabilitation and Belleville Collegiate Institute, the doctors, the nurses, and ward aides of first floor, Bridge St. East, for their many thoughtful things you did, the enjoyable parties and the many cards.
Also thank you very much for your cards, gifts, flowers, visits and calls and especially my recovery. We appreciate Art, Joan, and Larry Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wright, Roxanne and the regular visits from Mrs. Mooney. They have been popular with local gardeners for pots for large plants.

NEW VET BRANCH

The Ontario department of agriculture has established a veterinary services branch to unify existing services. Under the leadership of Dr. Harold Worton, it will be responsible for disease control programs, regulatory work for checking disease and a provincial diagnostic service.

NAMED OFFICER

Graham Travers, 58, of Victoria, has been appointed senior marketing officer for the department of northern affairs, the department announced Friday. Mr. Travers, who was employed by the T. Eaton Co. for 30 years until his retirement in 1962, will be responsible for development of markets and the production of Eskimo fine crafts and specialty foods.

SHIPMENTS RISE

Shipments of iron ore by Canadian producers jumped 19.5 per cent in May to 4,202,165 tons from 3,606,599 tons in May last year, the bureau of statistics reported Friday. The increase continued a trend of higher shipments this year, with the January-May total at 9,980,608 tons, a 26.4-per-cent increase over the year-earlier period.

Labor Congress Wants All In Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress executive wants all wage earners and the self-employed included in the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

The requirement was one of several listed by the executive Friday following a meeting here. "A permanent speaker for the House of Commons and a parliamentary commissioner to aid citizens in dealing with bureaucracy also were proposed.

Other pension plan specifications included full portability regardless of employment or place of residence and full benefits at age 65 with provision for earlier retirement for disability without reduced benefits.

The council also decided to set up a permanent secretariat to advise on economic problems and recommended establishment of a development bank to mobilize savings now controlled by insurance companies, investment houses and other financial institutions.

GRANDCHILDREN MAKE RETIREMENT WORTHWHILE and S. R. Coon, who celebrates his retirement from the C.N.R. today, has a dozen of them. The one in the tree beside him is Wayne Davis, 10, of Woodstock.

Stanley Coon Celebrates Retirement From Railroad

Stanley Coon's children, grandchildren and one great-grandchild, the the friends he made in more than 45 years of railroading are gathered in Belleville today to help celebrate his retirement. The party is at his home on Wareham St. in Belleville.

Mr. Coon started as a trainman with the Grand Trunk Railway in December of 1918, when he was 18 years old. He had to lie about his age to get the job, he recalls. Because G.T.R. regulations demanded a minimum starting age of 21. He had no trouble convincing railway officials he was of age because of his former record, first as a car checker with the C.P.R. in Trenton and later with the British Chemicals explosives plant in Trenton, where he was foreman, (at the age of 18) in the heater house where gun cotton was ground down into powder. He left the explosives plant when it burned down, during 1918.

As a trainman with the G.T.R. and later with the C.N.R. Mr. Coon worked out of Belleville, Toronto, Brockville and Montreal on both freight and passenger trains. Twice he was assigned to special trains carrying Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir, though he never met the man.

Married in 1921 to the former Gladys Seward of Wallbridge he is the father of three sons and two daughters, all married. One son lives in Belleville, a son and a daughter in Trenton, one son in Cockrville and a daughter in Woodstock. He has 12 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

After his last run Thursday afternoon to Toronto, Mr. Coon "deadheaded" back to Belleville where Joseph Hunter of the local C.B.R.T. union presented him a purse of money. The real celebration of his retirement though, is this afternoon at his home.

Labor Dignity Put on Par With Higher Pay

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union, bargaining with the big three U.S. automakers during a boom period, apparently has put "the dignity of labor" on a par with straight economic demands and creation of new jobs.

New work rules and more rest and relief time are main goals set forth in the UAW propositions presented to the automakers in the 1st-round" bargaining sessions ended this week.

The proposals laid on the bargaining table follow a resolution passed by the UAW national convention to seek "to civilize and humanize the factories and offices in which our members spend half their waking lives." Councils for the UAW departments at Ford Motor Company, General Motors Corporation, Chrysler Corporation and American Motors Corporation, emphasized this spring that new contracts must "assert the sovereignty of human beings over machines."

GM Vice - President Louis Seaton said "there isn't an area of realism" in the UAW proposals. Spokesmen for all the auto firms have stated that any reduction in the amount of work done by employees costs money. And all have said that any settlement must be "non-inflationary."

Kiwanis Hear Address on Hong Kong

TRENTON — Canadian children who "hate" school, and would shout "hurrah" if the school burned to the ground, could well take a lesson from the children of school age in Hong Kong, denied the right to attend school because of economic factors, who sit outside the tenements where classes are held, hoping to take the place of one of the "lucky" students, should he not be able to attend for the day.

Squadron Leader Russell Bowdrey, Staff Officer, Public Relations at RCAF Station Trenton, told the members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club on Thursday night, that adults and children alike in Hong Kong realize the only way out of abject poverty was to acquire an education.

Children who are adopted by persons in Canada or the United States, consider the foster parent plan, are able to attend school, and while they're learning the three Rs, they realize that when they graduate, they will become the mainstay of the family. Meanwhile, the money received each month from their adoptive parents overseas, pays the rent on a room in the tenement, a room measuring ten feet twelve feet which houses a family of four or five. This amounts to around 65 cents in Canadian money—$4 in Hong Kong money.

"Hong Kong is fabulous," the PRO said, "everything you ever imagined."

But the island of Hong Kong has its problems, population concentration in the world, with the mountains at the back of it, a sampan community in the harbor, where people are born on boats, marry on boats, and die on boats, rarely, if ever, coming to the land.

The western visitor to Hong Kong is struck by how almost anything, from any part of the world, and at "unbelievable" prices acquires a premium, but of course, comes a slight price re-adjustment when he brings the goods back to his own country.

S/L Bowdrey spent 72 hours in Hong Kong last year, while on a round the world tour with training crews on an RCAF Yukon. Other points visited on the trip gave the crews a wide variety in landing and take-off conditions and skill in loading and unloading the aircraft under a wide variety of conditions.

The round the world trip is a fixture to be repeated each course at Operational Training Unit, RCAF Station Trenton. Two trips are taken in the spring and two in the fall, with three full crews aboard—two student crews and one "supervisory" or instructor crew. The student crews alternate daily, but the instructor crew is on call at all times. Air route for crews are taken periodically during the trip.

Flight Lieutenants At Trenton Retiring

TRENTON — Among officers at RCAF Station Trenton, about to retire are Flight Lieutenants W. Faldwar, S. V. Kembry, J. S. Schroeder, W. M. Lewis, J. W. Drumm, L. Morrison, W. L. Scott, J. F. McElroy, H. M. T. Tilson and A. A. Vanderwater.

Clubs Will Entertain Student Groups

TRENTON — A busload of students from across Ontario will be in Trenton next Wednesday night and will be supper guests of the local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs at the I.O.O.F. Hall on Elgin St. Arrangements for entertaining the students are being made by Vernon Wannamaker, Noble Grand and on hand to greet them will be Delbert Topping, district deputy Grand Master for I.O.O.F. District No. 47. Mr. Topping plans to return from vacation for the occasion.

The young people are part of a contingent of nearly 1,200 high school students taking part in the 15th annual "United Nations' Pilgrimage for Youth," sponsored by the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah lodges of America. Joining the group at Trenton will be Dianna Gillespie of Division St., Trenton.

While in New York, the students will have the opportunity of seeing the UN in action, will sight-see, view the city from the Empire State Building, take a boat ride around Manhattan Island, see a performance in Radio City Music Hall and spend a day at the World's Fair.

'Mr. Beep' Due On Tuesday

TRENTON — Mr. "Beep" the Talking Safety Car, will make his appearance at Middleton Park on Tuesday afternoon, rather than Wednesday afternoon, as stated in Thursday's Intelligencer.

At 1 p.m., Mr. Beep will be at the primary school in the park; at 1.45 p.m., at the teacher School and at 2 p.m. at the recreation field at RCAF Station Trenton.

And that's on Tuesday afternoon.

Get Certificates

TRENTON — Flt. Lt. W. M. Lewis, DFC, CD, RCAF Station Trenton and Flt. Lt. I. S. Schroder, CD, receive their certificates of service from Wing Commander J. O. Maitland, CD, Acting Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Trenton. On retirement, Flt. Lt. Lewis will become maintenance manager for the Belleville Trenton Golf and Curling Clubs. Flt. Lt. Schroder served three years in the RCAF during World War II and re-enlisted in 1949.

RCAF Hunts Missing Plane In Northland

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — The RCAF search and rescue squad here said today it is searching Northern Ontario for a Cessna 180 private plane missing since Friday night with four Americans on board.

The Cessna, carrying identification markings N9212C, took off from Jackson, Mich., at 3 p.m. Friday and was last seen when it left Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., after taking on fuel for a flight to Wawa, 115 miles north of the Sault.

The plane was piloted by Walter Zimmerman of Jackson, but the names of the people on board with him were not immediately available.

An RCAF Albatross left Trenton at 5 a.m. today to track the plane's flight plan. Two department of lands and forests planes on routine flights in the area were alerted.

Weed Mower To Be Tested At Trenton

OTTAWA (CP)—A new underwater weed mower will be tested in Ottawa River near Trenton, Ont., next Tuesday for federal and Ontario government officials.

The machine is an amphibious device that cuts out weeds in water and dumps them in a barge. It avoids the use of chemicals for underwater weed destruction.

The test was arranged by federal public works department with Aquatic Conservation Corporation of Hamilton and will be attended by officials of the federal departments of public works, transport, fisheries and the Ontario department of lands and forests.

New Militia Policy

No longer will the militia be expected to busy itself with the problems of survival which would arise if Canada were the target of a nuclear attack.

Instead the militia returns to its old familiar role of providing a reservoir of trained men for use in an emergency.

"The implication," says a Canadian Press despatch from Ottawa, "is that the government considers the possibility of nuclear war as remote and a conventional role for the armed forces as more likely."

This will be good news for all who are prepared to accept the government's judgment.

There were many who were never greatly impressed with the survival role given the militia, some of them because they did not consider a nuclear attack likely and others because they could never accept the validity of the argument that there was much that could be done, even by the best trained troops, if such an attack came.

The change in policy, however, begs two questions.

Firstly, if the possibility of nuclear war is so remote as to make a survival role for the militia unrealistic, is there any sense in maintaining the rest of the emergency measures organization?

Secondly, will the militia fill any useful role as a reservoir of trained men in today's world? It made excellent sense in the past, when any war was fought with much the same weapons as those the militia members were trained to use. But today any conventional war is likely to be on a small scale, making little demand on manpower. Will not even our small standing army be adequate, without calling on reserves, in the event of such a war? Would not any war which made larger demands on our manpower inevitably become a nuclear war, in which armies as we know them today and particularly armies equipped with conventional weapons, would be virtually useless?

Is the militia being given back its traditional role merely because this is the cheapest and simplest way of retaining what the government lacks the courage to abandon?

Too Long a Bow

Mao Tse-tung, Premier of Communist China, says that the struggle between capitalism and communism in China will continue for one to several centuries.

This is difficult to believe.

No generation in the world's history saw as many changes as the present. And the rate of change is speeding up. The new generation now in diapers will see developments which make the progress in the first half of this century look like a snail's stroll towards the future. Economic and social changes produce changed habits of mind. Surely no communist, believing in the stress which Marx placed on economic factors, needs to be reminded of that.

A couple of centuries from now it is doubtful whether there will be anyone, even in tradition-conscious China, who believes in either capitalism or the communism of today. Change will have made many of the main tenets of the rival political faiths obsolete.

Centuries hence there may still be a struggle over politics and economics in China, but it will bear scant relationship to today's controversies.

On the Scrap Heap

Politics is an unpredictable and often very cruel thing. The Republican convention in San Francisco this week was notable for many reasons. One was the fact that Richard M. Nixon was allowed only a few minutes to address the party that he almost led to victory in 1960.

Four years ago next month he stood on the rostrum beside Henry Cabot Lodge and delivered what was purported to be one of the finest acceptance speeches in the history of any party. To all Republicans he was the ideal candidate and together with his running mate was supposed to be a sure winner.

Nixon lost the election by little more than 100,000 votes, out of the 68½ million that were cast. Certainly a creditable showing.

Four years later, he was given just 15 minutes.

Strange payment to a man who gave eight years to the vice-presidency and his heart and soul to a near successful 1960 campaign.

A car has speed but a horse has grace. As noble, as graceful as—a bullfight where you don't see the blood for the beauty.—Actor John Wayne.

From the French-Canadian Viewpoint

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Le nouvelliste

Trois - Rivieres Le Nouvelliste — The separation of the Liberal political movements by their doctrine is a thing of the past one, since it merely ratifies a decision taken several months ago. The Liberal Party of separation is sharply distinct from the Liberal Federation of Canada, the leaders of which spend their time thinking out and implementing the Liberal doctrine on the federal level.

No one should ever fool himself by thinking that a militant provincial Liberal will no longer take an interest in federal affairs." On the contrary it seems that only the leaders will be openly connected with one sphere or the other. In practice, the troops themselves will remain the same. And those who have dabbled in politics at all will encounter that what counts to an election is not the president or the vice-president of a political federation but rather the country leaders or those in the parishes or the districts. These are the people who hold in their hands the fate of the candidates.

Thus, under the new system, nothing prevents a provincial party organization acting in the same capacity in a federal election. (Justice Minister Lesage, for example, now is at the top of the pyramid together with Premier Lesage. Below, the leaders (the leader of the federal Liberals in Quebec) and Mr. Lesage might give directives, but the structures of the parties remain the same. (July 16)

LE DEVOIR

In affirming the autonomy of the provincial Liberal federation, they have acted in line with the demands of a well-known theory of federalism.

But at the same time they have wanted to play the role of a wily fox. In allowing the local organizations to affiliate with the two (Liberal) parties, they have in practice annulled . . . the effect of their first decision. . .

On the face of it, the compromise reached by the Quebec City meeting is a lame one. It reveals the aristocratic mentality that still prevails among the Liberal leaders. They wanted to wipe out any appearance of double allegiance on the leadership level and they establish for the sake of the party two true structures. But they refuse to attack the evil at its roots, that is, at the level of local level, in the mental processes of those they solemnly call the party faithful.

Mr. Lesage sooner or later will complete his evolutionary cycle. He is on the right opinion gradually. Meantime, the local Liberals will resemble those baseball players who belong to two teams at the same time. They will hesitate to know what they believe in, these Liberals will have to ask themselves whether what playing cap they want to stash their brains. — Claude Ryan (July 7)

LE DROIT

Ottawa Le Droit—The Laurendeau - Dunton Commission, which has been operating for less than two years has cost us $422,706 up to now, according to information furnished by Lucien Cardin, parliamentary assistant to the prime minister, to Progressive Conservative member Lloyd Crouse. . . .

Mr. Davis informed Mr. Crouse that the commission has retained the services of 36 "research" specialists. If it is left alone, the commission will, by the end of the year, employ 63 researchers on a full-time basis and 23 part time.

Reasonable citizens will nearly all believe, as we do, that this is waste. If John G. Diefenbaker was not likely to use the situation to give free reign to his usual francophobia we would ask him to protest against these enormous and useless expenses.

The commission could make, recommendations confirming, to its mandate right now, or in two or three months at the latest. Everyone already knows (and has known for a long time) that Canada is disunited on the problems being looked into by the commission and, in probable staff. . . .

Already, anyone can draw conclusions from the inquiry —Canadians must be taught to know one another better; prejudices on both sides must be fought; bunglings must be taught the history of their new country; the British North America Act must be revised so that its principles will be more clear and in the spirit that presided over the deliberations of its authors. Above all, it is necessary for the French-Canadians of the provinces of Quebec, and elsewhere, to make themselves respected by enriching themselves while remaining themselves and in respecting their mother tongue. — Willis Chevalier. (July 16)

LA TRIBUNE

Sherbrooke La Tribune — The idea of a permanent international force under United Nations authority, suggested by Canada, is slowly winning supporters. One of the latest countries to show an interest in such a proposal is none other than the Soviet Union. . . .

Details of the establishment of a UN police force have not been drawn up but the good sense of the Soviet Union's suggestion that membership countries of the Security Council be kept off the force is obvious.

But this is not enough. They must also be able, through the veto, to prevent its operation. Also, these countries, and above all the U.S.S.R., must agree to pay their share even when the force does not suit their interests directly. (July 9).

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Successful in every phase, the annual Kinsmen Fag Fund tag day held Saturday, netted the Club $1,076.67. The splendid amount ever contributed to a tag day in Belleville. The entire proceeds which will purchase and ship 322,941 cigarettes, will be given to the unfortunate smokes for Belleville's sons serving overseas. The response was far in advance of the expectations of the Kinsmen and only made possible by the number of personal contributions from firms, industries and private individuals. The Kinsmen are indebted to all who made the tag day the success it enjoyed.

Gaining entrance through an insecure roof skylight window, robbers entered the Belleville stores of Vermilyea's Shoe Store and Meaghers Haberdashery, Front Street, and stole clothing Wearing apparel and gasoline ration books. The break-ins were discovered when store proprietors opened their respective places of business early Monday morning. The robbers are believed to have gained access to the roof by climbing a fire escape ladder on a adjoining building.

One of the crack anti-aircraft units helping to protect the Normandy beachhead from enemy raiders is the Belleville unit manned by Major Jack S. Cousins of this city. A Ross Munro despatch states that the unit of the regiment have accounted for 15 enemy planes since D - Day. "Anti-aircraft guns are literally packed in the area," Munro writes, "and there is no barrage in the world like the one in which the Canadians are doing their full share of shooting."

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Hunt are spending two weeks at Bala Muskoka.

Miss Jean Gunn, superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital, is spending her vacation at her cottage along the bay on the Trent Road.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clarke of Toledo, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Cooke of Lima, Ohio, are in the city on a visit to Mr. W. F. Clarke, Front Street, and Mr. John Thompson of Charlotte Street.

Capt. W. E. Schuster of this city, has arrived in England, where he will spend some time promoting the interests of the Bay of Quinte Trade Crusaders.

Mr. William Gerrie, formerly a member of the advertising staff of the Ontario Hydro here, and now superintendent of the Queen Elizabeth Prime Ministers' conference opened in a fairly troubled climate. In Africa, Rhodesia, the key country of the day. Nyasaland has just gained independence under the name of the Republic of Malawi. . . . Dr. Banda hastened to underline during the proclamation of independence that his fellow citizens were abandoning stones and javelins to build a stable economy, forgetting wasteful battles between blacks and whites.

Nevertheless, a racial crisis exists in Southern Rhodesia and there could be confrontations which would force the British to intervene. It appears that Sir Alec Douglas-Home fears a racial war in Africa. But others are not confined to African territory of the Commonwealth. There is Cyprus.

The arrival in Cyprus of EOKA terrorist chief General Grivas last week in Athenian circles are preparing a Geneva conference on the subject has re-kindled the atmosphere. The matter of Cyprus landings has remained nebulous but it has created an incident between Ottawa and Athens and it is more doubtful if could help towards a peaceful solution of its dispute. . . .

It is not surprising that a meeting is being held in London at this particularly difficult hours. Canada is one of the most prominent members of the Commonwealth and is asking itself questions about this free association of sovereign nations that has even creating a stir in British public opinion. Does the Commonwealth have any future? The conference may provide some answers to the question. (July 9).

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 15, 1904 . . .

The revolt by troops supporting General Estrada Palmo broke out in Morocco 20 years ago today—in 1926—and heralded the Spanish Civil War. Almost at once, other revolts broke out in Cadiz, Seville, Malaga and Madrid. Three years later, Franco claimed victory after some of the bloodiest fighting in history and became the dictator of Spain.

1915—The United Farmers of Alberta won the election in that province.

1925—Canada and the U.S. signed a treaty laying the groundwork for what eventually became the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Will Someone Please Give 'Oom' Paul Martin Lily Pad?

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA . . . hot weather notes off the Parliamentary cuff . . .

Chug-arum:

Former Health Minister Waldo Monteith, Conservative MP for Perth, is being credited with the neatest, most penetrating thumb-nailing yet of the "new" Paul Martin.

The "old" Paul Martin once gave of the swingiest partisans this uncommon Commons has ever seen. A politician's politician, he gloried in the verbal hicking and gouging of the Daily Question Period that customarily got the House off to a rough-and-tumble start. And he seemed to enjoy nothing better than crafty slugging it out, eyeball to eyeball with that other hard-rock of the House, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

But now that Paul Martin is the Secretary of State for External Affairs, you'd never know him. Such dignity. Even at times, pomposity. With his deep booming delivery and agonizing deliberation, he has become a study in circumlocution, an expert in the art of the "no-answer." Strip the "no-answer" of the fine-sounding if meaningless sanctioned phraseology and you've got nothing left: especially hard information.

"Paul," muses Waldo Monteith, "reminds me now of Old Grandfather Frog, sitting there on his lily-pad and going 'chug arum, chug-arum' every time a question buzzes his way."

The pair of them, Oom Paul and Old Grandfather Frog, has "the same nice, amiable blend of self-satisfied complacency."

So says the perceptive "Monty" Monteith.

TIME OUT:

If you don't think Parliament is in need of a rest (though maybe not really deserving one), read this, straight out of Hansard.

E. F. Whelan, freshman Liberal MP from Bonavista South, ("one of the Paul Martin country) is talking:

". . . looking over what was said, mainly by the Opposition, it got me in mind of a phone call I received from my wife not long ago. My wife runs my farm down home.

"I asked her what was going on at the farm and she said there had had a terrible windstorm.

"I said, 'I can't understand that because the Tory Diefenbaker and Mike Pearson were both in Ottawa and there are no records from the Progressive Conservative Party, that I know of, who have been down in that area.'

"Then I said, 'How bad a windstorm was it?' and she said 'It was a real bad one.'

I said, 'How bad?'

And she said, 'It blew everything off the farm but the mortgage.'"

MIKE AND BARRY

This will probably shake the many admirers of Prime Minister Pearson's quiet down to the shoes.

The Chicago Tribune thinks he and Senator Barry Goldwater are cast in the same mould.

Under the heading: "Barry's Views Like Pearson's" Eugene Griffin, long time resident Canadian staff correspondent of The Tribune, has written:

"In patriotic devotion to his country, in insistance that his country be respected; in recognition that the United Nations is not a substitute for national policy, and in the belief that foreign aid should not be wasted on unappreciative or unfriendly governments, Goldwater stands squarely in the shoes of Pearson, whose image is that of a world statesman."

The thought that Arizona's Goldwater and Canada's Pearson hold common basic views on national and international policy — especially on Foreign Aid — is something that, perhaps hadn't occurred to be-fore.

More Ways to Conquer Cold and Canker Sores

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Canker sores, cold sores, and fever blisters are stubborn, annoying and sometimes life-long afflictions for which we have no absolute remedy. In that way, they're similar to the common cold. With them it's as the doctor is reputed to have said to a patient with a cold, "If you had pneumonia, I could cure it."

A couple of months ago I wrote all I knew about tow to subdue those ornery sores, and I thought you might be interested in a pair of coast-to-coast letters.

The first came from Washington:

Dear Sir: I am an auto mechanic and hate people who tell me what is wrong with their cars. I hate even worse to admit they're right.

Now I am putting myself in the amateur's position. In 1943 I was in the Air Force in Oklahoma and was in the hospital with 23 canker sores, as big as the erasers on pencils. I'd had them all my life and tried everything.

They were so bad the doctor gave orders I could have ten any hour of day or night, hoping the tannic acid would help.

One day he told me he had an idea that smallpox vaccine might help. He started me on a series of a vaccination every two weeks. I was discharged, and went to work for an airline. The company doctor agreed to continue the series for six months. I have never had a canker sore since.

When my son reached teen age he started to have canker sores the same as I had. I took him, to a doctor, who laughed about the same vaccination, but agreed to give the boy two "extra strong" vaccinations. No more sores for a year. Then they started again, and again the laughs, but some more vaccinations and no more sores for a couple of years now. But the doctor still doesn't believe in his theory.

I'd like the doctor in Oklahoma and the company doctor to know I haven't had a canker sore since 1944. — R. J. B.

I don't know why such vaccination help, but I've recommended them quite a number of times, and sometimes they work. Sometimes they don't. Probably some such sores are due to a virus, others due to an allergy, perhaps some from a completely different cause.

Now a letter from Florida:

Dear Doctor: A friend had canker sores and no mouth sores at the same time. But when he stopped eating chocolate, no more sores. — Mrs. A. B.

This is new to me on allergy. Vaccination wouldn't have helped.

Somebody else might prevent sores by avoiding tomatoes, strawberries, seafood, or certain other foods.

I don't know how to tell one canker sore from another, but I'm sure the Cincinnati doctor how, and then it will be easier to maintain the form of treatment. For the present, I guess trial and error is the only answer.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any scientific knowledge as to cancer? Some people claim rubber, children, rubber plants, philodendron, etc.,) make arthritis any worse? We have several of the plants and would hate to dispose of them, but we have been told that tropical vegetation is apt to arthritis worse. It sounds silly to me. — Mrs. D.

It sounds silly to me, too, and I know of no evidence to support that view. So keep and enjoy your plants.

Note to Mrs. E. G.: No, antibiotics do not "cause hardening sometimes do have an annoying way of doing that. Not always, but fairly often).

Bed-wetting is a distressing problem. If your child has the habit, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Cleburne Times Syndicate, P. O. All Approve Post Office Paying Way

By BOB LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of all parties agreed in the Commons Friday that the post office department should pay its own way, without incurring deficits borne by the taxpayers.

The discussion arose as the House gave swift approval to the 1964-65 post office spending estimates of $208,878,000, an increase of $5,033,000 from last year.

Postmaster - General Jack Nicholson said the postal rate structure is outdated and too low to finance his department's costs. He estimated that an operating deficit of about $30,000,000 will be recorded in the current fiscal year. He said third-class mail now pays its own way as a result of a rate increase in April.

Legislation to boost first-class local rates to five cents from four, on the Commons order paper since April 30, would place that category on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Mr. Nicholson said the main remaining problem is second-class mail. About 600,000,000 pieces in this category will be handled this year at a heavy loss to the treasury.

The government proposed to boost second-class rates for certain periodicals and publicity material. However, daily and weekly newspapers would be exempted from the increase as a matter of public policy since they were cultural and communications media.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) and Gerard Perron (Creditiste — Beauce) objected to hidden subsidies to newspapers and weekly magazines, especially mass-circulation ones with large advertising revenue. They said any subsidy to newspapers under postal rates should be handled in an aboveboard manner and subject to parliamentary approval.

Lawrence Watson (PC—Assiniboia) said he supports the minister's policy of adjusting rates to make the post office pay its way. But J. A. McBain (PC—Elgin) said his party would oppose the first- and second-class increases when they are up for debate, likely next fall.

Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber) said Time and Reader's Digest magazines have an unfair advantage over Canadian-owned magazines. The Digest paid only 1¾ cents a pound to mail its magazines while Weekend, The Star Weekly and other Canadian magazines paid three cents.

Millions of foreign magazines moved through Canadian mails free, increasing the post office deficit. He explained that the Bell Telephone Company receives a special rate on its bill. This cost the post office about a month in lost revenue in Toronto alone.

Several MPs congratulated Mr. Nicholson for curtailing practices of political patronage initiated by his predecessor, Senator Azellus Denis.

Britain Plans Another Drive To Sell Here

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Britain is bracing itself for another big assault on the Canadian market. The campaign looks like a determined one.

Canadian sales to Britain are running more than double those from the United Kingdom to Canada, and the British government wants to do something about it. An announcement of specific steps may be made early next week.

The first move is likely to be the creation of a new exports-boosting organization, headed by a dynamic figure familiar with Canada. One name suggested is that of bustling Sir William McFadzean, a dapper, 49-year-old Scot whose company built the submarine power link between Vancouver and Vancouver Island.

All through the post-war period, and particularly in the last few years, the imbalance in Anglo-Canadian trade has been a subject of concern.

Now, Canadian sales to the United Kingdom are running at the record rate of considerably more than $1,200,000,000 a year. British exports are rising in 1964 but are still well behind.

Request Farmers to Look For Crops-Damaging Worms

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. Ivan Bell of the Picton Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture stated Friday that Army worms have been noted on a Picton-Bloomfield area farm. Farmers are asked to be on the lookout, to examine their crops frequently and if any signs are evident that the worms are there they are asked to contact the Ontario Department of Agriculture offices in Picton for directions in combatting the worms.

The worms are striped caterpillars and are the larvae of a moth. They will be found on the cereal grains, oats, barley, corn, pasture and hay.

Mr. Bell remarked that the danger of a build-up comes when a field of wheat that is ripening or a pasture that has become burned up or dry. The worms looking for green feed may move out of this field into the next. If this happens to be a field of green oats or hay they would do a tremendous lot of damage. There are always some of these larvae present, however, this years seems to be ideally suited for their development.

Mr. Bell also stated that early in the spring there were indications of a build-up this year. There has been quite a serious outbreak in the Chatham area and every means at their disposal is being used to combat them there. It has also been reported in the Ottawa area, however, this is the first report in the Bay of Quinte district.

Spraying is the recommended treatment if the worms are found in sufficient number. They will be found on the ground during the day under the crop. The caterpillars will eat the leaves and go up and nip off the head which will drop to the ground.

There is still no cause for panic but the Department advises farmers to keep a close check on their crops and if there are any signs of these worms they contact the local office for advice and preventative measures.

Name Date For Opening Of Museum

PICTON (Staff) — Sunday, July 26th, has been set as the date for the official opening of the Marysburgh Museum. However, the erection of an historical plaque will not take place until next year. The official opening will give the public an opportunity to see the work done at the former Ross homestead at Waupoos. To prepare for this event the museum will be open every night next week starting Monday and volunteers to assist in various jobs are asked to come along. Work to be done includes cleaning, painting, setting up furniture and display cases. The museum would like to secure whale oil lamps and two candle stands. The museum promises to become a major tourist attraction and a place where valuable county history and historical articles can be preserved.

CHOSEN TOP WEEKLY

MONTREAL (CP) — The weekly newspaper Le Canada Francais of St. Johns, Que., has been named French Canada's Weekly Newspaper of the Year among newspapers with circulation of more than 5,000. The newspaper also won an award for the best pages on arts and letters among weeklies. Judging was by a jury of members of the Association of French-language Weeklies of Canada.

Park Rangers Plan Water Safety Contest

PICTON (Staff) — To aid in the promotion of water safety in Ontario, the Park Rangers at the outlet beach, with permission from their district forester, announce the opening of a water safety essay contest with a first prize of $20.

The contest is open to anyone under 17 years of age excluding relatives of the outlet park staff. The essay not to exceed 250 words may be written in either English or French. An essay submitted should show that the contestant has given serious intelligent thought to the question of water safety.

The contest sponsored entirely by the Park Rangers was planned because of the alarming water safety habits practiced by many people visiting Outlet Park. Since the Park opened May 15th this year park staff have found it necessary to issue in excess of 100 water safety warnings. The majority of these warnings were for the use of air inflated articles capable of supporting a body in the water. All such articles are prohibited in Provincial Parks.

A second warning which is becoming all too common is directed at boat drivers who insist on driving their power boats too close to swimmers and swimming areas.

Essays complete with contestants name, age and address must be mailed or delivered to "Let's be water safe" Outlet Provincial Park R.R. 10, Picton, Ont. not later than August 17, 1964. Winners will be announced on August 31st, 1964. First prize is $30.00 with second and third prizes being miniature plastic models of Smokey the Bear.

Inspects Army Cadet Camp

PICTON (Staff) — Maj. Gen. George Kitching, C.B.E., D.S.O., C.D., General Officer Commanding Central Command, arrived at Picton Army Camp at noon Friday aboard an L 182 Army aircraft. The occasion was a routine inspection of the Army Cadets Trade Training Camp. On leaving the aircraft he was greeted by the cadet band and a quarter guard of 12 cadets. The quarter guard and band were inspected before the General continued his jour of the camp. Following Friday's inspection the general proceeded on to Ottawa.

Ancient Cars To Conduct Quinte Tour

PICTON (Staff) — From August 1st to Aug. 3rd, the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada, Upper Canada region are sponsoring the Quinte Parkway Tour. Participants are from all regions of the A.C.C.C.C. the Historical Auto Society of Canada, The St. Lawrence, Adirondack Clubs and the Vintage Automobile Club of Montreal.

The tour starts from Picton Saturday August 1st, where the cars will be on view at Vince's Farmers market from their arrival until parade time about 5 p.m. The cars will be driven down Picton Main Street. On August 2nd the vintage autos will cross the Glenora Ferry and proceed to Kingston where the cars will be paraded again. On Monday August 3rd, the autos will take part in a private parade in Napanee to celebrate Lennox, Addington and Napanee Centennial.

Mrs. Jagan Is Unhurt By Bomb

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—A terrorist bomb in this British colony reeking with racial violence barely missed injuring the U.S.-born wife of leftist Premier Chaddi Jagan Friday.

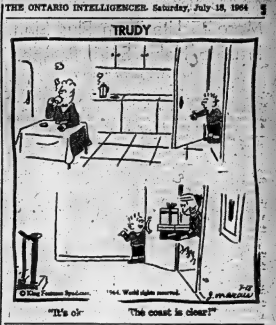
Mrs. Janet Jagan, a controversial political power in her own right, was reported to have been about 100 feet from the blast but was only shaken.

The bomb was left by a man in the ground floor bookshop of Freedom House, headquarters of Jagan's ruling People's Progressive Party. A PPP newspaper said Michael Forde, a party worker, was killed trying to get the bomb out of the building. He got as far as a hallway when the bomb exploded, ripping out a wall.

Another man was killed by a bomb a half-mile away at the trading headquarters of the British Guiana Commercial Export Corporation (Gimpex). He was identified as Edward Griffith.

The two blasts injured 12 persons. Eight were taken to hospital.

CLEAR CROWDS



Police used tear gas to disperse crowds around Freedom House. They ringed the party headquarters building with armed guards and clamped extra security measures throughout Georgetown.

The PPP evening newspaper, The Mirror, said the blasts were part of the racial terrorism that has killed 120 persons in British Guiana in the last five months.

The bloodshed grew out of a drawn-out sugar cane workers labor dispute. Of British Guiana's 220,000 East Indians and 300,000 Negroes on racial lines.

When the blasts occurred, Jagan, an East Indian, was meeting nearby with Forbes Burnham and other Negro opposition leaders in an attempt to ease the racial tensions. He cut short the conference and rushed to his wife's side.

Mrs. Jagan, 43, the former Janet Rosenberg of Chicago, directed Guiana's police force as home minister in her husband's cabinet until she resigned June 1. She retained her positions as a senator and Kingston member of the PPP. She has two children.

Postmaster-General Nicholson said he is working to put the post office on a strict pay-as-you-go basis.

J. A. McBain (PC—Elgin) congratulated Mr. Nicholson for reducing patronage in the post office department.

Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo) criticized the forced retirement of postmasters at 65, saying they could easily carry on longer.

Must Free Foes If He Wants To Win Freedom

LONDON (CP) — Nigeria's foreign minister said Friday Premier Ian Smith of Southern Rhodesia will need to let his political opponents out of jail if he means to negotiate independence.

Jaja Wachuku, the outspoken foreign chief of Africa's most populous country, appeared unimpressed by Smith's rejection of the independence meeting proposed here Wednesday by the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

"Smith has to keep his home fires burning," said Wachuku, meaning that the premier's rejection was made to please his white-supremacist followers. "I don't take what he says as the last word."

Wachuku gave the impression—as Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya did earlier that the black African leaders are confident Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain will exert pressure on Smith for a round-table conference, although no such pledge has been made public.

Wachuku called a press conference to complain at the way British newspapers and television handle news from Nigeria. They tended to portray political differences as "anarchy" and Britain also tends to take Nigeria "for granted."

A Lift for Living

More to Life Than Plus Sign, Pruning Helps Spirit Prosper

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Now in July our rose bushes show the benefits of careful pruning. Blossoms are biggest and best where the canes and stems have been prudently cut back. The winterkill of frigid months would have sapped the strength of the bushes, had not the last branches been removed in the spring. Excess rose canes absorb the vitality of the plant so that energy needed for flowers is dissipated into unneeded stems.

Each bush the flower garden must feel the cut of the pruning knife before it can produce a maximum display of beauty. Tree roses are pruned hard at the crown. Floribunda roses need only moderate pruning. Hybrid tea roses are pruned lightly if a great many flowers are wanted; more pruning is required if fewer but lovelier blooms are desired; and they are pruned severely if the best possible blooms are needed for exhibition purposes.

Rose bushes share the fate of evergreen trees and shrubs, hedges, vines and fruit trees. They must be pruned if they are to be at their best. Roses gain added glory by losing weak stalks, stems and flowers. Orchard trees add to their fruitfulness when they subtract excess limbs and twigs from their bulk.

LIKE ROSE GARDEN

Pruning is as necessary for the welfare of the human spirit as it is important for the flourishing of a rose garden. We ordinarily act as if we believed that human life is enriched only by an accumulation of more things. A plus sign has become the sacred symbol of our affluent way of life. But a minus sign is needed to balance our pluses. We thrive on sacrifice, and we grow by losing.

Trim out of your existence all excessive, fussy busyness. Only then can you savor the good God has planted in your days. Rushing about engaged in the excitement of making and keeping dates and schedules, attending meetings and conventions, spending time on secondary events and negligible engagements, we crowd our brains with trivia. In our hysterical haste we fail to enjoy the scenery as we travel toward our Eternal Home. We substitute a brisk busyness for an awareness of the beauties around us, the people near us, and the God whose we are. We are so preoccupied with little things that we neglect our chief duty — growing a soul. Much of this frantic activity is busyness for the sake of busyness itself rather than for any high purpose. "Ye have friends in this city busy to work on a committee, too busy to spend time with your friends in casual conversation, too busy to play happily with their children, too busy to go to church. But you have ever found a person too busy to tell in great detail how busy he is? Prune back all busyness that is purposeless activity. Cut away the ceaseless bustle that is an unconscious attempt to divert your mind from seeing yourself as you are. You will become spiritually fruitful in direct proportion to the number of unimportant things you can let alone.

Prune back all carelessness in your life so that you become appreciative. Assuming responsibility where you are your advice are not wanted will prevent you from meddling in affairs where and when you are most needed.

Mercilessly trim conceited contemptuousness from your mind. The grace to admit we are occasionally wrong makes us easier to live with and keeps us capable of learning new truths and unearthing old truth when it appears in new forms.

Cut away all ambition for prominence. Fame is not wicked if only achieved, but the craving for fame for fame's sake is a sin that makes us brother sin inevitable. Craving for prominence puts all other aims in life in secret of public approval and applause. Everything one does is measured by the credit and praise received. The chief benefactors of the race — the poets, dramatists, composers, painters, inventors and prophets — have simply sought to serve the world wherever their God-given capacities fitted world need. For them, service was first and fame incidental. Disinterested service and not the aim of a great soul.

Prune back your preoccupation with yourself if you are to find delight in the days God gives you here. Self-absorption makes for misery. Enjoyment of life withers when you think only of yourself, your hurts, your happiness, what you like, what you deserve, what people think of you and how you can make them think better of you. You grown as self-centredness is diminished and as concern for others and love for God flourish.

This conversation took place between an unlearned restaurant waiter and a customer who was ordering his breakfast: "Please bring me two fried eggs, a slice of ham, coffee, toast and rolls. No waiter, on second thought, eliminate the eggs." The waiter looked puzzled and asked, "Excuse me, sir, but what did you say about the eggs?" "I said to eliminate the eggs." "Yes, sir!" The waiter went to the kitchen. He shortly returned to the customer's table, leaned over and said in a low apologetic whisper, "Mister, we are terribly sorry but we had a little accident here at the restaurant this morning. Our eliminator got busted off, right at the handle, so we can't eliminate your eggs. Would you mind having them scrambled instead?"

A great read of our times is to get our eliminators repaired. We must prune away not only the obvious evils but the good that is the enemy of the best. Such courageous pruning makes for an abundant growth of the soul.

Stories of Famous Hymns

REJOICE, YE PURE IN HEART

Rejoice, ye pure in heart,
Rejoice, give thanks and sing;
Your festal banner wave on high,
The cross of Christ, your King.
Rejoice, rejoice,
Rejoice, give thanks, and sing!

Bright youth and snow-crowned age,
Strong men and maidens meek,
Raise high your fire, exulting song,
God's wondrous praises speak.
Rejoice, rejoice,
Rejoice, give thanks and sing.

This delightful hymn was written nearly a century ago, in May, 1885, as a processional hymn for an English choir festival in Peterborough Cathedral. It has been a favorite for choir processionals in Christian churches of the world ever since and holds an enduring place not only in most church hymnals but in many recorded collections of fine religious music.

Its author was the Rev. Edward Hayes Plumptre (plumtre) D.D. and the public had its first glimpse of the hymn in a collection entitled "Lazarus and Other Poems" which Dr. Plumptre published soon after "Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart" was written. Each of its stanzas ends with an impressive trumpet - like refrain:

"Rejoice, Rejoice,
Rejoice, give thanks, and sing!"

Dr. Plumtre was a distinguished English clergyman, theologian, and author. Born in London on August 6, 1821, he was educated at Oxford University.

He was graduated with high honors in 1844 and was ordained to the ministry two years later. He rose to high place in the church and held a number of important offices.

He served as prebendary of St. Paul's, as professor of exegesis of the New Testament in King's College, as dean of Wells and as a member of the Old Testament Company for the Revision of the Authorized Version of the Holy Scriptures. Another of Dr. Plumptre's hymns, "O Light, Whose Beams Illumine All." is sung to the tune "St. Petersburg" composed by Dimitri Bortniansky who once was director of the Russian Empress Catherine's choir. Its lines are suggested by Jesus' words in John 8:12 — "I am the Light of the world."

ORIENTAL NOTES: JAPANESE GARDENS

"He who makes a garden works hand-in-hand with God." — Douglas Malloch, (1877-1938).

Upon receiving fascinating letters from American friends, Mr. and Mrs. James McFadden, on tour in Japan, Mrs. A. B. Mitchell, 190 George Street most graciously made them available for the enjoyment of our readers. We are indeed indebted to Mrs. Mitchell and thank her sincerely.

The following excerpts were written by Mrs. McFadden:

"Each day brings some new and strange experience. It is still hard to realize that we are actually in Japan, yet one would never take our surroundings for anything else. We never tire of watching the people in the streets, looking into the little open-front shops, admiring the fine architecture and paintings.

"We even discovered that the ceremonial tea was not hard to drink: a little bitter and thick, but not at all unpleasant. We ate some green ice - cream made from the same tea, quite delicious. We still do not bow as low as the Japanese do; but we try! Everyone is a very nice bow to us, we feel like bowing to the ground in thanks.

"We were introduced to a lovely Japanese lady, Mrs. Moriya in Kyoto, who toured the United States last year demonstrating flower arrangement. She has overwhelmed us with hospitality, coming to our hotel to meet us the first evening, then letting us attend a private party she was giving with short demonstrations of the tea ceremony. (I discovered I could sit comfortably on the floor with my feet out straight under the table, leaning against a little backrest like those we see on the beach.)

"Yesterday he invited us to lunch (which she cooked and served herself) finally showing us not only her own lovely garden, but two others of her friends' as well. So I hope my lecture slides on gardens of Japan will include a number of fine home Japanese gardens.

"I already have a new garden club series of slides, mostly with California gardens and those in Hawaii if they turn out well. I took the cover all shots and numbers, while Jim (my husband) used his portrait lens to get those close-ups. I hope to do quite a number of clubs next year, as I now have a good series on Germany, England, Scotland and hope to have the new ones on Japan and Ireland when we get there next spring.

"I was shown around International Christian University in Tokyo one day. I learned a lot. I talked with Miss Takahashi who was Mrs. Vining's dear friend, and who is mentioned often in her books. I thought it fascinating that she started Mrs. Vining's first book about the Crown Prince was very helpful to the Japanese people, so hoped they could know more about him and the Imperial family.

"One evening Dr. Takahashi picked us up with his chauffeur and car, took us to the Camera Club meeting of which the members were discussing and judging their 100 black and white prints taken on an excursion to the zoo. Apparently a very interested audience.

"Just how we might insert the fact that the McFaddens included Hong Kong in their oriental visit, we've had a wonderful time sightseeing because of an introduction to the former president of the Honk Kong Photographic Society, Dr. Szeto and his wife and two of these nephews of Hong Kong. We were much impressed with the beautiful photography shown at the monthly contest at a meeting of the Hong Kong Photographic Society, both in color and black and white. It made us very humble, to show our little documentary set of slides of Japan out like at home.

"Dr. Szeto in translating our brief commentary reported that the members thought it strange of us to see in our slides the great amount of space we have around our home — the large lawn and garden. Hong Kong is such an overcrowded place that only a millionaire can afford a little patch of lawn or flowers."

In Tokyo, Mrs. McFadden visited "Rows Gakko, the school for deaf mutes founded by Ambassador Reighsaur's father. It is a model for all similar schools in Japan. They use the oral method of teaching these children to talk and this is fascinating to watch. They begin with two-year olds and go up through Junior High School.

"I saw all kinds of instructional play with the tiny ones; classes in arithmetic, natural science, English, etc. Through screens I watched the nurses interning. In the music room there were small piano keyboards, with breathing tubes attached; when the child breathes through it just right, the note sounds. This is to teach breath control for speech training. This is a private Christian school, so they stress spiritual truths in the Japanese government. They built a dormitory (six-mat rooms and kitchenette) for families who lived too far away to bring the deaf children every day. I was very much impressed with the wonderful results they are getting. The teachers are radiantly dedicated, the children are bright and eager."

On an "Art around Town" but rainy day, Mrs. McFadden went to studios "where they demonstrated woodblock printing, the hand of the craftsman in the making of Japanese dolls, and painting with white sand on black lacquer — a very beautiful craft. The sand is strewn or poured in narrow lines through funnels, pressed with feathers or brushes or tools. White waves or flowers against black lacquer.

"These tours also took us to a restaurant for lunch, which is a delightful experience. Without mats, all the beams being roped together. One day I visited Keio Girls' School at the Spring Festival. I had great fun photoping spring the little girls in their beautiful kimonos. Most of the little boys wore modern suits, but a few wore kimonos. One wore a cowboy outfit. And several wore cutaway coats and black silk hats!"

Playground Activities

G.O.D.

Thursday afternoon OSD playground was invaded by the local managerie — live and stuffed and their owners. Stuffed animals were of all sizes, shapes and colors and greatly outnumbered the live ones which included a rabbit, a bird, dogs and cats. Winners were best looking dog, owned by Wendy Hussey; biggest dog owned by Janis McDougal; smallest pet owned by Margaret, Matthews; best-looking cat owned by Ann-Christine McCorquodale; dog with most tricks owned by Sue Morrison; pet best liked by judges owned by Christine Watson; stuffed-biggest; owned by John Templeman; ugliest biggest, owned by Dean MacCormack; animal with longest ears, owned by Sue Morrison; cuddliest animal, owned by Janice Orser.

Judges were Paul Howe, Dick Howe, Dave Bonser and the supervisor.

Judging from the great attendance displayed, the 50 children present, owners and onlookers, enjoyed themselves very much.

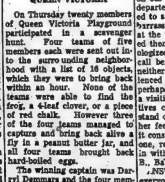
OSD defeated East Hill playground Tuesday by a score of 39-24. Howie Wark pitched the victory aided by a 23-hit assault with six homers.

Thursday OSD was again victorious, winning over Parkdale 26-1. Wark pitched a two-hitter. The OSD boys collected 20 hits and three homers.

EAST HILL

On Thursday, July 16, a successful Pet Show was held on East Hill Playyard. A peanut scramble was first, followed by the judging of the animals. The winners were: most unusual pet, Glenn and Lynne Woodley; biggest dog, Jan Acton; smallest dog, Ken Durocher; biggest cat, Shelby Wilgen; smallest cat, Ronnie Durelle; dog with longest tail, Lynne Langman; best behaved dog, Kem Dumpcher; birds, Sharon Warner; best sniffed animal, Denise MacDonald; prettiest boy Woodley, Glenn; most unusual toy dog, Holly Risten.

In the morning the East Hill baseball team beat West Hill 14-7. In this exhibition game the supervisors did the pitching. Jeff Warner for East Hill's Scott struck out 10, while West Hill supervisor George Cantelon and Bob Cretegny struck out eight. Scott Siremaw had a three for four performance to spark the East Hill team.



The supervisors, Jennifer Bussey and Larry Scoot, wish to thank John Parker, Doug Mason and Annette Bourelle for their assistance.

QUEEN VICTORIA

On Thursday twenty members of Queen Victoria Playground participated in a scavenger hunt. Four teams of five members each were sent out into the surrounding neighborhood with a list of 16 objects, which they were to bring back within an hour. None of the teams were able to find the frog, a 4-leaf clover, or a piece of fur. However three of the four teams managed to capture and bring back alive a fly in a peanut butter jar and all four teams brought back hard-boiled eggs.

The remaining captain was Darryl Demmars and the four members of his team were Patty Wager, Cyril Smith, Fred Sickels and David Taylor.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. William Townson, Belleville, Ontario, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Ellen, to George Wayne Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: An aunt who lives nearby drops in whenever she feels like it. Ordinarily I don't mind, but I do object to her walking in when we have company or just as we're about to go out. Last Sunday she arrived just as we were about to leave for a dinner engagement. We had a friend with her, and to be polite, we delayed leaving as long as possible. When I finally said we simply had to be on our way, she and her friend departed, but next day she phoned to say that she had felt very embarrassed in front of her friend at the way we had almost tossed them out of the house. I apologized, but suggested that she call before dropping in so that neither of us would be inconvenienced in the future. She said nothing more. None of the above is a visiting appointment, but relatives certainly did not have to stand on ceremony. I'm sorry if her feelings were hurt, but isn't it considered poor form for anyone, relatives included, to drop in without warning? — Mrs. C. B., Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: Years ago, before everyone had a telephone, dropping in was taken for granted and was common practice. Now since everyone leads a more active social life, it's courteous for everyone, to call first to make sure a visit is welcome and, since practically everyone has a phone, or easy access to one, there's no reason why this simple courtesy cannot be extended. To be fair about it, if your aunt was able to call so readily to put you on the carpet, she certainly could make use of the phone to call when she expects to visit.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. William Grey Brack of Vancouver, British Columbia wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Eunice Suzanne, to Thomas Bruce Poste, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Poste, Belleville. QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for Red Currant Ketchup? . . . B.

ANSWER:

Please send your name on a stamped envelope next time.

RED CURRANT CATSUP:

1 qt. fresh raw red currants, washed and picked over, 1 cup vinegar, 1½ cups water, 1 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon ground allspice, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ground mace, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt.

Combine red currants with vinegar, water and spices, and cook slowly until the currants are soft. Rub through a fine sieve and discard skins and seeds. To the sieved juice, add the sugar and salt. Cook slowly until the mixture thickens. Seal immediately in sterilized jars or bottles. Makes about 1 qt.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Lamb with Mint Vegetables in Crusty French Bread; Tossed Chef's Salad with Italian French Dressing; Orange Bavarian Cream with Fresh Orange Sauce; Tea.

QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for "tomato jelly," as it is called, and it is made as a relish, with tomato and lemon and a little ginger and it saves well in containers. It is lovely as a relish, with cold meats. It does not contain gelatine . . . Edith E. M.

ANSWER:

This is the only tomato relish I have which resembles your description. I hope it fits and think it might for it is unusual.

RAW RIPE TOMATO RELISH:

12 to 15 lbs. ripe red tomatoes, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup vinegar (scant), 3 medium onions, ground, 6 sweet peppers, ground, 6 hot peppers, ground (optional), 1 cup celery, ground, 4½ cups cider vinegar, 2 lbs. brown sugar, 3 ozs. mustard seed, juice and grated rind of 2 lemons.

Scald and peel the tomatoes. Quarter them and put them through a food chopper. Then place them in a large enamel vessel, stir in the salt, and let them stand until the salt is dissolved. Place the salted tomatoes in a colander, jelly bag or similar container and allow them to drain for several hours until there is nothing left but a mass of pulp. Put the tomato pulp in a large enamel vessel and add the remaining ingredients. Stir until well blended and the sugar thoroughly dissolved, and then pack at once into sterilized jars and seal immediately. The relish may be used soon, but it is better if allowed to age for several weeks. It will keep for years if you wish.

QUESTION:

Could you supply a recipe for tomato catsup which will be almost identical to the store-purchased product? I hope to have an abundant crop of tomatoes . . . Catherine M.

ANSWER:

TOMATO CATSUP (yield: six 10-oz. bottles):

Eighteen lbs. ripe tomatoes, 2 cups chopped onions, 1½ cups chopped sweet peppers, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 cups sugar, 3 cups vinegar, 4 sticks cinnamon, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 4 teaspoons whole allspice, 3 teaspoons mustard seed, 2 teaspoons celery seed. Wash tomatoes, remove stem ends and cut into pieces. Chop the onions and peppers. Combine tomatoes, onions and peppers and cook 30 minutes. Press through fine sieve. Add remaining ingredients to juice with spices tied in cheesecloth bag. Boil 1 hour or until thick. Remove spices, seal in sterile bottles or jars.

READERS PLEASE NOTE:

Please clip these tomato recipes for use at the height of the tomato season.

Large Number Honors Couple At Shower

STIRLING — On Monday evening a large number from the community gathered in Rives Valley School and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hadley (nee Joyce Van Wlack) a party in honor of their recent marriage. Mr. Ed. Heasman was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly. Miss Linda Ann Morrow conducted assembly singing with Mrs. Morrow at the piano accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hadley in the travelogue of their trip to Africa with Mr. Hadley as commentator, showed pictures depicting the recent wedding of the newlyweds in Stirling United Church. Ushers were Mr. R. B. Elliott, Toronto, Mr. James Howse, Montreal, Mr. Ken Hadley and Mr. Ross Fearwick, Mr. Robert Atton, brother of the bride assisted Mr. Hadley in the lavish display of gifts. Mr. Hadley thanked everyone for their kindness and welcomed the guests on their arrival at the church and presented them with a copy of the service.

The bridal party was driven from the church in a democrat drawn by two spirited horses, accompanied by an outrider.

The wedding reception was held on the lawn at the bride's home where a delightful supper was served. The bride's table and guests tables were attractively appointed with pastel colored napkins and low floral arrangements of pink roses and creamy shasta daisies.

Mrs. Atton received the guests in a street-length dress of white lace over taffeta, bodice encrusted with pearls, sequins and gold and bronze gems and a matching hat of seed pearls. She was assisted by Mrs. Morton who wore a delicate blue lace over taffeta dress and a white petalled hat, with white accessories.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BOAT TRIP

DESERONTO — The Girl Guides of the First Deseronto Troop were the leaders-in-charge Joyce Van Wlack, Guide Captain, came in for their share of Candidas on Sunday on a trip to Gananoque and the Thousand Islands.

Some 14 of the members made the Sunday Excursion on the Gananoque Boat Line. Their trip down the scenic river took half hours and covered both Canadian and American points of interest.

The Thousand Islands have long been a centre of attraction for North Americans on holiday. The lavish and expensive homes built at the turn of the century give an object lesson on the economics of the day.

A first-hand look was made available for the Guides when the boat stopped at Boldt Castle, on Heart Island off Alexandria Bay, New York State.

The Guides were also under the supervision of Guide Lieutenant Jean Barnhart of Deseronto.

Take Basic Tools on Vacation

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Starting on that long vacation trip, the wise driver will not forget to take along a few basic tools and other equipment — just in case. Without them, a simple breakdown on the road could be a major problem. Even if you know nothing about tracing trouble or making emergency repairs, someone who does may stop to help and the right equipment may be all that's needed to get you under way again.

A good spare tire, jack, tire wrench, empty gallon can (for gas or water) are "musts." It's also wise to carry along a short flat wood plank to support the jack base if you have to change a tire on sand or mud. Don't forget to include a flashlight, hammer, pliers, at least one screwdriver, an adjustable wrench, roll of friction tape, wire, rope, spare fan-belt and extra fuses. Most important of all, take along a world any need for the above by having the car checked over by a good mechanic before attempting to take any long trip.

J. W. asks: "Could the brand of gas used be a cause of engine overheating?"

Not the brand, but the grade can. For example, low octane gas in a high compression engine will encourage greater engine heat.

From T. H.: "Should I remove the thermostat to get better engine cooling in summer?"

You shouldn't have to if it's unclogged and working properly. In fact most experts advise against leaving out the thermostat. For one thing, it encourages surging of the coolant at high speeds resulting in water loss via the radiator overflow.

J.C. writes: "Apparently, wither valves, pistons or rings have gone wrong in my 1954 engine. Until a month ago, it used little or no oil. Now I must add a quart every 200 miles."

Leakage is the obvious suspect. Check for signs of it while the engine is running at operating temperatures.

P. S. ask: "I own a 1960 sedan with 42,000 miles on the clock. Must I have it about 800 to 900 miles per quart of oil. Is this good, poor, or fair?"

This is about normal — thus it's good.

Deseronto

Legion Plans Fun Fair In August

DESERONTO — Special summer activities of the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion will include an August Fun Fair according to Herb Brazil, Public Relations Officer.

The Fun Fair will be held in conjunction with Ruth's Amusements on the Deseronto park grounds.

In addition to the usual forms of entertainment the Legion is offering two special awards of $50 and $25 for some lucky persons attending.

There will be also a number of "Kooky Kontests." Awards will be given for the most freckle faced kid on the grounds, largest attending family, and others.

At the Legion itself, branch members and their friends have been entertained in store for them. Of particular interest is the 1960 filming of the Harmsworth Trophy Race held on Beach, off Picton. Another is the Grand Prix Auto Race held in Italy last year.

Mr. Brant reports that the activities of the branch will be stepped up in order to meet the cost of operating the new hall.

Branch President is Comrade Doctor D. McVicker.

Enjoy the Swanky Club — Husband Should Order

DEAR DORIS — After receiving an invitation to attend an out-of-town luncheon-conference with my husband, to be held at a swanky country club, Doris, I'm terrified I'll shame him.

Proper use of tableware does not frazzle my nerves and what to order, as there will be menus. I've given my books on etiquette graces to my girls and since I've raised them very proper they would be shocked if they knew "Mummy" was so lax and "Daddy" would just be amused.

Thank you for being a friend to us all. — MIDDLE-AGED DUNCE.

DEAR DUNCE — You'd never shame him: "Politeness is benevolence in small things. A true gentleman (or lady) must regard the rights and feelings of others." So says John H. Young in "Our Deportment," 1879. It's still true. All else is merely the icing on the cake.

In ordering from a menu, a lady has her discussion with her escort rather than with the waitress, and he then orders for her and himself. Usually she orders dinner from table d'hote, — the meal which includes everything in the price of the entree.

She makes a selection from each course. If she prefers to, she asks her host's recommendation and goes by that. If there is some question in her mind as to what he can afford, this gives her a cue.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am a divorcee of 42 with a daughter 15. Lately a man 34 has been taking me out. He thinks I'm the same age as he is; and thinks I am single.

I couldn't tell him when I started going with him because I never thought I'd see him this long. Now I am worried sick and I still cannot tell him. I'm afraid he'd leave me. Do you think he'd be wild if he knew the truth?

He is a good man and has mentioned marriage a couple of times. — GUILTY FEELING.

• • •

DEAR GUILTY — Does your girl hide in the cupboard when he calls for you? What kind of a farce is this?

Whether he boils mad rum when he learns the truth depends on how you tell him and how much he cares about you. And if he doesn't care about you it doesn't matter, does it?

If it scares you to talk it out, write the facts in a letter, explaining why you haven't told them before. This gives him a chance to digest them before reacting.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I read in your column the other night about a young girl putting her baby out for adoption and that was the end. Did that mean she couldn't get the baby back if she wanted it? I know of a case of a young girl who gave her baby up for adoption and just before the end of the sixth month was up, she wanted the baby back and the real parents got it.

Why should people put in for an adoption and give the child love and care and then the mother gets married and wants her back?

Do you think it is fair that the people sign their unseen babies away and then want them back? — ONE WHO WANTS TO KNOW.

• • •

DEAR ONE — Once adoption is final, there's no retracting. Trained workers give unwed mothers ample time to reach a decision they can live with. The case you describe is most unusual.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Time has come for me to have a nickname and what a name: "Moose!"

I'm 14 years old and not bad looking and far from being heavy build. So I simply don't understand. The boys are real drips and tease me wild.

Today I want to go right through the floor. I've tried getting really mad over it but then it got worse. I tried being happy-go-lucky, and even tried ignoring it. But nothing works. — SANDY.

• • •

DEAR SANDY — One grown woman I know told me sadly: "I never had a nickname. We were all so proper in our house."

Most nicknames are unreasonable; but people don't get these labels unless others find them interesting. Teasing expresses affection! So bear it and grin.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Sands (13) gets more people into trouble by lying than any person in our school. Part of her trouble, so she says, is caused by her parents. She has to do most of the work for her four younger brothers and sisters. She says she never gets any privileges but she goes out at night and stays out until ten o'clock.

Her birthday was a few days ago and she received $10 from her mother. Our class gave her a lovely present to show that we were willing to give her another chance. She made a promising speech assuring us that she would try to do better, but within a day she was up to her old tricks again, blaming things on other people which she had done herself. She has caused at least 25 people to get the strap.

The principal recommended a psychiatrist to her parents, but they say they haven't money to waste on such things. Can you help Sandra and us? — NO PATIENCE LEFT.

• • •

DEAR NO PATIENCE LEFT — Now there's a truly mixed-up kid. Uncertain, spotty discipline makes her (sp) unprivileged. She feels no one cares — in spite of the $10 gift. She has good impulses — but the minute she fears trouble she runs for cover behind the handiest tale she can drum up on the spur of the moment.

It needs adult handlings: another approach to parents by the principal. And failing this, she herself could be helped to seek counselling from the child care agency where you are.

• • •

Confidential to IN A HURRY — There's no such thing as a letter by return mail when you write to me. Your letter, which goes first to the newspaper, has to be forwarded to me; then awaits its turn for my answer. Sometimes the pile is pretty high! And an answer in the column takes even longer, as these are prepared well ahead of publication date.

To save disappointment, please allow me three or four weeks for a reply.

• • •

Confidential to MISS M.B. — In the cases you mention, the term "Dr." would be used as a courtesy title only, in Canada.

Ann Landers

Nobody Gets You Drunk Unless Tied up and Forced

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Some lovely, socially prominent friends of ours are heartbroken. Their daughter is being married in haste because she had the misfortune to go out with a terrible young man who took her to a wild beach party, got her drunk and then had his way with her. The baby is expected in November. The girl is only 17 and the boy is 22.

Will you please say something about older men who lure young innocent girls into their lairs and ruin their lives? In my opinion such men should be put in jail. What do you think? — F.L.P.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR F.L.P. — I have discussed this subject in the column repeatedly, but my ideas do not square with yours so you've skipped past those columns.

Nobody gets shipped past those columns. Everybody gets himself drunk — unless of course he is tied up and someone pours the liquor down his throat.

A girl who is so stupid that she would drink herself into a state of senselessness must accept responibility for whatever happen to her after that.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I never laughted so hard as when I read what you wrote about school nurses. Let me tell you how it looks from the students' point of view.

If a school nurse ever sent a kid home because he complained about not feeling well you can be sure the kid was already dead than alive — he probably suffered a heart attack. Every student I know who ever went to the school nurse was asked first if he had a test scheduled in the next hour. If the answer was "yes," the kid was ordered back to the class even if he had to be carried on a stretcher.

And then there is aspirin and green soap. School nurses seem to think aspirin and green soap will cure anything from an ingrown toenail to a broken neck.

So please get with it, Ann, and don't tell mothers that the school nurse will send their sick kids home. It won't happen. — R.L.

• • •

DEAR B. — Too bad the school nurses are onto all the tricks, isn't it. One thing you kids don't dig is this: Every school nurse was once in high school — as a student.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 14-year-old was totally deaf to my pleas to hang up her clothes and put things where they belonged. I was beside myself whenever guests were expected. I used to lock Joan's bedroom door to make sure no one would wander in by mistake and see the mess.

A friend told me how she solved the problem with her teenager and I'd like to pass it on because it worked for me, too. I took the pillows off Joan's bed, tossed them on the floor, rolled the blanket into ball, took the sheets half off and turned the mattress cross-way against the springs. The room looked as if a cyclone had hit it.

When Joan came home and saw the bed she came running down the stairs shrieking, "Mother, what happened to my room?"

I replied, "Nothing. I decided the bed ought to look like the rest of the room."

I've never again had to speak to her about keeping her bedroom in order. — B.B.C.

• • •

DEAR MRS. — Lovely idea, and glad it worked in your house. I'm afraid in some homes, the teen-ager would scarcely notice the difference.

• • •

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Before the convention's winding up session, Goldwater declared: "I would remind you that extremism in the defence of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you also that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

APPLAUDED HEAVILY

A thunderous ovation greeted his statement.

The remark brought a swift, sharp retort from an old campaign foe, New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller—the first caller to congratulate Goldwater when he was nominated Wednesday night — termed it "dangerous, irresponsible and frightening."

And Goldwater apparently discussed the statement during a half-hour talk in San Francisco with former president Dwight D. Eisenhower. Goldwater aides said Eisenhower sought the meeting.

Dean Burch, swiftly approved by the Republican national committee as Goldwater's choice to take over its reins, said the senator had told Eisenhower he is "neither extremist" when as a general he launched the allied invasion of Europe in 1944.

Snapping back at Rockefeller, Goldwater said other U.S. presidents — including Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt—took what he would consider extreme steps "when defending our freedoms."

RAPS ROCKEFELLER

He's no governor, governor, for my benefit and for the benefit of the party and the people of Illinois," he told Greeks in writing his definition of extremism. . . .

"He's for vague," Goldwater said later, "that I would think anyone who doesn't agree with him is an extremist."

As Goldwater prepared to leave San Francisco aboard a chartered plane, a reporter asked for his definition of extremism. "Extremism in politics is either fascism on one side or communism on the other," he replied.

Paper Strike Talks Adjourn

TORONTO (CP)—Negotiators for Toronto's three daily papers and their striking printers spent almost seven consecutive hours around the bargaining table Friday, and a government spokesman later reported "some progress."

At the close of the ninth day of idleness for 660 members of the International Typographical Union (CLC)—which calls the situation a lockout—the talks were adjourned until Monday morning.

Then a sports car driven by Richard Starr of Toronto slammed into the rear of Mr. Thom's car, shoving it into the ditch. Mr. Starr was pitched forward into the windshield, but a passenger still sitting in the Thom's car was uninjured.

Adding to the confusion was the fact that, lacking flares, the bales of hay had been set afire by motorists to warn of the danger.

Two of the injured were taken to hospital by the White and Morris Ambulance from Deseronto, while four others, including two children, were taken to hospital by City Ambulance of Belleville. The children were released after a check-up.

Commonwealth Displays New Vigor and Vitality

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Once again the Commonwealth seemed bouncing off the ropes, breathing a little harder after some roundhouse swings but apparently as resilient as ever, if not more so.

After all the doleful reports that preceded the 13th meeting of prime ministers—including a few premature obituary notices —the impression is that the Commonwealth emerged strengthened from its eight-day ordeal at Marlborough House, displaying a new vigor and vitality.

This is mainly because the leaders of the 18 nations squarely faced such issues as Southern Rhodesia, Cyprus and Kashmir, with all the strong feelings they arouse, and managed through goodwill and compromise to arrive at a consensus acceptable to all, or nearly all.

It is known that representatives of the Commonwealth, such as Prime Ministers Doug las-Home of Britain and Pearson of Canada, went into the conference with fingers crossed, a little dubious whether the family association in its present and enlarged form would prove to be worth all the effort and pains into preserving it, if ultimately only the lowest common denominator of agreement could be achieved.

NEW NATIONS EAGER

The experience of the eight days of the conference was reassuring. It showed that the Johnny - come - lately s to Commonwealth membership are as eager to preserve the frail but binding links as is that most conservative of statesmen, Prime Minister Menzies of Australia.

The Commonwealth magic works in various ways. It operates in the intimate discussions between a wide assortment of statesmen who meet in a family framework not easily duplicated in the United Nations or any other world body.

It works in the weekend gatherings at Chequers and Dorneywood, the mellow Elizabethan retreats in the Buckinghamshire woods where British hosts, having wined-and-dined, add in "softening up" their visitors, put on a show of relaxed, boundless hospitality.

Perhaps occasionally, as the diplomatic British wined and wooed the African, the Canadians may have felt a little taken for granted, but they are willing to agree that it is all in a good cause.

In the working sessions, the emerging nations had tacit privileges, being allowed to say outrageous things that would have aroused strong emotional reactions coming from a more sophisticated source. A certain sympathetic understanding as long as it shows no signs of condescension, goes a long way.

Plaudits

ence has shown that those fears are unfounded."

Mr. Pearson returned to his domestic battlefield amid desk-thumping applause from all sides of the House. His 50-minute report was followed by 90 minutes of opposition replies that were gilded with good will.

"I express to the prime minister my thanks and the thanks of the opposition for representing Canada as he did," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

"I should like to tell the prime minister that all of us, as Canadians, are proud of the serious diplomacy and moderation of voice which he brought to this important conference," said New Democratic Party Leader Douglas.

Mr. Pearson said the conference was a fascinating and stimulating experience. If the conference had ended the explosive issues of race relations in Southern Rhodesia, the Commonwealth might not have survived, Mr. Pearson said. It was a question that could not be answered.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the situation in Southern Rhodesia was not the same as in Africa when that country decided to leave the Commonwealth during the 1961 prime ministers' conference.

"I realize the frightful potentialities of what has taken place in Southern Rhodesia but I wonder . . . will not the prime ministers' conference tend to weaken itself, to destroy its effectiveness, if it acts in respect of domestic matters?"

It might have been more effective, he said, for the colony's prime minister, Ian Smith, had been invited to the conference.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A somewhat belated but beneficial accent-on-youth movement is paying dividends for the youngest senior baseball club to represent this city.

The Gordie St. Louis-Moe Hunter organization has injected at least three voteless players into the Joyces' line-up recently who are not physically equipped to take the lauds for having cream or razor commercials.

Sixteen-year-old Dave Lewis almost electrified the patrons a short time ago when he debuted brilliantly as a southpaw reliefer and stood the opposition on its spikes, baffled and hitless.

Brother Larry, an outfielder, a couple of years older, has shown excellent potential at the plate and as an outer gardener. His perfect throw from the right-field fence to nip a runner going into third the other night, makes him the rightful successor to Pat Gilmour.

Bill Barberstock, another youngster, shows fine pitching ability and will be a decided help to the senior corps.

"All three are definite assets to the club," said Mr. Hunter this morning before they trekked eastward to Brockville. "They have boosted our stock considerably and should be a great help to us in the playoffs—and the playdowns, if we reach them."

The Joyces meet the Brockville Beavers in the roving town this afternoon and the riverside clan was looking for its first victory in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association.

The Eastern Ontario Association apparently rates fairly high in Ontario senior baseball loops since Brockville has won seven straight victories to the St. Lawrence Valley (NY) League and has gone winless in the eastern circuit.

The baseball bete-noir of the Beavers as far as the Eastern circuit is concerned is a strikeout phenom by the name of Bill Latchford. The Joyces are, with a 5-3 record to date has beaten the Beavers twice and struck out 35 batters in the process.

They wanted no part of Latchford today—and as far as that is concerned they had no cause to worry. Coach Hunter told me he was giving young Dave Lewis the starting assignment, if available, if not he would send Gord Vaughn or Rev McLean to the mound.

Latchford has been more or less sensational on the mound this year, burgeoning into his potential practically overnight.

Without benefit of a league statistician, who, up to this point, has to prove he exists, Bill has struck out an approximate average of 15 batters during the six games he has worked. He set down 18 the other night against Ajax in a masterful, if losing, effort.

And he would have won that one, if the Joyces had backed him up with more clutch hitting. But their bats were stymied by the Ajax Club's fine young hurler, Bob Hopper, in one of the best mound duels seen here this season.

Latchford, I'm told, was approached during a recent game here by Boston Red Sox scout Murray Deal. Loot. Apparently he thinks Bill has pro potential and, if it is staked, wants him to attend a spring training camp. I don't know Bill's reaction to the offer.

If Joyces win today's tilt they should have a pretty fair stranglehold on the second spot and they will give them a 10-3 record with three games to go in the schedule. Ajax, it is stated, is in second spot with a 7-3 mark.

They have two games left with the Oshawa Merchants, one at home Monday night and the second at Oshawa next Friday. They wind up the schedule at Ajax a week from tomorrow.

Their fielding has improved considerably the last two or three times out but their bats could be better. But they have been in good hitting form lately, and as Latchford has proved a topflight moundsman can make the best hitters look weak.

Defending Champ Beaten

TORONTO (CP) — Favorites from Toronto, was beaten 3 and at the Pine Valley golf course are continuing to fifth out that you can't afford an off-day in a match-play tournament.

Defending champion Alvie Thompson of Toronto was the latest, big-name contestant to come a cropper Friday as the field sorted itself out to the semi-final stage in the Canadian professional match play championship. He lost his third-round match 3 and 2 to Hazzy McIlree of Whitby, Ont.

The four players remaining are Bob Rose, Moe Norman and Jerry Magee of Toronto and Frank Whibley of Kitchener. Rose faced Norman and Magee will pitted against Whibley in the semi-finals today with the winners meeting in the 18-hole final later in the day.

McIlree later beat 3 and 1 to Rose in the fourth round. Will Homeniuk of Winnipeg, who pulled the upset of the tournament Thursday by eliminating Al Balding, the touring pro from Toronto, was beaten 3 and 2 by Magee in the third round.

Whibley, who won the title in 1962, knocked over Larry Edwards of Toronto 3 and 1 in the morning and came back in the afternoon to defeat Wilson Patterson of Whitby 4 and 3 in the quarter-finals.

Each of the four remaining players is assured of at least $325. Runner-up in the final get $650 while the winner takes $1,000 and the championship trophy.

Stuarts' Twin 2-Run Homers Spark Sox

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Stuart has been shut out in two American League all-star polls. He is not a favorite son candidate for 1964's fielding award. But did Stone Fingers fit first in the hearts of a couple of countrymen.

When Big Stu batted in the sixth inning of Boston Red Sox' victory over Washington Senators Friday night, two of the Fenway Park faithful hoisted a banner proclaiming: "Dick, Stuart, greatest American since Ted Williams."

Whereupon the patriot hit his second two-run homer of the evening and boosted his league-leading RBI figure to 77.

The homer was his 22nd of the season and sixth in five games, beginning last Monday. Stuart has driven in 14 runs during the spurt and appears certain to top his 1963 league-leading total of 118 RBI.

Bill Monbouquette fired a six-hitter for the victory, his second straight shutout and third turned in by American League pitchers.

Minnesota's duties' Robin Roberts blanked Detroit Tigers 5-0 while Fred Newman and Bob Humphreys combined to stymie Angels' 1-0 decision over Minnesota Twins. Chicago's Gary Peters fired a three-hitter as the Chicago White Sox trimmed Kansas City Athletics 6-1 and New York Yankees clubbed Cleveland 9-2.

Lost among the Stuart broadsides was Tony Conigliaro's four-hit performance that included a solo homer—No. 17 for the right fielder.

WENT THE ROUTE

Monbouquette went the route for the second time after failing in his first 11 starts.

Roberts gave up 11 hits but was in serious trouble only once as he fanned 10 batters and issued bases with two out. The veteran right hander (7-4) retired Bill Freehan to end the game with the Orioles protected their half-game AL margin over New York.

Newman (8-3) worked seven innings, allowing all five Minnesota hits before tiring in the three heat. Lee blanked the Twins the rest of the way.

Humphreys, who came on as Felix Torres' second inning homer off loser Dick Stigman (5-6).

Peters struck out 10, including five of the last six hitters, for his fourth win in five victory against four losses.

Pete Ward of Montreal and Ron Hansen drove in two runs apiece and Bill Skowron hit his 14th home-run since coming to the White Sox from the Washington earlier in the week.

The Yankees scored five seven runs in the third inning, including a three-run homer by John Blanchard, and held off the Indians behind the one-hit relief pitching of Steve Hamilton (7-0) and Pete Mikkelsen (9).

The seven-run inning was the Yankees' biggest of the season.

Playoff For Golf Team

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The defeat of Sue Hilton of London Friday in the Ontario Ladies' golf championship tournament necessitated a playoff to determine the fourth and final place in Ontario's entry in provincial golf team.

Miss Hilton and Kay Hellens of Toronto were tied with 43 points for the final team position. If Miss Hilton had won the match-play championship Saturday she would have been assured of a place on the team on the basis of a higher point total.

The time and place of the playoff have not yet been decided but it may be held in Calgary prior to the Canadian closed and open championships July 30-31. The Ontario team will be playing in the Calgary event.

The three other members of the Ontario team are Joan Gamble Streit and Gail Harvey of Toronto and Betty Stamboge Cola of Woodbridge, Ont.

16-Year-Old Wins At 37 Hole

Sandra Defeats Sue For Golf Title

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Sandra Post, 16-year-old 109-pounder from Oakville - Trafalgar, stroked her way to victory Friday in the 68th Ontario Ladies' Open championship.

It was a heart-breaker for Sandra's mother, Linda Post, who was seeking her third consecutive crown.

Sandra hit the shot of the tournament at the 33rd, wedging to three feet from the 150-yard par three. She then sank the putt.

"That was the turning point," the happy champion said later. "I don't know how I did it. I was in the bunk and in trouble and had to hit the ball straight up. I asked my caddy where it went and he didn't know. Then I heard the crowd yelling and knew it must have been a good shot. I couldn't believe it."

"I feel like I've gone about 57 holes," a tired Sandra said after receiving congratulations.

Miss Post, who heads for Calgary for the Canadian Closed and Open championships July 30-31, is not the youngest champion. Lilli Harvey, beaten by Sandra in the semi-finals Thursday, was 14. But Miss Post was the youngest ever to enter. She played in her first golf as nine.

Sue led after six holes in the morning but Sandra went 1-up more than one hole separated the two finalists. Miss Hilton pulled even, after missing two putting problems, at the 16th when her third shot on the par-five hole hit the flag and left her six foot putt for a birdie.

Carol McGee of St. Marys and Linda Deaton of Woodstock Craigowan 3 and 1.

The finals are on Ontario's Interprovincial ladies golf team is still in doubt, with Sue and Kay Hellens of Toronto each up with a tie on points.

Sue left Friday for Calgary and the tie-breaking match will likely be played in Calgary prior to the opening of the championship rounds, or at a date and place to be decided by officials of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

The other three members of the team already named are Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, Gail Harvey of Scarborough and Betty Stamboge Cola of Woodbridge.

Roberts Gets 11-Hit Shutout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Robin Roberts took the good-natured ribbing from his teammates and moved up another notch in the record books.

Baltimore Orioles needled Roberts Friday night after the 37-year-old right hander allowed 11 hits but still managed to pitch a 5-0 shutout over Detroit Tigers.

His 40th career shutout was the 265th major league victory for Roberts, right on his place on the all-time list with an obscure pitcher named August Weiland who played in the majors from 1887 to 1901.

One more victory will move Roberts into an 11th place tie with Bob Feller and Eppa Rixey. Then comes Burleigh Grimes at 270 and Red Ruffing at 272.

HAMILTON (CP) — Several players—five of them Canadians—were cut from Hamilton-Tiger-Cats football squad of the Eastern Conference Friday after coach Ralph Sazio reviewed a film of Wednesday night's intra-squad game.

They are Ernie Pruck, a Hamilton high school student; halfback Russ Armstrong, linebacker Pete Kmetovic and tackles Wayne Miller and John Reid, all Canadians, and import halfback Eugene White and fullport linebacker-tackle Charles Radar.

The Tiger-Cats still have 55 players.

TORONTO (CP)—Bobby Wirkowski, head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference Friday announced the release of three Canadians and three imports after viewing films of the previous exhibition game between Argonauts and Calgary Stampeders.

The Canadians are Jim Neil Weber, first draft choice two years ago from St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., Ray German, obtained from Montreal Alouettes several months ago and Bill Hall, who played for the suburban Toronto Intermediates club last year.

The Americans were guard Maury Schleicher, a three-year veteran, guard Gus Gonzales and tackle Charlie Moore, a former Washington Redskin in the National Football League.

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes cut five Canadians from the team Friday, and then announced he is negotiating with two Canadian Football League clubs for replacements.

Trimble said he has explored the possibility of making trades with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference and Toronto Argonauts.

The latest cuts left Alouettes with 49 players including 22 imports and six junior prospects.

District Bowling Winners

A rink of triples from the Belleville club, a doubles rink from Trenton and singles from Kingston will represent this district in the zone playoffs to be held in Ottawa on August 11th.

The winners proceed to Oshawa for finals later in the month.

The winning district awards under the directiocn of Mrs. Betty Vince, convener, was held on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on Friday. These playoffs are under the jurisdiction—of the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and were witnessed by a large gallery. The greens were perfect, the weather ideal and the competition keen in every class.

A rink of Mrs. Lil Mascaro, Mrs. Phyllis Graham and Mrs. Grace Clapp from the local club as skip will represent the district in the triples. Mrs. Pearl Carr and Mrs. Dorothy Bearse of Trenton the doubles and Mrs. Ilene Cage of Kingston, the singles.

The Belleville rink won by a squeaker from Kingston in the trebles. They were ahead by three coming home and Kingston scored a pair to make it close. The Kingston pair scored a convincing win over Belleville in the first game but lost to Mrs. Pearl Carr and Mrs. Dorothy Bearse of Trenton in the second contest. The Trenton pair went on to win from Belleville in the round robin and clinch a playoff berth.

Mrs. Anne Avery of Belleville, in the singles, deserved a better fate. At one time she was leading by a comfortable margin and only three points from victory, when Mrs. Ilene Page of Kingston made a stand and she won a squeaker 21-18.

Aussies Romp To Easy Singles Wins

Davis Cup

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP)—A strong serve is a better tennis weapon than a cramp in the thigh.

That was the opinion of Pran Godbout Friday after his four sets to Australia's Owen Newcombe, giving the Aussies a stranglehold 3-0 lead over Canada in the Davis Cup tie.

Godbout suffered the cramp at the tail end of his match with Newcombe and almost turned the handicap into an advantage. But the 30-year-old Australian with the cannonball serve wasn't fooled for long.

After plying the 26-year-old Canadian for several minutes, Newcombe received different instructions from captain Harry Hopman and proceeded to finish off Godbout and capture the match 6-3, 6-3, 4-6 and 7-5.

Wimbledon champ Roy Emerson had already won the opener, demolishing Keith Carpenter in straight sets of 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. The Australian wins put them within one victory of clinching the tie and they can reach that milestone in today's doubles match. Winners of the tie will play Mexico in the North American zone final.

UPSET BY CRAMP

The cramp, a frequent occurrence in Godbout's career, upset the young Australian.

"It has a strange effect on the young opponent," Godbout explained. "I was losing 4-0 and had to put the ball in play. But I was cramped, fooled him and I won the game."

When the 26-year-old lawyer from Wrentham, Que., pulled up lame, Newcombe eased off and rallied with Godbout. The Canadian won three games, but then man quickly called his charge to the sidelines.

"I told him that a cramp doesn't mean the game's over," Hopman said later. "I told him that you still keep driving and stomp on his head if necessary."

SERVE WAS DIFFERENCE

The cramp, however, was only a minor advantage. Godbout admitted that Newcombe's big serve made the difference.

Emerson, whose victory was a foregone conclusion, destroyed Carpentar systematically. He missed second serve but once and broke the 22-year-old Montrealer's serve eight times.

Carpenter, nervous before a home crowd of 2,388, in the double faults and broke Emerson's serve only twice.

The crowd of 2,388 was to start at 2 p.m. EDT with Canada sending Carpenter and Godbout against Emerson and Tony Roche.

Belleville Tykes outscored the Kingston Fort Hope team 10-7 in an exhibition baseball game played at Park Dale last night.

Ron McTaggart was the winning pitcher, working the first six frames, while Robert Baker and Dean Lang both saw action in the seventh. They gave up eight hits and walked six. G. Edwards was their catcher.

G. Pemberton went the route for Fort Hope. He gave up only six hits but issued 11 free passes. Haynes and Briden were best at the plate. Both got a double and single each.

Danny Lapensee clouted two triples, Gary Edwards a triple and double for Belleville. Mike Burley doubled and Laurie Burden singled.

Belleville Tykes, Peewees and Bantams, visit Kingston (general) now for second game...let their E.O.B.A. qualifying round series. The two clubs will then meet in triple-headers here one week from today and back in Kingston on Sunday, July 26, to complete the series.

BISLEY, England (CP)—A jubilant team of Canadian riflemen left Bisley on Friday night when their victory in the Mackinnon Cup event at the National Rifle Association matches had been confirmed.

The Canadian Dominion of Canada with 1,039 points.

The Canadians stood up after the firing at 1,000 yards and pandemonium broke out when the firing line that South Africa had ended with a total of 1,038. But South Africa is not in the Commonwealth. Why were they ineligible for the Mackinnon Cup of the Canadian team.

Finally the answer came. The Mackinnon Cup is awarded for a series of special medals, which they won, and Canada had copped the coveted long-range team trophy after coming a poor fourth last year. South Africa was ineligible for the Mackinnon.

Canada also won the Macdonnell in 1962 with 1,046. Last year Scotland's 1,025—considered a lowly figure—was still back at 1,000 for the Australia-Canadians, who had only 981. HALF MISSED

L. Cpl. Ken Richey of Edmonton had the best individual score among the Canadians—97 out of a possible 100 at 800 and 1,000 yards.

Fit. Sgt. Mike Susick of Summerside, P.E.I., shot a fantastic 49 out of a possible 50 at 900 yards, good enough to be at 1,000 to finish with 88.

Earlier Friday, 10 Canadians made the Queen's 100—that select group of marksmen eligible to shoot for the last stage of the Queen's Prize, the Commonwealth's highest individual shooting honor.

Tpr. Anne Sorensen and Tpr. Derek Daines, both of Calgary, led the Canadians in the second stage with 144, but this was three points behind the top British marksmen.

Galbraith Has Three Winners

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Galbraith of Chesley, Ont., drove a pair of horses including Danny Soug A. to an upset triumph in the featured sixth race, Friday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The 32 - year - old reinsman raced up in the stretch to beat the 6-to-5 choice Ardee from the outside by a head at 2:05.4 Ont., in the $3,000 Invitation Trot.

It was the fifth victory in 15 outings for Danny Soog A., owned by Harold Bell and Earl Ash of Chesley. The six-year-old gelding picked up $1,500 for the win, boosting seasonal earnings to $10,163.

Backers of Danny Soog A. clicked up a win mutual of $15.20 and those that combined the gelding with Ardee in the quinella wagering were rewarded with a payout of $24.80.

Nichols Retains Lead In PGA Tourney

By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—"I got to thinking this game wasn't hard," said Bobby Nichols.

When you're playing golf, thinking like that is like tapdancing on a land mine.

The resultant explosion of three over-par holes in a row wasn't fatal and Bobby-faced Bobby pulled himself together to hold the lead after two rounds of the PGA championship at the Columbus Country Club.

But Nichols could be excused for looking over his shoulder in the third round Friday night behind him can be heard the tramp, tramp, tramp of Arnold Palmer's army, punctuated from time to time by the pistol-like crack of United States Open champion Ken Venturi's iron shots.

Nichols got a one-over-par 71 Friday night for the lead at 138. He had set a course record with 64 on opening day.

Palmer had his second straight 68 for 136. Arnie chipped into the cup on the 10th hole for his first birdie since the tournament—and promptly fell apart.

But an assist from a foul soldier in the army, who stopped an errant sports writer's bogey to see the present number of 20 "at least doubled if we are to make reasonable showings in the coming meets". People are needed for backrawl, breast stroke, butterfly and free style competition and are invited to present themselves at any of the team workouts.

Swimmers Needed For New Team

Something new has been added to the Belleville sports scene.

A competitive swim team is presently being organized in the city under the auspices of the Belleville Recreation Commission and plans call for the team to take part in meets here, in Oshawa and Peterborough this year.

It's a new venture and for this first year at least the club will be comprised of junior age swimmers. They are grouped in under 18, under 16, under 14, under 12 and under 10 classes, as of August 31, 1964.

The team works out every weeknight, except Thursday, at the Kinsmen Pool, at 8.00 p.m. and coach Norm Sprung says he hopes to see the present number of 20 "at least doubled if we are to make reasonable showings in the coming meets". People are needed for backrawl, breast stroke, butterfly and free style competition and are invited to present themselves at any of the team workouts.

Dit Clapper Suffers Heart Attack

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, an original member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, was reported in fair condition in hospital today following a heart attack Friday.

Clapper, 57, holds the National League record of playing 20 seasons—with Boston from 1927 to 1947.

He was scheduled to play in the minor golf tournament here Sunday with George Hevenor, who won the Canadian amateur championship a few weeks ago in Montreal.

Clapper suffered the heart attack at his cottage at Stumbling Bay where he works.

Extend Lead To Game

Errors Give Phillies Win, Defeat Giants

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It took Don Pavelich less than an inning to make a mark for himself.

The mark, however, was a red face resulting from a rare and costly error that helped the last-place Philadelphia Phillies edge Cincinnati Reds 5-4 Friday night and move one game ahead of San Francisco Giants in the National League race.

Pavletich played with Cincinnati last season but was assigned to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League this year. Thanks to an injury to John Edwards, the Reds' regular catcher, Pavletich batted his way back to the majors.

He made his first appearance Friday night, walking as a pinch hitter for starting catcher Hal Smith in the seventh inning. Then came his 1964 catching debut in the eighth.

Pinch - hitter Danny Cater opened the inning with a single off Costen Shockley at bat, Pavetich tossed the ball back to pitcher Bill Henry. The ball, however, went astray, landing behind the reliever. Before anyone could recover it, Cater raced to second.

Shockley grounded out, sending Cater to third from where he scored on Clay Dalrymple's squeeze bunt.

The run seemed harmless at the time as it gave the Phillies a 5-3 lead. But then Vada Pinson homered for what would have been the tying run.

San Francisco Giants also had some error trouble in losing to Houston Colts, 5-2. Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Chicago Cub Reds and St. Louis Cardinals trimmed New York Mets 9-8 on other National League games. Rain washed out a doubleheader between Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves.

Pavletich wasn't the only Red to commit a costly error. A wild throw by Steve Boros helped the Phillies load the bases in the seventh inning before Tony Taylor singled in a run that broke a 2-2 tie. Then, Johnny Callison singled to left as Cardenas, and Bobby Wine scampered home as starting catcher Hal Smith let Cardenas' throw get past him.

Callison hit a two-run homer and Steve Boros did the same for Cincinnati.

The Giants had just tied the game 2-2 on Willie Mays' run-scoring single and Tom Haller's double when miscues got them into trouble. With one out in the second and Jerry Grote at first in the seventh inning, pitcher Bob Bruce bunted.

Pitcher Ron Herbel grabbed the ball but dropped it for an error. Then, Houston shortstop Cepeda picked it up and tossed it past first base. Roberts scored the tie-breaking run as Grote wound up at third from where he came home on Al Spangler's sacrifice fly.

Ron Fairly continued his torrid hitting streak to his fourth homer in three games and a single, leading the Dodgers over the 500 mark for the first time since opening day. Fairly's homer in the sixth was the winning run.

Don Drysdale recorded his 10th victory against eight defeats, allowing six hits, including Billy Cowan's first-inning home run.

The Cardinals and the Mets engaged in a see-saw slugfest that St. Louis won with a two-run rally in the eighth. Lou Brock's third hit, a triple, drove in one run while Dick Groat's single, his third hit, scored another.

St. Louis' Bill White and Charlie Smith of the Mets each clouted two-run homers.

LAUDS ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Claiborne Pell, a Rhode Island Democrat, Thursday complimented Ontario for its progressiveness and reprimanded Canada for its tardiness in implementing programs designed to combat youth problems. He told about 50 fair-goymen, educationists and government representatives that Ontario's select committee on youth was a remarkable first and far in advance of any U.S. action. He spoke at a luncheon sponsored by Ontario Education Minister William Davis.

But It Was Outside The Ring

Villmer Won 'No Contest'

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Ray Villmer, the St. Louis "square" got the message here last night and beat the "ult" out of Sweet Daddy Siki, the Broadway thug persona.

But he forgot to do it according to wrestledom's Hoyle and Referee Tiger Tasker elected the main bout "no contest."

The little, by comparison, Villmer was the "heel" after absorbing some unorthodox punishment in the third fall — and decided the ring wasn't big enough.

When the outside-the-ropes fracas finally ended, Sweet Daddy who had regained the ring, was draped over the hemp like Monday's wash.

He was as strutless as a wet sock, and only the intervention of the referee Tiger saved him from further "overtime" punishment.

In fact Villmer thought seriously of throwing a jolt or two at the official puss, but his better judgement prevailed and he retired, a very angry young man.

Siki, gorgeously appareled in white tie and orange "tails," beat the gun in the first fall with stiff punishment and when the St. Louis kid retaliated Siki pointed to the snow-rimmed eyeglasses that offset his dusky countenance.

Later Siki came off the ropes with well-aimed flying kicks but missed the target and was rallied for the count.

But he got that one back in the second fall when he applied severe arm punishment and finished Villmer off with a couple of his "Scottish Hangman" holds.

Siki tried the same formula in the third fall, but the whirling Dervish from St. Loo took so much — then went in for the kill.

He elbow-smashed the Siki features then threw him bodily out of the ring. He picked him up and hurled him to the arena floor with a hard bodyslam. They battled until the gong rang then clambered back into the ring.

Villmer, mad as a half-soaked biddy, tore into the foeman and had Siki on the ropes. Tasker intervened and for a minute it looked like an extra fall.

The Scuffin' Hillbillies outlasted the shuffuggery of Leeling Lee Henning and Joe Chris-tie and pinned the pair for a popular victory in the semi-final.

The pewsters got a good view of a fine wrestler in Ritz Frohlander who drew with Big Ike Eskine in the opener. The good-looking German youth put on an outstanding display — and they can bring him back any time.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
— Four-Time Winner of the Masters —

MORE POWER FOR WOMEN

Women need only half the distance they can get one golf course, and Arnold Palmer tells the ball how fast usually comes out on top. Look at Mickey Wright, queen of the women pros and also their longest driver.

One way for women to add distance is to make sure that their drives fly in a slight right-to-left draw pattern. Such a flight will add half and distance to the shots.

A slight change in grip can bring about such a flight pattern. Whereas most men grip the club with the "V's" formed by the left thumb and forefinger pointing toward their chin (see "1"), women should point the "V's" toward their right shoulder ("2"). This is called a "strong" grip because it forces the clubhead to strike the ball in a manner that produces a right-to-left draw.

As in "2," hold right with this left hand at the top of the backswing. Also, keep the left arm firm, since unless it is firm on the club throughout the swing.

Minor Golf Champions

TORONTO (CP)—Wayne Mc-an 83 to win the one-round ban-Donald of Toronto battled swel-tam class for boys 13 and under, tering 90-degree temperatures Friday to win the 42nd annual Ontario junior golf championship with a sparkling two-under-par 148 over the 36-hole tournament.

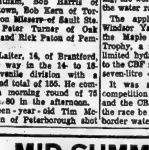
McDonald, 16, shot six birdies on the final 18 holes for a 70 after coming in with a par 78 in the morning round.

Tied for second place were Martin Mason, 18, of Toronto and Gary Carpenter of Port Colborne with a 36-hole total of 167. Carpenter, who led the first round with a 71, blew to a 41 on the first nine of the afternoon match to finish with a 76.

Six players tied at 168 for third-place honors. They were Bill of Chatham, Bob Harris of Georgetown, Bob Kerr of Toronto, Ken Missaghi of Toronto, Marie, Peter Turner of Oak Ridges and Rick Paton of Pembroke.

Ron Lalter, 14, of Brantford, led the way in the 14- to 16-year juvenile division with a two-round total of 155. He combined a winning round of 78 with an 80 in the afternoon, and Cliff is requesting that the race be held in Canadian or Ontario waters.

Suggests Seven-Litre World Race



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An application to stage an annual seven-litre world championship race will be made by the Canadian Boating Federation to the Union International Motorboating, the world governing body in the water racing field.

The application follows the Windsor Yacht Club's offer of the Maple Leaf International Trophy, a former cup for unlimited hydroplane competition, and the CBF for a proposed world seven-litre championship.

It was suggested the first competition be staged in 1965 and the CBF is requesting that

Eastern Canada Meet
Slow Track Dogs Field

KINGSTON (CP) — A soft, slow track dogged the steps of entrants Friday in the Eastern Canada outdoor track and field championships and accounted for some surprisingly slow times during the first day of competition.

The only impressive effort during the first of the two-day affair was made by muscular Nancy McCredie of Toronto, who toyed with her opposition in winning the women's discus event with a toss of 151 feet, eight inches to defeat her nearest rival by more than 25 feet.

The highlight was expected today when the Toronto runners Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers were to show their mettle. Crothers is expected to represent Canada in the Olympic Games in Tokyo, next fall in the 800 metres with Kidd running in either the 5,000 or 10,000 metres.

Behind Miss McCredie was Carol Mercuri of Toronto with a toss of 135 feet while 25-year-old Judy Dahlgren of Ottawa placed third at 126 feet, 9¼ inches.

WINS SIX MILES

Chris Williamson of Fredericton, N.B., running for the East York Track Club, Toronto, set the pace in the featured six-mile event in a time of 32 minutes, 3.2 seconds, beating Doug Scorar of Perth, Ont., by 33.6 seconds.

The mile was a laborious affair with Toronto's Brgas Laye winning in four minutes, 17.2 seconds, followed by Dave Boyd and Pete Shuddeboom, both of Toronto.

The 3 steeplechase went to Brampton, who ran Toronto Olympic Club minutes, 31.4 seconds. Dave Tippett and John McFall, both of Toronto, followed Jones home in order.

The slow track also told in the sprint events with Don McCartin of Toronto taking the 440 yards in 49.4 seconds. Ed Hearne of Toronto won the 100 yards in 10.2 seconds to nip Dave Austin of London, Ont.

In the women's sprint events, Cecelia Carter of Hamilton won the 440 in 59.6 seconds. The women's 220-yard event went to Marion Snider of Toronto with a time of 25.4 seconds.

Chiefs Edge Leafs 3-1, Bisons Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo batters jumped on six Rochester pitchers for 12 hits, including two homers, and scored five unearned runs in the 11th inning as the Bisons defeated the Red Wings 12-7 in International League action Friday night.

Craig Anderson, last of four Buffalo hurlers, earned the win, bringing his record to 5-4. Nels Chittum was tagged with the loss, his sixth against eight wins.

Joe Hicks and Duke Carmel homered for the Bisons. Jim Liggett for Rochester. Cleon Jones sparked the Bisons with four hits in seven trips to the plate, including a bases-loaded triple in the 11th.

Elsewhere, Toronto Maple Leafs lost 3-1 to Syracuse Chiefs, Columbus Jets defeated Richmond Virginians 5-2 and Jacksonville Suns dumped Atlanta Crackers 7-3.

WINDSOR GAME

Ron Nischwitz, the first of three Toronto pitchers, gave up all three Syracuse runs to lose his third game to four starts. Paul Foytack gave up only three Toronto hits as he picked up his seventh win in 11 tries. He also drove in the winning run in the fifth inning.

Britain's Don Campbell
Eyes Water Speed Record

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)— Don Campbell has set his sights on breaking his own water speed record now that he owns the only racing shark of 40.1 miles an hour.

The 35-year-old Briton, son of the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, who set many land and sea speed records, said Friday he planned to try for a boat record at Lake Alexdyra in northwestern Victoria. Campbell already holds the present record of 260.35 m.p.h. in a Bluebird hydroplane.

Although Campbell smashed the old land mark of 394.196 m.p.h. set by the late John Cobb on the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats, Sept. 16, 1947, he was disappointed. He felt that the condition of the track deprived his Bluebird of probably an extra 40 m.p.h.

The record was the culmination of six years of preparation in Australia. He drove his 30-foot, 4,250-horsepower Bluebird at an average of 403.1 m.p.h. Friday in two runs over the dry salt bed of Lake Eyre in southern Australia.

Campbell also planned to make another attempt at the target of 407.41 m.p.h. set last Aug 3 by American Craig Breedlove in a three-ton, three-wheeled, jet-powered car on the Bonneville flats. This is not listed as an official auto record because of the jet power.

The British driver said he had not time to plan the next step with his $4,000,000 Bluebird but expected to shoot at Breedlove's mark.

Campbell said it would take at least a month to prepare his hydroplane for the water record attempt in Victoria.

Canada Outdoors
Unscrupulous Hunter in Que. Being Hounded by Dept.

By JOE DUFUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — The squeals of the buck deer reverberated through the forest darkness.

Roused from sleep in their cabin, the two hunters stumbled into the night and mercilessly gunned down the trapped animal.

The big buck had fallen prey to one of the cruelest, most brutal methods devised by poachers to trap game illegally —the wire snare hooked to a bent tree branch.

When the trap is sprung the branch recoils, leaving the animal dangling helplessly in the air. The snare caught this buck by the leg.

The tree snare isn't selective. A man can be caught in it too.

Quebec, as a province rich in wildlife, is attractive to the unscrupulous hunter. The 1963 meeting of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations got so heated discussing poachers that one delegate jumped to his feet and shouted:

"If we made a list of the poachers in this room, I don't know how many we'd get."

Figures are so well organized in the province, the association says, that they have established a fund to pay fines of convicted members.

WON'T TOLERATE IT

Last fall, Lionel Bertrand, provincial minister of tourism, fish and game, felt impelled to issue a public warning to poachers. "We just won't tolerate it," he declared.

Outdoors columnists joined in. "The poacher is nothing more nor less than a thief stealing from all law-abiding citizens," wrote Isaak Hunter in the Montreal Gazette.

From the common practice of jacking deer at night with a flashlight to the more complex one of bombing fish into senselessness with hand grenades, the ways of the poacher are many.

Probably the most common is the use of salt lick or leafy branches soaked in brine. They are placed in selected wooded spots. Animals become accustomed to coming there to feed. The poacher lies in wait for the kill.

Others sprinkle feed with alcohol, spread it in areas frequented by grouse or pheasants and easily capture the birds after they have fed on the grain.

USE DEAD DEER

A poacher after deer may prop a dead deer against a tree in a natural position, then wait for another to come forward to investigate.

One Montreal angler describes a method of catching fish.

"You go to the village butcher and get a dead head. Wait a few days until it rots. Then anchor it down in a suitable place in the river or lake. Then you fish near the spot where you've put the head. Nature'y they fish are attracted to the bad meat. You can get thousands of fish in no time at all. Most of the fish you catch this way are minnows but you can sell them as bait for a good profit."

For those who aren't convinced that poachers can do any serious damage, Montreal Star columnist Bob Kermath has these words:

"I've heard of men who, under the pretext of rabbit snaring, practically clear out the partridge of an entire district."

ALEC GUINNESS

Academy Award winner as the best picture of the year, with William Holden and Jack Hawkins also starred. Guinness reaches the zenith of an exceptionally brilliant career with his "best actor of the year" portrait of a British Army colonel in the spectacular CinemaScope - Technicolor drama, produced by Sam Spiegel and directed by David Lean, makers of the more recent Academy Award winning "Lawrence of Arabia."

Guinness once was told he was wasting his time when he first auditioned for a stage role. Years later, following a considerable success on the stage he was told he was "not quite the type for a film actor."

Guinness has quietly and gratifyingly made a world-wide reputation as a first-rate movie star, and has entranced and delighted film audiences with pictures like "The Lavender Hill Mob," and "Our Man In Havana." He is starred as Prince Feisal in "Lawrence of Arabia."

David Lean won the Academy Award "Oscar" for his direction of "The Bridge on the River Kwai," and Pierre Boulle wrote the award-winning screenplay based on his own best-selling novel of the same title. Sessue Hayakawa, James Donald, Ann Sears and Geoffrey Horne are featured in "Kwai," which is distributed by Columbia Pictures.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 19

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You may meet people who try to gain your confidence. Best to be cautious. Don't confide all you know. One born under Cancer could offer sage advice. Good to catch up on reading, correspondence.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): If you maintain sense of humor, balance, you can avoid upsetting friends. Questions of money should not be discussed in "open." Be discreet; size up situation. Stress tact, diplomacy.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): You may be taking too much for granted. Applies especially to relations with mate, business partner. Check signals. Red tape may cause element of delay. Try to understand rather than criticize.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Rely upon past experiences. Offer advice to one who sincerely expresses desire to know. Good to seek opportunity to relax through hobby, sharing interests with loved one.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Set example for younger persons. Key is application of Golden Rule. If choice is between being elaborate or frugal — take latter course. Time to get busy, files in order. Maintain steady, calm pace.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Ride with "pressures." Attitude of acceptance throws antagonists off balance. Make this a day when you look for reasons, examine potentials. Obtain hint from Leo message.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Gear activities to pleasure, relaxation. Picnic or drive could provide tonic effect. Duties are basic responsibilities to be handled. But all cannot be work — get in some time for enjoyment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Get accounts in order. Tie up loose ends. Expect some restrictions. Seek alternative methods. Important to fulfill promises to children. Enjoy challenge. Avoid unnecessary concern.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Opportunity indicated to turn dreams to realities. Express confidence. Welcome visitor to your home. Be generous. You may receive advice which is valid, valuable. Attend events of choice.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Any apprehensions, worries may be result of plain fatigue. A good night's rest could be refreshment you require. Calm, peaceful day essential. Hold off on writing project.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Highlight self-reliance. Friends cannot fill essential needs. Broaden point of view. Be an observer. Take time to make final decision. Seek spiritual advice.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Be determined, confident. There are numerous details which require attention. Neighbors could prove helpful. Fine time to co-operate in community project. State views clearly.

If today is your birthday . . . you are independent in thought action. Your approach is original. Would make fine theatrical agent, promoter, salesman.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Cancer: Day when you can gain much through one who approaches you for advice.

For July 20

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Start work week by agreeing to changes. Don't continue to carry load of out-moded methods. Enlarge horizons. Perceive potentials. Give others wonderful Arieh flash of originality.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) There are ways of finding shortcuts to "formal" methods. Have faith in your intuitive intellect Family member may make constructive suggestion. Be willing to listen - - and act.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Check desire to skip details. Utilize powers of logic. Many promises made in your common sense acts as best guide. Avoid wishful thinking - - face facts as they exist.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Hold off on late hours, celebrations. Make efforts. Get proper rest. watch diet. Much in your favor if you are observant. Take note of timing. Set example for associates.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Good lunar aspect promises romance, creative endeavors. You can attract important people. Your personal magnetism rating extremely high. Temptation is to gamble. Stick to reason, common sense.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) There are restrictions indicated .... but also alternative methods. Attend to matters affecting security. Include insurance, real estate, business investments. Rely only upon own judgment.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Communications require special attention. Includes messages, telephone calls and directions. Heed advice offered by one who has previously traveled the same road.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could make good "buy" today. Be on the alert for what you require. Time to add to essential possessions. Highlight versatile approach. Display sense of humor.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec 21) Dig in for basic facts, information. Toss off superficial indications. Maintain confidence. There are intricate details indicated which will require special consideration.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Necessary now that you relax. Tension of previous days appears to "catch up." Be with one who comforts you. Avoid those who seek to argue. Stress deliberate approach.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) In entertaining friends, stick close to home. There could be money question. Settle amicably. Don't utilize "sharp self" methods. The more gracious you are.... the better.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Stand up for beliefs. You will find that you have allies in unusual places. Important to adhere to principles. Time actually works in your favor. Don't be impatient.

If today is your birthday you tend to be moody, are not the easiest person to live with - - but you are warm, can rise to the heights in time of emergency, and would never desert a loved one.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Major news stories deal with communications.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are taking a short trip in New York to see the World's Fair and plan to stay there about a week. Is it necessary to make reservations for rooms and what would be the best way to get there? — G. N., Belleville.

ANSWER: I doubt very much at this time, that you could find a room at any of the hotels unless without a reservation in the area of the New York's World's Fair. Even with a reservation, your room cannot be guaranteed as the people who sell occupy it many days ahead of their minds about leaving, and the hotel will not usually cannot force them out. The situation is so bad that the New York Hotel Association has been going into the matter, along with other tourist associations, to straighten out this deplorable situation. The Ontario Motor League recommends the following route to the fair from Belleville: Cross at Ivy Lea Bridge and take Highway 12, 130 and 12 through Perth, Smiths Falls, and on 50 to Albany, then 50, 7 to Glastabury, then No. 29, 7 to Tupperytown, then No. 7 again right down through New York to the Tyborough Bridge on to Grand Central Parkway to Flushing, the site of the fair.

QUESTION: We are interested in taking a holiday on a farm in the Kingston-Belleville area and we wondered if you could help us to locate one that you experience and where the children could enjoy themselves safely. — Mrs. T. H. Belleville.

ANSWER: We have many requests for location of farm holidays and wish to advise that a brochure put out by the Canadian Farm Vacation Association, co William P. Wolfe Organization, Park Plaza Hotel, Toronto, will give all information pertaining to this type of holiday. We have a few brochures at our Ontario Motor League office which are yours for the asking.

QUESTION: Four of us would like to go on a fishing trip on our holidays, and favor Algonquin Park. Can you tell us something about it? — C. W. T., Picton.

ANSWER: Algonquin Park, a 2'00 square mile tract of wilderness, is ideal for the purpose. Portages are brushed out and well marked. The Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity has compiled 27 canoe trips and the list is free for the asking. Camping in the park costs $1 a day, and for that the customer gets a tent site, firewood, firewater, drinking water, toilets, swimming, fishing, picnic tables and off-limes a beautiful beach. For a few days the traveller can obtain a stoker for his car, that permits him to visit many parts of the park on occasions, as he wishes, for picnics. "Roadside Camps and Provincial Parks" is a free booklet that lists every Ontario camping site and facilities. These booklets are obtainable at the local O.M.L. office, free of charge, or the local chamber of Commerce. As to fish, you can catch trout, pike, maskinonge, bass and perch. Guides are available if needed.

QUESTION: We have a week holidays at the end of July and would be grateful for an interesting plan for ourselves and two children. — Mrs. L. W., Belleville.

ANSWER: In reference to your letter and what you have in mind, we suggest a trip to Algonquin Park. Go north on No. 62 to Bancroft, up to Barry's Bay and then west on No. 60 to the park. There are good camping grounds, and also ex-

Sam 'Shopsy' Shopsowitz Has Shrewdly Managed Way To Top of a Heap of Money

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Vernon Gomer, the New York Yankees' 41d lefthanded pharsemaker, once observed Sam Shopsowitz enter a room full of baseball people and advised:

"A couple of you fellows get up and give Shopsy a seat."

The advice was apt for Shopsy is not only big in meat merchandising here and thereprobably Ormstown, Quebec sports events—but is also a dedicated amateur and likely to weigh in occasionally at around 360, give or take a few 1,000-calorie desserts.

Shopsy, currently dieted down to a comfortable 280, is a 43-year - old converted musician who has played and eaten and laughed and shrewdly managed his way to the top of a heap of money founded on some old family recipes from Poland plus a deep and respectful study of the common hot dog.

The showpiece of the business is the spicy, hickory-smoked frankfurter — or "shopsy," as his sponsor is getting desperate to call it—and up to 2,000,000 roll off the assembly lines of his automated plant weekly.Shopsy himself used to work out how far a week's production would stretch, head-to-tail but gave up after passing the international border at Buffalo, N.Y., 100 miles away.

WIENER IS KING

Though it is but one of some 80 products turned out by the firm, Shopsy-nobody says his last name—nurtures the wiener with the devotion of an Escoffier. Refrigerator trucks haul them fresh from the Bube Goldberg-like factory machines to sports stadia as far away as Montreal. Concessionaries are taught to handle them tenderly.

Shopsy technicians deliver learned papers on the dispensing of red hots at seminars of concessionaires in the United States (a market Shopsy is trying to crack with his own product), and dozens of inquiries are handled from the land that gave birth to the hot dog at a ballpark 61 years ago.

A few years back, Shopsy brought about a revolution in the ancient art by developing with an aluminum company, a method of preparing heated dogs wrapped in foil. It has penetrated as far to date as the home of the Los Angeles Dodgers, world baseball champions.

Shopsy Shopsy it up for his star product in multiferious other ways. One night, in the interest of a fund for a kids' swimming pool, he undertook to serve 1½ tons of food in 15 minutes at a ball park. In one stock car race event, drivers had to eat a hot dog between laps.

FREE FOR SOCCER FANS

Aside from hoopla, science of sorts enters into the business. A Shopsy expert can feed into a mental computer such items as sport, city, team standings and weather and come up with a fast about the right number of dogs for a given event.

Occasionally an unknown factor throws things out of gear. When Toronto was invaded by professional soccer seven or eight years ago, the Italian colonists at the first game was aghast to find he could sell only a handful. Soccer, it turned out on investigation, was a peanuts-and-chocolate-bar game.

Shopsy himself, the operator arm-is-youngster with 500 dogs under orders to give them away to what the fans' taste, he couldn't get rid of them all. By now, times have improved, but some game sales still are only 60 per cent of baseball's per-capita.

PLAYS ACCORDION

When he isn't putting his mind to these and other problems incident to the disposal of some 500,000 pounds of edibles a week, Shopsy fills in time by acting as half of a violin-accordion free entertainment duo sponsoring juvenile sports teams, serving on the directorate of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League or swapping laughs often by long-distance phone with top figures in the entertainment business.

His father's tiny delicatessen (juicy pastrami sandwiches two cents) grew in the depression to a hangout for theatrical visitors by the time Sam—now president and owner of his own chain and an accomplished fiddler on his own Stradivarius, make unfinished music at benefits and the like. Occasionally a pro like Nat King Cole or Victor Borge makes it a trio.

MORE

MARKETS FOR BORGE

Shopsy and Borge have made not only music, but money, together. Several years ago when he visited the piano comic's newly bought farm in Connecticut—a former peasant ranch used for stocking a hunting preserve—he talked Borge into setting up as a commercial rooster. Cornish hen plant and supervised building the smokehouse. He came up with the No. 1 Canadian distributorship of the birds.

Besides his contributions to international commerce and good eating, he makes a donation to intra-Canadian culture exchange by way of sport. For several years he has been taking in the Canadian national team for the Quebec Carnival, billeting the boys with French Canadians and showing them the Plains of Abraham and other points of Canadian history.

"We were in bicultural-ism before Pearson came up with it," he says.

Death Toll On Highways May Set Record

OTTAWA (CP)—The death toll on Canada's highways appears headed for a record, the Canadian Highway Safety Council said in a statement Thursday.

Despite the council's Slow Down and Live campaign being implemented across the country, the number of deaths caused by traffic continued to mount.

John Atkinson, general chairman of the council, said it was up to the individual driver to end "the present day slaughter on Canada's roads and streets. "No matter how much preaching, urging or campaigning is done, in the final analysis it is up to the driver himself to keep the highways and streets safe."

The council said it has received appeals for help from Premier Lesage of Quebec and other provincial authorities following last weekend when 26 persons died in Quebec accidents.

But the council warned that the death toll wasn't confined to Quebec.

"The remainder of the nation's drivers has no cause to sit back and relax with the comforting thought that one more they are not concerned. "This false sense of security has been responsible to keeping highway fatalities mounting over the past years."

Imagine the Beatles leaving behind their singing success to merge with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir! If it strikes your fancy, try the oddball story game outlined below by columnist Jack Hutton.

Teen-Age Canada Oddball Stories Make Fine Summer Cottage Game

By JACK HUTTON

Looking for a summer cottage game? Several friends have just devised a pastime that has filled in a few rainy hours for all of them.

It's a simple gimmick: just think of stories unlikely to appear in any newspaper. But try to give each one a humorous twist to make friends laugh.

For example, this gem:

The Beatles announced in a hastily - called press conference last night that they have decided to join the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, ending forever their career as pop singers. "After all" said Ringo Starr, "money isn't everything."

SOCIAL NOTE

You've got to admit that has a ring (even though Ringo might not agree). Here's a social note supplied by one of the new school of oddball writing:

Eighteen-year-old Roger Boynton, is the cottage guest of his university president this summer although they only met for the first time last month. "It was the way he failed his last thing so completely," said the president. "I like to have a guy like that around."

Most of the fake stories I've seen center around singers or movie stars, possible because they're such obvious targets. Here's anything is fair game.

A few more examples to stir your imagination:

Lucille Ball has finally revealed to a Hollywood reporter the reason she decided to divorce her business and who owns it. Little Billie Gilchrist is in Kingston Hospital. Her husband, Mr. Desi Arnez. "He kept telling elephant jokes at breakfast," she said.

SHE'S SHY

Paul Anka is taking the next year off to return to his home-town, Ottawa. "Ive felt for a long time that I should take a course to build up my self confidence," he told reporters. "I'm very shy."

Juliette is dropping her Saturday night TV show to stay home and look after the house for her husband. Her reason? "How'd you like to smile like that week after week?" she asked questioningly.

Evangelist Billy Graham had an earache last week but it's all gone now. He paid a quick visit to Oral Roberts who fixed it for him.

One you get started on this trick, the ideas flow. But don't keep them to yourself. If you'd like to drop your own oddball stories into the mail, we'll use them to brighten someone else's summer.

OWL HUMOR

Are elephant jokes being challenged by a new kind of joke — the owl story? Joanne Marshall, 15 of Halifax, N.S., thinks so and wrote to her pen pal about it.

"' notice you drop the occasional elephant joke into your columns for the benefit of private collectors," she wrote. "Well, we've started a new chain of owl jokes. We haven't many yet but here's the one I like best:

Three mother owls were perched on the top of a Madison Avenue building in New York, watching the traffic go by and discussing their children as all mothers will.

'My boy is the smartest owl I've ever known,' said one mother. 'He was flying long before any of his friends. The second mother nodded, then hastily added: 'My boy likes to feed himself.'

'The third mother was stuck for an answer. Her youngster could neither fly nor feed himself. Suddenly she thought of the perfect retort. "How are they wise - wise?" she asked.

Thanks, Joanne. We look forward to seeing more of your stories — owl-wise, that is.

SUMMER JOB

Another letter delighted us this week. And it might just give you an idea for the remainder of the summer.

Mary T., 16, of Vancouver, B.C., writes: "I was feeling gloomy about not having a job for this summer until I read your column on offbeat jobs that no one else would think of.

"As soon as I got to the summer cottage with my folks, I asked around to see if anyone wanted a babysitter. You wouldn't believe how many confidence," he told reporters. "I'm families get into town or just enjoy themselves.

Not only am I making pocket money but I'm enjoying the summer at the beach, too. Talk about having your cake and eating it, too! I'm a fan of yours for life."

TWO DIE AS PLANE CRASHES IN BAY

Harlem Mobs Battle Police Over Slaying

Negro Leaders Demand Arrest of Policeman

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP)—Violence flared again in Harlem Sunday night, with police the targets of jeering mobs and missiles hurled from tenement roofs in racial rioting that began Saturday night and raged into Sunday morning.

Helmeted police still patrolled the area today, but they said tension has lessened a great deal."

Sunday night, five civilians were treated at hospitals for gunshot wounds. Twelve patrolmen were injured by flying objects. Also injured were a television cameraman and several newspaper men.

The initial outburst followed protest rallies over the fatal shooting of a Negro boy by a white policeman. The violence left one Negro man shot to death, 132 arrested, and more than 100 injured, including a dozen patrolmen.

The new flareup followed funeral services Sunday night for 15-year-old James Powell, slain last Thursday by Police Lieut. Thomas Gilligan, who said he fired when the boy came at him with a knife.

Throughout the sabbath, Negro leaders, in speeches and in conferences with police and city officials, had demanded Gilligan's arrest.

The Negro leaders—including James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, and Bayard Rustin, leader of last year's civil rights march on Washington — urged Negroes to stay home Sunday night. But both men were booed at a rally when they called for non-violence.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said Harlem's criminal element found the Saturday night riot "a convenient excuse to come out and kick in store doors and windows in."

He has rejected demands to have a civilian board review the Powell shooting. Gilligan has been suspended from duty pending an investigation by the police department and the district attorney's office.

Before the funeral services, police sealed off a 97-block area in the center of Harlem. Outside the funeral home, a crowd of about 500 gathered. Inside was the capacity crowd of 150 mourners.

V. Cong Mauls Capital

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—In a slashing attack 20 miles southwest of Saigon, Communist guerillas left the thriving district capital of Cai Be a shambles today with the bodies of about 40 women and children in the wreckage.

The Viet Cong were reported to have reached the South Vietnamese army post of about 200 men by blasting their way through lotis occupied by military dependents.

All of these huts were burned. The 200 or so civil guardsmen defending the town suffered 12 killed and about 20 wounded.

The guerrillas shot indiscriminately into all the huts, which accounted for the unusually high number of other civilian casualties.

First reports said the Viet Cong pulled out after about three hours of intense fighting, without overwhelming the main centers of government resistance. There were indications the enemy suffered casualties, although no Viet Cong bodies apparently were found.

ASK FOR AID

The Cai Be army post radioed for help about 3 a.m., and flare-dropping planes and artillery barrages were sent. The Cai Be radio went dead a short time later but came back on the air in an hour or so, reporting that the post still was fighting.

Some time after sunrise today, elements of the South Vietnamese Army's 7th Division mounted an operation to try to map the Viet Cong hit-and-run force, blocking canals and roads north and west of Cai Be. Only slight contact with the enemy was reported however.

Three U.S. officers and four men were wounded Sunday in the Mekong Delta area 50 miles south of Saigon. Their helicopter was shot down while returning from a medical evacuation

Whole American System Refutes Goldwater's Words - Eisenhower

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has declared that Senator Barry Goldwater's remarks on extremism "would seem to say that the end always justifies the means. . . ."

But, Eisenhower added, "the whole American system refutes that idea and that concept."

Eisenhower, appearing on an American Broadcasting Company television program shown Sunday, discussed Goldwater's speech at Republican convention in San Francisco last week in which the Arizona senator accepted the party's presidential nomination for the Nov. 3 U.S. election.

However, ABC explained the interview was taped before Eisenhower met with Goldwater in San Francisco Friday, a session at which the extreme passage of the acceptance speech was discussed.

The former president also said he probably would repeat his pre-convention role as a neutral another time, that he was opposed to debates between presidential candidates and that he regarded convention demonstrations as infantile.

Eisenhower was interviewed by James C. Hagerty, his former White House press secretary who now is vice president for corporate relations at William H. Lawrence, ABC news political editor.

Eisenhower said Goldwater's speech "by and large" was very outstanding.

In Detroit Saturday, Democrat Kitchel, Goldwater's election campaign manager, quoted Eisenhower as saying he would be glad to help Goldwater in the campaign against President Johnson.

Kitchel also said the former president felt Goldwater should clarify for the voters his defence of extremism in the cause of liberty.)

Hunt Youth As Slayer Of Mother

SARNIA' (CP) — Police are continuing a search for Robert Ray, 17, after a warrant was issued for his arrest on a charge of capital murder in connection with the stabbing death of his mother.

Mrs. Doris Ray, 40, was killed in her downtown apartment Friday night by an assailant who slashed her throat and stabbed her in the chest seven times, police said.

They said her son had been living with her for the last two weeks.

Previously he lived with his sister, Mrs. Joan Sawyer, 22, of Hamilton.

Mrs. Sawyer said Saturday in Hamilton that Robert left her home without saying where he was going.

RAVE NO IDEA

Barrie police said Sunday the warrant for the youth's arrest had been issued to all points. They said they had no idea where the youth might be.

Mrs. Ray's body was found by boarder, Robert Shokely. Police said she was killed while sleeping. A long-bladed knife was later found missing from the apartment.

Barrie police say Mrs. Ray had been separated from her husband, Stanley Francis Ray, for several years. He is believed to be living in the Belleville district.

Police Chief Edward Techlerhart said that some money was believed missing from the dead woman's wallet. But, he said, robbery was not necessarily a motive for the killing.

Wallace Drops Candidacy Support Goes Goldwater

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Many southern conservatives were hooping on the Goldwater bandwagon today in the wake of Alabama Governor George Wallace's withdrawal from the presidential race.

Southern reaction ranged from praise to "he let us down." Others felt the withdrawal would have no effect on the race between Republican candidate Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona and President Johnson.

"I'm going to call the group together that's been working with me on unpledged electors and ask them to form an organization of Democrats for Goldwater," said Rep. V. Harris, of Augusta, Ga., a campaign worker for Wallace.

Former governor Marvin Griffin of Georgia, a close ally of Wallace, said he would vote for Goldwater. "I have not left the Democratic party," he said. "They have left me."

Wallace withdrew Sunday as an independent presidential candidate, making the announcement over a televised program. He said: "There is now more status rights talk than in a quarter of a century. I was the instrument of this . . . my message has been heeded."

He pledged endorsement to no one in advance. He indicated he would know more after next month's Democratic national convention at Atlantic City, N.J. Wallace, a Democrat, said he has made no decision on whether he would attend the convention.

Wallace said he would support the major party candidate who proved to be the more conservative and more ardent in opposing the principles of big government, private enterprise and state rights.

Within hours after his appearance in Washington, Wallace returned to Birmingham for a hastily-assembled strategy meeting with his slate of unpledged presidential electors. Lieutenant-Governor James Allen, leader of the slate, announced afterward that the presidential electors "have no intention of delivering the Democratic machinery over to the Republicans."

Tom I. Davis, executive secretary of the North Carolina Democratic party, was one of those who scored Wallace's withdrawal. Wallace let a lot of people down," he said. Davis added he feels President Johnson will carry the state.

Tennessee Democratic Chairman Jimmy Peeler and Democratic party Treasurer Joe C. Carr both said they doubted the withdrawal would have any effect. Peeler said he believed Johnson would carry the state.

Weekend Accident Toll Is 78

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 78 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, with traffic mishaps and drownings accounting for all but nine of the total.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times included 37 traffic deaths, 32 drownings, one death by fire and eight deaths in miscellaneous accidents.

Ontario had 24 accidental deaths, including 10 highway fatalities, six drownings, six persons who died in two separate plane crashes, a girl who was struck by lightning and a man apparently run over by a train.

Quebec reported 23 fatalities—15 drownings and eight road deaths.

Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island each had one traffic fatality. Nova Scotia reported three deaths on the highways, one drowning and one death by fire. In New Brunswick four persons were killed in traffic accidents and three were drowned.

Manitoba recorded three deaths—two in traffic and one in the water. Saskatchewan had two traffic deaths and one drowning while Alberta reported five deaths, all in traffic. British Columbia had seven deaths, including five by drowning and two on the roads.

The survey does not include known suicides, slayings, industrial accidents, aircraft crashes and those in stallations.

Albertville's docks are flooded by the island waters of Lake Tanganyika and a 100 - yard gangplank carries passengers from the floating stage to the port offices.

An African tucked his loaded submachine gun under one arm and carried my bag with the other hand.

Despite their fearsome appearance there was no rough stuff and passengers were treated with politeness.

Port officials are identified by scraps of paper pinned to their shirts. A rebel colonel had his rank prominently displayed across the front of his monkey - skin hat.

Rebel warriors pose eagerly for photographs.

But they refuse to touch a white man, believing it will destroy their "immunity" to bombs and bullets. To give them a cigarette one must put it on the ground from where it can be safely picked up. Customs officials, all in the same fancy dress, search baggage minutely. A more senior official in unadorned military uniform scrutinizes passports and wields a rebel government stamp.

Nearly all vehicles in Albertville have been confiscated by the rebel authorities. One has "prime ministre's office" scrawled in the dust on its rear window.

In town armed rebels stand guard outside key buildings and groups of them roam in the streets. Europeans—about 100—remaining here stay indoors most of the time but apparently are unmolested. Everyone wears an identifying tag.

Bewitched Reds Wear Monkey-Skin Caps

Associated Press reporter Dennis Neeld was on board the first Lake Tanganyika steamer penetrated into Albertville on a commercial run since pro-Communist rebels took over the Congo's North Katanga province capital last month. In the following article he records the change in the city's life.

ALBERTVILLE (AP)—Rebel-held Albertville is a Congolese city taken over by witchcraft and African warriors dressed up like overgrown children playing a bizarre game of soldiers.

When the lake steamer Baron Dhanis nosed into port, a boarding party, fantastically garbed and armed to the teeth with spears, clubs, machetes and an assortment of rifles and submachine guns clambored aboard.

It was the ship's first commercial run to Albertville since Gaston Soumialot's rebels took the town from the Congolese army June 18.

The boarders were adorned with feathers and bird wings, some wore monkey-skin Davy Crockett "caps. Leopard - skin aprons covered the captured Congolese army uniforms of others. All were festooned with palm fronds and a variety of fetish charms.

The steamers' half-dozen passengers, including the first correspondents allowed into the city, were grouped on deck while the ship was searched for arms. Guarding them was a warrior brandishing a trident.

Fifty warriors made up the guard's reception committee. They looked weirdly incongruous against the backdrop of

Wingtip Catches Water Says Avondale Witness

Two men died yesterday in the wreckage of a light aircraft that crashed and sank in the Bay of Quinte. They were the pilot, Berton Fitzgibbon, 40, of R. R. 5 Belleville and his passenger, Elwood DeMille, 48, of 33 York Street, Picton.

The plane crashed about 1:20 p.m., about 300 yards from shore, off the foot of Avondale Road.

Mrs. F. W. Newman, who was watching the plane for several minutes before and after the crash, said it had been circling above the County House. "Then it came in low over our cottage and out over the water," she said. "I thought it was going to land at first, then it banked, the wingtip caught in the water and the plane nosed in. There was a splash," she said, "and a funny noise I can't describe. The plane floated for about five minutes before it sank."

Mrs. Newman had been watching the aircraft because her husband was flying at the time in an aircraft of similar design but different coloring. The "funny noise" she heard when prompted by a reporter, sounded like water hitting a hot stove.

There were other witnesses. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Shaw of Belleville were cruising on the south side of the bay in their yacht Sirocco. Their account of the crash agrees with Mrs. Newman's.

FIRST AT SCENE

Norman Kalnay, a neighbor of Mrs. Newman's was the first person at the scene of the crash. He was just leaving his garage when he heard the plane engine, when he heard the splash. He ran to the shore and saw the plane in the water, grabbed some life preservers and set out for the plane in a light dinghy. The tail of the aircraft disappeared before he arrived at the scene, and Mr. Kalnay anchored in case of a spot.

Police learned of the crash through a motorcycle constable on patrol at Zwick's Island. An unidentified man approached City Police Constable Barry Titterson and pointed out the plane in the water. Constable Titterson radioed the city police station, and the sergeant on duty called the Belleville provincial police. Other witnesses called the city fire department and the Station, Trenton.

First person to reach the plane underwater was ambulance operator Stuart Meeks. He dived in from a light boat, and dived line to the aircraft from a launch owned by L. F. Radonicich. The lines parted,

Resume Debate On Loans

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons returns to debate today on the government's proposed student loans legislation amid signs of concern among Quebec students.

Student associations at Laval University and the University of Montreal made public letters to the federal government Friday asking for a two-week suspension in the legislation and establishment of a committee to hear representations from the students.

The associations proposed that the committee be composed of representatives of the federal and Quebec governments and Canadian student associations.

During the three days of debate on the bill last week there were suggestions that Quebec students are concerned that the bill is an invasion of provincial jurisdiction over education.

The measure authorizes the federal government to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 a year for needy students to finance university and other forms of post-high school study.

BIG SUPPORT

The loan idea has received general support in the Commons although opposition parties have raised a number of objections, including one that it intrudes in

Marriage-Happy Dr. Sheppard, Faces Future With Hope, Fear

CHICAGO (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard, happy in his freedom from prison and in his new marriage, faced the future today with hope and fear.

He and his bride of two days, the former Mrs. Ariane Tebbenjohanns, a German divorcee, made arrangements to fly to New York City where they will have interviews there, but she didn't go into detail.

"We cannot make any plans," she told a reporter. "We'll stay in Bayside (N.Y.) for a few day Dr. Sam will have to go back to the penitentiary."

But he has a friend and his lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said they expected the physician to remain out of prison, where he served almost nine years for slaying his first wife, Marilyn, 31.

But Bailey said: "I do not expect to be sent back to prison."

The new Mrs. Sheppard, who was divorced from the heir to a steel fortune in Dusseldorf in 1957, became interested in the Sheppard case in 1959 She began writing to Sheppard They met early in 1963 while she was visiting the United States.

Sheppard was freed on $10,000 bond while the State of Ohio appeals the order which freed him.

Dr. Sheppard, 40, and the 35-year-old blonde he married Saturday dined with friends in the former Mrs. Arlene Tebbenjohanns, a German divorcee, and received telephone calls from others.

The date of teaching or doing other non-medical work until his license to practice medicine is restored. Or, his new wife suggested, he could do administrative work in his family's clinic in Bay Village Ohio. They plan to live, in Rocky River, another community in the Cleveland area.

While obviously happy, Dr Sheppard told a reporter he is living "under the shadow of reversal and retrial."

But he also said: "I do not expect to be sent back to prison."

The second trial—the order of a federal judge who ruled he did not have a fair trial.

The next step in the case will be taken Wednesday. A three-judge panel of the Sixth U.S. Court of Appeals will decide whether Sheppard shall remain

Harlem Mobs Battle Police Over Slaying

Negro Leaders Demand Arrest of Policeman

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP)—Violence flared again in Harlem Sunday night, with police the targets of jeering mobs and missiles hurled from basement roofs in racial rioting that began Saturday night and raged into Sunday morning.

Helmeted police still patrolled the area today, but they said tension has lessened a great deal."

Sunday night, five civilians were treated at hospitals for gunshot wounds. Twelve patrolmen were injured by flying objects. Also injured were a television cameraman and several newspaper men.

The initial outburst followed protest rallies over the fatal shooting of a Negro boy by a white policeman. The violence left one Negro man shot to death, 123 arrested, and more than 100 injured, including a dozen patrolmen.

The new flareup followed funeral services Sunday night for 15-year-old James Powell, slain last Thursday by Police Lieut. Thomas Gilligan, who said he fired when the boy came at him with a knife.

Throughout the sabbath, Negro leaders, in speeches and in conferences with police and city officials, had demanded Gilligan's arrest.

The Negro leaders—including James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, and Bayard Rustin, leader of last year's civil rights march on Washington — urged Negroes to stay home Sunday night. But both men were booed at a rally when they called for non-violence.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said Rustin's fraternal element found the Saturday night riot "a convenient excuse to come out and kick a few doors and windows in."

He has rejected demands to fire Gilligan, a police board review the Powell shooting. Gilligan has been retained on duty pending an investigation by the police department and the district attorney.

Before the funeral services, police sealed off a 57-block area to vie casual spectators. Outside the funeral home, a crowd of about 500 gathered. Inside was the capacity crowd of 150 mourners.

The guerrillas struck late Saturday into all the huts, which accounted for the unusually high number of other civilian casualties.

Customs officials, all in the same battery - dress, search baggage minutely. A more senior official in unadorned military uniform then inspects passports and wields a rebel government stamp.

Nearly all vehicles in Albertville have been confiscated by the rebel authorities. One has "prime ministre's office" scrawled in the dust on its rear window.

In town armed rebels stand guard outside key buildings and groups of them roam in the streets. Europeans—about 100—remaining here stay indoors most of the time but apparently go unmolested. Everyone wears an identifying tag.

Resume Debate On Loans

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons returns to debate today on the government's proposed student loans legislation amid signs of concern among Quebec students.

Student associations at Laval University and the University of Montreal made public letters to the federal government Friday asking for a two-week suspension of the legislation and establishment of a committee to hear representations from the students.

The associations proposed that the committee be composed of representatives of the federal and Quebec governments and Canadian student associations.

During the three days of debate on the bill last week there were suggestions that Quebec students are concerned that the bill is an invasion of provincial jurisdiction over education.

The measure authorizes the federal government to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 a year for needy students to finance university and other forms of post-high school study.

MAY SUPPORT

The loan idea has received general support in the Commons although opposition parties have raised a number of questions, including one that it intrudes in

Marriage-Happy Dr. Sheppard, Faces Future With Hope, Fear

CHICAGO (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard, happy in his freedom from prison and in his new marriage, faced the future today with hope and fear.

He and his bride of two days, the former Ariane Tebbenjohanns, a German divorcee, made arrangements to fly to New York City. She said they will have interviews there, but she didn't say with whom.

"We cannot make any plans," she told a reporter. "We'll stay together for the Wednesday Dr. Sam will have to go back to the penitentiary."

But Dr. Sheppard and his lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said they expected the physician to remain out of prison, where he served almost nine years for slaying his first wife, Marilyn, 31.

Sheppard walked out of the penitentiary Thursday on the order of a federal judge who ruled he did not have a fair trial.

The next step in the case will be taken Wednesday. A three-judge panel of the Sixth U.S. Court of Appeals will decide whether Sheppard shall remain free on $10,000 bond while the State of Ohio appeals the order which freed him.

Dr. Sheppard, 40, and the 35-year-old blonde he married Saturday dined with friends in the Sheppard home Sunday and received telephone calls from others.

In spite of teaching or doing other non-medical work until he learns to practice medicine is restored. Or, his new wife suggested, he could do administrative work in his family's clinic in Bay Village Ohio. They plan to live, in Rocky River, another community in the Cleveland area.

While obviously happy, Dr Sheppard told a reporter he is living "under the shadow of reversal and retrial."

But Bailey said: "I do not expect to be sent back to prison."

The new Mrs. Sheppard, who was divorced from the heir to a brewing fortune in Dusseldorf in 1957, became interested in Dr. Sheppard case in 1959 She began writing to Sheppard They met early in 1963 while she was visiting the United States.

Goldwater Gets Counsellors To Work on Battle Plans

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater, counting on an active campaign boost from former president Eisenhower, is setting his political counsellors to work on battle plans for the two against President Johnson.

Goldwater flies back to Washington and his Senate desk today.

Tentative thinking on the Goldwater campaign shapes up this way:

—It is likely to be a series of forays for major addresses with Goldwater based in Washington and Phoenix, not an extended series of whistle-stop appearances.

—Goldwater forces are drafting plans for formation of a citizens committee, its head not yet chosen, which would seek to rally Democrats and independent voters to the Goldwater cause.

—Goldwater, as he did in the California primary campaign, will rely heavily on television to carry his message to the voters

WELCOMES WITHDRAWAL

The Arizona senator obviously was not unhappy about the withdrawal of Alabama Governor George C. Wallace from the presidential race. And he has made it clear he views the additionally Democratic South as fertile land for Republican vote hunting on the campaign ahead.

His first statement, relayed through Senate secretary Edward J. Nellor, said: "The governor's action was a surprise to me I have no further comment at this time."

Representative William E. Miller of New York, the vice-presidential nominee, indicated he would like to see some overtures to the party's moderates and liberals in the northern industrial states that would bring them around to active support of the national ticket.

But Miller said in response to questions on NBC's Meet the Press that failure to get the backing of such men as Senators Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating of New York, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Clifford P. Case of New Jersey "won't be fatal."

Miller said he favors a "summit" meeting of Republican chiefs of all shades of opinion to canvass the prospects for the campaign and to give their advice on strategy.

TAKES TEST

DALLAS (AP)—A lawyer for Jack Ruby said Sunday that Ruby "emotionally detailed" a lie detector test that there was any connection between him and Lee Harvey Oswald. Defence counsel Joe Tonahill said Ruby had asked Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court for the test. Ruby is under death sentence for gunning down Oswald, accused slayer of President Kennedy.

Klan Burns Copy U. S. Civil Rights

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) A copy of the U.S. civil rights law was burned Saturday night while about 400 persons at a Ku Klux Klan rally applauded.

J. B. Stoner of Atlanta, Ga., counsel for the white-supremacist Klan, then got a match to the bill. He said the civil rights law was a Communist plot to turn the leadership of the United States over to the Negro.

He addressed a rally from a platform draped with Confederate flags in an open field about three miles south of this racially - troubled city. Klansmen wearing peaked hats and white robes directed traffic and organized the rally.

City Welfare Shows Decrease

Belleville recipients of general welfare assistance for the month of May this year showed a 16.7 per cent decrease over the same month a year ago, according to statistics from the Ontario Department of public welfare.

Statistics show that during May there were 481 persons receiving welfare assistance during the month as compared with 914 a year ago. In April of this year the number receiving assistance was 629.

The Belleville figures is considerably brighter than that of the province as a whole where the percentage increase in recipients for May was 7.8 per cent as compared with May last year.

Welfare assistance payment in Belleville for May totalled $12,662, as compared with $17,302 in April, and $24,318 in May, 1963.

Employment figures for the province for May show that 2.8 per cent of the labour force was unemployed. This comparative by low index was said favorably related to the decline in the cost of general welfare assistance.

Burglar Robs Stereotyper Of $21,000

KINGSTON (CP)—A burglar Sunday stole $21,000 in the life savings of Bernard Garrigan, 53, a stereotyper with The Whig-Standard.

The burglar ransacked two bedrooms in the four - storey house in which Mr. Garrigan lives with his bachelor brother before he found the money, hidden in a baking dish inside an ancient radio. Mr. Garrigan said the robbery disappeared while he and his brother were out for a drive.

Evans Street House Damaged By Sunday Fire

Fire in a double frame house on Evans Street early Sunday morning caused an estimated $6,000 damage to the dwelling and an estimated $3,000 to its contents.

Firemen were called to the building, owned by F. F. Horton, at 8 and 10 Evans Place. One side of the building was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. Post (No. 8) and the other side by Mr. and Mrs. S. Woofs (No. 10.)

It is believed the fire was caused by faulty electrical wiring on the Post side. Mr. and Mrs. Post were away at their cottage when the blaze broke out.

Three pumpers and an aerial truck were sent to the scene, where they remained for nearly three hours.

There was no personal injury. There was extensive smoke and water damage. Fire damage was reported as not extensive.

Woman Injured As Car Hits Truck on 401

A car-transport crash last night on Highway 401, at the Deseronto overpass sent a Burlington area woman to Belleville General Hospital with lacerations and a possible broken arm.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Lillian McCreary, of 3021 Woodland Park Drive in Burlington, Ontario, passenger in a car driven by Malcolm Gordon Garrison of the same address, was taken to Belleville General Hospital by City Ambulance.

The 1962 car was driving west on 401, when it left the detour around the new overpass, it collided with a privately owned transport, travelling east, driven by William Jackson of Don Mills, Ontario.

There was considerable damage to the car with the exception of right side being caved in. The transport received damage to its right front fender and bumper.

The accident was investigated by the Napanee O.P.P.

British Jew Asked to Refuse Commerce Job

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Mancroft, a leading British Jew, said Sunday he has been asked to withdraw as president-elect of the London Chamber of Commerce.

Last year, Mancroft's resignation from the London branch of Norwich Union Insurance Societies was demanded by Arab countries.

His resignation caused a furor here and he was subsequently re-offered the post, which he refused.

Arriving at London airport Sunday after a business trip to Israel, he confirmed a report in Israel newspapers that he had been asked to withdraw from succession to the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce out of deference to members who trade with Arab countries.

He was offered the post of president informally a few months ago, to succeed the Earl of Verulam at the end of this year.

The 64-year-old lord is chairman of a London travel agency which was blacklisted in June by Syria, Jordan and Lebanon because of its business interests in Israel.

Forest Fire Rating High

The Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed reported this morning that the forest fire rating for the area continues high.

At present, there are three fires burning in the Tweed district. Two new fires broke out over the weekend. One the result of lightning, the other is attributed to a area industry.

To date in the fire season, there have been 93 fires. The total to the end of July last year was one less, 92.

Once again the assistance of all is requested in preventing forest fires.

Women Fight, Crowd Beats Policemen

TORONTO (CP)—Two policemen were beaten by 10 persons when they intervened in a fight between two women in front of a downtown hotel early Sunday.

Constable Roy Ward suffered a broken nose when he was struck by one of the women and both he and Constable George Simpson received numerous minor injuries when attacked by the others.

Jay Ricardo Jackson, 22, was charged with obstructing and assaulting police.

Ruby Joy Blair, 26, and Grace Meyers, 21, were charged with creating a disturbance. Meyers also was charged with assaulting and obstructing police.

Most of the men fled when police reinforcements approached.

Nickel Miners Turn Down Board Proposal

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Conciliation board proposals for a contract for 2,000 miners and surface workers at International Nickel Company of Canada's Thompson mine were voted down Sunday by union members.

Officials of Local 6166, United Steelworkers of America, said after the vote they would apply to the provinces for a government-supervised strike vote.

The provincial government appointed the conciliation board last month after negotiations between company and union broke down over wages and the length of the contract.

The Steelworkers union is seeking its first contract with Inco at the Thompson mine since it won bargaining rights there away from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

The previous contract, which expired March 1 was negotiated by Mine-Mill.

BEAR PROPOSAL

The conciliation board report, which is not binding on either company or union, was first made public at the union meeting. It recommends at 11 per-cent - wage increase over a three-year contract.

The Sunday night meeting recorded 76 votes in favor of the proposal, 886 against it and 213 abstentions.

In previous negotiations the company had offered an eight-per-cent pay increase over a three-year contract, while the union sought an 11-per-cent increase over a two-year contract.

Union officials say the reason they want the shorter contract is so that they will be able to bargain simultaneously for Inco employees at Thompson, Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont.

Union and company already negotiate simultaneously for employees at Sudbury and Port Colborne where the present contract will expire in the summer of 1966.

Thompson is 410 miles north of Winnipeg.

'First Sod' Turned at Site Of New Education Building For Holloway Street Church

First sod for the new Christian Education Building of Holloway Street United Church was turned yesterday, in a symbolic ceremony, in actual fact, the first sod had been turned three days earlier, by the contractor who started earlier than the congregation expected. In the symbolic ceremony, after the normal morning church service C. I. Frederick and six-year-old Scott Bowes, both of Belleville, shared the honor.

The building will be completed in about four months, to house Sunday School classes, a recreation centre with auditorium, offices and a new kitchen. The space has been needed for years, according to Rev. C. W. Coleman, the minister. The present 90-year-old building is headquarters for a congregation of about 900 people.

Rev. O. E. Wagar, assistant minister at the church, spoke to the congregation as it gathered about the sod-turning site, urging support for the project. Rev. C. W. Coleman led prayers and hymns before the turning of the sod.

'Accident Alley' Gets Concrete Face Today

Pouring of concrete on the north lane of the "accident alley" stretch of 401 between Marysville and Napanee, was expected to commence today by the R. J. McFarland Construction Company.

In past week McFarland work crews have been preparing the base for paving and concrete forms on the north side of the westbound lane were in place by the weekend.

A spokesman for McFarlands said pouring of concrete would get underway Monday morning. No completion date was given but it was said the paving operation would be "rushed through".

This stretch of 401 highway between Marysville and Napanee has been the scene of many serious crashes since the south lane of the 401 dual highway was opened last year.

Cubans Charge Americans Killed Soldier

HAVANA (Reuters) — The armed forces ministry alleged today a United States guard post at the Guantanamo Naval Base fired on a Cuban post, killing a 19-year-old Cuban soldier.

A ministry communique published in the press here said the incident occurred Sunday night.

The shooting was the latest in a series of incidents along the boundary fence of Guantanamo in recent months.

42 Army Cadets Leave Sunday For West Indies

TRENTON — At sun - up Sunday morning, 42 Royal Canadian Army Cadets from the cadet trades' training camp at Picton left RCAF Station Trenton, bound for Jamaica and the Barbados, where they will spend fi - weeks instructing cadets from the islands. An equal number of cadets will be sent back on exchange from Jamaica and the Barbados group.

The cadets, from across Canada, are all considered "masters" cadets and have achieved 67.5 per cent in special examinations, 70 per cent standing in high school examinations and come recommended by their high school principals.

These boys are the pick of the crop in Canadian Army cadet corps," an army spokesman said yesterday.

Found for Jamaica, under the leadership of Capt. J. W. Martin, are 20 Royal Canadian Regt. cadets; 16 Royal 22nd. Regt. cadets, led by Capt. Henri Soucie, will go to the Barbados.

The cadets left for Ottawa yesterday aboard an RCAF Dakota and a North Star and will transfer to a Yukon aircraft there.

One cadet, Larry Shoebridge, lives at 113 Humewood Drive, Belleville, and another, G. E. Goode, is from Tweed.

DONKEY BASEBALL

TRENTON — Friday night's Donkey Baseball game at Bayshore Park ended with a tie between Trenton Firemen and the Legionnaires from Branch 110, with the nine donkeys taking part, proclaimed undisputed if unofficial "winners."

Local sleuths reported a bumper sale of back-liniment Saturday.

Fire Chief Praises Farmers

TRENTON — Fire Chief Mervyn Dafoe of Frankford praised "Community spirit" of farmers living at R.R. 1, Woodlee, in the vicinity of the Stanley Fox farm, who, yesterday drew water by the truck load out of their near dry wells to a fire in Mr. Fox's barn.

Chief Dafoe credits their neighborly action with saving the barn structure, although several tons of hay were lost.

Frankford firemen responded to the alarm at noon and were kept at the scene well into the night. The fire, caused by spontaneous combustion, kept breaking out in isolated pockets throughout the afternoon.

LOCK KEPT BUSY OVER WEEKEND

TRENTON — On Saturday, 19 boats passed through lock No. 1; Sunday, 33, bringing to 54 the total for the weekend.

So far this year, 428 boats have gone through the locks, while for the same time last year 303 boats had passed through.

Cars Collide

TRENTON — A collision between cars driven by Peter Hester of 178 Byron St., Trenton and an Ottawa woman, Mary Gauriloff, a Dept. of National Defence worker, on Henry St., at the intersection with Lorne Ave., Saturday afternoon, resulted in damages estimated at $650. but no injuries to the drivers.

Will Test Weed Cutler

TRENTON — Saturday morning, Peter Just and his assistant, Nels Thomansen, arrived in Trenton from Hartland, Wisconsin, to demonstrate an aquatic harvester manufactured by the Aquatic Controls Corporation. The amphibious weed-cutter will be demonstrated off the government dock, south of the Legion Hall, on Tuesday, at 10 a.m.

The demonstration has been arranged by the Federal Department of Public Works and will be attended by department officials, as well as representatives from the Department of Transport, Fisheries and Lands and Forests. Mayor MacDonald and members of council are also expected to attend.

Bus, Car Crash Kills 30 People

MONTE, Argentina (AP)—At least 30 persons were burned to death Sunday when a bus and a car collided near here, police reported. First reports indicated the car's gas tank was set on fire by the crash.

KEEPERS FEWER

Only 96 civilian lighthouse keepers remain in service in the U.S. They will be replaced by Coast Guardsmen on their retirement.

Firms Must Tell Exchange Of Their Plans

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange today made public a letter sent to secretaries of listed companies reminding them of the exchange's regulations regarding expenditures.

The letter, dated July 15, says filing statements submitted to the Toronto Stock Exchange relating to underwriting or optioning of treasury shares must contain a statement of the company's future plans, including proposed expenditures of the proceeds of treasury shares.

The exchange says it wants to know when a company intends to invest money in other companies, to buy properties or to increase holdings in another company.

Howard D. Graham, exchange president, said: "The issuance of the letter was considered desirable at the present time because of the acquiring and developing mining claims in the Timmins area."

Too Consistent!

Gordon Cooper got his picture in the paper again the other day.

Mr. Cooper ought to be on the city's payroll.

If we are interested in attracting tourists, he provides us with one of our biggest opportunities.

One picture of Mr. Cooper—and The Intelligencer runs at least one every year—is worth a dozen speeches by tourist information experts.

Whenever Mr. Cooper has his picture taken, he is always accompanied by a fish. It is never the same one, and it is always a muskie, generally caught in the Moira River within a few miles of the city.

There are a lot of other people who fish for muskies, but not too many muskie fishermen. There is a difference. They inhabit the same waters—as Mr. Cooper's case generally that wide, tweed-filled stretch of the Moira which extends above and below O'Brien's bridge on the highway to Tweed. But the results they get are not similar. The writer of this editorial knows. He, too, has fished this stretch of the Moira for nine years. He has even copied Mr. Cooper's tactics, trolling a surface plug behind a boat moving at above normal trolling speed. But not once has a muskie even taken a bat at that trolled bait.

If tourist bureau directors were dictators, they would shoot the writer—and acclaim Mr. Cooper permanent mayor of the city.

As for us, there are occasions when we feel the same affection for Mr. Cooper as for a sore throat on Christmas Day. But then we realize that he is also an asset for us natives—he keeps us trolling.

But a muskie every year and most years several of them, out of the same stretch of water! There ought to be a law—a share-the-wealth law.

Confusing Cans

The Consumers' Association of Canada has been measuring the amount of juice in cans. Nearly twenty dozen cans of fruit juices and fruit drinks, no two of the same variety, brand and size bought in the same city, were measured. Of the 237 cans, only 128 were found to be filled as labelled and of the 111 remaining not one contained more juice than called for by the label.

From this the consumer may conclude that he is being deliberately gypped.

Not so, says the Association in its magazine. With few exceptions, it was not because the manufacturers had under-filled the cans that they contained less juice than advertised. Juices so heated during canning and as they cool, they contract, unavoidably leaving some head space. The results of this cooling varied radically with different sizes of cans. A hundred and one of 111 48-ounce cans were found filled as labelled and all 14 of 14 10-ounce cans were up to the mark. But only nine of 93 20-ounce and none of 13 105-ounce cans and three 15-ounce cans contained the amounts advertised. Yet only one of the 105-ounce cans and only seven of the 20-ounce cans had more head space than permitted by Department of Agriculture regulations.

Dimensions of cans have been agreed upon for international use. "We note with interest," the Association reports, "that cans labelled 20 fluid ounces under Canada Department of Agriculture regulations, are, when sold in the U.S.A., and offered as equivalent, usually works out to less than 19 Canadian fluid ounces."

So there is a new worry for the housewife. Now, as she endeavors to compare prices for cans of various sizes, she has to remember that some of these cans are likely to contain as much as advertised, while other sizes are not.

The Consumers' Association also reports that there is a difference in results for different brands. But we won't go into that, beyond saying that results varied widely, from one brand where all samples were up to average, with half over, to another brand in which nine of fourteen cans were under average, with the rest over.

One great luxury that the new China seems to allow itself is gardening. Probably the finest landscape gardening in the world is there to be seen as a background to the great temples and pagodas, the lakeside frivolities of the emperors who have been dead a thousand years; but also along the new highways in and out of the towns. If one understands this, I am quite sure one would understand a great deal about the modern Chinese mind.—Mary Goldring of the "Economist".

If you think of "standardization" as the best that you know today, but which is to be improved tomorrow—you get somewhere.—Henry Ford.

Yugoslav Humor

By Paul St. Pierre
Writing from Yugoslavia
In the Vancouver Sun

It may be true that a small country can never afford modesty, but usually there's room for humor in it. Here are some of the current Yugoslav jokes:

* * *

Mao Tse-tung arrives to offer reconciliation with Khrushchev and, as a gesture of goodwill, promises to remove all mice from the Kremlin. He takes a small white mouse from his pocket and puts it on the floor. The white mouse squeaks, all Kremlin mice run to follow it. The white mouse leads them to the Moscow River, where they drown.

"Wonderful, Comrade Mao," says Khrushchev. "Wonderful. Tell me. Do you by any chance have a white Chinese?"

(This one needs an explanation of a linguistic difference between Serb and English. In the Serb the word for time and time is the same.)

Journalist: I hope you plan, he plans, she plans, we plan, they plan—what is the tense of this verb?

Pupil: A waste of time.

A parrot is kept by a reactionary couple. When the party members visit, it is hidden in the bathroom. Since it will repeat anti-regime phrases.

The parrot is attacked by a rooster. It pecks the rooster bald. Then rode. I am not a common criminal. I am here for political reasons!

* * *

Journalist: What do you think of communism?

Hungarian: Well, as Marx said...

Journalist: Never mind Marx. What do you think?

Hungarian: Lenin said this very well...

Journalist: Not Lenin. What is your view?

Hungarian: If you will just read Mr. Khrushchev's latest speech...

Journalist: Look, don't you have any opinions of your own?

Hungarian: Certainly I have opinions of my own. But I don't agree with them.

* * *

The old bourgeois lay dying. He asked for a priest. Communist party representative to visit him.

The party man came. The bourgeois joined the party.

His relatives said, "Why do you now join the party?"

The bourgeois said, "Better for one of them to die than for one of us."

An Englishman, Russian, American and Bulgarian were among those on a plane which ran into serious trouble and that three men must jump to save the lives of passengers.

The Englishman says, "God save the Queen," and jumps.

The American says "Stars and Stripes forever," and jumps.

The Russian says, "Long live the solidarity of the working classes," and throws out the Bulgarian.

A Bosnian, seeing a parrot in the market place on sale for 200,000 dinars, cannot understand why a bird with so little meat can cost so much. The vendor says, "Ah, this is a special kind of bird. This bird talks."

The Bosnian returns soon after with a common chicken and offers 100,000 dinars the next booth at 300,000 dinars.

The neighboring vendor says, "How can you charge so much for a common barnyard chicken?"

Bosnian: "This is a special kind of bird. This bird doesn't talk. It thinks."

Khrushchev, on a train going through the Urals, lands of Siberia, has a ragged peasant in his train compartment. When conversation develops, Khrushchev says: "I have many things. I have a city house and a dacha in the country. I have two cars and three television sets. I have four refrigerators."

Peasant: "That is nothing. I have four houses. I have five cars. I have seven television sets. I have a refrigerator in every room of all my four houses."

Khrushchev: "You are a liar. And, do you know who I am. I am Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev."

Peasant: "Oh Comrade Khrushchev, why didn't you say who you were! Tell me, when is our bread ration to be increased?"

* * *

De Gaulle: "I will drop here a bottle of French champagne and the will thank me because they will know that French culture has reached them."

Douglas-Home: "I will drop an English flag and they will thank me because they listen to the B.B.C."

Khrushchev: "I will drop here the Hammer and Sickle and they will thank me because they will know that we will send them heavy industry equipment."

Johnson: "I will drop them a General Electric refrigerator and they will thank me for bringing them the benefits of modern technology."

Pilot: "I will drop you all, without parachutes, and the whole world will thank me."

You may notice that jokes about the Russians are quite rather indirect, but, as I said, we can't all afford to be modest.

Folding Cars Advocated

Portland Oregonian

Observers of the motor age sometimes wonder out loud, and not entirely in fun, what will happen when the number of automobiles reaches the point where all highways, streets, county roads and parking lots will be shoehorn to shoehorn. When will it be all of land has been paved and there is room only to park the cars but not to move them?

British Minister of Transport, Ernest Marples has come up with a study group with something like this in mind. The group is to report in a year or two on future trends in the design of vehicles, with recommendations valid to the year 2000.

Mr. Marples has some ideas of his own on the subject. He believes the present car is now commonly used in Britain are too large, and miniature autos should be designed to replace them.

"Ideas that must be looked at include collapsible cars," said the Minister of Transport. "Perhaps people in the future will have two cars and they use to the boot (trunk) of the other for city use. It would not be of steel and would be of such shapes into a smaller size. We shall also see if cars can be designed which can be put into parking spaces sideways and we shall try to reduce noise and fumes."

It is an intriguing idea to have a dinghy for the family jaloppy that can be folded up like a patio chair, carried into the office and stashed away behind the coat rack. But some of the smaller cars such as Dick Tracy owned on the moon would be better. Perhaps even rapid transit.

Ban Affront To U. S. Girl

New York Herald-Tribune

We in America are wont to preach of our superiority in sundry fields, and of how faith abides in free enterprise, but it unsettles us more than a little to learn that there are cowards in our midst who cringe at a little thing like an English secretary. They have decreed an embargo against this treasured import.

The English secretary has become quite an institution. For years this sweet - voiced delicacy has decorated front offices, turned telephone conversations into symphonies and secretarial drudgery into a summer festival and its general component herself at the very model of manners and good will. She's competition, yes, but what right-thinking employer over thought of that as a dirty word? Some one in the London visa office, likely, when So there's a policy of frozen enterprise now, and the English secretary cannot get a visa when some sez us any more.

More's the pity. Here's an insult to the English girl who has fought her way to the top on foreign soil, and a slap both to the American girl through the inherent suggestion that she can't cut the mustard in cross-ocean rivalry. Let's get off this sticky wicket in a trice, before we are known as a nation of hoors. Really, now.

A bomb attempt on Hitler's life failed as the remnants of the German "opposition" sought to bring about a coup d'etat 20 years ago today—in 1944. The fact that he had escaped death was unknown to the conspirators who went about implementing their plan. They were quickly rounded up and executed. Hitler followed this attempt on his life by implementing a purge in which thousands of persons were shot.

Work Could Be Hazardous

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Bernard Hymovitch gets himself in the news by offering a solemn opinion to explain why girls in Quebec look cooler and more good-humored in hot weather than girls in Ontario. Mr. Hymovitch, who is described as a market researcher, says the reason is that girls in Quebec do not wear girdles.

The statement above, of the Hymovitch views, is a condensed version. The market-researching gentleman issued his findings at much greater length, with some pseudo-psychological findings to explain the differences between Ontario and Montreal and we men in Toronto.

The prevailing tendency in Quebec province, he says in what he finds, is for women to dress for men. "She knows she is more attractive to men if she strides freely and comfortably and she acts according."

In English-speaking Canada, he professes to have discover that the woman feels for other women, and will wear an uncomfortable girdle even in hot weather, because she knows other women will react unfavorably if she does not.

Mr. Hymovitch's profundity is thrown over this opinion by the market researcher's finding that, "this basic difference in motivation is an important fact of economic life in Canada." It is supposed to explain why sales of shampoo in Quebec are above national average, while sales of hair spray are below.

We are impelled to wonder how a researcher goes about this kind of research. If research is what he says it is to do research, at a suitable fee, into the differences between small-minded black bass in Quebec and small-mouthed bass in Ontario, we think we could cope.

We would need a tape-measure, a set of scales, a fishing rod, and a pencil to jot down the findings. Then we would go fishing, and collect some evidence.

We would hesitate to apply the same research methods to the kind of research the Montreal market researcher claims to have been doing.

We suppose, to any case, that his basic assumption is wrong. We doubt that Quebec women differ from Ontario women in their motives for buying, or not buying, girdles. If a girdle in an Ontario store is marked, "Was $4.75; reduced to $3.99," some women will buy it, while in Quebec

Too Much Sun or Sunlamp Can Be Very Dangerous

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My teenage daughter is self-conscious because she doesn't have a tan. She doesn't enjoy lying in the sun, and she really does not tan readily. So she wants to use a sunlamp.

I have read about the danger of the sun causing skin cancer, and wonder if the lamp would be better. At least it would be more comfortable and faster, she thinks.—Mrs. W. C.

An ordinary amount of sunning, whether outdoors or with a lamp, seems to do no harm.

Excessive exposure does, whether from the sun or from a lamp, in either case, it is the action of ultra-violet rays.

The danger arises when exposure continues for a long time and is repeated year after year. Susceptible are sailors, farmers and sometimes people in the south who get too much sun. And we could add persons who regard a leathery tan as a status symbol.

If your daughter prefers a sunlamp, that's all right, but she should use it gradually enough so she doesn't get burned. However, I doubt that she would be tempted to cook herself to a harmful degree.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My gynecologist says I haven't been there in time to explain to me the use of the hormone "estrogen" following a radical hysterectomy. Removal of both ovaries, leaving the uterus. That would happen if I didn't take it and what if I took too much! Is it dangerous?—Mrs. J. B.

The hormone is extremely beneficial and not dangerous when taken with ordinary good sense.

What it boils down to is this: Menopause occurs when the ovaries stop functioning. This occurs naturally as women reach middle age. If the ovaries are removed sooner, the effect is the same.

This is what we call "surgical menopause." Therefore, to answer your question, you have a method that will control menopause (or "change of life") is, and what part hormones play.

You'll find your doctor, in detail, in my new booklet on "Menopause." If you want it, send me a note in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Times Annex, enclosing 30 cents in coin and an envelope, asking for a copy of "Make Menopause Easier." It includes scores of common questions and their answers.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My blood was recently tested for diabetes and it was 102, but my doctor let me not to worry. At what level should one become concerned? —D. G.

This depends on when the test is taken. In relation to meals. If it was taken before breakfast (we call this a "fasting blood sugar") the reading is normal, yet it does not rule out the possibility of diabetes.

But if the test was taken one or two hours after a meal, then the reading leaves you in the clear.

The reason: Many mild diabetics have a normal fasting blood sugar, but their blood rises to high levels after eating.

If there is even slight suspicion of diabetes, either in your history or symptoms, a further test, called a sugar tolerance test, will give a more definite answer.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any special diet for a person who has developed a hiatus hernia? I am 63. Does this condition tend to get worse? — C. A. M.

For the average hiatal hernia no special diet is required. (If the patient is too heavy, he benefits by losing some weight.)

However, if the case involves burning in the pit of the stomach, heading or regurgitation of acid material, a bland diet is advisable.

Hiatal hernias may enlarge, but more often they do not. When symptoms persist, surgery may be necessary.

Accept Truth Then You Can Change History

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In a new book titled "International Conflict and Behavioral Science," which is a collection of papers on the alternatives to using force in world disputes, I was much taken with one essay called "The Truth is Not Enough."

Presented by Dr. Lester Grinspoon, a psychiatrist on the faculty of the Harvard Medical School, this paper dealt with the ways in which people cope with facts that are unacceptable to them. Among the methods include denying the facts, isolating them as an abstraction, distorting them, changing the subject, and dogmatizing them away by an airtight system of beliefs.

By the phrase, "the truth is not enough," Dr. Grinspoon means that we must go beyond ways to keep unpleasant facts at bay. When these defenses are broken down—as they often are when they fully comprehend what a thermonuclear war actually means—the new knowledge may do more harm than good.

"People living in the thermonuclear age," he writes, "cannot really accept the facts of total mutual annihilation without a concomitant means or hope of altering them for the next."

Our defenses against facts serve to protect us from anxiety and not all such defenses are bad or pathological. One of the most important, for example, is denial — which enables us to ignore or dismiss the perception of painful events. Without this ability, Dr. Grinspoon points out, "We would be much less likely to travel in airplanes, undergo surgery, eat meat or to carry out countless other acts of daily life."

Even so, on the whole, will not be accepted by us except when plausible alternatives are offered. Psychiatry points to words of doom about the next war because they don't see what it will take before breaks. If the world government "seems wildly remote, disarmament seems highly unlikely, and we cling to the fantasy of 'more powerful weapons' to protect us from disaster, even though a decade ago of us knows better.

People are not "apathetic" about the threat of world destruction; they are simply immobilized by the lack of alternatives. "Telling the truth" about the present state of affairs is inadequate, because mere warnings may create more resistance to the facts, if fear, what we out seems possible.

There is a paradox involved here: only if enough people can be brought to accept the "unacceptable facts" can they be modified; once we accept the truth of this moment in history, we can act to change it. But nobody really knows how we can get from here to there.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were steady on a moderate demand for a supply of slaughter cattle lacking quality and condition at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Buyers continued to apply pressure to grassy unfinished heifers.

Veal calf prices were steady. Hog prices were uneven and sheep and lamb prices were lower.

Slaughter cattle 1,313: Choice steers 24.50-25.50; good 23-24; medium 21-22.50; common 17-20; choice heifers 23-22.50 with odd tops to 23; good 20-22.50; medium 18-20; common 15-17; choice fed yearlings 22-24; good 20-22; good cows 15.50 - 16.50; medium 14.50 - 15.50; canners and cutters 11-14; good heavy bologna bulls 18.50-19.50; common and medium 16-18.

Calves 601: Choice vealers 27-29 with odd tops to 30; good 24-26; medium 21-24; common 19-21; boners 13-18.

Hogs 431: Grade A at Toronto 28.90-28.95 currently weak and easier.

Sheep and lambs 200: Good lambs 25 per hundredweight; common and medium 23 - 25; sheep 4-10.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Baglan Nickel climbed $1.31 to $2 in heavy trading on the stock market today.

Baglan has a property in the Ungava district of Quebec, and rumors on Bay street say that the company has made a hit on its nickel property.

Meanwhile the hot Timmins-area stocks were getting some play. Windfall climbed 50 cents to $5 and traded in a $5.20-$4.85 range. An assay on the company's first hole in Prosser Township, is expected soon.

Glenn and Genex were both active and ahead two cents each to 40 cents and 50 cents respectively.

The industrial index moved to a new high despite a shaky opening. Massey - Ferguson, a loser in profit-taking last week after the announcement that it would redeem its convertible preferred shares, recouped 4 to 30¾.

Dofasco and Algoma in steels gained ¼ each to 26¼ and 74¾ respectively.

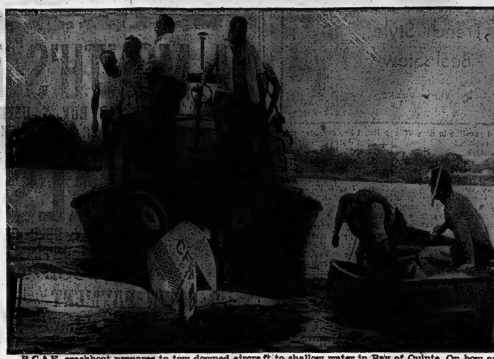
In golds, Dickenson was up 10 cents to $4.85.

On index, industrials were ahead .16 to 160.56, golds 20 to 133.44, base metals .07 to 65.46 western oils .90 to 100.56 and the Exchange index .18 to 146.75. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,522,000 shares compared with 1,660,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was off 1-16 at 9 06 3-32. Pound sterling was off 9-16 at $3.01¾.

PRODUCE MARKET



TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

Butter prices: Agricultural Stabilization Board tenderable carlots: buying 40 cents; selling 53; buying 39 score 52; selling 53.

Judy Garland Treated for Wrist Injuries

LONDON (AP) — Judy Garland was treated at a London hospital today for injuries to her wrists.

The 42-year-old actress and singer was discharged several hours after her admission to St. Stephen's Hospital, Chelsea.

A hospital statement said she was "suffering from minor injuries to her wrists."

After she was discharged, the hospital said, Miss Garland had requested it not to disclose her whereabouts.

Miss Garland arrived in London three weeks ago with Mark Herron, an American actor with whom she was reported to have gone through a Chinese marriage ceremony in Hong Kong last month.

She said she would be in London several weeks on a vacation.

A spokesman for her agent in London said he did not know how Miss Garland hurt her wrists.

Handicapped Twins Ride Similar Bikes

DIGHTON, Mass. (AP)—The afflictions of John and Joan Pavao, nine-year-old twins, prevent them from riding bicycles — unless they go together.

John has been blind since birth.

Joan has cerebral palsy and does not have use of her legs.

Their father, Joseph Pavao, and a friend, Edward Goncalves, rigged two bicycles side by side, attached by sturdy metal bars about four feet in length.

Marine Shoots Jap Woman

TOKYO (CP - Reuters) — A Japanese woman died in hospital today after being challenged, then shot by a United States marine. Relatives said she had a tendency to roam around aimlessly.

The U.S. minister to Japan, John K. Emerson, called on Japanese Vice Foreign Minister Taba Ohda to express his regret.

In a statement, the Japanese Socialist party said it would intensify its campaign for the withdrawal of American troops from Japan and the abrogation of the United States-Japan security treaty.

Says Riots May Help Goldwater

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers say the violence in Harlem holds grave dangers for the United States. One says it may carry Senator Barry Goldwater to the White House.

"America could be on the verge of something really frightful" says The Daily Sketch.

"Every flareup in Harlem, every petty punch-up between Negroes and whites that happens to rate a paragraph this summer will almost certainly mean more bitter, frightened votes for Goldwater.

Yard of Material Makes Party Prop on Campus

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You were shocked to learn about coeducational pajama parties being held on hundreds of U.S. campuses — and with the blessings of the college administrations. Well, let me tell you what goes on at a large Mid-Western university according to my daughter who attends that fine school.

Last February a junior boy asked her if she would like to attend a yard party. She remarked that a yard party in February didn't make much sense because it's usually bitter cold up there at that time of year.

He told her the party wasn't in the yard — it was in the fraternity house. The "yard" part of it meant that the girl was supposed to buy a yard of material and make two costumes — one for herself and one for the boy.

My daughter was shocked and said she was not interested. Two months later she spoke with a girl who attended such a party, and reported "it was oodles of fun." Any comment? — MADNESS IN THE MID-WEST.

* * *

DEAR MADNESS — I have never heard of a yard party — but then I had never heard of coeducational pajama parties either.

A few year ago I was appalled when the bikini were introduced and didn't believe anyone would dare wear one. Now some women are ready to throw the tops away and wear only the bottoms.

Already several nutty exhibitionists have appeared in in topless suits and caused predictable "incidents." If you ask me, the human race is having a mass nervous breakdown.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Yesterday my mother who has been widowed since last March made me feel like a lown-down skunk because I did not send her an anniversary card.

I told her I was under the impression that wedding anniversaries are not celebrated after one of the marriage partners passes away. She replied: "Don't make excuses for your thoughtlessness. You should have sent me a card and left it up to me to celebrate in my own way."

If I am wrong I would like to apologize. My wife tells me I am not wrong and that my mother is mistaken. How about this? — CONNECTICUT YANKEE.

* * *

DEAR YANKEE — The anniversary of a marriage terminated by death does not call for a celebration.

Your mother was probably feeling particularly blue that day and it would have been nice if you had taken her out to dinner. But an anniversary card would have made no sense.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 25, single and not a bad looking guy. About a year ago I was very much in love with a girl who ran off with a friend of mine. It rocked me plenty. I'm pretty much over the bleeding, but because of this experience I have avoided going out any girl who might be a serious candidate for marriage. To put it in blunt language I've been dating some pretty fast numbers because all I want is fun — and I'm getting it, if you know what I mean.

Yet part of me wants to meet the right girl and settle down, but I'm afraid of being hurt again. You can see I need a clearer eye than my own. Can you lend me one? — BUSTER.

* * *

DEAR BUSTER — I can lend you two.

Quit trying to recover from your hurt and/or beat boredom by dragging around town with third rate females — and I do know what you mean. This is no way to meet "the right girl."

The "fun" you're getting is a pretty shoddy substitute for a marriage. So grow up and quit making excuses for yourself.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

French Style Beef Stew

by Mary Moore

Would you like to do a little French cooking?

This dish elevates 1½ pounds of lean stewing beef to guest status for 4 people. You can be proud of your efforts. As you are aware, the French are great for cooking with wine and achieve some exotic results thereby. This recipe calls for ¾ cup dry white wine.

My daughter-in-law Margy is an intrepid taster of new and different dishes. She made this dish and served it one night when I was at their house for dinner.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Barbecued Meat Balls; Rolled New Potatoes; Creamed New Peas; Cole Slaw with Celery Seed Dressing; Lattice Red Currant Pie; Coffee.

TERRINE DE BOEUF (as you doubtless know, terrine simply means an earthenware dish):

1½ lbs. lean stewing beef, cut into 1" squares, ¾ cup dry white cooking wine, 1 tablespoon olive or cooking oil, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon crumbled thyme, ½ bay leaf, crumbled, 1 clove garlic, mashed or finely chopped, 1 cup thinly sliced onion, 1 cup shredded or finely chopped carrot, ¼ lb. sliced mushrooms (or one 6 oz. can button mushrooms), ¼ lb. sliced side bacon, one 7½-oz. can tomato sauce, 1 tablespoon capers, 6 or 8 anchovy fillets, mashed (optional), 1 beef bouillon cube, 1 cup boiling water.

Mix together the wine, oil, salt, pepper, herbs and vegetables and add the beef and let it marinate in this for 3 hours, turning it occasionally. Pour boiling water over the bacon and let it simmer 5 minutes to remove excess fat. Drain and dry bacon.

Line earthenware casserole with half of the partboiled bacon slices. Drain beef from marinade (reserving marinade) and roll beef in flour. Skim the vegetables from the marinade. Put beef and vegetables in alternate layers over bacon in casserole, adding remaining bacon on top. Pour reserved marinade over. Dissolve beef bouillon cube in boiling water and add tomato sauce, and stir in mashed anchovies (if used). Sprinkle capers over top of vegetables in casserole and pour bouillon-tomato liquid over. Cover and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 4 hours.

Serve with generously buttered fine egg noodles to four people who appreciate gourmet cooking.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT TO WEAR TO THE FAIR

There's no doubt about where the thousands of Americans will be spending their vacations this year. Instead of dickering about whether to go to the seashore or to the mountains, many families are charting a trip to New York and the World's Fair.

Although the traditional family argument about where to go has been settled unanimously for a change, there's still a lot of debate about how to dress while taking in the sights, both in the city and out at Flushing Meadows.

If you're planning to stay in the heart of the city, a dressier wardrobe is more in order than if you were staying in one of the resort spots on Long Island. Slacks and shorts are not worn on the sidewalks of New York. A bathing suit might be tucked into your suitcase if you plan to stay at one of the many midtown motels that have swimming pools on the roof.

As a general rule of thumb, casual daytime dresses are worn for shopping and touching in New York in the heat of summer. Unless one dines at a sandwich shop or an informal snack bar for lunch, a man should be prepared to wear a tie and jacket most everywhere else. Many hotels have coffee shops for breakfast and lunch where a tie is not essential for service. Consult the booklet in your room listing restaurants and services. These usually indicate what sort of dress is considered proper.

Dinner in midtown is generally dress-up, with a woman in an afternoon or so-called cocktail dress (depending on the time and restaurant) and a man in a business suit and tie. Since most restaurants are so highly air-conditioned, something to go over the shoulders — a jacket that matches one's dress, or a lightweight stole — is recommended. The same type of dress is suitable for the theatre at night. Formal wear is optional for night clubs and cabarets. The cocktail dress - dark suit combination is still appropriate.

COMFORTABLE SHOES

For visiting the Fair, a comfortable pair of shoes is the prime necessity. A lightweight dress that doesn't wrinkle easily is a woman's most comfortable choice, and a slacks-sports jacket combo is appropriate for men. If one plans to lunch at one of the many good gourmet restaurants, then a tie, again, is an essential. More casual attire is for the numerous lunch bars and sandwich emporiums that dot the thoroughfares. And be sure to bring along a sweater, jacket or stole to drape across your shoulders — both to keep from getting sunburned while touring and from getting chilled when faced with air-conditioning.

A nighttime visit to the Fair, with dinner at one of the more exotic restaurants on the agenda, is for women, too. The same type of attire you'd wear to a good restaurant in the city is appropriate, although the dress does not have to be as "cocktail-y."

A silk or linen sheath or skimmy is comfortable and appropriate, and so is a dress-piece suit consisting of skirt, overblouse and jacket.

A final word of warning: restaurants, both in the city and at the Fair, are jammed, so to make sure you will not be disappointed, be sure to make reservations a day or so in advance.

U.C.W. Meeting

WALLBRIDGE U.C.W.

The July meeting of Wallbridge U.C.W. was held at Mrs. Don Shorey's home with eight members and three visitors present and Mrs. H. Phillips presiding. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. McNaught assisted with the Scripture period.

Mrs. Shorey contributed a reading and Mrs. Cooper conducted a contest-like discussion of the Bible.

The programme for the training course to be held at Albert College were given out.

A donation from Mrs. H. Garrison is to be used for the bale which is being prepared. Roll call showed nine visits were made.

The meeting was closed by Mrs. Cooper, wife of the minister. The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Jim Thomson.

Mrs. Shorey and her daughters served a tasty lunch and a social time was spent together.

CANNIFTON AFTERNOON UNIT

The July meeting of the afternoon unit of Canniton U.C.W. was held in the church on July 9th.

Members were reminded of the meeting at Albert College July 20 - 23. A tribute was paid to a late member, Mrs. Harry Sweedy. A letter of thanks from Mrs. Mary Thornton was read by Mrs. Brenton. It was decided to install a water system in the church kitchen following analysis of the water to be used.

Mrs. Roy Pound gave the devotional, using as her theme, "Prejudice and brotherhood." Much prejudice is caused by pre - judging people before they are really known, by racial discrimination, bigotry and the blind acceptance of everything heard and seen. Mrs. S. Bradshaw read the Scripture lesson.

Mrs. Joy Putman was the speaker for the afternoon. She was one of those who went by bus to Trenton to visit the Victor Home for girls and Covenant College. The visitors were taken on a tour of the building at Victor Home, including the chapel. They were told they had a long list of waiting girls and could never cope with them, "of no girl was ever turned away because she could not pay. Among other things the girls are taught sewing, bookkeeping, and handcraft, and they must attend service in the chapel every morning and evening.

Covenant College is a school for women who are trained in all work pertaining to the church, but they cannot become ordained ministers. They prefer now - with Grade XIII education, and two years' experience in some kind of work. There is no limit as to the cost from May to September is $900.

Mrs. Brenton thanked the speaker and Mrs. Roy Pound for the worship service.

FAIRY DINNERS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Half of the 400 children were dressed in costumes inspired by fairy tales as they quickly devoured a 15-foot-square cake, marking the sixth birthday of the fairy book Gardens here. Each year, all children in costumes are admitted free, and a youthful king and queen are crowned to reign during the summer activities.

Organdy on Nothing New Italian "Topless"

FLORENCE (AP)—A new "topless" was presented Sunday in the Italian fashion shows, a variation of the strapless theme pretty enough to give new life to the whole idea.

Glans of Milan showed a sheer white organdy pullover —over nothing. There were black linen patch pockets where they counted most.

This for sheer sport wear, shown by Glans at Boutique presentations in the Pitti Palace fashion shows here, went farther than anything unveiled in presentations the previous week in Rome. A nightie that stopped millimetres short of shock was the closest to a topless shown in Rome.

Glans's "topless" pullover with a loose turtleneck collar and cuffed short sleeves, was slightly blosued over black linen Bermuda shorts.

Other Italian boutique designers were back on the Florence scene with the easy stuff that buyers have come to expect and want from them.

Juggling geometric patterns, most in black and white, dazzled the eyes. Many used stunning gold as frequent accent.

Checkerboards and stripes —all sizes and kinds, and often dizzily mixed together—made the biggest impression. But the zaniest entry of all was a baby smock for adults with a flower-embroidered drop-seat.

Boutique collections drew a full house in the Pitti Palace's Sala Bianca for the offering of Florence's fall and winter fashion showings.

Playground Activities

BAYVIEW SCHOOL

On Friday, July 17, at 3.00 p.m. the children of Bayview School Playground put on a Nursery Rhyme show for the parents and their friends. The program consisted of:

Baton twirling, Karen Plante.
Little Miss Muffet, Lynette Gagnon, Gary Thompson and Marlene Adamson. Georgie Porgie, Pam Hollinger, Patsy Smith, Bill Armstrong, Enno Marino, Shelley Garrett, Lorette Maguire and Gary Thompson.
3 Little Kittens, Karen Plante, Pam Hollinger, Joan Smith and Susan Doherty. Jack 'n Jill, Darcel Thompson, Susan Doherty, Stephen Plante. King Cole, Stephen Plante, Laurie Tucker, Lzane Bell, Scott James, Karen Plante and Linda Bresford. Goldilocks and 4 Bears, John Vane, David Grainger, Joan Smith, Gary Thompson, Laurie McKnight. Solo, Wallis Mr. Blacksmith," Laurie McKnight. Skit, David Grainger, John Vane, Bryan Cooper, Solo, "I'm Happy," Donna Rombalds. Toy dance, Lzane Bell. "So Long" sung by all the cast.

Marlene Adamson was the MC, who did a very fine job of introducing the acts and helping to keep the show moving right along.

Mrs. Adamson all did well in their parts after only three days of practice, and the show was very successful.

After the performance the boys and girls served freshie and cookies to the audience and to the members of the cast, which was a welcome treat for everyone.

The supervisor would like to thank all those parents who helped in any way by coming and, of course, all the children who did so well in their parts, and her assistant Brenda Hollinger who did a fine job behind the scenes during the show.

In the return game between the Elithra and Bayview last Saturday, the fathers "avenged their lost loss by defeating the boys 20 to 7, in a five inning game.

The fathers, who had imported a few new faces, were on the mound for Bayview, "Pinkar Bob Smith," who was the winning pitcher, helped his own cause by batting out a two-run homer, while Everett "The Moose" Adamson made some spectacular defensive plays to help the sons' score from mounting.

R. S. Cretney added a solo homer for the sons, while Doug Thompson took the loss for the sons and he needed relief from R. S. Cretney and Don Thompson.

The next in the series is Wednesday night and all interested fathers and spectators are welcomed.

ST. PAUL'S

On July 15th, 1964 at Bayview School the St. Paul senior softball team defeated a challenger with the Bayview school softball team.

In the first game Bayview School defeated St. Paul by a score of 16 to 2. Lou LaRue and Dan Thompson did the pitching for the winners, while Ron Scrannage and Ken Cretney hit homers for the losers. Dan Thompson was the winning pitcher.

In the second game St. Paul defeated Bayview 7 to 5. Dennis Thompson hit a homer for the winners. Jim Drunan was the winning pitcher while Doug Thompson took the loss. Supervisor: Bob Cretney.

Betty Ingram, Quinte Ladies Bring Home Tourney Prizes

Saturday she won the Napanee Ladies' Field Day championship with a 72 and was given solid club backing by ten other club members.

Mrs. Ingram's second low gross at the Whitevale and Smith's Falls Ladies' Field Days with identical scores of 78 visits were made.

At Whitevale she won the longest drive prize with a 225-foot winning tricks.

Eleven club members took part in the Napanee Ladies' Field Day tourney with four winning home with prize-winning scores.

Mrs. Ena Corks won second low gross at Napanee. Madge Cowley took second low gross, third flight; Anne Fisher took second low gross, fourth flight; Mildred Wickerson won the putting in the fourth flight.

Ray of Quinte couples fared well at the RCAF Mr. and Mrs. Tournament.

Jack and Dolly Diamond won second low net with Mr. and Mrs. Art Bridges winning third low gross. Fourth low gross went to Alex and Betty Ingram and fourth low net to Dan and Mrs. Cowley. The Dykes won the field putting prize and Jim McKean took home the award for closest to the pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Corks won the hidden hole awards.

Brilliant play featured the Corke's win. Ena drove the ball from the tee to the green and Ben sank a twenty-foot putt for a two.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH

Mrs. M. Nobes welcomed the members of the Sidney Women's Institute to her home on Wednesday evening for the July meeting. During the business period it was noted that the area convention will take place at Club Canero on September 15th and 16th. plans were made for an Institute showing of house plants at Belleville Fair.

Mrs. Ross Windsor, convener for citizenship, conducted a panel discussion on leading citizens of Canada and builders of Women's Institutes. One interesting personality was Belleville born and educated Farley Mowat, author of "The Regiment." Mrs. Douglas Reid gave a reading.

Mrs. Robert Nobes, Mrs. Roy Nobes, Mrs. K. Kerr, Mrs. A. Pearce and Mrs. D. Plumpton assisted Mrs. Nobes with refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

WEDDING

MOUNTFORD — PHIPPS

St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill Anglican Church was the setting for a pretty wedding on July 18th, when Julie Margaret Phipps, daughter of Mrs. E. S. Phipps, and the late Mr. E. S. Phipps, Woldingham, Surrahire, England, became the bride of Gordon Clifford Mountford, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mountford, Belleville, Ontario.

White gladioli and pink carnations adorned the altar. Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and Mrs. J. Arnold Dunlop provided the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Arthur Wetton, was gowned in a short length princess styled summer brocade with bateau neckline and short sleeves with bow in back forming an empire waistline. Her shoulder length veil was caught by a white flower. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white shasta 'mums.

The bride's attendants were Miss Anne Mountford as maid of honor and Miss Lynne Mountford as bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in pink lace and summer brocade styled similar to the bride's. Their short veils were caught by a blue flower and they carried bouquets of white shasta 'mums.

Mr. Clyde Macfarlane of Belleville was the groomsman. Mr. John Abraham and Mr. Douglas Davidson of Tuxedo were ushers.

The reception was held following the service in St. Margaret's Church Hall where the bride's table was decorated with three-tier wedding cake topped with pink roses.

The groom's mother, Mrs. George Mountford, received the guests wearing a floral sheath with a yellow rose bud corsage. Mrs. Arthur Wetton assisted her wearing a white embroidered sheath with a corsage of yellow carnations.

For her wedding trip to New York State the bride chose a pink dress suit with a floral blouse and white accessories.

Prior to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. R. Rushton assisted by Mrs. J. Ritchie, Mrs. P. Pickering, Mrs. W. Boblin, Mrs. S. Terry and Mrs. N. Britton and at a kitchen shower in Toronto at the home of Mrs. G. Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Mountford will reside on Hastings Drive, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Edward Brown are pictured following their recent marriage in St. John's United Church, Tweed. The bride is the former Miss Anne Vance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Vance of Thomasburg. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Brown, Belleville.

BROWN — VANCE

Baskets of gladioli, 'mums and delphiniums formed a lovely setting in St. John's United Church, Tweed, for the marriage on Saturday, July 4th, 1964, of Sharon Anne Vance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Vance, Thomasburg, to Keith Edward Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Brown, Belleville. The Rev. C. R. Chapman of Port Hope, officiated at the ceremony.

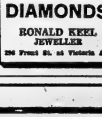
The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal gown of white organza with the lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline of lace, and long sleeves. The skirt was enhanced with a lace panel down the front and bowed at the waistline. Her shoulder length tulle veil flowed from a crown of crystal. She carried a bouquet of red roses interspersed with white carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Martin Secker of Kingston as matron of honor and the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Vance of Thomasburg, sister of the bride, and Mrs. William Bailey of Peterborough, were gowned alike in street length dresses of blue organza with short sleeves on an embroidered bodice. The bellshape skirts were accented with bows at the waist. They were matching pillbox hats with short veils and matching shoes. Each carried a nosegay of white and blue 'mums centred with three red roses.

Wedding music was provided by Fred Porter at the organ, and also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. C. R. Chapman.

Mrs. Harry Brown of Madoc, attended his brother, while Mr. Ted Finnegan of Belleville and Mr. Bedas Vance, cousin of the bride, Tweed, were the ushers.

The reception was held in St. John's United Church hall, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue and white flowered silk dress, white accessories and a corsage of pink and white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted in a blue silk dress with lace bodice, blue hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums. The bride's table was most attractive centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom. The colorful bridal bouquets added to the nuptial setting.



For the wedding trip through the eastern United States to the east coast and home by way of New Brunswick and Quebec, the bride chose a pink and white sheath with matching pink duster, white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Guests were present from Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa, Perth, Picton, Renfrew, Toronto, Trenton, Rochester, Madoc and Peterborough.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at a kitchen shower given by Miss Edith Burley of Picton, at miscellaneous showers by Mrs. Clifford Adams of Thomasburg, with Mrs. Herman Elliott and Mrs. Dave Calvert as co-hostesses; at the home of Mrs. Thomas Lynn of Tweed with co-hostesses Mrs. Martin Secker and Mrs. William Bailey, and by the pupils of U.S.S. Athol of Picton R.R. 3 (brick - frame school). A luncheon was given by Mrs. Ernest Carter and Shirley at Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are residing at 288 William Street, Belleville.

Successful Living

Seventeen-Year-Old Girl Has Problems With Boys

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 and would like to know how to treat boys. I always bring my dates into the house to meet my mother.

My mother thinks if I have gone out with someone for several months I should ask him to dinner sometime or in for a pop. But I don't think I should as it may look as if I am chasing him.

I do not go steady with anyone, but have gone out with a couple of boys off and on for a year.

Is it right to ask a boy to come to visit you in your home, or do you thank him for a nice evening and let it go at that? — NOT FORWARD.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NOT FORWARD — What this country needs is more mothers like yours. Boys like invitations too. But don't leave all the extra work involved to Mom.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am a mother of four children and am separated. My husband was a brutal drunkard.

The children are good company and I love taking care of them, but I do get very lonely and would like to go out on a date occasionally. I feel if I met a respectable man and went out occasionally it would help me forget my unhappy past.

But where and how does a woman in my position get to meet a respectable man? Would it be proper of me to ask some of my married friends to take me along to a dance when they are going? — SEPARATED AND SOLITARY.

• • •

DEAR SOLITARY — Without a divorce you don't have solo dates without censure. I also take a dim view of your inviting yourself along when your married friends go dancing.

But we need the fellowship of both sexes, and you needn't be considered for life to the company of women alone (bless their hearts!). Do what many an unattached single woman or widow does: Join the Y, a hobby group, a sports club, where membership is made up of both sexes. This is socially acceptable.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — A week ago I had my hair bleached. The bleach really burned my scalp — it was covered with scabs but is better now. Would it be safe to have the roots done in about four weeks?

I wonder if my scalp will become immune to this? Do hope you will be able to help me, as the hairdresser doesn't seem to know much about it. — BLEACHED BLONDE.

• • •

DEAR BLONDE — You may be allergic and never grow out of it. My expert on cosmetics and bleaches says see a skin specialist.

• • •

Confidential to LOVING — You should apologize for acting so childishly. So should he for refusing to speak to you. What you both need to do is to grow up a little. Jealousy has no place in a real friendship and being on not-speaking terms is for the birds.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My buddy of ten years is marrying a Catholic and turning Catholic with her. None of his family are invited to the wedding, and they don't want me to go.

He has been like an older brother to me. I fear that I've lost a great friend, that we are parted forever. Are we or are we not? It's just breaking my heart. All that I hear from my people is not to mum around with him after he's married to "that Catholic girl."

I want advice from you. Your help is always good in the paper. — HELP WANTED.

• • •

DEAR HELP WANTED — Well, he hasn't turned green or grown horns. Share your friend's joy in finding a mate.

It's far better for two marriage partners to embrace the same faith than to remain divided in this all-important area of living.

broke up a band of 100 young Negroes who had been, marching toward the funeral home.

MOTHER COLLAPSES

After the services the boy's mother, Mrs. Annie Powell, was assisted into a limousine, where she collapsed.

Private burial is scheduled for today at Hartsdale, N.Y.

At about the time funeral services were under way, bottles and other missiles began crashing in the street. Patrolmen, waving nightsticks, began charging into crowds that poured out from behind police barricades.

Police fired shots into the air. Three bus-loads of specially-trained anti-riot police arrived. People began getting knocked to the ground.

Robert E. Daly, 45, a news cameraman for the Columbia Broadcasting System, said 45 Negroes attacked him and three camera crew members while they were taking pictures. Daly, taken to hospital, said he was beaten with clubs and fists. The crew members fled.

PUNCHED IN EYE

John Ortiz, a New York Times photographer, was punched in the eye by one of a group of Negroes. One bottle struck by a Negro police sergeant.

New York's 26,000-man police force is on 12-hour shifts until further notice because of the explosive situation.

In Johnson City, Tex., Sunday, presidential press secretary George E. Reedy, said President Johnson has made it clear that federal assistance will be forthcoming any time local authorities need help in maintaining order.

The Negro killed Saturday night was identified through fingerprints as Jay Jenkins, 41, an ex-convict with a record of 10 arrests, police said. They said he had been standing on the roof of a four-storey building hurling bricks.

Showgirl Carolyn Fawcett, 24, was injured. She and her escort, Jack Lambert, 29, required hospital treatment. They were on their way to the Stadium Motor Lodge, which Lambert owns with Clete Boyer, New York Yankees' third baseman.

When the mob started hurling missiles at the car, Lambert said, he told Miss Fawcett to lie on the floor while he tried to put up his convertible top.

Miss Fawcett, who came here from England 2½ years ago, suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Harlem has been in recent turmoil over tenement conditions. Negro charges of police brutality and inadequate schools.

During Saturday night's battle, police ran out of ammunition and boxloads of shells had to be rushed in from the Bronx. The truck carrying the ammunition was protected by a pair of men armed with a shotgun and a machine-gun.

Deputy Police Commissioner Walter Arm, public relations man for the department, blamed the riots on "rowdies." He said they had the same purposes—looting—and the same excuse—alleged police brutality—as Harlem rioters in 1935 and 1943.

In 1935, one person was killed and 100 injured in a Harlem riot set off by reports that police had beaten a 16-year-old youth. In 1943, four were killed and 500 injured in riots touched off when a Negro soldier was wounded by a policeman.

Navy Helicopter Is Rescue Workhorse

By ED WALTERS

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—At first glance the helicopter looks like any of the other whirlybirds stationed at nearby Shearwater naval air base as part of HU-31 squadron.

A closer look shows an angel painted on the side, a United Nations crest on the nose and a line of maple leaves beneath the crest. Each maple leaf has stars painted on it.

The angel means the craft is used for search and rescue. The UN badge signifies service with Canadian forces in Egypt and Cyprus. And the stars tell how many persons the copter has plucked from the water.

The Sikorsky HO-4S-3 has saved 51 lives in the nine years since she was built at Bridgeport, Conn., for the Canadian Navy. And there seems to be no end in sight for the plane's career.

Lt. Cmdr. R. T. Murray, the squadron's commanding officer, says the life of a helicopter can go on indefinitely with the replacement of worn parts.

The squadron is the navy's flying workhorse. HU stands for helicopter utility. As such it trains helicopter pilots, flies search and rescue missions and acts as lifeguard for the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

FREIGHTER AGROUND

This particular helicopter's most exciting experience occurred in November, 1959, when the Liberian freighter Kismet went aground on the rocky north coast of Cape Breton Island.

Winds were gusting to 60 m.p.h. and the ship was beneath a 1,000-foot cliff. The 21-man crew was trapped and the ship was breaking up.

The helicopter, then known as 877 and piloted by Lt. Cmdr. Roger Fink and Lt. Cmdr. John Beeman, dodged under the overhanging cliff to land on the ship. They removed the entire crew.

Fink, now a commander, is operations chief at Shearwater. Beeman has left the navy.

When Canadian troops joined the United Nations Emergency Force along the Egypt-Israel border in 1956, 877 went along aboard the carrier Magnificent. The helicopter was the first part of the UN force to reach the town of El Arish where local Arabs for two months had been living in fear of the Israelis.

When the Canadian copter, with high-ranking UN officers aboard, tried to land the locals went wild with joy and swarmed around, oblivious to the danger from the rotors. The pilot was forced to hover three feet above ground and literally shake off the Arabs.

Later the pilot recorded in the aircraft's log: "This would seem to be the first time that the Canadian navy ever liberated a town. May we never have the pleasure again."

Seeking Way to Prevent Or Even Cure Diabetes

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Current medical research into the causes and effects of diabetes could lead ultimately to methods of prevention or even a cure for a disease now considered incurable.

New theories and results of the latest research into aspects of disease that afflicts nearly 180,000,000 people will be discussed at the fifth congress of the International Diabetes Federation which opened today with some 3,000 medical and lay delegates from 44 countries.

Dr. D. W. Clarke, a member of the local organizing council for the triennial congress, said in an interview Sunday that current study of conditions preceding the onset of diabetes could lead to discovery of preventive methods. He said increased understanding of glandular functions and their stimulation by drugs raises the hope that science may learn how to regenerate pancreas cells whose degeneration causes diabetes.

Meanwhile, the experts are still engaged in studies designed to find out precisely how the pancreas gland and its role of its products, insulin, work on the body and interact with other glands and organs. These fundamental questions underlie most of the research and theories to be presented in more than 180 technical papers and at 16 panel discussions between now and Friday.

SOLDIERS INJURED

LANCASTER, N.B. (CP)—Six soldiers from Camp Gagetown were in "satisfactory" condition Sunday after an army truck left the highway south of Oromocto. In hospital are the driver and Cpl. C. O. Bell, Cpl. R. W. Thompson, L.Cpl. K. A. Barrett, Pte. J. F. Peddle and Pte W Wilson. All are members of the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, from London, Ont., and were taking armored training at Camp Gagetown.

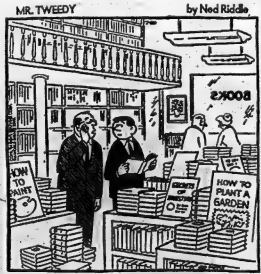
GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Six East Indians were killed in racially troubled British Guiana Saturday night and another was reported missing.

In addition, an East Indian burned in an incident last week died Sunday amid new flareups of race violence.

Charlotte Calls Off Tape Program

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton has cancelled plans to tape a 30-minute pilot program for the Canadian Television Network.



Stuart Griffiths, vice president of television station CJOH, a member of the CTV network, said published reports that the mayor might desert politics for television prompted Miss Whitton to call off the show.

The mayor was to interview well-known guests on the program.

however, and the launch, working under the direction of OPP Cpl. Gordon Stout, was unable to move the plane.

Flamingo, a 40-foot R.C.A.F. crash boat under command of Flt. Sgt. Harold Roop, eventually moved the aircraft, with lines fixed in place by Scuba dive George Woodhouse, of the city fire department. Surrounded by a flotilla of small boats, Flamingo towed the aircraft about 250 yards toward the north shore, to water about six feet deep. In the shallow water, Woodhouse and Dr. Stephen Morphy also in Scuba gear, removed the bodies about 4 p.m.

The aircraft, a Piper PA-11, was owned in partnership by Gordon Roblin of Belleville and Berton Fitzgibbon. Mr. Roblin had been flying the aircraft earlier in the afternoon. He had landed near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and turned the plane over to Mr. Fitzgibbon just a few minutes before the crash. Police are uncertain of Mr. Fitzgibbon's flight plans.

The aircraft was left in the bay overnight, with an OPP constable standing guard. Department of Transport investigators from Toronto arrived this morning to search for the cause of the crash.

HERE ON BUSINESS

A paving foreman for the H. J. McFarland Company, Mr. DeMille had come to Belleville on the weekend to advise on repairs for some of Mr. Fitzgibbon's contracting equipment.

While he was in Belleville apparently the two men decided to go for the ill-fated flight over the city.

Mr. DeMille is survived by his wife, the former Vera Biddee, a daughter, Mrs. William Jones of R.R. 2 Milford, two brothers, Don and Walter, both of Picton and a sister, Mrs. William LaPointe of Oshawa.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon from the Hicks Funeral Home in Picton.

Mr. Fitzgibbon was born on the second concession of Sidney township. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fitzgibbon.

He had lived in this community all his life and for the past 18 years had been employed as a paving and hauling contractor.

Mr. Fitzgibbon served with the Navy during World War II. He was an adherent of the Presbyterian Church.

Surviving, besides his parents, are his wife, the former Ruth Armstrong, and one son, Bruce, at home. Also surviving are two brothers, Clarence and Clifford, both of Trenton, and two sisters, Mrs. Earl (Eileen) Baker of Belleville, and Mrs. Archie (Carol) Curtis of North Bay.

Funeral on Wednesday afternoon from the chapel of the John R. Bosh Funeral Home, 90 Highland Avenue.

The Commons' schedule calls for a return to discussion of legislation putting into effect fiscal arrangements agreed upon with the provinces, once the student loans bill has been disposed of. The loan bill is at the second-reading stage — approval in principle.

Under the timetable proposed by Prime Minister Pearson a couple of weeks ago, only the student loans, fiscal arrangements and two other measures stand between the MPs and a summer vacation.

The final two measures are a bill for interim spending authority and legislation on the government's proposed maple leaf flag.

The opposition is watching closely for some definite word on the interim supply bill. The government has spending authority to the end of July. There have been reports the government will ask for another two months' supply.

But, if the government asks for three months, opposition sources say this will be a clear indication that the government plans to call a fall election.

Engines Soar 2,000 Miles Into Space

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) Two small electric engines, designed for interplanetary flights of the future, soared more than 2,000 miles into space today in their first flight test.

The engines, capable of developing speeds of 200,000 miles an hour for the unmanned space craft they may power in the future, appeared from early indications to have operated successfully.

However, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration delayed definite claims to complete success until completing a study of radio telemetry data.

Heat Bothers Canadian Boys At Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) One of the more than 600 Canadian scouts attending the sixth national jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America travelled 3,000 miles to get to historic Valley Forge.

Wayne Hewitt, 17, of Inuvik, Northwest Territories, said this weekend he is "having a ball but this heat is more than us northerners can stand."

Most of the Canadians are similarly bothered.

Andy Whyte of Ottawa, said it rained "and now it is so hot that you can hardly sleep."

mission, a U.S. spokesman said.

Premier Nguyen Khanh meanwhile said his South Vietnamese government "cannot remain indifferent" to calls for extension of the anti-Communist war into North Viet Nam. He told a boisterous National Day of Shame rally Sunday that many South Vietnamese groups — Buddhists, Roman Catholics, Students, refugees and nationalist leaders—have urged a push to reunite the country.

The rally observed the 10th anniversary of the Geneva agreement signed July 21, 1954, which partitioned Viet Nam into the Communist North and the anti-Communist South.

Johnson Hits Hate Bodies Which Use Violence, Terror To Deny Rights to Negroes

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson Saturday condemned "clandestine hate organizations" which he said use violence, terror and savagery to deny American Negroes their constitutional rights.

At the same time, Johnson by indirection criticized civil rights advocates who go outside the law to promote their cause. He urged them to tread "the path of peaceful petition and legal recourse, of free speech and free election."

And the president, at an open-air press conference at his ranch, pledged that "the federal government will always promptly assist local authorities to maintain order as long as the lives and security of our fellow citizens are in danger."

Johnson read a strongly - phrased statement on extremist activities before fielding questions that prompted him to challenge the views of Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater on involving the federal government in curbing street crime.

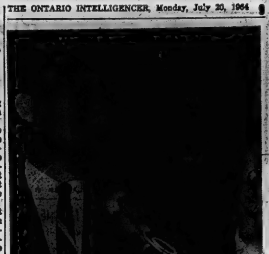
Goldwater is the Republican party's nominee to oppose Democrat Johnson in the Nov. 6 U.S. presidential election.

DEFICIT LOWER

Johnson reported, too, that the federal budget deficit for the fiscal year that ended June 30 was $8,300,000,000—$600,000,000 lower than predicted two months ago.

In response to questions, Johnson twice took issue with positions attributed to Goldwater.

First, Johnson asked about Goldwater's Thursday suggestion that the federal government concern itself with curbing crime in the streets of big cities. The president expressed the view that this was tantamount to urging a national police force and said "this would do more than anything else to concentrate power in Washington."



Second, Johnson sought to spitalize on the claims of some advisers that a Goldwater election victory would increase the chances of war. He did not refer directly to Goldwater but said that "no single statement or act of mine will be in the direction of provoking war."

Johnson also announced that he United States and Britain have jointly tested a British-made nuclear device underground in Nevada. He said the device, described as having a low yield, was detonated Friday at the U.S. atomic energy test site.

Shriners Hold Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobbing red fezzes were a familiar scene on the city streets Sunday as the Shriners, 150,000 strong, opened their 1956 convention.

Members of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from all over Canada, the United States and Mexico are holding their 90th annual imperial council session here through Friday.

QUITS PRESIDENTIAL RACE — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama says he is quitting the presidential race. The Alabama governor announced on a nationwide television program, "Face of the Nation," he is withdrawing as a candidate for president. Wallace said he had made "no secret arrangement or agreement" and added he had not been in touch with Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential candidate. (AP Wirephoto)

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Tragedy and glory were the invisible outriders that accompanied a famous world nautical racing symbol to the place of its origin the other day.

For the first time in its 61-year-old history, the Harmsworth Trophy, symbol of world hydroplane supremacy, has been returned to its British trustees for lack of a defender.

With nostalgia-flooded memories, directors of the Canadian Boating Federation made the gesture that leaves Canada the only undefeated retired champion of this heavyweight nautical class.

But what price glory!

Canada's "Miss Supertest III", considered even by generous heroes the greatest champion of them all, rests proudly on her pedestal of retirement in the nation's Hall of Sports Fame.

Her famous pilot, Bobby Hayward, rated one of the top unlimited hydroplane drivers of all time, lost his life in a sensational crash on the Detroit River in 1962 while driving her older sister "Miss Supertest II."

The impact of Hayward's sudden demise led perhaps directly to the withdrawal of Canada from Harmsworth Trophy competition.

Col. Gordon Thompson and son Jim Thompson, of London, Ont. who designed, built and sometimes drove the "Supertest" boats, felt the tragic passing of Hayward keenly.

They announced the retirement of their world champion "Miss Supertest III" and their own retirement from the field of unlimited hydroplane racing.

Apple-cheeked Bobby Hayward made Harmsworth history in 1958 when his daring driving wrested the famous trophy from its American defenders on spume-crested waves of the Detroit River.

Won by Gar Wood in 1930, the Americans had held the trophy until Hayward and Canada forced the change of "residence."

Hayward and the incomparable "Miss Supertest III" put Picton and Prince Edward County's new famous "Hayward Long Reach" in global sports headlines when they successfully defended the championship in 1960 and 1961.

The Canadian champion's marked superiority in design, speed and power plant could not be matched by American hydroplane interests. There was no challenge in 1962 when Hayward met his unfortunate end.

In 1963 in deference to and respect of the memory of the gallant Canadian driver, his boat, and his sponsors, the Americans refrained from issuing the customtomary challenge.

However with the retirement of "Miss Supertest III" and a small flotilla of new and their most powerful hydroplanes, they entered a formal challenge this year. Canada was forced to defaultbecause of the lack of a suitable defender.

The famous trophy, as was noted, was returned to London where it will remain, I assume, until a nation accepts the U.S. challenge and a new champion named.

However, Hayward Long Reach may again resound with the staccatos and purrs of world-racing craft.

A movement is afoot to organize world competition in seven-litre boats. Those sleek Lilliputians of nautical racing are rapidly gaining popularity in the United States, Canada and other nations.

Their's is not the full-throated roar and the arching fifty-foot rooster tails of the mighty unlimiteds. They are the water-sprites of the family that skim the surface with a purring deone.

Canada has several of these boats, one of which took the measure of the United States champion at a meet held in California some time ago.

The Canadian Boating Federation earlier this year made an unsuccessful attempt to have the Harmsworth Rules Committee adopt a rules change that would have the seven litres replace the unlimited hydroplanes, as trophy competitors.

NEW ARENA PLANNED

EDMONTON - (CP) — The Journal says a new $4,000,000 arena on the exhibition grounds here is under study and will be placed before city council July 27. The newspaper adds the 7,000-seat arena would replace the 50-year-old Edmonton Gardens and would and plans for a 9,000-seat downtown arena.

SWEDEN WINS

BAASSTAD, Sweden (AP)—Sweden swept into the Euro-pean zone final here later this tennis competition Sunday by taking the last two singles matches for a 3-2 series victory over West Germany. Sweden will meet France in the Euro-pean zone final here later this month.

Third Straight Shutout For Chance

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

One thing you have to say about Dean Chance is he's patriotic.

The 23-year-old pitcher for Los Angeles Angels paints the town red, whitewashes the opposition and makes them feel blue.

The ace righthander pitched his third straight shutout and sixth of the season Sunday as the Angels stopped Minnesota Twins 4-0 for a sweep of their doubleheader and moved into the American League's first division for the first time since the first week of the season. The Angels won the first game 3-5.

Chance, whose nights on the town with teammate Bo Belinsky threatened to become a legend in their time, hasn't allowed a run in 27 innings.

While increasing his record to 8-5, he has reduced his earned run average to 1.76, best in the majors.

Only Whitey Ford, 12-3, has more shutouts this season. The Yankee veteran has seven, but he has four more starts than Chance.

Meanwhile, Ford and his New York teammates made the visitims of another, shutout by Cleveland Indians' Luis Tiant, a 23-year-old Cuban righthander, stopped the Yankees 3-0 on four hits in his first major league game. The Yankees won the opener 6-2.

STOCK'S STREAK ENDS

Not so fortunate as Chance and Belinsky was Stock, a relliever whose 12-game winning streak was halted by Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 13 innings. Stock hadn't lost since July 12, 1962.

Chicago also won the second game 4-3, moving into second place, one game behind the league-leading Baltimore Orioles, who edged Detroit Tigers 5-4 while Washington Senators nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 10 innings after losing the opener 11-10.

Baltimore split a doubleheader with Detroit Saturday, winning 6-1 and losing 3-0, while Cleveland outlasted the Yankees 6-4 in 13 innings, Boston hammered the Senators 12-6 and the Angels edged the Twins 3-2 in 14 innings. The Athletics were rained out at Chicago.

Chance walked one and permitted only one runner past first base in Sunday's nightcap. His main support came from Joe Adcock, who slammed two bases-empty home runs. Lou Clinton homered following Adcock's first blast in the second inning.

DRIVES IN FOUR RUNS

Adcock drove in four runs with a double and a single in the opener. Rich Rollins hit his first career grand slam for the Twins and Harmon Killebrew added his 33rd homer, a two-run blast.

Tiant, brought up by the Indians only last Friday, allowed only a bunt single by Tom Tresh in the first five innings. He struck out 11 and walked four as he outpitched Ford. The Yankee southpaw exhibited unusual wildness, walking three Indians in the first inning, the last one forcing in a run.

Stan Bowyer and Tresch drove in two runs in the opener for New York while Roland Sheldon scattered eight hits, including homers by Tito Francona and Larry Brown.

Stock, who had won four games this season, was the victim of a two-run pinch-hit homer by pinch-hitter Gary Peters in the 13th. Athletics' starter Diego Segui gave up a bunt single in the first, but then the White Sox hitless until he left after walking the leadoff batter in the sixth.

Dave Nicholson's two - run homer and Ron Hansen's solo blast accounted for Baltimore's bases-empty homer and Jim Gentile's two-run blast for the Athletics in the second game.

Baltimore got solo homers from Boog Powell, Sam Bowens and Dave Leo in the only single game on the majors' busiest day of the year. Rookie Wally Bunker won the first game against two defeats. Jerry Lumpe, Dick McAuliffe and Bill Freehan homered for the Tigers.

Mike Brumley's two-out single in the 10th inning gave the Senators a second-game victory. Don Lock drove in six Washington runs in the double header with two homers in the opener, two doubles and a single. His first-game homer was overshadowed by Ed Brinkoski's three-run homer, two-run homers by Tony Conigliaro and Felix Mantilla and solo blasts by Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Stuart, all for the Red Sox.

Three Up On Palmer, Nicklaus

Nichols Brilliant In PGA Win

By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If Bobby Nichols had fallen off a cliff he'd have won the high-flying championship on the way down.

There apparently is no oil in the area of the Columbus Country Club, or Nichols would have struck it with a seven-iron.

Life was like that for Nichols, who won the PGA golf tournament Sunday by three strokes with a record total of 271, nine under par. About 71 of his shots were downright impossible.

"I couldn't believe them myself but I have witnesses," Nichols said.

The baby-faced youngster, 5-foot-3 and 200 pounds, finished with a 67 that held off an inspired Jack Nicklaus put in. Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who was playing before his home folks.

Nicklaus made up five strokes on Arnold Palmer in the final round, playing head - to - head with Palmer before an enormous gallery. They tied for second at 274, three strokes back.

That was the best finish yet for Palmer in the only major title he has never won.

SECOND BEST AGAIN

It made three runner-up finishes this year for Nicklaus in major championships, the Masters, the British Open and the PGA, and meant that big Jack will not be around for the ultra-rich television world series which he won the last two years.

"It was probably the finest round of golf I ever played," Nicklaus said. "It just wasn't good enough."

So torrid was the pace that Mason Rudolph shot a 69—with nine threes on the card—and faded to fourth at 276. U.S. Open champ Ken Venturi finished with a 33 on the back nine for 69 and 279, tying Tom Nieporte, a club pro from Lancaut Valley, N.Y. George Knudson of Toronto picked up $800 for his 280.

While Nicklaus was charging and Palmer was putting together a 69 in front of him, Nichols strode along behind, refusing to fold.

He knocked in putts from all over the green. On the second hole his tee shot was headed out of bounds, crashed into a tree and wound up in the middle of the fairway. He made a birdie three.

At the 10th hole, when he was temporarily tied with Palmer and Rudolph, Nichols went ahead for good with an eagle putt from 35 feet.

"When I made that putt, downhill, I knew I couldn't lose," Nichols said.

But there was more to come. At the 15th, Nichols drove into the rough, and produced "my best short of the tournament," a four iron that ran clear of the green. He promptly dropped an 18-footer for a birdie.

That was the way things had been going all week. Time and again during the tournament, Nichols made par or birdie from deep rough, sand traps or the wrong fairway.

Once he hit the flag stick with he couldn't even see it.

Defeats Magee 3 AND 2

Moe Norman Wins 1st Millar

TORONTO (CP)—Moe Norman, the clown prince of Canadian golf, turned up with a red-hot putter Saturday and won his first Canadian professional match play golf championship after seven attempts in his eight years as a pro.

The 34-year-old Toronto golfer defeated Jerry Magee of Toronto 3 and 2 in the final to win the Millar Trophy and the $1,000 first-place prize money, then promptly credited his hot streak to Alvie Thompson, last year's winner.

"I took a lesson from Alvie Friday night and it sure helped. He claimed I was moving my head and shoulders too much when I was putting and this was so good."

Thompson, another Toronto golfer, had been eliminated Friday as the big names fell in a rash of upsets over the 6,540-yard Pine Valley course.

The victory was sweet consolation for Norman. He had been defeated in the Ontario Amateur nine years ago by Masee in the final match.

With the pressure deepening, Nichols hit into a trap at 16, came out strong and made a 15-footer for a par. And on the short 17th, he knocked in a putt that he stepped off at 51 feet.

The victory was worth $18,000 in prize money for Nichols, plus twice that in immediate extra benefits.

Some of the money will go to a shrine to St. Jude. "I sort of promised that I would build one if I won," Nichols said.

St. Jude is the patron saint of the impossible.

Norman turned professional the following year and was thus prevented from ever getting his name on the Ontario amateur trophy. One other major trophy has thus far eluded Norman, the Canadian Open.

It took six rounds of golf for Norman, the non-conformist of golf who shoots without considering the shot and frequently carries on a discussion with the gallery, to win the Millar.

Magee, whose putter turned cold Saturday, won $650 and the Harold Kalles Memorial Trophy. He is the first winner of the trophy since it was donated after the death of Kalles in a freak golfing accident last year when a club shaft broke and slashed his throat.

"I think I should have taken a few lessons from Alvie myself," Magee said after he missed three short putts, including a four-foot shot on the 18th hole.

Bob Rose of Toronto lost to Norman 6 and 5 in the semi-finals. Norman had taken the lead from the first hole and scored four birdies en route to the win.

Magee defeated 1962 champion Frank Wahley of Kitchener in his semi-final match. Both golfers were even after 18 holes but Whibley faded on the 14th, 15th and 16th holes and Magee wound up 3 and 2.

East. Ont. Qualifying

Minors Tie, Lose Pair

Ellis Printers Bantams played to a 4-4 deadlock with their counterparts in Kingston Sunday afternoon, while their younger Belleville buddies failed to fair as well in Eastern Ontario Minor Baseball qualifying games.

Kingston Little League All-Stars clipped Belleville Pewee Merchants 11-7 while Kingston Tykes whipped Belleville Tykes 13-6.

The same clubs go back at it in Belleville next Saturday and in Kingston again on Sunday.

The Bantam tilt was a candy with Belleville leading 2-0 in the first and 3-0 after 7½ innings. Kingston tied it on catcher Clyde Harris' three-run homer in the bottom of the 8th. Belleville moved in front 4-3 in the top of the ninth but Kingston came back to tie it once again.

John Holgate pitched the distance for Ellis Printers, allowing seven hits, striking out eight and walking eight. Dave Smith, Doug Harding, Gord Potter and Ron Lawson shared the Kingston duties. They also gave up seven hits, fanned seven and walked eight.

Clifford Scott starred for Belleville with two singles and two great fielding plays. Gary Burnette also got two singles, Howard Wark one plus three RBIs, Barry Burnette and J. Holgate a single each.

John Westlake, with two hits, and C. Harris with a homer, paced Kingston.

In Pewees, the Marchants led 4-0 before a bad fifth inning allowed Kingston to score seven times.

Daryl Demers, Wayne Farrell and Jim Wood, had six hits apiece, pitched for Belleville. They gave up 11 hits, fanned four and walked five.

Big Harvey Stymest stopped Belleville on five hits, whiffing seven and walking three.

Glen Carleton, with two, Brian Coughlin, Ron Jury and Craig Adams, got the Belleville hits. Dave Higgins, Don Higgins, H. Stymest and Brian Gray belted two hits apiece for Kingston.

Belleville held a 6-3 lead in the Tyke game but pitcher Ron McTaggart, working on a one-hitter, was ejected from the game for throwing his bat in the third inning. Danny Luguette and Dean Lang finished up, unable to hold the lead. They gave up seven hits in all, fanned eight and walked seven.

Craig Gavel, taking over from Wayne Bonney in the third, pitched fine no-hit ball and struck out 12 men for Kingston. Bonney had allowed two hits and whiffed four. They walked six.

Lawrie Burnette and Danny Lupenette got the only Belleville hits. Tom Murphy was the lone Kingston player with a pair.

Australians Sweep Davis Cup Round

Roche Brilliant

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Australia has passed the first milestone en route to the Davis Cup challenge.

Mervyn Rose, captain Harry Hopman's lieutenants with direction and stingy on complotment, broke Gardnar Mulloy and admitted that 19-year-old Tony Roche may be the weapon Australia needs to recapture its position as the world's tennis power.

"This boy could be another Laver or better," Hopman said after the Aussies swept their Davis Cup tie against Canada in five straight matches. "He's versatile and has all the natural ability and, as you saw, he can play brilliantly."

The Aussies lost only one set in the 25 played over the three-day North American zone semifinal, but didn't spend much time savoring the sweet taste of victory. They left immediately for Mexico City, where the final will be played against Mexico.

The Aussies clinched the tie Saturday with a 6-2, 6-2, 8-6 doubles win by Wimbledon champ Roy Emerson and Roche over Canada's Franoois Godbout and Keith Carpenter. They added salt to the wound Sunday with a rapid-fire victories in the exhibition singles.

Roche turned in the most impressive performance of the day, taking only 32 minutes to demolish Godbout in straight sets of 6-3, 6-2.

In the other match, John Newcombe defeated Canada's Ian Gets of Vancouver 8-3, 6-0, 6-4. The 20-year-old Aussie gave Gets a rough introduction to Davis Cup play, leaving the Canadian exhausted with his well-placed shots.

It was the first time Roche and Emerson played as a team in doubles and, in fact, it was Roche's debut in cup competition.

"It's not hard to play against anyone when Emerson is covering three-quarters of the court," said a modest Roche.

Emerson played at half-speed because of a slight muscle pull in his right side that took the power out of his serve and forced him to volley the net. He found no difficulty at that position, however, as he intercepted shots aimed at Roche and slammed them back between the Canadian pair.

The injury kept Emerson out of his slated match against Godbout on Sunday, but the 18-year-old tennis whiz said it wasn't serious.

Hotel Teams Score Wins

Hyllie Bryant's solo homer in the top of the eighth inning gave Belvedere Hotel a 4-3 victory over Lightfoot Construction in one of two Commercial Softball League games played yesterday.

In the other tilt, City Hotel nosed a notch closer to first place by edging Point Anne Contractmen 3-2. Both games were postponed earlier last week.

Lightfoots held a 3-0 lead over Belvedere before the winners scored two in the sixth and another in the seventh inning to force extra innings. Then came Bryant's circuit blast to win it. In the bottom of the eighth, Sheridan was cut down at the plate in a close play, attempting to score from first after Dolan's two-out fly was dropped.

Veteran Jimmy Jay hurled six-hit ball to get the victory. He struck out five and walked a pair. George Young was tagged for 10 hits in defeat, whiffing seven and passing four.

Jack Jones paced the Belvedere hitters with a double and two singles while Joe Clapp got one of each. Bryant's homer, Mike Ryan's double and singles by Ted Casson, Bob Benn and Jimior Day completed the attack.

Jim Sheridan was best for Lightfoots with a double and single. Bey McLean and Ken Brooks had doubles, Don Dolan and John Herard singles.

City Hotel also overcame a 3-0 deficit, scoring their game with two runs in the sixth. They got a fine one-hit pitching chore from Dave Feaney. Feaney, who fanned seven and walked four, lost his no-hitter when Perry Ellis rapped a fourth-inning single. A walk and two errors off Point Hotel hurler Ken runs across in the third inning.

G. Smith hit a homer to get one back for City in the fourth. In the sixth, two walks, Hunter's sacrifice, a passed ball and Ed Donovan's clutch single chased home the tying and winning runs.

J. Stewart, and Kimmett in the sixth, pitched six-hit ball for the Cementmen. Stewart fanned one and walked three. The losers played errorless ball while the winners bobbled five times behind Feeney's one-hitter.

Ed Donovan had two singles and Gord Smith his homer for City. J. Mertin, M. Hawkins and J. Mullins also hit safely.

Seasonal Marks Broken At Raceway Meet

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Records were tumbling in new highs at the Quinte Driving Club's Raceway meet here Saturday night.

Thirty-eight horses went to the barrier. The best bet-happy crowd of the season (over 750), saw their favorites win and lose. The pari-mutuels "handled" nearly $8,300.

The weather was perfect and the nine heats had photo-finish movie cameras in action in almost every event.

Winning bettors went home happier than usual. Six of the nine winners paid off in double figures. The daily double paid $90.90 and the quinella twins were worth $42.20 and $19.80.

Five years was $48.10 paid by Tester Second driven by veteran owner-driver Vern Keyes of Gananoque in the dash-best of the fifth race.

Tester nosed out Ben Carey, favorite acquired and driven by Jack Jeffery, in a thrilling stretch duel to the wire. Direct Dillard led the eight-horse field to the half, but Ben Carey took over at the stretch turn then failed to hold off Tester's bid. Lu Attorney was third in both heats.

Tester dropped out of competition in the mile sweat with Hal's Fence grabbing an early lead and leading the pack home by a six-lengths margin. The Hunt horse paid $12.10.

Betty Chief, fifth in the second race, paid $24.60 to win the second heat of the event after a close stretch battle with Jacken the first heat winner.

Drive N. Jones did fine pilotting job with White Face Lad sending the horse home the winner in the third race dash and missing a repeat win in the mile heat photo finish behind Mr. Spudkay.

Riverdale Bill driven by Campbellford's L. Fry led the pack in the one-heat first race at the half mile but barely threw back the challenge of Ky Jake and Earlylake John in the stretch.

Earlylake John surged from the pack behind the two leaders from the top of the turn to win money. The winner paid $15.80.

The N. Edwards Belleville entry of Sandy MacDuff and Red Gun finished one-two in Friday night's first race. The race but Little Joe Grattan and Billy Sunday H stole the thunder in the stretch drive.

It looked like the Sunday horse all the way until Little Joe made his bid on the stretch turn after Moonlight Dolly had led the field. The Grattan horse with a surging drive won by a nose over the Reta Hertzigian entry with Sandy MacDuff rearing up from the pack to win the show money. The winner paid $20.80.

The actual paid admissions amounted to 694 but this number was augmented by season ticket holders, courtesies exhanded to drivers etc.

Popularity of the meets is increasing, stretching to points beyond the perimeters of host district. A number of people from Kingston, Peterborough and other distance points were in attendance.

Swim Championship

14 Records Go By Board

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Four Canadian and 10 Ontario records were set here Saturday at Themes Pool in the Ontario outdoor swimming and diving championships.

London Y Aquatic Club won the meet with 107 points.

Louise Kennedy of London set a Canadian and Ontario record of 1:17.9 in the girls 13 and 14 100-yard backstroke. She had the former Canadian and provincial mark of 1:17.8. She also set an Ontario mark of 1:06.3 in the 110-yard freestyle, bettering her old record of 1:07.6. The Canadian record is 1:06.0 set by Vancouver's Mary Stewart in 1960.

Louise also helped the London Y race to an Ontario senior women's 200-yard medley relay record of 2:22.2.

Louise's younger brother, Bill, also broke Canadian and Ontario records of 36.3 in the Ontario records of 36.3 in the strokes by winning his heat in 35.5.

Patti Thompson of Hamilton Aquatic became the first Canadian girl to break five minutes in the 440-yard freestyle when she was clocked in 4:58.5 in winning the senior women's final. She broke her own Canadian and Ontario records of 5:04.5 which she set in 1962.

Russell Potter turned in a time of 36.5 in the 13-14 boys' 35-yard breaststroke for a new combined Canadian and Ontario record. The old time of 36.1 was broken in Saturday's heats by Ken Stoddart of St. Catharines with a time of 37 seconds. Stoddart was second in the finals with the same time.

HOOKS FIRST TUNA

HALIFAX (CP) — The first bluefin tuna caught by rod and reel in Nova Scotia waters this summer was hooked off nearby Cole Harbor Saturday by sports fisherman George Rich. His fish is about nine fet long and is estimated to weigh more than 500 pounds.

First Eastern Victory

Brockville Stops Joyces 7-5

Brockville Beavers may not win many games in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's senior division but at least when they do, it's against the pick of the pack.

The Beavers chalked up their initial victory of the season in the Cotton loop on Saturday, downing the front-running Belleville Joyce Realty squad 7-5 in Brockville.

Joyces scored twice in the first frame but the Beavers clipped back to even it in the second and led 6-2 after four innings and 7-4 after five. The losers' final marker came in the seventh.

The Realty squad makes its final home stand tonight and the season here tonight, clashing with the Oshawa Merchants. Game time is 8.30 at the Fairgrounds.

Brockville put their hitting shoes on in the seventh inning against starter and loser Jerry McLean and later Dave Lewis. They collected ten hits and six blanked only in the first. McLean struck out four, allowing six hits, while Lewis walked five. Three walks and a hit batter were also charged to McLean while Lewis passed two.

Bob Wilson was tagged for nine hits but played the route after a shaky first on the Brockville slab. He struck out 11 and handed out four free passes.

Souls doubled and Weston and Morris tripled to drive back singles for Joyces' 2-0 lead. Wilson also walked a man in the first but without McGrimmon to strand a pair.

McBride clouted a triple after two outs in the Beaver second and Glass' lead-off homer put the homesters ahead to stay in the third. They chased McLean in the fourth with McBride's single, singles by Snider and Wilson, an error and a walk, plating three runs. Lewis gave up the triple and an error in the fifth.

A walk, error, Anselstine's two-bagger and a two-run double by Hunter got Belleville's second pair across. Anselstine and Hunter again hit doubles to close the scoring in the seventh.

Pat Anselstine and Moe Hunter paced the Joyce hitters, each with a pair of doubles, while Jim Souls singled twice. Larry Mowatt and John McKibbon a single apiece.

Brian McBride tripled and doubled, Fitzpatrick and Don Snider each singled twice and Dave Lewis, his home run on the Beavers' behalf. Singles by Keith Miller and Bob Wilson, plus Jerry Coughlin's triple, completed the attack. Fitzpatrick's two hits came in as many trips after he replaced an Injured Art Pearce in the fifth inning.

Scorer — Terry Latchford.

Helleur Edges Hilton

TORONTO (CP) — Kay Helleur of Toronto, with one point more than Sue Hilton of London, will take fourth spot on Ontario's inter - provincial golf team.

The three other members of the team are Marlene Stuart Streit of Toronto; Gail Harvey of suburban Scarborough and Mary Stanhope Cole of nearby Woodbridge.

There was some doubt as to the fourth place finisher after the Ontario Ladies' Open golf championship at London, Ont., Friday. Reports said Miss Hilton and Miss Helleur were tied. However, a Canadian Ladies' Golf Union official said here Sunday Miss Helleur had won the fourth and final place on the team.

Puppets Top McHale's Navy For Embarrassing Moments

The television viewers have learned to love and laugh at Senjo Chuck Parker, the bumbling, self-confident officer of ABC's McHale's Navy comedy series. Tim Conway, who plays the part, writes the following article for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

Written for the AP
By TIM CONWAY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the questions television communists always ask is "What was your most embarrassing moment?" I've had my share, especially since becoming involved with the McHale's Navy gang.

But after more or less sober reflection, I think the topper was what my friend Ernie Anderson and I refer to as "the hair job."

Ernie and I had worked together for three years at KYW TV in Cleveland. On the side we wrote comedy - type commercials, but most of our time was spent in telling each other that the public deserved to see us on our own show.

Finally, we got a program developed and ready — we thought—for an audition.

The format was a 15-minute hand puppet show with snappy jokes. We didn't rehearse with puppets. We couldn't afford them.

At last the big day came. There was no stage for the puppet show, so we draped a tablecloth over two chairs and sat on the floor. For puppets, we placed hair on the backs of our hands and drew eyes on our fingers.

At audition time we were joined by one tired cameraman, unhappy about working overtime, and five more men, disgruntled about working maritime.

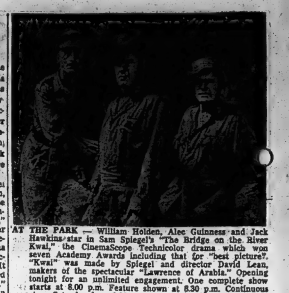
We had n't rehearsed our "hand" puppets and unforeseen problems came up:

Ernie we had all four hands in the air we discovered—at the end of the first page—that there was no way to turn the pages. After a moment of panic, I sucked up a page with my mouth and blew it away. This didn't help the delivery of the comedy line I was involved in at the moment.

For men in our physical condition, it was cruel and unusual punishment to keep hands over our heads after the first two minutes.

The pain, and the business with the pain turning, induced hysterical laughter—not from the audience, but from us. At the end of five minutes we were in an agony of hilarity.

When we were finished—and I mean exactly that—the cameraman was still unsmiling. The agents mumbled that maybe a more efficient act and a few weeks at the YMCA would help the act, and left hastily.



At last the big day came. There was no stage for the puppet show, so we draped a table-

Braves Jump To Fourth Spot

Callison Homer Keeps Phillies On Top

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

John Bateman and Johnny Callison played give-and-take with the National League lead but Milwaukee Braves made their mark playing leap-frog.

Houston catcher Bateman clubbed a two-out ninth inning strike in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader against San Francisco and then pitched later Jim Ray Hart homered for a 4-2 victory over the Colts.

The Giants also won the nightcap 1-0 and had the league lead in their grasp until Philadelphia Phillies took it away from them.

The Phils had dropped their doubleheader opened to Cincinnati Reds 7-4 and were trailing 2-1 in the second game when the Giants-Colts final got seated on the scoreboard.

Then Callison duplicated his All-Star game heroics with a three-run ninth-inning homer. The Phils held on for a 4-3 verdict and a first-place margin of four percentage points over the Giants.

The torrid Braves trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 6-2 and 5-4, and climbed from a tie for sixth place into fourth, six games off the pace. They now have won 10 of their last 13 games and 16 of their last 22.

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs pounded out 27 hits for 9-5 and 5-1 decisions over Los Angeles Dodgers while St. Louis Cardinals rallied for four ninth-inning runs and edged New York Mets 7-6 after the Mets won the opener 3-2.

On Saturday the Reds clobbered the Phillies 14-4, Houston nipped the Giants 2-1, Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers tamed the Cubs 5-1, St. Louis overwhelmed the Mets 15-7 and Pittsburgh thumped Milwaukee 8-2 with the second game of a scheduled doubleheader being rained out.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Batting—Joe Adcock, Angels, drove in six runs with two homers, a double and a single Sunday as Los Angeles swept a doubleheader over Minnesota Twins 8-6 and 8-0.

Pitching—Luis Tiant, Indians, shut out New York Yankees 3-0, outpitching Whitey Ford with a four-hitter Sunday in major league debut after Yankees defeated Cleveland 6-2 in opening game of twin bill.

Saturday's Puzzle Solved:

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 21

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Hold back on correspondence, travel, decisions involving long-range plans. Avoid definite commitments. There are details which require study. Take time to be certain of facts.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Aid due from unexpected source. There appears to be reason for elation. But try to balance emotions. Very good for delving beneath surface indications. You don't get lost.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Don't be overbearing. Applies especially where domestic family activities are concerned. Your sense of humor may strike some the "wrong way." Apply touch of diplomacy.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Ideas sparkle ... but you have tendency to put into action. Key is overcoming fear of unknown. Step toward the challenge. Show that you are confident. Others will express admiration.

Leo (July 23 to August 23) So much in your favor you may become suspicious. Fine to maintain healthy degree of skepticism ... but don't bite hand that feeds you. You have much to do. Get on with it.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22) Conflict exists between what you want to do....and what must be accomplished. Key is to finish what you start. Answer to current problem comes from older family members.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be "lenient." Give ground, make concessions. Many may seek moral support. Resist tendency to criticize. Make new friends by extending sympathy -- and by showing real interest of important people. You would make excellent agent, promoter, salesman. People "like" to have you around.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Pressures appear in area related to income, potential earning power. Could affect mate or business partner. Seek ways of economizing. Permit full rein to natural curiosity.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) You are attracted to situation or person not necessarily good for you. Sense of fantasy surrounds you. Press actually is not greener "across the way".

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 19) Don't try to force issues. Better to relax -- dine out, attend theatre or other entertainment. You would only waste time, energy by isolating on immediate decisions.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Excitement of intellectual curiosity prevails. You can find answers to current puzzles. Investigate. Ask questions.... consult with experts. Remain alert, receptive.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Satisfaction due from job well performed. You can now receive recognition from one you respect. Day to enjoy fruits of labor. You are to be congratulated.

If today is your birthday you have way of attracting interest of important people. You would make excellent agent, promoter, salesman. People "like" to have you around.

Asks Formation United States Of Africa

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuters)—President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana Sunday reiterated his call for a United States of Africa.

He told the 33 delegates to the African summit conference "only a union government can guarantee Africa's survival."

Nkrumah declared before the leaders of the Organization of African Unity that the only difference between African states on the issue was the urgency and not the necessity of such a union.

He urged an immediate union.

Rebels Seize Katanga Town

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—The Congolese town of Bandoniville, about 350 miles north of here, was reported Sunday to have fallen to rebels.

The rebels already hold large areas of North Katanga province south of Albertville, the rebel-held North Katanga capital.

Radio reports said a group of 45 rebels had taken control of Bandoniville.

National Congolese Army soldiers withdrew from the town following reports from refugees that "a large number of rebels" were advancing.

DOWNTOWN MERCHANTS
HERE IS PARKING SPACE

As the ratio of cars to parking space becomes ever more lopsided — the trend of buying in town and cities across Canada shows a gradual but definite swing towards stores with free abundant parking space at the door.

In anticipation of this movement towards "drive to the door shopping" forward looking firms are now securing future dominance by securing key sites on North Front Street.

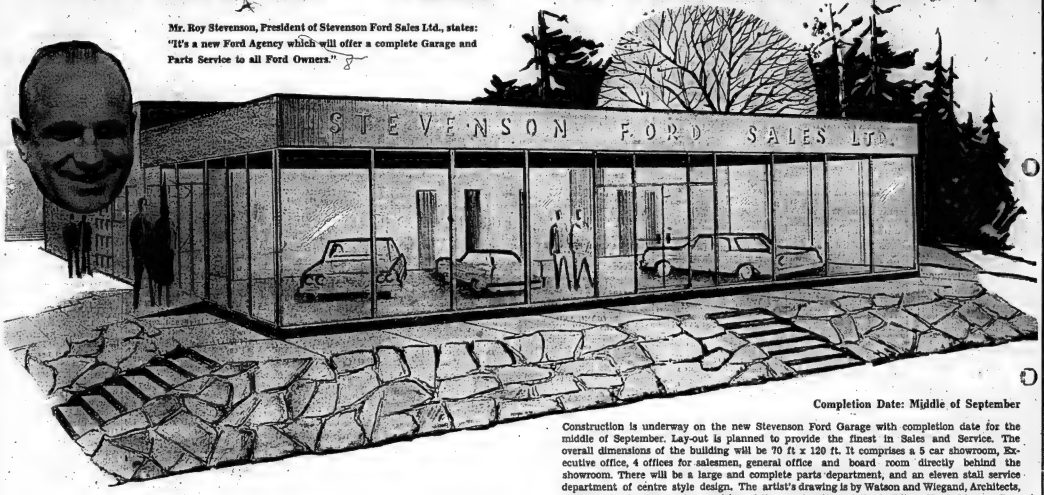
I am pleased in this regard to serve as exclusive agent for the following important properties on this vital No. 14 highway artery between downtown and 401.

EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR—

PROPERTY 1:
On the east side of North Front Street. Highway frontage 150 feet, depth 300 feet. Suitable for individual store or ultra modern shopping plaza-up to six units.

PROPERTY 2:
On the west side between Hooper Motors and R. L. Roddy Co. 300 foot highway frontage by 767 foot depth to Foley St. Suitable for large supermarket, variety store or multi-store shopping plaza. One of the largest available North Front St. properties. Adjacent to Foley St. extension from new Parkdale industrial development.

You can buy the land and build for yourself or I will construct the entire project to your specifications.



Now is the time to replace or augment your downtown business.

Medicare Plan Must Wait Tax Study - - LaMarsh

Federal Health Minister Opens Two-Day Parley

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Monday the start of public medical care insurance on a national level in Canada—as well as expansion of the existing hospital insurance program—must await a detailed study of the country's tax structure.

Miss LaMarsh, speaking to reporters after the opening of a closed two-day conference of health ministers, was referring to the federal-provincial ministerial study envisaged by the premiers and Prime Minister Pearson at their Quebec City conference last spring.

That study has not yet begun. As conceived in Quebec, it was to be a "review in depth" of Canada's tax resources in relation to the financial responsibilities of the federal and provincial governments. An interim report was to be made by the end of this year, with a definitive version in early 1965.

However, as Miss LaMarsh in the prime minister's office said later Monday that the committee to make the study probably will begin this fall.

Speculation here is that a detailed report will take at least a year.

WARNS OF COST

Miss LaMarsh cautioned in her opening statement to the health conference that the recent recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services involve big expenditures.

(The Hall report said Canada's present system of health services will cost $6,625,000,000 by 1971. It said that for another $685,000,000—probably raised by higher taxes—Canada could have a greatly expanded system, including complete medical care for everybody.

Miss LaMarsh said her impression of opening statements by several of the provinces was that they are concerned over the cost of such a system and some felt that the Hall commission underestimated the amount of additional money needed.

However, the principle of medical care insurance was supported to have drawn support from all provinces although Ontario and Quebec have not, for the moment, to establish such a program."

Miss LaMarsh said it would take at least six months to prepare for a full-fledged conference.

Toronto Firm Gets Big Contract For Power Project in Himalayas

TORONTO (CP) — Foundation Overseas Ltd. of Toronto has been awarded the major contract in the building of a $65,000,000 hydro-electric power project in the Himalayan foothills of northwest India, a Douglas McKee, company president, disclosed Monday.

He said the contract was the product of 11 months of negotiations with the Uttar Pradesh state electricity board and would be a joint venture with Electrowatt (Private) Ltd. of India, with Foundation as the sponsoring company.

Get Writ For Jailing Of Banks

MONTREAL (CP)—A Quebec Superior Court writ ordering the immediate jailing of Hal Banks to serve a 30-day sentence for contempt of court has been obtained, a spokesman for Upper Lakes Shipping Limited said today.

A bailiff was to pick up the writ "for coercive imprisonment" and probably would set on it later today, the spokesman said. The writ ordered the bailiff to "seize Banks and deliver him" to jail.

The 30-day sentence was imposed on Banks, deposed head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), last September. The contempt charge alleged that SIU members continued to picket on Upper Lakes vessel at Trois-Rivieres, Que., in May, 1962, despite a court injunction.

The Supreme Court of Canada last month turned down a bid by Banks to appeal the conviction.

Inquire if Reds Shipping U. S. Wheat to Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department has asked the Soviet embassy for a report on whether Soviet government ships have shipped American wheat to Cuba.

Capt. Arthur H. Fertig, master of a tanker that delivered wheat to a Soviet Black Sea port last week, said he observed the grain be delivered being loaded aboard a Soviet ship. He said he learned from Soviet sailors "that the grain was going to Cuba."

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said Monday Fertig's report has been passed on to the department.

McCloskey said that the license under which the U.S.-sold wheat to the Soviet Union "prohibited any such shipment" as the delivery of the American wheat by Russia to Cuba.

Majority Has Some Rights

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) —With time running out in the Commons sitting Monday night, veteran parliamentarian H.W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) seemed a leadpipe cinch for the best quote of the day.

"The morals of the society in which we live . . . are dog-safdo morals plastered over with a superficial layer of professed Christianity on the part of those who support the system," he said.

On an ordinary night, there would be nothing better. But Finance Minister Gordon spoke after Mr. Herridge and from the dull depths of a constitutional argument issued out this nugget:

"The majority has some rights, even in this country."

While Mr. Herridge and Mr. Gordon were well ahead of the field in dropping the most quotable epigrams, Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) fired the shrewdest remarks of the day. In a speech entitled "Mr. Fisher accused Quebec Conservatives of "petty, nasty and dirty tactics" in opposing the government's student loan legislation.

And with equal anger, Paul Martineau (PC—Montmorency—Temiscamingue) jumped to his feet to demand a withdrawal. Mr. Fisher complied.

END FOURTH DAY

What raised the quotes and tempers was the fourth day of debate on the government proposal for guaranteeing bank loans to university and technical school students.

Most opposition members from Quebec who spoke on the bill during the day said the proposed legislation represented a flagrant violation of provincial rights. Virtually all of the other speakers supported the bill.

It was this situation that prompted Mr. Gordon's quote. The same situation raised the ire of Mr. Fisher.

". . . We think the majority of the people in English-speaking Canada wants this bill and will approve us voting for it," Mr. Fisher said. "But what are we hearing from this group from Quebec in the Conservative benches? What is the other side of the double frustration, that when the majority of the people in this country want something and the government does take this timid step, they are supposed to be invading provincial rights, despite the fact that the provincial governments were consulted on this.

"If you disagree with this bill as constitutional grounds, state your point and vote against it."

When a second reading was called, the seven Creditiste members present were joined by four Conservatives in opposing the motion, but the combined strength of other MPs accepted the protest 144 to 11. The bill immediately went into clause - by - clause study which continues today.

CAN OPT OUT

Mr. Gordon said it is difficult to reconcile the view of an infringement on provincial jurisdiction when provinces were free to opt out of the plan and get the cash equivalent. Quebec had already announced it would do this.

Fred Stenson (PC — Peterborough) supported the bill and urged its quick passage. But he said the government must begin to work on the problem of the financing of universities, like Trent University recently established in his riding.

Makarios Says Turks Made Import of Arms Inevitable

NICOSIA (AP) — President Makarios of Cyprus says he shares United Nations concern over the weapons buildup on the war-torn island, but blames Turkey for the import of weapons by his Greek-Cypriots.

The archbishop indicated the Greek-Cypriot arms buildup will continue.

Makarios said in a cable to UN Secretary-General U Thant Monday that the Greek action was "rendered inevitable" by invasion threats from Turkey and by continued smuggling of Turkish arms and military personnel onto the island. He said the weapons are needed "to protect the country from threatened external invasion as well as from actual internal subversion."

Thant had appealed to the governments of Cyprus, Turkey and Greece to land no more arms on the east Mediterranean island.

Since Thant's message was sent, a UN spokesman said, no arms imports or landings of military personnel had been observed on the Turkish side.

But a shipload of what appeared to be military material was unloaded secretly Sunday in the Greek-Cypriot port of Limassol and was carried inland in a blacked-out convoy of 36 trucks.

Three more ships were reported waiting off Limassol, apparently to land supplies.

Makarios is expected to meet with Premier George Papandreou.

Liberals and Tories Play At Brinkmanship in House

OTTAWA (CP)—The government and the Opposition parties appear to be playing a game of political brinkmanship.

Informants expect the next two weeks will decide whether Parliament gets a summer recess and whether there's any chance of a fall election.

The current point of interest among members of Parliament is whether they will get a break from sittings between now and September.

But a decision on this is tied up with the election question as well.

As it now stands, only four or five major items of business stand between MPs and a holiday, but one of them is the government's proposed maple leaf flag which a number of Progressive Conservatives are dead set against.

The government has said it plans to keep Parliament in session until the flag issue is decided on the flag. But first it wants approval of the student loans legislation and the defence debate and a bill implementing fiscal arrangements arrived at in federal-provincial conference over the last eight months.

And in addition the government wants interim spending authority to pay its bills beyond the end of July when the current spending powers expire.

The Conservatives are said to have told the government just as firmly that the legislative items—except for the flag—can be cleared up within the next 10 days provided the govern-

Poland Greets Nikita

CP from AP-Reuters

WARSAW — Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived in Warsaw today to help Poland celebrate its 20th anniversary as a Communist nation and to confer with three other Red chiefs of Eastern Europe.

Khrushchev, accompanied by his wife, Nina, grinned broadly as he waved his hat to a crowd of 10,000 at Warsaw's airport.

The Soviet premier exchanged kisses on both cheeks with Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. Khrushchev arrived minutes after Czechoslovak President Antonin Novotny and East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht.

Khrushchev is to spend two days in Warsaw taking part in events marking the birth of Poland's Communist government in Soviet-held Lublin July 22, 1944.

Polish officials said Khrushchev's crammed schedule left little time for political talks with Gomulka and the other Communist leaders. But they are expected to find time to consult privately on bloc problems including the Moscow - Peking split.

SAYS RED TALKS

The Kremlin has indicated it may be on the verge of issuing a call for preparations for a world conference of Communist parties despite Chinese threats to boycott such a series.

Novotny and Ulbricht, Moscow's staunchest East-bloc supporters in the dispute, have repeatedly endorsed the idea of a showdown meeting.

China has showed signs of wavering, apparently sharing the fears of other Communist leaders that such a meeting could do irreparable damage to the world Communist movement.

Meanwhile, the government today declared an amnesty for several categories of criminals, but excluded hooligans, bribetakers, embezzlers and drunken drivers.

Harlem Simmers After Rioting Disturbances

Mayor Robt. Wagner Cuts Vacation Short

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Turbulent Harlem simmered down today from two nights of racial rioting and a third of continued disturbances.

Police pistol fire still shattered the air Monday night. Hundreds of steel-helmeted police—looters broke store windows. A melee between police and bar patrons wrecked a tavern.

Two dozen persons, including three policemen were injured. There were a score or more arrests.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner's office reported after he was given a report on the situation by telephone that he was returning today from a European vacation.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said in a statement he had been in touch by telephone with President Johnson's aides. He said "nothing conclusive" came of the talks.

FOLLOW OUTBREAKS

C.O.R.E. set up a makeshift first aid station at its office and kept track of outbreaks of violence by walkie-talkie radio.

Acting Mayor Paul Screvane said a grand jury would consider today the case of the white detective lieutenant who fatally shot a 15-year-old Negro boy. Demonstrations after the slaying touched off the first of the riots, in which one man was killed and more than 100 were injured.

The detective said he shot the boy in self-defence.

Screvane also said that more Negro policemen would be sent into Harlem.

FIRE IN SHOPS

Police fired warning shots in the air Monday night to disperse several crowds when they appeared to get unruly. The largest demonstration was a relatively orderly march by about 1,000 persons across several blocks along 125th Street. At Second Avenue police fired into the air and broke it up.

Later, a crowd of about 250 marched in circles in the street, chanting "We want Justice." Then they moved to a commercial area. Shouts of "Get some dig'n" started, police moved in, fired shots in the air and the crowd dispersed.

Disorders also broke out in the predominantly Negro Bedford - Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. They started police said, with a demonstration by about 100 members of the C.O.R.E., who appeared calm

Solution Makes All Miserable

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Britain's struggling aircraft industry received swell gloom headlines today following a statement by Aviation Minister Julian Amery — dubbed "Minus Amery" by the mass-circulation Daily Mirror.

Amery announced Monday in the House of Commons a compromise solution to the problem of new long-range VC-10 jets ordered but not wanted by the publicly-owned British Overseas Airways Corporation.

The aviation minister said BOAC will take 17 of the 30 Super VC-10s it has on order. The RAF will take three and work on the other 10, suspended a year ago at BOAC's request, will be kept at a stand-still for the present.

Says the Conservative Daily Mail: "Mr. Julian Amery has produced one of those magnificent British compromises that manages to make everybody concerned miserable."

Sir Gilbs Guthrie, the merchant - banker brought in as BOAC chairman early this year to put the airline on a business basis, had turned thumbs down on the VC-10s because they are more expensive to operate than United States Boeing 707s.

There have been agonized protests that the debate over the VC-10 is increasing jobs elsewhere may be damaging overseas sales for the high-performance aircraft which is for striking short-takeoff and landing capabilities.

In recent years British aircraft manufacturers have been waging a losing battle against the Yank air onslaught. Not better access to a much larger market.

A former BOAC chairman, Sir Matthew Slattery, said in evidence released today that the 10 super VC-10s now in "suspense" had been ordered under "great political pressure by the government.

Complicating the whole problem is that BOAC is laboring under a £80,000,000 ($240,000,000) deficit.

WILL BE LINKED

TORONTO (CP) — The Gardiner Expressway will be linked to Yonge Street and Valley Parkway Nov. 1, making through traffic possible along a 7½-mile route from the Toronto waterfront and up the east-end Don Valley, George Grant, Metropolitan Toronto roads commissioner, said Monday.

International Army of 52,000 Camps in Amity at Valley Forge

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (CP) On the plains, the rolling hills, the gentle valleys, parched now under a blazing sun, of historic Valley Forge 52,000 people from 10 countries are camped in fellowship and understanding.

This is the week of the sixth national Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America and 16-year-old Boy Scouts of Edmonton summed it up when he said: "It's colossal."

He is one of 418 Canadian scouts and about 600 from other countries participating in the 10-day encampment in the top event of scouting. And he's having a ball.

So are the other Canadians, despite the heat. All 10 provinces are represented, with a scout, Wayne Hewit of Inuvik, from the Northwest Territories. They camp out, cook their own food, compete in every phase of scouting with others and exchange information and engage in hard bargaining in swapping. For the Canadian patch, with the Red Ensign in the top, left-hand corner, is at a premium here.

Grouped into four troops, the Canadians are scattered in 10 units among the American troops as are scouts from other participating countries, quartered in 30,000 tents in the 2,052-acre state memorial park.

Anderson, 16, like the other visiting scouts, was impressed with the immensity of the organization that went into this pamboree, said to be the largest of its kind ever held.

Some statistics: Thirteen tons of food will be eaten; 165 miles of hot dogs at another; 181,000 hamburgers a week, 25,000 chickens, 100,000 eggs.

The visitors cannot help but absorb American history here which on June 19, 1778, the darkest days of the revolutionary war. Three-thousand men died during the bitter winter. Valley Forge, 17 miles west of Philadelphia, now is a memorial park.

Rain, Nazis Break Up Goldwater Rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republican candidate for president, returned to the United States capital Monday to shake hands and the shouts of a small group of Nazi sympathizers who broke up a Goldwater rally that was to have been a triumphant arrival.

Goldwater arrived about 45 minutes late at the rally where some 300 supporters waited despite the weather.

When he started to speak, a small group of young men began shouting.

"We want Rockwell." . . .

They apparently meant George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party, which has its headquarters in nearby Arlington, Va.

Their cheers were drowned out by boos from Goldwater supporters.

After a moment Goldwater said: "It's really sort of pitiful what young people can do in this country if they have nothing else to do."

"But it's their constitutional right," he added as the "We want Rockwell" chant began again.

Goldwater, unsmiling and stern, said: "I'll take my chances with a majority of Americans who are Americans." Then he walked to his limousine.

Reporters questioned the hecklers and one of them identified himself as Lynn Gleay, a representative of the American Nazi party. He said they were against Goldwater and had come out "to protest his liberal views."

Gleay said the seven-member Rockwell band were Goldwater campaign buttons to infiltrate the crowd, and about down the senator because they do not think he is a real conservative.

Earlier in the day Goldwater told reporters that civil rights should remain "a completely local question" during the campaign.

Stopping briefly in Chicago, Goldwater said in the event electified himself as Lynn Gleay, a representative of the American Nazi party. He said they were against Goldwater and had come out "to protest his liberal views."

Annexed Farm Land Is Fast Disappearing Under Crop Of Bungalows, Split-Levels

With residential construction in Belleville continuing to boom, open farm land within the city limits is rapidly disappearing as each year sees new housing sub-divisions completed.

Residential building has already pushed almost to the expanded eastern limits of the east of Haig Street and this year the big building activity has switched to the northwest.

Sub-division names such as West Park Village, King George Square and now Glenarden, are in the news, and areas which only a few years ago were pasture fields are sprouting brand new bungalows, and split levels.

Since 1959 (when the city annexed areas of Sidney and Thurlow townships) until the end of 1963, more than 750 new dwellings were built in Belleville, the year being in 1961 and 1962 which saw 201 new homes built each year.

The value of new homes built in this city since 1959, but not including this year, is placed at more than $11,000,000.

STARTED AFTER WAR

The city's housing boom started shortly after World War II.

It was then that veterans' housing in Churchill and Bayview Heights got underway. VLA housing north of College Street in the Park Dale area and Parkwood Heights and in then East Belleville on the Bert Doctor farm, started about the same time.

Since then there has been no let-up, although during the early 1960's the construction boom spread into suburban Sidney and Thurlow townships.

RAN OUT OF LAND

During the middle 1950's available building space in the city became almost non-existent and there was talk of annexation as the big building boom spread into the suburban area with a resultant demand for city services.

Then with annexation in 1960 city building took on a new lease of life and there has been virtually no let-up since.

Housing construction spread rapidly east from Herchimer Ave., with the Mills and Parrott farms, as well as others, being sub-divided.

Then the emphasis swung back to the west and of the city, with such new street names as Wright Ave., Glen Road, Selena, Hutton Drive, and Applewood Drive appearing on the map.

In the process open farm land east and west of what was formerly known as the OSD lane (now Palmer Rd.) has been rapidly built up.

SWING TO NORTH

This year the emphasis is north of the CN double track and the northwest part of the city.

Farms owned by the Skinkle and Sharp families west of Sidney Street were purchased by sub-divisors. Last fall construction was started on the West Park Village sub-division which will close to 300 houses are expected to be constructed.

Again this spring the former 50-acre Sharp farm is being sub-divided, with construction soon to commence on the Glenarden sub-division.

In the meantime the King George Square sub - division south of King George School property will see more than 20 houses constructed.

In 1961 the east - end Belleville area was constructed and the rapid development of the North Front Street area south to the highway is currently underway with new motels and automotive sales businesses springing up.

And so the construction boom goes — over six million in 1960, more than seven million in 1961 and over four and a half million last year.

And this year promises to be another big building year with permits for more than one and a quarter million being issued from city hall during the month of June.

Obituary

REGINALD STEPHENSON

In failing health for the past three days, Reginald Stephenson of 317 Pinnacle Street, died at the Belleville General Hospital early this Tuesday morning.

He was in his 68th year.

He was born at St. Mary's and was a member of Christ Church.

For the past seven years Mr. Stephenson was employed as assistant manager of the Hotel Quinte.

Surviving are his wife, the former Dorothy DiFrancie, and three sons, Sergeant-Major Robert Stephenson, with the RCR at London, Constable William Stephenson of the Belleville Police Department and Paul Stephenson of the Belleville Fire Department.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Evelyn Cunningham of Detroit, and 14 grandchildren.

Funeral from the chapel of the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, 60 Victoria Ave. at Church St.

Film Is Shown On Caribou

Bellerville Rotarians held their weekly meeting yesterday at noon in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte.

The speaker was Mr. Frank Cheshire, staff biologist with the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed. He briefly outlined the Department's role in preserving the renewable natural resources of the province and then showed the film — Alaskan "Caribou Hunters". The movie, with its northern setting, was a welcome relief from the day's heat.

Mr. Cheshire was introduced by Don Grant and thanked by president Stan Reston.

Three City Men Will Be Tried By Judge, Jury

Thee Belleville men charged with possession of burglary tools today sought trial by judge and jury and were remanded on reduced bail.

Last week police asked bail of $5,000 surety or $10,000 property for Bernard James Michael 25; Raymond Wood, 42, and Robert Mondoville, 31.

After electing the method of trial before Magistrate T. Y. Wills the men had bail set at $2,500 cash or $5,000 property.

They were charged after police stopped their car on a Belleville street the night of July 12.

Research Scientists Outline Promising New Approaches To Treatment of Diabetics

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—Doctors and research scientists held out a ray of hope Monday in describing new approaches in the treatment of severe, often fatal, complications of diabetes.

Reports presented at the fifth congress of the International Diabetes Federation described experimental methods of combatting such dangerous side effects of diabetes as deterioration of vision, blood circulation and kidneys.

The papers also suggested these complications may develop in persons with inherited susceptibility to diabetes as well as in the possibly 180,000,000 people actually suffering from the disease due to deterioration of the insulin-producing pancreas gland.

Dr. P. R. Thornfeldt of the Devers Memorial Eye Clinic in Portland, Ore., described as "a new and most promising" approach to stemming a typical diabetic disease which makes the vessels proliferate in the eye to a point where the retina may become detached.

The treatment involves destroying the excess blood vessels by use of a laser beam photocoagulation — directing an intense light at the vessels. In treatment of both man and animals in various cases of various degrees of progression during the last four years, Dr. Thornfeldt said he was able to stop the complication in the majority cases and limit damage in later stages.

DIFFERENT APPROACH

In The Netherlands, eye doctors A. J. Houtsmuller and H. J. Deutman, in a report entitled "A site-building substance — anabolic steroids—to prevent the breakdown and proliferation of blood vessels in the eye.

The treatment was also found to reverse blood disturbances associated with diabetes. The steroids normally destroyed by this method can help hold off diabetic complications.

Similar experiments were described by a team under Dr. J. H. Lawrence at the Donner Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley, where diabetics with retina disturbances were treated by the bombardment of the pituitary gland with radio-active material.

Dr. Lawrence Larsell diabetic specialist H. Wolfsohn of Haifa suggests that prediabetics—persons prone to get the disease—may be detected by spotting enlargement of blood vessels in the membrane connecting the inner eyelid and eyeball during eye examinations.

DIARY OF TREATMENT?

A simple method of detecting prediabetics would open up the possibility of staving off the worst of the disease by dietary or other treatment.

Another arresting survey of diabetes by Dr. Paul S. Estmacher and Herbert H. Marks, associate medical director and statistician respectively of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York, indicates trends in modern living affect the prevalence of diabetes.

Noting an apparent decline in the incidence of diabetes in women of the Western world, Dr. Estmacher says the fashion for slimness may be a factor. Obesity contributes to the onset of diabetes in adulthood.

Heredity, eating habits and the pace of life also are important factors, the doctor concluded, with inherited susceptibility probably the most important.

However, the general availability of rich foods and the presence of stress in everyday life probably hasten the onset of diabetes in persons prone to it, he adds.

Statistics indicate a difference among racial groups, with U.S. Negro and Indian male diabetics having a death rate one-third higher than whites, Japanese-American mortality less than whites and Chinese higher.

False Claim Brings Fine Of $40, Costs

A Belleville man was fined $40 and costs today for/falsely claiming $66 Unemployment Insurance benefits.

Charles Mitchell pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, and successfully requested two months to pay the penalties.

Unemployment Insurance Commission Inspector Eric Naylor said Mr. Mitchell had earned $118 during the two weeks he claimed benefits.

"These cases are becoming quite frequent," he told the magistrate, asking a $20 fine on each charge.

"These things have got to be discouraged. There is too much money involved," Magistrate Wills agreed.

County Has No Big Influx Of Army Worms

With only three reported sarcepticus, Hastings County has apparently escaped any influx of army worms which this year have caused heavy damage in cash crops in the western part of the province.

"We've been keeping our fingers crossed and wondering when the worms might catch up with us," reports the county agricultural representative at Stirling.

To date, only three instances of the worms have been reported to the Stirling office — two in the Belleville area and one in the Madoc district.

Jamie Wallridge, R. R. 3, Belleville, and his neighboring farmer, Douglas Wales, have spotted army worms in their corn patches, but so far the damage is not considered serious.

"We are just keeping a watch on the field," stated Mr. Wallridge.

The corn is now close to, or in, the tasselling stage, and the caterpillar damage is not expected to be as serious as though the corn was younger.

So far only a small section of the Wallridge cornfield is infected with the worms.

But according to the county agricultural representative, army worms can also cause a heavy damage to grain crops although here again the grain is now close to the ripening stage and not liable to heavy damage.

If caught in time sprays can be applied to check the army worms.

FILES SUIT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Lawyer Melvin M. Belli filed a $5,000,000 libel and slander suit Monday against Walter E. Craig, a 54-year-old Phoenix lawyer, made false statements about Belli in connection with Belli's defence of Jack Ruby, sentenced to death for slaying Harvey Lee Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Stopping Bay For City Buses Is Approved

A move recommended by the city police department to improve traffic conditions on Dundas Street in front of the Belleville General Hospital, has been approved by executive members of the hospital board of governors.

The idea is to provide a stopping bay for city buses to pull off the highway while taking on and letting off passengers.

The suggested "bay" would be opposite MacDonald Ave. at the end of the Dundas Street sidewalk in the area where the former entrance to the parking lot was located.

To complete the change the bus stop would be moved east from its present location to coincide with the new bus parking bay.

The hospital board of governors has concurred with the police proposal and the matter will now be placed before the city transit commission.

Napanee Plans Caravan Call Here Thursday

NAPANEE — Two caravans will leave Lennox and Addington county and adjacent areas this week, one on Wednesday, the other Thursday, to visit Napanee, on Thursday. The Wednesday caravan to Denbigh is an afternoon call, leaving the market square, Napanee, at 2 p.m.

The trips are designed to promote interest in the county centennial.

Supper will be available for the caravaners at Denbigh, cafeteria style.

Thursday night's caravan, destiny Belleville, will, it is hoped, top last Thursday's mile long procession by at least another mile. Bonnnets, bells and bearded brothers of the brush report a wonderful time last week, and a host of baton twirlers, led by Margaret Brown, contender for the Centennial Queen title.

Library Co-op Director Named

The board of the newly-formed Lake Ontario Regional Library Co-operative has named Mrs. June Wilson Thexton, BA, BLS, as director. Headquarters will be at 530 Weller Street, Peterborough.

Mrs. Thexton has been librarian of the Victoria County Library Co-operative in Lindsay for the past eight years.

A Montreal, Mrs. Thexton is an honory graduate of McGill University (BA in history and English), and also received her Bachelor of Library Science from McGill. Married to Gordon Thexton, a teacher at Adam Scott Collegiate in Peterborough, she has been living in that city for the past four years.

Before going to Victoria County Library in May, 1956, Mrs. Thexton held a variety of library positions in Quebec and British Columbia.

The region covered by the organization consists of the counties of Frontenac, Haliburton, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Victoria, including Belleville.

BIRTHS

KOT — Mr. and Mrs. John Kot are happy to announce the birth of a daughter on Friday, July 17, 1964 at the Belleville General Hospital.

WHITLAKE — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Westlake (nee Nancy Pomeroy), are pleased to announce the birth of a son, Allan Robert, on Thursday, July 16, 1964 at the Belleville General Hospital. A brother for Steven.

IN MEMORIAM

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of Campbell, July 19, 1947. Still kept in memory dear. Lost but not forgotten.

Past years have taken away my brother

Smile, dear Mary, as you recall
Your many pilgrims, yes and enthrall.
With which one the grave?

Where is which one the worm?

Languid mother, happy still.
Always laughing, so merry filled.
Know you the pulse,
Feel which one the hammer?

Many years have sadly gone, since

Oh, age of dawn!
A puzzled one, and fewer too.
Rich, which one the grave?

Fishing on sad Trent Side,
Wee lads — my brother and three.
Generous, loving and kind,
Lonesome, while others are mated.
Service and still, I see your face,
I love you with all my heart.
Though time does pass, life does not.
Conscience has for each its mill.

—Lovingly remembered by son, Leonard Hamilton.

Grader Falls Through Bridge Over Trent

CAMPBELLFORD — Seymour township's new $30,000 grader has landed in the Trent River at Healey.

During the past two weeks the county's engineer has had new laminated 8-inch flooring laid in the two spans on the south end of the bridge, with asphalt laid on top. The old bridge was planked with flat planks. Apparently the extra weight of flooring, along with the weight of the grader proved too much for the 60-year-old steel structure of the bridge.

Two years ago a truck load of steel went through the third span from the south. The span was replaced by a Bailey bridge which is still in use.

Lovesick Shapely Whale Wails for Mating Male

VANCOUVER (CP)—The incessant talking of Vancouver's killer whale has Dr. Murray Newman excited.

The aquarium curator hopes the 17-foot shapely female will talk a young bull into coming within range of Dr. Newman and his aquarium whale hunters can capture her some company.

Scientists with listening devices pinpointed an answering call to the captive whale's bleatings to about two miles from her flooded drydock pen in the harbor.

Whale and the 220-foot drydock will go for a ride Wednesday to Jericho Beach outside the harbor where aquarium, army and Burrard Drydock personnel are building an armor-plated pen.

Dr. Newman said the location is closer to whale grounds and the chances of the lady attracting a boy friend would be good.

WILL BE TOWED

The massive drydock will be towed to the new pen, which will jut 75 feet into the bay at a width of 45 feet.

The female whale was towed to Vancouver Friday from the scene of its harpooning in Georgia Strait.

The whale has refused to eat horseheart and salmon offered since its capture. Dr. Pat McGeer, a University of British Columbia neurochemist researcher and Point Grey MLA, plans today to inject Vitamin B-12 to encourage her appetite.

Dr. McGeer plans to take the first ever readings from a whale's heart and brain after the specimen is lodged in her permanent pen.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A plane reported destined for Cuba with four bombs aboard was seized Sunday night by U.S. authorities, they reported Monday. Exiles said the seizure foiled a plan for a raid on Cuba coinciding with the Organization of American States meeting on Cuba starting today in Washington.

Three Killed As Four Cars Are Piled Up

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Three persons killed in a four-car pile-up Monday on Highway 22, six miles south of here, have been identified by provincial police as Herbert Percy Dowling, 48, Mrs. Dorothy M. Orten, 40, and her one-year-old daughter, Vera, all of London, Ont.

Mr. Dowling operated a wholesale hail business from his home. His sister, Mrs. Lillian Kenny, lives in Blenheim, Ont. Mrs. Orten's mother, Mrs. Mary Orten, lives in Ridgetown, Ont.

An American was in critical condition in hospital and two other men were treated for minor injuries suffered in the accident.

Cutter Larraine, 19, of Minneola, N.Y., was moved from hospital here to hospital in London. Police say he was the driver of the car which collided with the vehicle in which the three were killed.

Greek- and Turkish - Cypriot forces pulled out of positions around the village of Temblos in north Cyprus Monday after seven days of tense confrontation. The Greek forces left artillery within range.

British Doctors Want End to Free Treatment

LONDON (AP) — Britain's family doctors have decided to press for an end to free treatment for patients under the national health service.

The decision, announced by the British Medical Association Monday, is intended to reduce overcrowding in consulting rooms. Many doctors say they are desperately overworked.

Most of Britain's 40,000 general practitioners are members of the BMA. But their plea for consulting room charges is unlikely to make much headway in an election year.

At the moment a Briton who calls in his doctor or goes to his surgery need pay no fee except one shilling (13 cents) for a medical certificate. The only other charge is two shillings paid to the pharmacist for each prescription. Doctors are paid by the state according to the number of patients on their list and the service is financed from taxes.

John Nicholson-Lailey, chairman of the BMA's governing charge explained that the charge would not go direct to the doctor's pocket but would be handed to the government. In compensation he suggested that the government might be able to reduce taxation or abolish the prescription charge.

The association's proposal will go to a government commission looking into medical practice and doctor's pay.

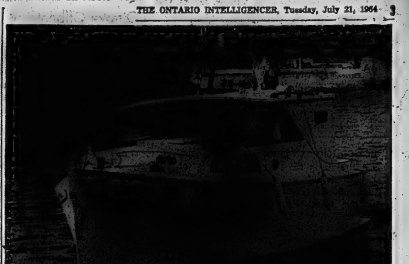
ASK SUSPENSION

City officials met with Negro leaders in city hall. Farmer who led one delegation, asked for the immediate suspension of Lieut. Thomas R. Gilligan, who shot the Negro boy last Thursday.

Farmer's delegation also asked for the immediate appointment of an independent board outside the police department to hear complaints of police brutality.



Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy has opposed such boards.

In Chicago, detectives said 11-year-old Lorelei Nolan was hit in the calf by a .22-calibre slug in front of her home on the city's south side Monday night.

Police said witnesses told of six white youths in a convertible which sped through the predominently Negro neighborhood while one youth leaned out of the car, firing indiscriminately with a pistol.

Police at Macon, Ga., said Frank Misco, 19-year-old white man, was treated at hospital after he was beaten by four Negroes. He said they forced him to stop by halting their auto in front of his.

At Cambridge, Md., Charles Cornish was elected president of the city council to become the first Negro to hold such a post in Maryland.

The Vikings are said to have been the first discoverers of the New World. Two Toronto men, Otto Pedersen, a native Dane, and Haakon Sverdrup, a Norwegian, have set out to reverse the program and "re-discover" their homelands, by crossing the Atlantic in a 22-foot cruiser of wooden construction, equipped with special floats. "The Vikings," were at the Trenton dockside last night, taking on fuel for the trip up the St. Lawrence. They intend to sail to Battle Harbor, Labrador; thence to Cape Farewell, Greenland; across to Iceland and across the Atlantic to Norway. Having navigated the numerous locks on the Trent Canal, Mr. Pederson, who complained bitterly of a blister on his toe, told a reporter, "We've made the worst part of the trip right now."

Att. Generals' Decision Criticized by Council

TRENTON—The members of Trenton council met last night in a council chamber devoid of air conditioning units, or electric fans, and the meeting was a "steaming" one . . . for three reasons: (1) the heat; (2) the humidity; (3) the state of affairs between council, the Trenton Police Commission and the Ontario Police Commission.

Attorney General Arthur Wishart has turned thumbs down on council's request that a local man be appointed to replace Magistrate W. R. Philip of Peterborough on the Trenton Police Commission.

This was learned by council ten days ago in a closed (to the press) session with Magistrate Thomas Graham of the Ontario Police Commission.

The request for a local replacement had been approved by the chairman of the Ontario commission, Percy Milligan. The request, therefore has been recommended by two commission heads, Judge McDonald and Mr. Milligan . . . and turned down by two attorney generals, Frederick Cass and Mr. Wishart.

Further to this, Magistrate Graham is reported to have quoted the new attorney general, Mr. Wishart, as saying that if Trenton council didn't pay overtime pay due to police constables, his department would conduct an investigation of the state of affairs between council and the department.

"I couldn't be more fed up," Councillor Gerald Weaver said last night. "What would-they investigate that they haven't investigated twice before? I don't think the attorney general even knows Trenton exists. And furthermore, I don't think our member, Elmer Sandercock, made any effort on our behalf with the A.G.'s department."

Councillor Weaver then proposed that council accept the Trenton Police Commission's 1964 budget for $136,700, (which provides for the hiring of one additional man for the force this year), because "it will disappoint Magistrate Graham." (According to the councillor, the O.P.C. representative wanted a further investigation of the police department.)

On a polled vote, Councillors Weaver, Burtt, Graham and Gould voted to accept the budget. Councillor Todd, who said he felt council was throwing away its trump card just when it seemed probable the local commission set-up might be changed, voted nay, as did Councillor McDonald, for essentially the same reason.

Councillor Weaver then proposed that council give serious consideration to asking the attorney general to place the running of the department in the hands of a committee of council, but most councillors seemed to feel this step would be less than useless, as the attorney general had turned down the request to replace the out-of-town magistrate by a local resident.

"The Attorney General has shown a blatant disregard for Trenton's problems," Councillor Weaver agreed. "Our mayor has only a minority vote on the local commission. The other two override him every time."

Education - Everybody's Business

Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, Dr. Henry D. Hicks, president of Dalhousie University, said the public should "concede that the professional teacher has the same trained competence as a doctor or lawyer." Therefore, he argued, the public should leave the business of education to teachers and administrators.

He is admirably right or woefully in error, depending upon what one considers to be covered by the term "the business of education." If Dr. Hicks intends this should refer only to the means chosen to reach a specified end, he is correct.

But if he considers it should be left to teachers and administrators to decide what the objectives of our educational system should be, then he is wrong.

The business of law is left to lawyers, in the sense that we depend upon them to prosecute, defend and adjudicate.

But no nation would consider granting lawyers the sole prerogative of determining what its laws should be.

In drafting our laws we depend upon the technical knowledge of lawyers, so that the laws may accomplish what we want them to, and we grant to lawyers equal rights with others, and an especially attentive hearing, in our deliberations as to what the objectives of our laws should be.

Precisely the same rights and the same limitations should apply to teachers and administrators in the field of education.

Just as war is much too important a matter to be left to generals, so is education much too important all of us to be left solely in the hands of the educationists. Just as we leave to military men decisions in the realm of tactics, so should we leave decisions regarding methods to the educationists. But, in the wider sense of that term, military startegy is rightly the field of politicians, representing all of us. The same holds true of education. How much we should spend on education, what financial aid we should provide students, what type of mentality we should seek to encourage—all these are readily political decisions, regarding which teachers have not only a right but a duty to advise, but with respect to which they cannot expect to dictate.

One Problem Solved

The Ontario Legislative Assembly has appointed a committee on aging.

The committee has now invited private individuals and organizations to appear before the committee or to present written briefs.

"The committee," we are told in an advertisement, "wishes to receive views from elderly men and women who have aged successfully."

There is really no trick to it, chaps. All you have to do is to stay alive. If you always take a stroll while somebody else drives the car on that Marysville stretch of Highway 401; avoid leaving your abdomen open for doctors to deposit clamps; decline invitations to Mississippi if you are color blind and get inoculated for sleeping sickness before attending the sessions of legislative committees, aging just comes naturally. If one devotes enough time to it, success is assured. Why we know people who have been doing it every day, for years.

Main Drag Strip ?

It was recently stated that the "local men in blue" were going to clamp down even more on speeders and other traffic violators. A good idea!

One good place to implement the plan would be on the "main drag." In more ways than one, "main drag" is appropriate. Our youth, for their own reasons, take a great deal of pleasure in turning Front and Pinnacle into a minor Indianapolis Speedway. Like the Indy drivers they "put it to the floor and turn left."

Surely the presence of a radar machine at the upper and lower ends of Front would reap dividends in the late evening and early morning hours. Police on the beat have little means to control the speeders. But a radar car and motorcycle policeman could do wonders.

Maybe a heavy-fine would change the dreams of a budding A. J. Foyt or Jimmy Clarke. It would certainly make it safer for responsible drivers and "hunted" pedestrians.

The world of books is, in fact, the Grand Alsatia, to which all the hunted ones of the hended tribes of men can flee away and be at rest.—John Cowper Powys.

National Government Idea Winning Increasing Support

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The seed that Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson planted, way back early last spring, of the idea of a Nationalist Government, has been showing some signs of germinating.

He suggested that only such a non-partisan, all-party Government now could hope to even begin coping with what he calls the crisis of confederation.

In the last five months he has been getting what he describes as an encouragingly warm playback from Canadians in all provinces, including Quebec, to the idea.

It first comes by long distance — telephone and telegram. More recently the response has been by mail with little sign of tapering off.

As the Liberal Administration and the Conservative Opposition struggle in the political stalemate of Parliament, the idea of a strong all-party, truly National Government, discusses Mr. Thompson from his mail, seems to hold an increasing appeal.

What he hopes might be something of a break-through came the other day. Mr. Thompson, the "senior Liberal Cabinet Minister," whom he will identify only as "one of the most forward - looking men around the Prime Minister," conceded that such an all-party, non-political might be the only solution if the political situation, federally and provincially, continues to deteriorate.

EVEN THE CREDITISTES

As Mr. Thompson put it, there's real and deep trouble at all points of the political compass — the "regional disorders" field, Federal-Provincial relations or lack of them, foreign policy and defence, social security, even Parliament itself — and another election this fall or next spring could only make things worse, with the voters being either apathetic or disgusted.

In the present national mood of dissatisfaction with all parties, including the smaller fringe groups, and disenchantment with Parliament, he sees even a more hopeful political situation emerging from such an election.

But he questions whether this minority Government can continue functioning very much longer, living, as it does, on the edge of day-to-day disaster.

So he would have someone — perhaps Prime Minister Pearson — recruit a powerful non-partisan administration from among the "non-political elite" of all five parties, not excluding the Quebec nationalists of Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes.

He is convinced that within this accident-prone Parliament there are the required men of goodwill and ability who could, if convinced of the urgent need of the "absolute necessity to forget old labels and old formulas", form a National Government with the strength and character to rally the nation as it hasn't been rallied since Confederation.

It would be a Government of men of all parties, united on the bedrock basis of finding and doing what's best for the country.

He thinks it could be formed in an All-Canada Parliament might look.

THE CANADA FIRSTERS

On the Government side of the House — he doesn't know what such an Administration might call itself — perhaps the National Party — would be positive thinkers, like ex-Minister Alvin Hamilton, the faith recruited from Liberal, Conservative, New Democratic, Social and Creditiste ranks.

The Canada Firsters, he likes to think of them.

On the Opposition side would be the foot-draggers, the doubters, the frightened ones and the political cynics who, even then, would still be deciding their policy and condition in the Commons on the spur-of-the-opportunist's-moment of what is best for the Party.

...and even if such a National Government could muster no better than a minority, it could go without fear or hesitation to the country, secure in the certain knowledge that it would win in a landslide vote from a people newly inspired and freshly determined on their destiny.

If it could be done, Mr. Thompson is confident there would be a great sigh of relief all across the country.

And he thinks it could come about unless, as he puts it, "the men of political decision in Parliament, particularly Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, are in a panic still in putting their concern for their parties ahead of the welfare of the nation."

Naturally, Mr. Thompson would like a place in such a Government: "Not for what it might do for me, but for what I think I could do for the country."

Such a "Confederation Coalition" would save not only Parliament, he believes, but our nation, too.

Perhaps this is stuff only for political dreamers, and unquestionably Mr. Thompson is something of a dreamer.

But there's this: he does reflect an admittedly sincere national image, and comes of that strange political breed which holds that wishing can make it true — if you believe deeply enough.

Demolish Texas Tower

Watertown Times

The last of the famed — and controversial — Texas Towers, those expensive radar stations erected above the waters of the Atlantic ocean between New York city and Boston, is to be scuttled. That will end a unique nine-year period in the history of America's aircraft warning program.

In the early 1950's, five of these towers were planned by the air force. They were given the "Texas" name because of their resemblance to the offshore oil drilling rigs used in the Gulf of Mexico. But of the contemplated five, only three were ever built — at a cost of $10,000,000 each.

Towers 1 and 3 were never constructed. Tower 2, about 100 miles east f Boston, was abandoned in the spring of 1963. Tower 3, about 35 miles south of Long Island, is the one now set for scuttling. And Tower 4, 100 miles southeast of New York city, collapsed in January, 1961, during a gale, in which 14 air force men and 14 civilians being lost in the storm.

Those towers, each manned on pilings in 87 to 185 feet of water, seemed to spell trouble right from the start. In addition to the collapse of Tower 4, a ship of the military sea transport service crashed into one of the towers in January, 1958, causing considerable damage to the ship.

On top of that, when the first 5,000-ton steel platform was installed in Tower 2, it immediated on the ways of the Bethlehem Steel Co. and workmen had to await high tides before tugs could drag it out to sea. And in '956, 600 laborers walked off the $44,000,000 project in a dispute over pay.

How rapidly ideas and values change. When the towers were first planned in the early 1950's, it was expected they would serve for many years, giving the United States eight minutes of additional warning time in which to launch for any enemy bomber attack. As recently as the fall of 1961, a Texas Tower took over the duties of the Bunnard Bay Lightship.

Then, less than a year ago, inspection of the installations revealed extensive erosion of sand and rock around the supporting legs and that the electronic equipment which was considered up superior ten years ago, is now obsolete. Thus the Texas Towers come down.

Doctors Ought To Practice Some Humility

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who was in the hospital for some minor surgery (if that's not a contradiction in terms), told me he was ready to quit smoking cigarets until his doctor walked in he room — sniffing avidly.

"That gave me the courage to rise above my will power," said my friend, "but I don't practice what he preached, why should I?"

Actually, many doctors have stopped smoking. But in other areas of health, it is true that they are as reckless — and as fearful — as most laymen. This was borne out at the recent American Medical Association convention in San Francisco.

The thousands of doctors attending the convention were asked to take extensive physical checkups without charge at a special clinic. Of the 5,000 physicians attending the convention hardly more than 10 percent availed themselves of this service to detect heart, chest, kidney, gall bladder and other diseases.

The supervisor of the clinic admitted: "The average doctor would say, 'I don't want to find out what's wrong with me.' Doctors take poor care of themselves and they live under great stress. If the general public has a resistance to knowing what is wrong, in the doctor it's tenfold."

I asked several medical friends of mine how they could explain this inconsistency, and two out of three agreed that it had a lot to do with the doctor's "sense of omnipotence." One of them explained it this way:

"Most of the time the professional person is the bearer of reasons, ranging all the way from nobility to greed. But a common denominator seems to be the desire to play God, to be unlike other men, invulnerable, dispassionate, and in some measure removed from mortal considerations.

"It is painful for a doctor to admit he was wrong, or guilty in a diagnosis or treatment — and this reluctance is contrary to the scientific spirit. He can see that the doctor has a pressing need to be right all the time, which is a desire for omniscience — at the unconscious level of course.

"Because the doctor feels he has to be invulnerable, he cannot afford to admit weakness or illness in himself. He would remove the 'psychological distance' between him and the patients. So he feels he must work when symptoms, refuses to find out what is wrong, continues working at a heavy pace — and dies considerably younger than other professional men."

A young intern once told me he nearly flunked his oral exam when, instead of giving the customary pious answer to the question, "Why did you enter medicine?" he answered, "Because I wanted other men to look up to me." He understood his own inner needs far better than the 90 percent of doctors who spurned that free checkup at the clinic.

Woman Wonders About Her Ten Minute Daily Sneeze

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Every morning when I go in the kitchen I start sneezing for about 10 minutes. This has been going on for two years.

It happens only in the kitchen; no other part of the house. I have tried to figure out what causes it, but can't. I thought you might have some suggestions. Do you think I might have some kind of allergy? — E. L. T.

Allergy is the likeliest possible explanation. But what's the allergy?

You can go to an allergist and perhaps solve the mystery quickly, or perhaps it will take some time.

Or you can do some sleuthing either by yourself or in co-operation with your doctor.

If you sleep late, does this sneezing still start only after you have reached the kitchen? Do you sneeze in the kitchen if you have been away from it for the afternoon, and then go back?

Or is the problem only in the morning? If so, analyze your morning routine for clues. What do you touch, taste smell, then and only then? Do you, for example, habitually have an orange juice, or do you section grapefruit? Or do you invariably reach for a box of oatmeal? What, that is, do you always do in the first few minutes in the kitchen, that you don't do any other time?

Orange, grapefruit or lemon peel can be an allergen. So can any number of other things — foods, dust, plants, fabrics, and the list is endless. But the things you always touch when you first go into the kitchen in the morning are not an endless list.

If, for example, you always have citrus fruit or juice, substitute something else, tomato juice, for example, for a week or two. See if the sneezing decreases. If not, take note of what else you touch. Does a pet — cat or dog — always show up to be fed just then? You may be allergic to animal dander.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes shingles? How long is it supposed to last? Please describe the problem. — C. F.

That's a big order. The medical name is Herpes zoster; it is a virus infection of nerves whose duration varies widely; so does the pain, but it can hurt like fun. For a full discussion, send 15 cents in coin and an unstamped self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill and ask for a copy of my booklet, "The Facts About Shingles."

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to know about keloids, as they are common in my family. Can they be passed on to my children? — D. N.

A keloid is an unusual thickening of a scar; it should not be regarded as a disease. (It may, of course, be a nuisance or a blemish.)

Keloids, or "overgrown scars" tend to occur in younger persons of dark complexion. By "dark complexion" I do not mean Negroes, although they are especially frequent among them.

A keloid is an abnormality in the formation of connective tissue (scars being connective tissue) and is usually a familial or racial characteristic.

Dear Dr. Molner: Under my breasts I have a stinging itch. I am using petroleum jelly but it doesn't seem to help much. I am in my 70's. — Mrs. E. J.

This is a condition very common in older persons. Try keeping the itchy area dry. Stop using the petroleum jelly. Wash and dry carefully, then dust with baby powder, cornstarch. If this doesn't help, then I suggest seeing a skin specialist.

How Much Is Junk Worth?

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Ther. is some splashy arithmetic in the finding of the Dominion Auditor-General, A. M. Henderson, that military equipment which cost $33,956,581 has been sold as scrap for $718,106. That is good stuff on which to use a blast of criticism, if you happen to be in a blasting mood. Those army people at Ottawa have been spending the taxpayers' blunt for high-priced gadgets and then selling the gadgets at a loss of 97.5 cents on the dollar. No wonder the country's in a mess, when they're buying stuff from one man at $20 and then, by and-by, sell it to another man at 24 cents an item.

On second look at the report, we're not so shocked. The Auditor-General also notes that most of the equipment sold during the 12-month period on which he was reporting, was left over from the Second World War. It consisted largely of spare parts for vehicles and aircraft.

What is the fair market value today for spare parts to fit a Lysander artillery co - operation aircraft, or a Tiger trainer, or a two - pounder anti - tank gun? They were standard equipment not many more than 20 years ago, and supplies of spare parts had to be made and stored for them.

The spare parts are worth about as much now as stocks of the buggy whip, the plenum gear of a horse-drawn mower, or spare parts for a Hudson or a Willys - Knight automobile, or spare fittings for the boilers of wood-burning steam locomotives.

The wonder is not that they have finally been cleared out at 24 cents on the dollar of their cost, or scrap-metal value. The wonder is that spare parts for Second World War equipment ve been cluttering up the warehouses, and running up clerical costs for inventory work, for so long after the war ended.

A farmer who bought a supply of spare plow-points for his walking plow, back about 1941, wouldn't have them cluttering up a corner of his drive - shed in 1964.

No Cause For Worry

American scientific manpower is not being used efficiently, a top-level study has found. Too many scientists and engineers are being used in some fields, too few in others.

The main concern is that the Russians, with not such ineffective division of manpower, are challenging American supremacy in science.

We sympathize with the Americans, but we can't share their worries. In the vital field of consumer goods, the Americans are obviously far ahead. You can't divert scientists and engineers from the consumer sector without the danger of missing such advances as electric toothbrushes, power drink mixers, engines to roll down car windows, or soap that's 99.9 per cent pure.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Speculative mining issues continued to trade actively with most prices moving higher on the stock market today.

National Exploration traded more than 500,000 shares in the first hour in climbing 10¼ cents to 48 cents. Windfall, another uranium area mining company climbed 25 cents to $3.45 after selling at a new high of $3.60.

Ragland, which is rumored to have bit nickel on its Ungava property, gained 19 cents to $2.00 and is up in a $2.20-$2.35 range.

Canadian Dyno eased five cents to $1.68 in profit taking while Glenn notched a three cent advance to 42 cents.

The industrial index made an irregular advance in recording a new base high. It was ahead .02 to 180.84.

Strength went to a wide range of issues with beverages leading the way ahead. Distillers Seagrams climbed to a 1964 high of 62¾ with a ½ gain while Labatt was ahead ¾ to 31¾.

METALS EASE

Labrador and Noranda eased ½ each to 32¾ and 47¾ as base metals took a small loss. Steel Rock countered with a five-cent advance to $5.85, a 1964 top.

On index, golds were up .08 to 130.31, western oils .32 to 100.38 and base metals .02 to a new high of 150.05. Volume at 11 a.m. was 2,332,000 shares compared with 1,522,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

Ragland Nickel jumped $1.41 to $2.10 in heavy trading as the outstanding issue on the list board. Rumors held that Raglan had bit nickel on its property in Ungava on a level of interest in the opening pushed the stock to $2.35 but a brief sell-off at $1.25 and then it rallied to a high of $2.20.

Another spectacular gain was recorded by National Exploration which doubled in price to 49 cents and closed within a cent of advance at 37½ cents after churning through 988,000 shares. The only other Timmins area issue to attract attention was Windfall—the issue which triggered the speculative spree two weeks ago—which climbed 70 cents to a new high of $3.20.

Canadian Dyno traded more than 326,000 shares in gaining 53 cents to $1.73.

INDUSTRIALS CLIMB

Seven blue industrials climbed to a record index high. Primary steel makers led the advance with Algoma and Dofasco ahead 1¼ to 75 and 24¾ respectively. Steel of Canada traded actively in gaining ¾ to 26.

Massey - Ferguson, which encountered selling late last week, recovered 3/4 to trade at 30.

Senior base metals were easier. Falconbridge dipped ¼ to 73, Labrador ¼ to 23 and Falconbridge ¾ to 73¾. Cominco contributed to the trend with a gain of ¼ to 36.

On index, industrials were ahead .35 to 190.82, western oils .38 to 100.06 and the exchange index .46 to 150.03. Golds dipped .04 to 129.13 and base metals .25 to 65.26. Volume for the session was 7,985,000 shares compared with 6,180,000 shares traded Friday.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was dull and prices were lower in all classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Only a few cattle traded lower, numerous grass-fed cattle were sharply lower on a narrow demand.

Veal calf prices were steady. Hog prices were mostly unchanged and sheep and lamb prices were steady.

THE BIG LAND — A big job is under way in northern British Columbia, with the construction of the $73,000,000 Portage Mountain Dam on the Peace River. This aerial view shows one of the coffer dams used in the diversion of the river and some of the millions of trees for which the construction is occurring. The existance of power in the area is expected to encourage expansion of the lumber industry.

Boom in B.C. Interior

British Columbia is on an economic plateau and much of the lift is exerted by developments in the north-central interior of the province. This story tells of new prosperity — and attendant heartbreaks.

BY DAVE STOCKAND

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Boom is the word in British Columbia in this summer of 1964—and the north-central interior of the province is the place where the bang is the biggest.

The boom is the genuine article, not the all-too-common kind noise generated by hot air which has raised hopes high before in the B.C. north only to drop them as flat as yesterday's sourdough bread.

It rings true on the basis of work already started, enough evidence offered by the cut throat infighting in the forest industry—money, in B.C. does grow on trees—and in the problems that are the natural camp followers of progress.

Power dams plus trees by the millions equal pulp mills, and on this equation the foundations are being built for a new northern economy.

The new era is also a partnership of rail extension and road building. Together they develop ment and new natural gas routes.

It is a time that mixes the building of high - rise apartments, hotels, motels, homes, commercial and industrial with more-than-occasional slabs of bitterness and disillusionment.

LURE OF GAMBLERS

B.C.'s Social Credit government with its rail and highway program—and, naturally, with the $700,000,000 Peace River hydro-electric project—is nudging development into new country that carries with it all the risks, raw uncertainties and the possible riches of the frontier.

The working monument to the future, momentum - builder of the present is the $73,000,000 Portage Mountain dam on the Peace, into which the first conveyor loads of millions of yards of fill are being poured this summer.

This promised presence of power in the north country in 1968, along with technological progress, is the bait sending the barons of the forest industry on a merry chase for trees.

At the start, Peace power will be striking nearly 600 miles southwest to Vancouver and the B.C. lower mainland, points where industry is established already and where most of the people are.

But during the wait for the Portage Mountain turbines to start humming, the project payroll is starting like a hefty dose of economic adrenalin in the north.

Work that can be done in wintertime is whittled down sharply by snow and cold. But wages of $5,500,000 were paid in 1963 when the number of workers on the Peace averaged 600. Now the tempo is being stepped up.

DRAWS JOBLESS

More than 1,000 men are at work at the Portage Mountain damsite this summer. At the peak of construction, a couple of years hence, the work force will have reached and perhaps surpassed 2,500.

One estimate is that Peace expenditure in the year alone will exceed $30,000,000.

The heartbreak side of the coin is that the Peace has become a magnet for the unskilled and the cold-work in search of non - existent jobs. Many have flocked in from outside B.C.

The bitterness of the newcomers arriving "on spec" is shared by people of Fort St. John and Dawson Creek and other northern communities who say they aren't getting a fair share of work at a project packed in their own backyard.

The bosses at the project reply that the multi-million-dollar undertaking is not a pick-and-shovel job; that schedules just don't allow time to train newmen to handle heavy equipment in a job where mistakes caused by inexperience could cost millions of dollars; that in any event the agreement they have with unions headquartered in Vancouver decides their hiring policies in large part.

HARD TO COUNT

Still, there are other things going on coming up, either already launched or perched on the edge of the drawing board.

In a recent progress issue dealing with over-all B.C. development, the Vancouver Sun had one article which noted:

"Trying to find a total for new projects or the amount of money to be spent in B.C.'s expanding industrial economy is like trying to keep track of the country's rabbit population.

"Every time a total is reached, another project, plant or plan is announced or expanded."

Keeping to the miscellaneous projects running in the million of dollars, the B.C. hinterland's share of development included:

—The announced 220-mile extension of the Westcoast Transmission Company limited natural gas pipeline from Chetwynd to Fort Nelson in the far B.C. north—a $60,000,000 project recalling National Energy Board approval.

—Plans by Endako Mines Limited to put into production a molybdenum property at Endako, 120 miles west of Prince George. Molybdenum is used in hardening steel in the manufacture of electronic equipment—called strategic metal.

—Work proceeding this year and scheduled to be completed by the end of 1965, on a 100-mile branch rail line starting north of Prince George and stretching westward. This project is being carried out by the provincially owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway, and will open up untapped timber country in the Stuart Lake-Fort St. James area.

MOVING NORTH

Chetwynd is north of Prince George, on Moberly Mountain, the dam site, is north of Chetwynd. Fort Nelson is north of Portage Mountain. That's the way the economic ball bounces these days in B.C.

And when you get down to it in the long-range luck of B.C. economics, everything comes in trees.

Here the potential is greatest—and the problems of progress usually greatest.

What you find up here in the stands of spruce, balsam, lodgepole pine and scrub poplar—and the scattering of "trees of other species" that get passing mention in forestry department timber-auction ads—are not the tall, stately jants that poems get written about.

Joyce Kilmer, had he been a B.C. north man, surely wouldn't have found inspiration without some heavy hiking.

The average mixed-wood Coaster, standing on the outskirts of Prince George and viewing the scruffy monotony of scenery, said:

"It's like they took that blade that shaved the whole Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team and sold it to the old cook town in Cochrane."

Artistically, that about sums it up.

Financially, in what timbermen call decadent trees, in the parts and ones that blanket the B.C. north, from the waste that sawmills burn now to get it out of the way, a fortune is waiting to be made.

Six different companies or groupings of companies would like to set up pulp shops in the north-central interior. Not all of them will make it.

There is the problem of superimposing pulp mills on what has been a sawmill economy. Ideally, sawmill chips should play a large part in a pulp industry, in the same way that a slaughterhouse uses everything but the animal's squeal. But putting theory into practice is another matter.

Bids for the timber needed to feed the proposed mills overlap. It is a battle, in a polite, government - regulated way, and somebody has to lose out.

None of this detracts from the fact that the pulpmill resources of the interior will be put to work soon—and that they are estimated to be capable of tripling the province's pulp and paper production on a sustained-yield basis.

Three miles north of Prince George the first concrete has been poured for a pulpmill to be operated by Prince George Pulp and Paper Limited, a joint venture of Canadian Forest Products Limited of Vancouver and the Reed Paper group of England.

The plant will cost $84,000,000 including working capital. Two years from now it will begin producing pulp, sackcraft for cement bags and liner board.

It is the first of its kind to start at a year-round industry using the rotten-egg smellpot pulpmill process. It is also the last. Counting coastal areas, pulpmill projects are under way or paper a capital investment of close to $500,000,000.

One estimate-industry is that enough timber reaches maturity each year in B.C. to support 37 large pulpmills, compared to the present 11.

The chips are down. The central interior will be getting its share.

Tomorrow: Peace power plans to be West's biggest.

DEVELOPMENT AREA — Construction has started at the Portage Mountain Dam site—as part of a program to develop northern British Columbia based on the lumber industry. The dam will bring electric power to the area. Three miles north of Prince George, first concrete already has been poured for a pulp mill. (CP Newsmap)

Mr. Beep and Safety Elephant Will Visit 21 City Playgrounds

Hey kids, have you heard who is coming to Belleville this week?

No—not the Beatles — "Mr. Beep" and "Elmer", the Safety Elephant.

Sponsored by the Belleville City Police Department, Mr. Beep and Elmer will be visiting 21 playgrounds from Wednesday to Friday.

The two gentlemen will be assisted during their busy program by Belleville's Safety Officer, Robert Hall.

On Wednesday morning at 9.30 a.m. the threesome will commence their program at the St. Paul-South George Street playground, then to the Kinmen swimming pool on East Dundas Street at 10.00; Queen Elizabeth School at 10.30; Bayview Heights at 11.00; Bayview School at 11.30.

Mr. Beep, Elmer and Safety Officer Hall will then take time out for a rest and lunch and will proceed to the East Hill playground at 2.00 p.m. Then they will go to Churchill Heights at 3.00 p.m., and wind up the day's activities at the Alemite field at 3.30.

After a good night's rest the trio will begin their activities on Thursday at Queen Victoria School at 9.30 a.m. At 10 they will move on to the CNR Park and then to Hillcrest school at 10.30. Following lunch at 11.00 a.m. appointment at Prince of Wales school the three safety representatives will adjourn for lunch. At 1.30 the afternoon program will begin at King George School; Parkdale at 2.00, the West Moira Street Fire Hall at 2.30 p.m. At 3.00 the group will move on to Queen Mary School, and make the last stop at 3.30 at the Wellington Crescent playground.

Friday will not be quite so strenuous for Mr. Beep, Elmer and Mr. Hall. Their program will begin Friday at 9.30 a.m. at Murry Jr. Public School and at 10.00 they will visit the School for Retarded Children. At 10.30 they will go to OSD. The safety promotion activities will end at Avondale at 11 a.m.

Safety Officer Robert Hall asks all children to take time from their summer program for this visit with Mr. Beep and Elmer the Safety Elephant.

DISCUSS INSURANCE

On Monday the conference dealt chiefly with hospital insurance — especially provincial demands that Ottawa start sharing, 50-50, the costs of hospital treatment for mental and tuberculosis patients.

Ottawa's share of the existing program is estimated at $420,000,000 this year. The assurgement sought by the provinces would cost the federal government an added $53,000,000 this year, it is estimated.

The minister said that with the federal-provincial tax structure committee about to begin its work, "this is no time to get that sort of thing."

Later she was asked whether her remark also would apply to the Hall commission recommendations.

"Oh yes," she replied.

Meanwhile, she said a technical committee of the health ministers' conference will be set up to define the class of members patients that would be brought under hospital insurance.

She also announced that a group is being set up in the federal health department to study the reasons behind mounting hospital costs, and the differences in costs between various parts of Canada.

Liberals

ment puts off further debate on the flag until Parliament resumes in the fall.

The Conservative position apparently is based on the belief that if the government is granted interim spending authority for a three-month period and receives approval of its flag design, the temptation to call an election will be irresistible.

Grits alike declare privately they won't budge. The end result then would be no summer recess, frayed tempers and the prospect of great bitterness in the minority House all fall—although the Liberals are sure the government cannot command a majority of votes in the Commons.

The Liberals are skeptical of the Conservative determination. Conservatives, in turn, are just as skeptical about Liberal firmness. The New Democrats, Social Credit and Creditistes are frustrated and inclined to blame both the bigger parties or doubt both either likes or dislikes Conservatives will stay unmoved as summer sizzles on.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"We're trying to find the one she can live with the best."

Ann Landers

Resemblance of Grocery Boy to Dead Son Exact

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We were foster parents of a small boy and watched him grow up to be a splendid young man. Then came the war. Steve was one of the heroic ones who never came back. The pain of losing him was unbearable, but time does heal, thank God.

ANN LANDERS

Recently a young delivery boy came to our door. He looked so much like our Steve that I stared at him in disbelief. Not only did he resemble Steve in physical appearance, but in his voice, the way he moved his head, his walk. It was Steve all over again.

We did not know much about Steve's parents, but this delivery boy must be a relative — perhaps a younger brother.

We now live 2,000 miles from where we reared Steve. So far as we know Steve had never been out there. This would not rule out the possibility, however, that the boy might be Steve's brother.

I'd like to know what you think I should do. I can't get it out of my mind. — FOSTER MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — The war has been over almost 19 years. Had he lived Steve would probably be in his 40's now.

Your description of the delivery boy sounds as if he is too young to be Steve's brother. But ask the boy about himself. No harm will come of it, and it will set your mind at ease.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband is a divorced man. His only daughter is being married in a few weeks. Last winter she telephoned her father and asked him if he would give her away. He agreed and was very pleased.

The wedding invitation came yesterday — addressed to him. My name was nowhere in sight. The girl's mother has not remarried and so I know my husband will be expected to sit with his ex-wife and stand at her side in the receiving line. The thought of this burns me to a cinder but I'm trying not to show it.

The wedding will be in Providence, which is a short trip from here. My husband has not said a word to me about accompanying him although he knows I'm dying to go.

Please tell me if I should insist that he take me. To be truthful — I am— FROTHING.

DEAR FROTHING — I've never been able to understand why people want to go places they have not been invited and are not wanted.

You would be as welcome at this wedding as Nasser at a Passover Dinner. Stay home and don't make life unpleasant for yourself or others.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a boy 17 who has had only six dates. I am trying to act sophisticated but there are a lot of answers I don't know yet.

The problem that bugs me right now is one I can't discuss with my friends. They would laugh. Maybe you will laugh, too, but since you don't know me and I don't know you, it doesn't matter if you laugh or not.

I have taken the same girl out four times. I think she wants me to kiss her goodnight. The porch light at her place is always on, and it's a real bright one.

Shall I kiss her in the ear or under the porch light? Thanks a lot — BENJIE.

DEAR BENJIE — I don't see anything funny to laugh about. This is a very serious matter. By all means kiss her under the porch light. But get it over in a hurry or you might meet one of her relatives.

Smooth Sherberts Made at Home

by Mary Moore

The smooth texture of commercial ice creams and sherbets can be achieved at home if you are willing to take the extra step of beating the mixture when it is partially frozen.

One of the two frozen desserts I have decided to give you is Hailey Pollock's Mandarin Orange sherbet. If you have a blender this is a breeze, but your electric beater will serve you well for this.

MANDARIN ORANGE SHERBET (courtesy Helen P.):

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatine, ¾ cup water, 2 cans (11 oz. each) mandarin oranges, ¾ cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup heavy (32%) cream, whipped.

Soften gelatine in water in measuring cup, place cup in pan of boiling water, heat, stirring, until gelatine is dissolved. Drain juice from one can of mandarin oranges and reserve. Place orange segments from one can through food mill or in blender to make purée (or beat to a pulp at high speed in electric beater). Drain juice from second can; reserve segments; combine juice from both cans with orange purée. Add sugar and dissolved gelatine by stirring until sugar is dissolved, stir in milk, add lemon juice, stirring (it may curdle but this does not matter). Turn into ice cube tray and freeze until frozen 1" in from edge; turn partially frozen mixture into large mixing bowl; beat until smooth. Then fold in whipped cream; freeze again until frozen 1" in from edge. Return mixture to cold bowl and beat smooth again. Fold in reserved orange sections now. Return to freezer until firm. Makes 1½ quarts.

NOTE:

If your freezer or freezer compartment freezes this sherbet too quickly remember to remove it and let stand at room temperature for a few minutes to make it soft enough to eat easily with a spoon.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Curried Chicken Giblets on Fluffy Rice; Sliced Zucchini; Raspberries and Cream; Lemon-iced Apple Sauce Cake; Iced Tea.

This will help you to use up some of the maple syrup you have on hand.

MAPLE ICE CREAM:

1 cup maple syrup, 2 egg yolks, well beaten, ½ cup milk, 2 egg whites, ½ pt. (1¼ cups) whipping cream, ½ cup chopped pecans or walnuts (optional).

Measure maple syrup into a large saucepan, bring to boil and boil vigorously for 3 minutes. Meanwhile, combine egg yolks and milk. Slowly add hot syrup, beating constantly until well blended. Chill thoroughly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, then fold into egg mixture. Beat cream until stiff, then fold into mixture. Turn into freezing tray and freeze to a mush. Remove from freezer and beat until smooth but not thawed. Return to freezer. Beat again after ½ hour, add nuts, if used. Freeze until firm — 3 to 4 hours. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

DUNDAS ST. W. (HWY No. 2) Formerly known as the TRENT ROAD BELLEVILLE

One-Time Fiery Dancer Runs Construction Firm

MILTON, Mass. (AP)—Sometimes when Quita Brazil Foster is lugging lumber or pushing a paint brush she thinks of the days when audiences thrilled to her gay Latin songs.

But when somebody calls out that a foundation is ready to be poured or a crew is ready for the floor joists, thoughts of show business go out the window.

Mrs. Foster is head of Quita Construction Company, which has built more than 200 homes in Greater Boston, and of the Lita Realty Sales Corporation, which sells them.

Mrs. Foster, a divorcee, went from a fiery dancer and singer of Latin-American numbers to house building with no regrets.

She has a $125,000 home in a classy section of Milton and drives an air-conditioned car. Her only child, Lita, 13, attends private school.

In 1947, she decided to build her own home with the aid of her father, a carpenter, in Hyde Park, Mass.

It was such a good home, she said, that she decided to build homes for others. There were times when she was building 15 houses simultaneously.

Mrs. Foster's name was Enriqueta Brazil before her marriage in 1950. The marriage lasted only a year.

BPW Clubs Honor Johnson

DETROIT (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson was given a gold-inlaid auto accelerator pedal Monday in recognition of his aid to working women.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the donor, said Johnson has contributed to "accelerating the progress of women."

The federation, holding its annual convention here, said the appointment of more than 1,100 women to upper-level U.S. government jobs this year was praiseworthy.

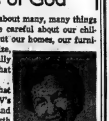
Mrs. Esther Peterson, special assistant to the president, accepted the gold pedal on his behalf.

Michigan Governor George W. Romney, a convention speaker, said America's future will be better because women have accepted increased responsibilities as citizens.

Playground Activities

ALEMITE PLAYGROUND

On Monday afternoon during the 90-degree heat wave, those on Alemite Playground found a new way to keep cool. Steve Old produced a bag of real snowballs, which he had kept in deep freeze since last winter.



Although the senior team was playing ball against Bayview, the younger children enjoyed the melting snow.

Successful Living

Today Is Not Concerned With the Things of God

DEAR DORIS — We are concerned about many, many things these days and so we should be. We are careful about our children, about our diet, about our home, our furniture and our future. But do you realize, Doris, that we are neglecting shamefully the most precious thing we possess? That is our everlasting soul!

Now in my sunset days I would that our newspapers, magazines, radio and TV's would act as if there is a Hell to shun and a Heaven to gain. There is a God worth knowing. — AT SUNSET.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR AT SUNSET — William Shakespeare said it:

"The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

He and many another knew about that Heaven to gain:

"Fear no more the heat of the sun,
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone, and ta'en thy wages."

But I agree that there is a God worth knowing, and we don't have to die to win!

U.C.W. Meeting

PRESBYTERIAL EXECUTIVE

The executive meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial U. C. Women was held in Newburgh Church, with Mrs. Frank Smith presiding.

Seventeen members answered the roll call. Supply and allocation gifts and money are to be sent to the supply secretary, Mrs. H. Smith, R.R. 2, Stirling. Used clothing bales are to be sent directly to the U.C. clothing department in Toronto.

Combined workshops and rallies are to be held in each region this fall. Plans were begun and the theme "God's Purpose and Our Response" was chosen.

A two-day Bible study is planned for the U.C. Women of the Belleville Presbyterial on September 16th and 17th.

Mrs. Smith led in inspiring prayers and read some heartsearching poems.

School for U.C.W. Leaders Begins Three-Day Session at Albert College

Albert College, Belleville became a hive of activity as nearly 200 delegates for the School for Leaders of the Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Women arrived Monday morning. The seven Presbyterials, Oshawa, Peterborough, Lindsay, Cobourg, Belleville, Kingston and Renfrew were well represented.

Mrs. Frank Smith, Newburgh, president of the Belleville Presbyterial, conducted the morning worship service. Mrs. L. F. Richardson, of Whitby, president of the Conference, along with the dean of the School, Mrs. S. Murray of Woodville, gave words of welcome.

Mrs. Claude Ives, assistant dean, introduced the Bible study leader for the four days of the School, Rev. Harriett Christie, Dean of Covenant College, Toronto.

NEW CURRICULUM

Miss Christie explained that the course of study for United Church Women for the coming year would be based on the new curriculum which was being introduced in Church schools this fall. There was to be study from the Kindergarten to Adult. This year the book "God and His Purpose" attempted to find answers to the questions "why are we here?" and 'What is the meaning of life?"

Miss Christie said in part, "The purpose of the new curriculum is to help us understand how these questions may be answered. . . The Christian Church thinks the answer is in God as we know Him through Jesus."

The speaker continued "Religion is the way in which man through the years has attempted to find answers. Worship is that in which man puts his trust. God is revealed in nature, in history, in man and in the Bible. The first words are indicative of what we believe about God the Creator, who is still the creative force in the universe, the story of creation in the Bible needs to be interpreted to find the truth behind it, that God is the Creator, and what He created is good.

After Rev. Miss Christie had given the outline of the basis for discussion, the delegates were grouped into study classes. Later in the week findings of the group will be presented at assembly.

PROGRAM PLANNING

Miss Beatrice Wilson, a member of the Board of Women UCW, began the sessions for studying methods of program planning. For a better understanding problems were listed, then Miss Wilson gave the following list for anyone having to present a program: know the capabilities of the people assisting with the presentation; know the education, background and sitting ability of the audience; limit any program to 35 minutes; and know the material available.

Mrs. Percy Chalmers, of Niagara Falls added a note of gaiety to the meetings as she taught the delegates new songs.

At the chapel session, Mrs. B. Garrett, of Lindsay, one of a team of ministers and lay persons who pressed Survey for the Bay of Quinte Conference over CKLY, Lindsay, led a group in the presentation of a demonstration Bible study and discussion. Mrs. Garrett showed that in a planned discussion the leader would have assigned parts to each person, would have pre-arranged for any reference Bible passages to have been found and explained, did attempt to interpret the passage being studied and did have split the group into two sessions, following which there would have been an evaluation.

The evening session was closed with an inspiring vesper service led by Mrs. Stirling Stewart and Mrs. Harold Ireland from Cobourg Presbyterial. Mrs. John L. Goodfellow sang two beautiful solos.

Lone Woman Demands Strike Vote

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg union has applied for a one-woman strike vote against another union.

Mrs. Jean Durack, business agent for Local 342, Office Employees International Union (CLC), said Monday she has applied for a government - supervised strike vote by the single secretary employed by Local 343, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, also a CLC-affiliated union.

She says the Carpenters have refused to give their only employee a pay raise, and after negotiating with the office workers' union for years, now refuse to recognize it.

Manitoba law requires that all union strike votes be held under government supervision—even for only one employee.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

SUMMER JOB IS A STEPPINGSTONE

This is the season of the summer replacement.

On TV, it usually is a rerun of a rerun. At the office, though, it might be a girl still in high school or college, trying to gain experience as well as a bank account during vacation from school.

But while you can turn off the tired old rerun on TV, there is not much you can do about the summer replacement in the office but try to cope with her.

Happily, the large majority are quick to learn and are really an asset. But there are a few unfortunately, who consider a summer job as just a time-filler, even though it will help pay for school expenses next fall, and about the only real experience they absorb is how to loaf and gossip.

You see her in many job situations. She may be the receptionist who ignores a visitor standing at her desk, while she "...ws on the telephone and polish to help it dry. She might be the sales clerk who craftily gets absorbed in straightening a display case rather than wait on the three women patiently waiting to buy some stockings.

SUMMER REPLACEMENT

Is it any wonder then that the annual event of the summer replacement is enough to make any good employee want to cancel her vacation immediately? Perhaps the girl who's to fill in for her while she's away will make nincemeat of the files. And will she be able to take shorthand correctly and make sure they are accurately transcribed?

Most of the time she really has nothing to worry about, and the girl who has been hired for the summer is generally carefully screened by personnel. But, occasionally, you get one who spends more time doing all the water cooler than pecking away at the typewriter.

Actually, a summer job is a steppingstone in many ways. It gives one an edge on experience which is essential for getting a steady job after graduation. Possibly you can ready a niche for yourself in the firm you're working for this summer by showing how conscientious you are, and displaying your store of tact, charm and good manners.

A summer job is not just a stop-gap between semesters. It is a training ground — and a proving ground. The smart girl with an eye on the future knows how essential it is to stock up on the knowledge offered and to display her talent.

It is the one who masters the job, and who is courteous and considerate to all with whom she comes in contact, who can be sure of a warm next summer. Perhaps permanently.

Butter 'Em Up
Hot or cold, corn on the cob, toasted, open face or covered up to two or three decks . . . there's extra scope for sandwiches in summer. And any sandwich worthy of the name includes plenty of butter—not only because of the distinctive flavor it contributes, but also because it serves as a moisture-proofer, to speak, between the bread and filling.

A Chill Idea
For a new sandwich treat, add chili sauce to uncreamed or "dry" cottage cheese. Heat until smooth, then add crisp crumbled bacon bits for extra flavor.

Infallible Recipe to Frighten Children
We'd like to share this "recipe" from a favorite magazine: "Take 1 large greasy black pot, chill children, 2 or 3 dogs, a pinch of brook, and some pebbles. Mix the children and dogs well together and put them in the field, stirring constantly. Pour the brook over the pebbles, sprinkle the field with flowers, spread over all a deep blue sky and bake in the hot sun. When brown, remove and set away to cool in a bandsh".

Butternilk Coleslaw
Adding a little buttermilk to mayonnaise for coleslaw gives a fresh zing to the dressing for this perfect kind of hot weather salad. Good on green cone too.

Instant "Vichyssoise"
You can make a pretty good facsimile of this classic French soup by adding milk to frozen or canned cream of potato soup, as the label directs, then adding a generous amount of dairy sour cream. Chill cleanly, then at serving time beat until smooth, serve in chilled dishes and sprinkle with chopped chives. Pass a variety of cheese and crackers for a sensational summer lunch!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Don't be misled. The above picture is not a bunch of scared superannuate sissies bitching fer a cashier; a group of long-necked tennis fans watching a game, nor a major league baseball player's whiskers before commercialized shaving cream gets in its deadly work.

The stiff hooked-neck sprouts are antique golf clubs that represent an early era of the game and are now on display at the Upper Canada Golf Course in the "village," near Morrisburg.

The tools of today's golfer are a far cry from the equipment used in the early days of the sport, which as any loyal Scot will tell you, originated in the heathered moors of the land north of the Clyde.

But historians who disclaim an association with the Scottish clans outside of oiling their tonsils daily with a quaff or two of their famous "mountain dew" pyrduct, claim that shepherds in days long before the Christian era may have indulged in the game.

They gaze through tartaned eyeballs at ancient drawings or carvings and hazard the guess that the ancient sheep tenders used their curved sticks and took swipes at loose pebbles.

Probably at invading rams of a neighboring flock that craved a change of woolly harem with ideas of upping the lamb chops production the next spring.

Some of the clubs pictured are over 100 years old, made by the experts of those days who frequented the famous St. Andrew's course in Scotland, founded by Mary, Queen of Scots, about 1552.

No. 1 is an early type of driver with an inset bone face made at St. Andrew's in 1860, probably from the skulls of slain foemen from south of the border.

No. 2 is another bone-head club, an unsual one which has the loft of today's three-wood.

No. 3 is another longhead driver made years ago, also used for extracting wayward balls from heather clumps.

No. 4 is called a cleek which boasts a wooden inset face.

No. 5 was the choice of the golfing bluebloods about 1912-16. It is an ornate affair and was called a Number One Iron.

No. 6 is a select "lofter," which got around before being placed on pension. It was made in 1890 by Anderson of Anstruther. It also bears the mark of George Lowe of St. Anne's-on-the-Sea.

No. 7 is one of the earliest drivers made. It was manufactured and used by Tom Morris of St. Andrew's, Scotland, about 1850. The club was actually used recently by the Hon. James Auld, to officially open the Upper Canada golf course.

Morris, by the way, was a member of golf's first famous two-some. His partner was Willie Park Sr., who won the first recognized championship in 1860. Morris won it in 1861 and 1862 and beat Parks again in 1864.

Number 8 is a toothed iron called "The Major." This club was used for playing floating balls off the surface of water or combing on opponent's hair.

Number 9 is an old niblick with a thick grip of the type sometimes called a "brick iron" for lifting a ball out of a wagon rut. Many Scottish courses were constructed on common land owned by the town. Farmer's carts were allowed to pass over them.

Number 10 is an early Spalding 1-iron and Number 11 is a Schpectacly putter used by David Stratch at St. Andrew's Ground 1816.

Numbers 12 and 13 are the unknowns, but Number 14 is a sand iron of 1850 which was donated to the Royal Canadian Golf Association which owns the set, by Robert Harris, twice British amateur champion and British Walker Team captain in 1926.

Crackers Hammer Leafs 8-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Willie Horton's fifth hit of the night, a two-run double in the top of the 12th inning, ended a long evening for 10 assorted pitchers Monday night. But as far as the hitters were concerned, it could have gone on till dawn.

When all the returns were in, Syracuse Chiefs had beaten Columbus Jets 15-11. The two International League clubs picked up 43 hits between them and benefited from a total of 13 bases on balls.

Elsewhere it was underdogs night as the first-place Jacksonville Suns fell 5-3 at Buffalo, the tail-end Atlanta Crackers hammered Toronto Maple Leafs 8-2 and the seventh-place Richmond Virginians scored an unearned run in the 10th inning to nip Rochester Red Wings 2-1.

Mack Jones, who had the game's only home run, matched Horton's five-hit output as Columbus as the Chiefs came from behind three times and the Jets, vainly put together a seven-run third inning.

The Bisons survived four errors as 5-year-old Ron Locke scattered five Jacksonville hits to boost them into third place, two percentage points ahead of Rochester.

A grand-slam homer by Ed Olivares did most of the damage in a five-run seventh inning that gave Atlanta the verdict over the Leafs as Bob Sadowski, the Leafs' second baseman, committed three of their four errors.

HEAVY STARS

Atoms in white dwarf stars are so tightly packed that the stars may weigh 15 tons a cubic inch.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Little Don Buford is growing into his White Sox uniform almost as fast as the patched-up Chicagoans are growing on the American League.

Buford, a pre-season rookie-of-the-year candidate who fizzled during the early going, continued his recent surge Monday night, driving in four runs with a homer, triple and single as the streaking Sox shelled Los Angeles Angels 9-0 and climbed within one-half game of the league lead.

Dick McAuliffe's two - run homer and Don Wert's tie-breaking single carried Detroit Tigers to a 7-5 victory over Boston Red Sox in the only other AL game scheduled.

The White Sox have won five straight and nine in 11 games. They trail first-place Baltimore Orioles by four percentage points.

Buford, a 5-foot-8, 175-pound infielder, has hit at a .375 clip during the current Chicago spurt, raising his batting average 23 points to .263. The 27-year-old speedster, under the .200 mark until early in June, has hit safely in 10 of his last 11 games, with two homers, a triple and four doubles.

SECOND SHUTOUT

His three hits Monday supported rookie righthander Fred Talbot, who evened his record at 5-3 and lowered his earned run average to a sparkling 2.16. Talbot scattered nine hits enroute to his second shutout.

Bill Skowron, recently acquired from Washington, and Montreal-born Pete Ward each chipped in with two hits and Tom McCraw drove in three runs as Chicago halted the Angels' six-game winning string.

The White Sox now have won 58 and lost 34 against eight AL clubs for a .630 percentage, but have lost 10 of 10 to New York Yankees, who they head by one game in the standings.

McAuliffe's 17th home run, in the eighth inning, pulled Detroit even at 5-5 before Wert doubled home Bill Freehan, who had singled, with the deciding run.

Red Sox manager Johnny Pesky was ejected for disputing the call on a two-run homer by the Tigers' George Thomas in the seventh.

Centre-fielder Thomas made an unassisted double play in the first inning, grubbing a line drive and running to second to retire baserunner Tony Conigliaro, who had fallen on the baseline.

Vancouver Oarsmen Favored

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Vancouver Rowing Club is favored to capture both the eight-man and four-man events at the Olympic sculling trials here today.

The Vancouver eights averaging 198 pounds a man, will face crews from the St. Catharines Rowing Club and the Toronto Argonauts during today's trials, a preliminary to this year's Canadian Henley Regatta.

The Vancouver fours, stroked by Roger Jackson, will have a St. Catharines four as its only opposition.

The doubles event has entries from St. Catharines, Hamilton Leanders and Argonauts.

The finals will be run on the course of the Henley Regatta which opens Wednesday and winds up Saturday.

ARRAIGNED IN ROBBERY

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Leduc, 43, of Val David, Que., was arraigned Monday on charges relating to the March 31 mail truck robbery in Montreal which netted bandits $1,400,000.

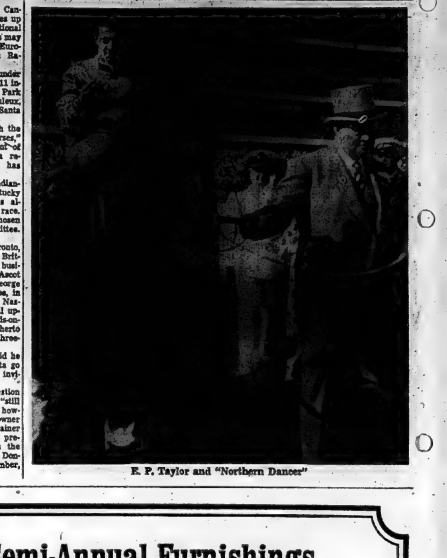
Including 'Santa Claus'
'Dancer' May Meet Europe's Best

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—When Canada's Northern Dancer lines up for the Laurel International race this fall, his opponents may include such outstanding European horses as Ireland's Ragusa and France's Reliko.

Others from Europe under consideration for the Nov 11 invitation event at Laurel Park in Maryland are Le Fabuleux, Khalkis, Nasram II and Santa Claus.

"We are negotiating with the owners of all these six horses," John D. Schapiro, president of Laurel racecourse, told a reporter Monday. "Nothing has been settled yet."



Northern Dancer, Canadian-bred winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, has already accepted for the race, American entries will be chosen later by a selection committee.

TAYLOR RACE

E. P. Taylor of Toronto, owner of the Dancer, is in British on one of his periodic business visits and was at Ascot Saturday to see the King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes, in which the French - bred Nasram II scored a sensational upset victory over the odds-on favorite, Santa Claus, hitherto regarded as Europe's top three-year-old.

After the race Taylor said he would still like to see Santa go against the Dancer in the invitational race.

Schapiro said the question of Santa's participation is "still open." Present indications, however, are that English owner John Ismay and Irish trainer John (Mick) Rogers will prefer to run the colt with the Christmassy name in the Doncaster St. Leger in September, then retire him to stud.

Cats Scare Lions, Riders Whip Bombers

Ex. Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats returned to the scene of the crime. But British Columbia Lions still haven't convinced them they aren't entitled to the Lions' Cup they took away with them after their last visit.

In fact, the 17,720 Vancouver fans who turned out Monday night to see a replay of last November's classic went away wondering how either club had mustered enough offensive power to get into the playoffs at all as they watched the Tigers grind out a lacklustre 9-0 victory in an exhibition game that produced no scoring until the final quarter.

At Winnipeg, 11,800 fans were given a bit more action but few prospects of future glory as the Blue Bombers took a 25-7 beating from Ottawa Rough Riders.

Old reliable Don Sutherin picked a 13-yard field goal at 9:38 of the final quarter to give the Tiger-Cats their margin. Most of the game was played at midfield with potential scoring chances wiped out by interceptions and alert linemen.

The only real enthusiasm was generated by Willie Fleming of the Lions who went 22 yards to take the play to midfield immediately after Sutherin's field goal.

Veteran Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney completed nine of 16 passes for 70 yards with Nick Rondinelli his prime receiver — 48 yards on four catches. The Lions had 18 first downs to Hamilton's 12.

At Winnipeg, the game was close until the end of the third quarter when Ottawa added a 12-7 lead. A touchdown by Ron Stewart on an end sweep and another by rookie Ken Lehmann on an intercepted pass in the fourth quarter put the game on ice for Ottawa.

It was the Bombers' first pre season test and the second for Ottawa Rough Riders who beat B.C. 21-6 in Ottawa Thursday.

The eastern club took a 7-0 lead on a touchdown by Ernie White on a short pass from quarterback Russ Jackson in the first quarter. Moe Racine lengthened the lead with a second quarter field goal from 41 yards out.

The Bombers bounced back when halfback Fleming took a pass from quarterback Ken Ploen from the Ottawa 10 and ran wide for a touchdown.

Racine converted two Ottawa touchdowns but missed on the third. Ottawa punter Ed Ulmer booted a long single.

Ottawa outrushed the Bombers 210 yards to 33 while the Winnipeg crew had the passing edge, 230 to 133. Winnipeg led in first downs, 16 to 12.

Redlegs Threaten Slumping Phils, Giants

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the first time since they won the pennant in 1961, Cincinnati Reds are stamping themselves as a power in the National League.

While Philadelphia Phillies and San Francisco Giants, who have battled for the lead all season, have turned to an apparent contest for slump-of-the-year honors, the Reds are coming like gangbusters.

They knocked off the first-place Phillies 6-3 Monday night while Chicago Cubs took care of the Giants 6-4 and moved within 2½ games of the top. That's just four games closer than the Redlegs were two weeks ago at the All - Star break.

Currently, Cincinnati has won 10 games in a row, starts while the Phillies have dropped nine out of 12 and the Giants six out of eight. Three percentage points separate the top pair.

Only one other game was scheduled in the National League. It saw Houston Colts whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 6 - 1, dropping the defending champions below the .500 mark again.

The Phillies led 2-0 when Cincinnati began the battle back.

Tommy Harper's two - run homer in the fifth off Dennis Bennett tied it, then the Reds broke through in the sixth for the clinching runs on a walk to Don Pavletich, Leo Cardenas' double and a triple by Steve Boros. Pavletich wrapped it up with a two-run eighth inning homer.

Healey One-Hits Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TWEED — A brilliant one-hitter by Blaine Healey and an unearned run in the second inning gave Tweed Lombanks a 1-0 win over Trenton here last night and boosted the winners into a second-place tie with the losers.

Softball Playoffs

Trenton Printers forfeited second place to Tweed in an unexpected move this morning, claiming they were unable to secure a pitcher for a scheduled sudden - death game in Belleville tonight.

As a result, the final league standing has Ellis Juniors in first, Tweed Lombanks second, Trenton third and Trudeau Motors fourth.

Both playoff series will open on Thursday night, Trenton visiting Ellis Juniors, (CNR 8.45) and Trudeau meeting Tweed (Moloc 8.15).

Second games will be played Saturday in the 3-of-5 sets. Tweed plays at Trudeaus at 6.45 and Ellis Juniors at Trenton, at 8.30.

Last night's game provided typical playoff ball with great pitching and fielding by both clubs.

Healey lost his bid for a no-hitter when Gordie Simmons poked a single to centre in the fourth inning. He died on first. Healey fired third strikes past 11 and issued two walks.

Mike Ratushniak, Trenton's lefty, also pitcher great ball, forgive giving way to Pat Marcile in the top of the eighth. He allowed four hits, struck out one and also walked a pair. Marcile retired the Lombank batters in order in the eighth.

Tweed's scoring break came with one out in the second when Simmons walked Norton and wild pitched him to second. R. LeSage bunted and Beauregard's hurried throw to first bounced off Drake's glove and hit the first baseman in the head. Norton rounded third and came in to score with Drake stretched out on the ground.

The teams traded terrific fielding plays. Bert Sherry robbed Leroy Vannamaker by spearing his liner over second in the top of the fourth, and George Woolcock stole an extra base hit from Rich Morton with a diving catch.

Trenton's best chance came in the eighth when an error and a walk put two on with none out. Healey fanned Woolcock but the runners moved to second and third on a wild pitch. Healey then whiffed Boudreau and got Marcile, hitting for Ratushniak, on a ground out.

Healey's error on Drake's bunt gave the losers one last chance in the ninth but a force play and a final strikeout ended it. Each club had a double play earlier in the fast contest.

Terry LeSage, with a double, Tom White, Ray LeSage and Lorne Carleton, collected Tweed safeties.

Wind Up Home Schedule

Joyces Turn Back Oshawa 3-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Stranding a dozen visiting runners on the base paths, Belleville Joyce Realty won a 3-1 decision over Oshawa Merchants here last night in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior game.

The victory wound up the locals' home schedule. They have two road games this week-end, in Oshawa Friday night and in Ajax Sunday afternoon.

Oshawa scored the first run of the game in the top of the third and had plenty of chances to increase that total in the late innings. They could not solve Bill Latchford's slants for a base hit in the right spot, however, and the Belleville hurler chalked up his sixth victory of the season.

Joyces lost no time in erasing the Oshawa lead, gained on a pair of walks, Willis' sacrifice bunt and a passed ball.

In the bottom of the third, Willis walked but the catcher threw the ball away on an attempted pickoff, permitting the tying run to score. Assistina grounded out, sending another home for a 2-1 count.

Oshawa had runners on in pairs in the fourth and sixth frames without success and Belleville closed the scoring in the sixth.

Weston opened with a double and Mavety was given an intentional walk. Hunter singled to right but Weston was called out in a close, disputed play at the plate. Another walk filled the sacks and Ault brought Jim McConkey to the hill, replacing Lucky Willis. Muirhead blooped a single to centre, scoring Mavety.. Mc-Conkey retired the winners in order the rest of the way, setting five down on strikes.

Latchford got himself in trouble in the eighth, walking one and then tossing the ball away on an easy third out to put runners on first and third. Whitely was given an intentional walk to fill the bases, but Mitchell popped up.

Another walk and a scratch hit in the ninth kept the nine in some doubt until Cole grounded into a force play to end the threat and game.

Latchford gave up five hits in all, two of them in the fourth and struck out 11. He experienced control trouble, walking seven.

Willis took the loss, allowing four of Belleville's five hits. He fanned three and also walked seven. McConkey did not walk a man.

Pete Weston's double was the only extra-base hit of the contest. Other Belleville safeties were shared by Mac Hunter, Larry Lewis, Stu Muirhead and Bill Latchford.

Merchant singles were divided among Ron Bell, Jack Cole, Bob Reid, Al Ethells and Dave Mitchell.

Umpires — Austin Watkin (F), Herb Painter (1b), and Al Kelsher (3b.)

Belvedere Starts Drive

Belvedere Hotel, making a determined bid to climb up among the leaders in the Commercial Softball League standings, dumped first-place Barriage Landscapers 7-4 last night.

Meanwhile, Lightfoot Construction also moved in on Barriages for defending the Point Anne Comentmen 5-3.

Belvedere grabbed a 4-0 lead in the first and saw Barriages tie it after 3½ innings. The winners regained the lead with one in the fourth and wrapped it up with two in the sixth.

Ted Casson pitched the victory, allowing seven hits, whiffing two and walking two. Joe Harvey was the loser, although he held up just five hits, fanning two and walking none. Six errors hurt his cause.

R. Bryant and J. Clapp were the Belvedere sparkplugs, each rapping a double and a single. Hughes got the club's other base knock.

Garry Wood and Tim Cook each had two Landgear hits each, and Don Wood doubled, Gerry Genereaux and Bill Cooney singled.

Lightfoots got help from Barriage Point Anne errors in their victory. The winners plated three runs in the third to establish a 4-1 lead at that time.

Bev McLean, with help from George Vanwyck in the sixth, pitched the victory. He gave up all seven of the losers' hits, striking six and walking one. Vanwyck was superb while hurling hitless relief ball, fanning a pair.

Vern Whalen also allowed seven hits and one route in defeat. He struck out one and walked three.

All star game's hits were singles, with Lightfoots' Jim Sheridan getting a pair. Rusty Garvin, Don Smith, Jack Whalen, Ken Brooks and Jack Caddick had the others.

Eric Fisher and Jim Horwood singled twice each, H. Powell, G. Maher and A. Colden once, for the Comentmen.

Planes Edge Read 9-8

Plane's Concrete built up early lead and then held off late-inning rallies by the visitors to nip Read 9-8 in a South Hastings Baseball League game at Cannifton last night.

Read scored two runs in each of the eighth and ninth innings to make it close. Plane's had all their runs in by the end of the sixth.

Don Dafoe was the winning pitcher, tagged for 10 hits, striking out one and walking three.

G. Durkin started and lost for Reid, with Farrell coming on in the third. They gave up 13 safeties, struck out six and walked six.

Hugh Petrie had a big night at the plate for Plane's Concrete. He rapped three doubles and a single. Len Harvey chipped in with two hits each, and single while Ken Forsythe and Pat O'Connor also got two hits apiece. Ross Parks, Don Dafoe and Ron Urch also hit safely.

Read hits, all singles, went to Dwight Perry Milligan, Leo Enright and Ken Brennan, with two apiece, Farrell, T. Abrams, Claude Lewis and C. Milligan.

Minor Baseball Results

In a Peewee baseball fixture played at Park Dale last night, Jaycees doubled the score on the Red Sox to the tune of 24-12.

Daryl Demers pitched the victory, giving up seven hits, striking out ten and walking three. P. Hall was his receiver.

Wayne Farrell allowed nine hits as Red Sox rubber. He fanned eight and walked five. R. Jury did the catching.

Jerry Pope and Ron Hoard collected two singles apiece in leading the Jaycees hitters. Jim Wood and Paul Hall hit doubles, Dick Fobert, Don Bankey and Steve Hamilton, singles.

Ron Jury and Wayne Farrell had two singles each for the losers. Jim Blatchford had a double, Pete Middleton and Moe Thompson singles.

204 Enter Ont. Amateur

TORONTO (CP)—A total of 204 entries have been received for the 42nd annual Ontario Amateur golf tournament which starts here Wednesday.

Five former champions will be in the field, including five-time amateur champion Mitch Weslock of Toronto, three-time winner Jack Nash of London, Bill and Dave Marsland of North Bay and Ray Coole of Brampton.

Wednesday's 18-hole qualifying round will count in the competition for Ontario's Willingdon Cup team which will play in inter-provincial matches.

So far, Weslock is leading in the race for a spot on the four-man team. He has a total of 206 in three 18-hole rounds in earlier tournaments. Gary Cowan of Kitchener is second with 214, Bruce Brewer and Ken Thorpe, both of Toronto, are third and fourth with respective scores of 218 and 221.

Three players are tied at 225 —Mike Whitney of Kitchener, defending Ontario Amateur champion Bill Morland and Bob Bradley of Oshawa.

Atlantic City Swim

Three Threaten Dutchman

By BARRIE MARTLAND

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) — What dunbe itself with grease and strokes through water for money?

A professional marathon swimmer.

Nineteen such athletes, including five Canadians, will do just that today in the 11th swimming of the 26-mile Atlantic City marathon at this coastal holiday resort city.

They will be swimming for $17,000 in prize money and the almost permanent title of Herman Willemse, 30-year-old Dutch schoolteacher who has made victory a profitable habit by winning here the last four years.

Three Canadians have a good chance of breaking Willemse's habit and taking the $5,000 first prize. They are:

—Cliff Lumsden, a burly 23-year-old New Toronto hydro lineman who has won almost $200,000 in his professional swimming career and has never finished out of the money. He has won here twice and was fourth last year. He has also won the Canadian National Exhibition swim, 15 miles on Lake Ontario at Toronto, four times.

—Regent (Johnny) LaCoursiere, a 26-year-old Montrealer and only swimmer to complete the 10-mile stretch across the Northumberland Strait between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. LaCoursiere was third here last year and has never won this marathon.

—Tom Park, a 40-year-old Hamilton, Ont., native now living in Lakewood, Calif. He has won this swim three times and was defeated by Lumsden by two-tenths of a second in 1956 in the swim's most exciting finish. He did not compete last year.

EGYPTIAN ENTERED

Another strong challenge is expected to come from Maj. Abdel Latif Abou-Heif, 35, of Alexandria, Egypt, who was second to Willemse in 1963.

Other Canadians entered are George Park of Hamilton, 30-year-old brother of Tom who finished fourth in the 1963 CNE swim, and Hedy Schmidt 21, of Toronto — both competing here for the first time.

Miss Schmidt's special concern, and the concern of the three other women entered, will be the women's title held by the amazing Greta Andersen of Los Alamitos, Calif. Miss Andersen, 35, has won the women's crown seven times and is a former Danish Olympic gold medal winner.

The race begins about 7 a.m. EDT. They circle Absecom Island, swimming half in the bay and half in the Atlantic Ocean.

Eight countries will be represented.

Chandler May Quit NY Giants

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP)— Don Chandler, probably the most important part-time pro football player since Len Green, may quit because coach Allie Sherman of New York Giants doesn't want him to be a part/ time player.

During the last couple of years Chandler has been a specialist, coming into the game only to punt or place-kick. That was fine with the coach.

But Sherman was less happy about Chandler's proposal to show up only a couple of days before each National Football League game and play only day-by-day training.

The 26-year-old booter, who has lucrative business and insurance interests, told Sherman he would like to play another season, but only as a part-time player.

"Maybe it was okay in the past," Sherman said, "but the game has grown to where no one can do that best with a part-time effort. "You're either a full-time professional football player, or you're something else."

Chandler, who led the NFL in scoring last season with 106 points on 18 field goals and 52 extra points, later told a Giants official he may change his mind.

PROMISE GOOD WEATHER

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese weathermen Monday forecast the October Tokyo Olympics will be blessed with fine autumn weather. A long-run forecast released by the central meteorological agency said temperatures during the period would be normal or a little lower at 61 to 76 degrees, but humidity would be 71 per cent."

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Puss N Boots returned to Fort Erie, the scene of his greatest races, Monday and celebrated by running away with the opening day Vineland Handicap.

Owned by Roxie and Walter Glas of Buffalo, Puss N Boots was favored by most of the 9,068 who welcomed the thoroughbreds back to the border track for a 42-day stay, and he returned $3.80, $2.30 and $2.20.

Nicknamed the "Big Cat" by trainer Frank Merrill Jr., Puss N Boots first gained notoriety at Fort Erie by jumping the hedge around the turf course and plunging into an infield lake.

With Avelino Gomez in the saddle, Puss N Boots jumped into the lead at the start of the mile and one-sixteenth test and never was in danger of losing.

At the wire he was three lengths in front of Lord Quillo and eight more on top of third place finisher Sunny.

His time of 1.43 3-5 was just one second behind the track record established in 1962.

DEFENDS TITLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Defending champion Don Davidson of Ottawa puts his title on the line Thursday when the Quebec Amateur golf championships begin at the Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club. Davidson, who played professional hockey with Greensboro, N.C., of the Eastern Hockey League last winter, plays out of the Glenlea Golf Club, Hull, Que. He will face opposition from 120 golfers across Canada and Ottawa, included in the province of Quebec Golf Association.

Dit Clapper Progressing

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Former National Hockey League star Aubrey (Dit) Clapper is progressing favorably, hospital officials say. He is out of his oxygen tent most of the time.

Clapper, the only man to play 20 years in the NHL, suffered a heart attack Thursday. He suffered a heart attack Thursday, played all his NHL career — from 1927 to 1947—with Boston Bruins and was named to the all-star team as a defenceman three consecutive years.

Called A Homer

Sox Double Bred Trouble

BOSTON (AP) — When is a double not a double? When an umpires calls it a home run.

That's the Red Sox version of a disputed home run, or was it a double, Monday night which:

1. Launched a Detroit comeback toward a 7-6 victory over Boston.

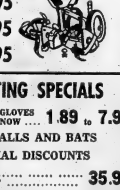
2. Got Boston manager Johnny Pesky tossed out of the game.

3. Capped a wild night for Detroit centre fielder George Thomas.

Thomas's two - run homer struck the top, front edge or facing of the left field wall in the seventh inning, bounced high in the air and fell back on the field.

Third-base umpire Bill Haller held up Thomas at Second, apparently ruling a double. The Detroit bench was fit to be tied. After consulting plate umpire Ed Hurley, Haller gave the home run sign, the Sox flew into a rage and Pesky was banished.

Said Haller: "I went in to ask Hurley, 'Is it a home run if it hits the top of the wall?' He said yes. So I call it a home run."



Thomas also had two singles and turned in a rare, unassisted double play by an outfielder when he caught a Lee Thomas line drive and ran to second base to put out a Boston runner.

GET EQUAL WEIGHTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Mongo and Keino, who finished one-two in last week's Monmouth Handicap, were assigned equal parently ruling a double. The weights of 130 pounds Monday for Saturday's running of the $100,000 added Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct.

Rose Marie Dreads Job Without Her Truest Fan

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Next week Rose Marie plays a real life Pagliacci.

The wise-cracking comedienne, who plays the single girl who is always looking for a man on The Dick Van Dyke Show.

The show took a summer vacation and resumes filming July 30.

During that vacation, Rose Marie lost her husband of 18 years. He died suddenly from a blood ailment.

Her husband trumpeter Bobby Guy, was the comics' favorite musician. A hearty, sincere laughter, he was always in the band when Jerry Lewis, Danny Kaye, George Gobel or any of the other big name comics appeared.

He also was a good trumpeter — once featured with the Kay Kyser band in the thirties.

Rose Marie, a former stage and movie child star, has been in show business all her life but never wound up with the adult problems of most child performers.

"Somehow, I never felt as if I were different than other kids," she says. "I thank my mother for that. Maybe that's why Bobby and I had such a happy marriage.

DAUGHTER SOLACE

"We had 18 wonderful years together — and a wonderful daughter who is the image of her father. And she is so much like him in many ways. It is the one solace I have.

"That and all the wonderful letters from people I never even knew existed. Lots of them from friends of Bobby — friends I never knew he had.

"It's strange that you can be married to someone for 18 years and not know all about him — and his friends."

Bobby loved all comics But his favorite was his wife.

Once he enthused so much about his wife's timing and deliver, that Gobel said:

"Bobby is such a fan of Rose Marie that he's the only husband in town who asks his wife for an autograph at breakfast."

Rose Marie has front remuming her comedy career, Rose Marie said " dread it."

TV—Radio Column

Delight to Make Living Playing Television Games

Betty White's career as a television actress took a fascinating detour because she loves to play parlor games and has a quick, facile wit all her own. Betty, a private life the wife of another dedicated gamesman, Allen Ludden, tells a little about life among the television panelists in this column written for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

Written for AP
By BETTY WHITE

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last several years I have been the victim of a frightening, recurring dream. In this nightmare, I am thrown into jail for stealing money.

"No, no," I cry, as the great steel door slams shut. "Not just me. There were others in the gang. What about Kitty Carlisle, Bess Myerson and Henry Morgan?"

I awaken in a cold sweat and it takes me a while to face myself in the mirror because, of course, stealing is exactly what I have been doing for years. Playing games on television with nice people for a half-hour and then taking money for it is tantamount to grand larceny.

It is a delight to make one's living playing games like To Tell the Truth, Match Game, Password and Get the Message, but I always bristle a little when people use that supercilious tone when they mention "game shows."

It would be interesting to measure how much mental exercise, vocabulary improvement and general information is derived from watching a half-hour of Truth or Password.

ARE A CHANGE

Certainly they are a refreshing change of pace after a string of westerns, dramas and comedies with their predictable lokes and plots you can almost write yourself.

It is impossible to watch a game show without participating to some degree.

From a performer's standpoint a game show is a challenge. It is a terribly revealing exercise with no script behind which to hide and no time to put on a special image. You sink or swim before millions of people.

At the Park

NOW SHOWING
"BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI"

Some 30 major international awards have been accorded Sam Spiegel's production of "The Bridge on the River Kwai," Academy Award winner of seven Hollywood citations, including that for best picture. Produced by David Lean, who produced by Sam Spiegel and directed by David Lean, who won similar Academy Award honors for their production of "Lawrence of Arabia." "The Bridge on the River Kwai" is now at the Park through Cinemascope and Technicolor.

William Holden, Alec Guinness, who won an "Oscar" for the "best performance by an actor," and Jack Hawkins star in the swift, gripping film.

Based on Pierre Boulle's best-selling novel, "The Bridge on the River Kwai" has the beginnings—and its overwhelmingly suspenseful climax—in a prison camp early in World War II. Here Holden, as an American seaman who intends to survive the war, watches Guinness lead his surrendered men into their desperate captivity with all the pride of a professional officer. Holden manages to escape the jungle camp and much in flight from Guinness as from Japanese commandant Sessue Hayakawa; both possess the stubborn military mind Holden can neither understand nor accept.

As the casual American swept up in great events in spite of himself, Holden is superb; Guinness rates his "best actor of the year" award for his work as the British officer and Hawkins plays a commando leader with a singleness of purpose and a sense of humor. Hayakawa is a British doctor. Ann Sears plays a nurse who shares with Holden a brief romantic interlude, and Geoffrey Horne makes a vivid young commando.

"The Bridge on the River Kwai" is a superb motion picture that is well worth seeing, again and yet again.

"Bridge on the River Kwai" continues until Saturday. One complete show starts at 8.00. Feature at 8.30. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

Export Council Is Formed To Promote British Trade

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (AP)—The British government moved dramatically Monday to promote exports, notably to Canada, the United States and Latin America.

The formation of a new export council linked with new bodies to promote trade with specific areas was announced by Trade Minister Edward Heath in the House of Commons.

The move represented a major effort by the Conservative government in co-operation with industry to expand its export trade to which—in the case of Canada—it has been suffering a disadvantage of 2 to 1.

Opposition members, led by Labor Chief Harold Wilson charged that Heath's plan did not sufficiently embrace Commonwealth trade despite the Canadian connection.

The government formed a British national export council, headed by Thomas McFadzean, to "initiate, guide and inspire export efforts in all markets."

FORM NEW BODIES

"Three new bodies will be formed to continue and develop the work formerly carried out by the Council for United States and Latin America by the Western Hemisphere export council," Heath declared.

Peter Allen, 38, appointed head of the Canadian group, told a reporter he only heard about the new job last Thursday and has been busily making plans.

Deputy chairman of the giant Imperial Chemical Industries, he will appoint a business committee of eight or nine members who will visit Canada later this year.

"The Canadian market is one of the most competitive markets in the world and the Americans have certain advantages over us in it," said Allen. "But words were echoed by Heath at a later press conference.

Allen, president and chairman of ICI of Canada and chairman of the board of Canadian Industries Limited, an ICI subsidiary, said he is often in Canada and plans a tour starting in Vancouver in August. Later he will go back with the committee.

ASKS FOR SURVEY

Without going into specifics, Allen said he asked the Federation of British Industries, which will be providing much statistical and secretarian assistance, to make a survey of Anglo-Canadian trade since the Second World War.

"After that, we'll know better how to make our assault," he said, smiling.

Allen volunteered that his committee will include French-speaking members — "it's obvious that French Canada can't be ignored in this project."

British exporters have been doing well in such items as heavy machinery in Canada and "it was possible lessons could be learned from them on how smaller items could be marketed despite the tough U.S. competition and Canada's own manufacturing.

In case of many interests, Allen was educated at exclusive Harrow and Oxford. A stamp collector and railway buff, he has written books on railways and locomotives.

Sir Alec Rose, 60, Scottish industrialist whose company built the subparine cable between Vancouver and Vancouver Island, said he hopes to be Canada's "philosopher and friend" to British businessmen.

British exporters have long complained about at least 2000 showing on the Canadian market and they have received much encouragement in visits by Prime Minister Pearson, Finance Minister Walker Gordon and Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp.

WAS BRANCH MANAGER

TORONTO (CP) — Walter C. Rean, 79, a branch manager for the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada in London, Ont., and Toronto until poor health forced his retirement in 1941, died Monday. Born in Tilsury, Ont., Mr. Rean was a past president of the Life Underwriters Association in London and a life member of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

Parsons Whip Smith's Falls

Parsons beat Smith's Falls 5-1 in a clean but hard fought game last night under the lights in Kingston.

Belleville went ahead 5-0 on goals by Joe Romano, two by Joe Jager and one each from Sutherford and McLeod.

With five minutes to play in the second half, Parsons defence made one mistake and Smith's Falls scored their only goal spoiling the fine performance by goalie Bob Van Gerwen.

Mike Turner and Graham Geldart were standouts on Parsons defence with their head-ups play.

Cadets Bivouac At Actinolite

PICTON — From July 16 to July 18, 32 student militia cadets from Picton were on a Bivouac Exercise in Actinolite. The primary purpose of exercise was to acquaint the boys with the problems of living in the field. The group had to provide its own food and shelter. While at the site the boys were taught forest fire prevention and appreciation by members of the Department of Lands and Forests. They were also given instruction in hunter safety and small arms handling by Lands and Forests personnel. From July 30 to July 31, the group will again camp, this time at Point Petre, where they will take field engineering and field engineering. This Friday the cadets will practice firing from the Barrisfield range near Kingston.

Open New Bank Of Nova Scotia

PICTON — Hundreds of interested citizens turned out on Saturday to inspect the new home of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Picton. Open house was held from 2 p.m. until 4.00 and refreshments were served by the downtown staff area. Visiting dignitaries, staff and citizens formed a large crowd at the main entrance when Mayor Harvey J. McFarland cut the ribbon to officially open the bank.

He wished Manager Len Allen and his staff success in their new quarters. Bank officials from out of town attending the event were: Mr. Gerald Norman, retired Barrie bank manager; Mr. Walter Bond, Assistant General Manager, Toronto; Mr. Thomas Douglas, supervisor of Credits, Toronto; Mr. Lorne Miles, supervisor of staff, Toronto; and Mr. Paul VanBlock, supervisor of business developments, Toronto.

The public inspected all areas of the tastefully decorated building.

The airconditioned atmosphere of the bank made the visit a pleasant one for the many citizens who attended on a hot day.

Swimmers Off To Fast Start, Park Missing

By BARRY MARTLAND

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) Nineteen marathon swimmers including four Canadians splashed off to a fast start today at 8:59 a.m. EDT after waiting for more than an hour for favorable tide and wind conditions in the gruelling 26-mile Atlantic City Annual marathon swim.

A Dutch school teacher, 30-year-old Herman Willemse, was favored to win the race for the fifth straight time, but an old challenger, Cliff Lumsdon of Toronto, wasn't conceding anything.

Taking part in his 10th marathon in 11 years, Lumsdon said before jumping off the pier at the Atlantic City municipal marina pointed "It's still anybody's race. Anything can happen."

The swimmers were sent on their way with the help of further Canadian swimming great Marilyn Bell, the first woman to swim Lake Ontario and the first woman to complete the then 32-mile course here in 1954.

Marilyn, now Mrs. Joseph DiLascio of Lewittown, N.J., joined an Atlantic City official as starters for the race.

Missing from the race was veteran Tom Park, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., who did not show up.

His brother George, of Weston, Ont., who was one of the four Canadian entries today, said Tom was not in good enough condition to compete although he had been entered.

Willemse, considered one of the greatest of Dutch swimmers, hoped to have favorable tides in his swim around Absecon Island to break his course-record time of 10 hours, 30 minutes and five seconds—set in 1960. Last year the Dutch school teacher was clocked in 10:31:45.

Lumsdon, Johnny Lacourciere, 23, of Montreal, Abdel Latif Aboudeif of Egypt and 38-year-old Greta Andersen, a native of Denmark now living in Los Alamitos, Calif., were expected to give Willemse his toughest battle.

The lone Canadian woman in the race was 21-year-old Hedy Schmidt, a petite, freckle-faced Torontonian. She was a first-time starter along with George Park.

The swimmers competed for $11,000 in prize money, with $5,000 going to the winner and $800 to the first woman to finish.

Dogs Attack Police Cruiser

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two dogs attacked a police cruiser in this city's east end Sunday and police believe they may have belonged to a wild dog gang that has been terrorizing the area for the last week.

Const. Wayne Gunning of the Sandwich West police department said two German shepherds attacked his cruiser while he was on patrol. One dog jumped at the driver's window and the other bit the tires.

Police cruisers and members of the Essex County Humane Society have been patrolling the area in search of the dog pack that has been blamed for the killing of farm livestock and fowl.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 22

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Persons able to help you will do so. But, in turn, you must make changes. Show of good faith will be required. Member of opposite sex can prove of aid.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Favorable lunar aspect coincides with writing, publishing. Your views spread. Travel indicated . . . opportunities to expand horizons. Your creative efforts will "pay off."

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Attend to financial obligations. Leave no loose ends. Take nothing for granted. Be sincere, frank. If you state what you can do - - and when - - you will gain respect.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Key is cooperation and responsibility. Do what you say you will do. Make only those promises you are sure you can keep. Don't sign agreements which are too "far out."

Leo (July 23 to August 21) Good for buying, selling. Feeling of well-being comes from job fully completed. Day to finish, gain new allies. One with problem due to confide in you. Be sympathetic.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't hang on to associations which have lost spark. What you need is inspiration and stimulation. Important to make new friends, seek new avenues of expression.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your hunch about person who "overlows". with optimism is correct. Seek truth in simplicity. Be suspicious of those who obscure vision with "trimmings." Message very clear by tonight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Tendency is to scatter forces. Your sense of humor is working overtime. But certain situations actually are not funny. Be perceptive. Important to look behind the scenes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Money questions arise. Solution easy if you attend to details. Take first things first - - avoid trying to "leap" basic steps. Time on your side today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Cycle high. Circumstances appear to work in your favor. You are able to be at right place....at proper time. You can put natural good judgment to practical use.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Pleasure can be gained through hobby - - and also profit. The more you enjoy yourself now ... the more effective are your techniques. Added knowledge can also prove beneficial.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Be with people. Come out of emotional shell. Good to express desires, beliefs, ideals. The more outgoing you are today ....the better. Stress humor, good will.

If today is your birthday you have determination to achieve goal - - you appear to have special talent for overcoming difficult obstacles.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Virgo: Be realistic May not be easy but proves constructive.

Big Attendance at Carnival Backs Lions Club Projects

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Lions Club held a successful three-night Carnival at the end of last week. The attendance at each of the three nights was indicative of the way in which citizens appreciate the work of the club.

The Lions Club park and swimming beach is the hub where of activity with bathers and swimming classes. The town of Campbellford with its Trent River flowing through it had never provided adequate beaches or boat launching facilities. It remained for the Lions Club to provide the foresight and initiate the project, resulting in one of the finest summer places in the area. For a club with a comparatively small membership this meant hours and sometimes days of voluntary labor.

The club has already contributed an amount of money toward the purchase of an ice making machine for the Campbellford - Seymour Community Centre and has committed itself to further contribution to the Centre.

PRIZES AWARDED

Prizes for the Carnival went to the following: 1st prize - choice of refrigerator or colour set, Mrs. Ken Newman, Campbellford; 2nd prize - choice of electric range or television set, Bill Houghton, Campbellford; 3rd prize - 10 piece bedroom suite by John Locke, Campbellford; 4th prize - pair of Mr. T. Waters of Hastings; 5th prize - men's or ladies' gold watch, R. Cass, Frankford; 6th prize - ladies' or men's suit, Fred Predree, Campbellford; 7th prize - power mower, Mrs. Newman, Campbellford; 8th prize - girls' or boys' bicycle, Gordon Hall, Campbellford; 9th prize - transistor radio, Jack Cowell; 10th prize - radio, F. Garvey of Campbellford.

Attendance prizes of five dollars each were given at the end of the nights and a unique feature was that a 10-year girl, Brenda Taylor won an attendance prize each night.

3 Watertown People Injured

CAMPBELLFORD — Three Watertown people were injured in an accident during the weekend, when their car failed to negotiate a curve on the road from Bradley Bay, Concession 2, Seymour township.

Denis Ingram, 24, 10 Flamborough St., Watertown, was driving a 1959 Oxford Station Wagon when the car failed to ditch and struck a hydro pole turning over on its side.

Mrs. Ingram, 26, received a broken left collar bone, and three broken ribs. Her son, Stephen, 3, has undetermined back injuries.

O.P.P. Constable Dewey Ingleson, 31, who investigated the cruiser to Campbellford Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Ingram was removed to hospital by ambulance, first to Campbellford hospital and later to Peterborough Civic Hospital.

START EXPERIMENT

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) Four United States Navy divers entered the Project Sealab II capsule Monday, starting a 21-day experiment in living under water. The 40-foot-long capsule was moored 192 feet beneath the ocean surface with the aim of proving man's underwater working capabilities.

School Site Bought From R. Anderson

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Public School Board has purchased ten acres from Mr. Robert Anderson for a future site for a school to replace the old Bridge St. schools. This includes Mr. Anderson's barns and silos, which are to be removed at Mr. Anderson's expense, when the land is needed for school buildings.

This property was bought for the future. New Bridge St. buildings may not be built for some years unless a major expense develops in the old building or some other emergency arises. In the meantime Mr. Anderson is allowed the use of the land, for which he pays the taxes.

For five years the public school board has had an agreement with Mr. Anderson for the first opportunity to buy these ten acres, which was the minimum Mr. Anderson would sell and which will be needed for future building. This is, by far, the most centrally located property for future buildings and knowing this price, property was being sought for 40 building lots with road allowance, the board decided to complete the deal which was finished this summer.

The cost of the ten acres is $20,000 which is to be paid over five years. No debentures are to be issued; an annual amount will be budgeted each year.

Truck Upsets, Three Injured

CAMPBELLFORD — A car and truck were in a serious accident Saturday p.m., four miles southwest of Campbellford, No. 45 Highway.

John O'Neil, 21, Tweonia, was proceeding north on 45 Highway; Arthur Covert, 53, Rossmeath, driving an express truck was in the same direction, turned out to pass the O'Neil car and the O'Neil car proceeded to make a left turn.

The Covert truck turned over, pinning the passenger, Mrs. Mc Cracken, 56, under the truck. Mr. McCracken suffered a badly bruised arm and elbow, and his wife, Evelyn, 52, had minor injuries and abrasions.

The Patterson of Hastings, was the attending doctor and had Mr. and Mrs. McCracken removed to Peterborough Civic Hospital for Treatment.

Mr. Covert received head and face injuries. Damage to the O'Neil car was $50, and to the Covert truck, $800, almost a write-off.

O.P.P. Constable Steacy of the Campbellford detachment investigated.

ACTOR INJURED

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—Actor Robert Walker broke his right ankle during a performance he had choreographed Monday night. The show had to be cancelled — but not until Walker had finished the scene. He broke the ankle as he jumped to the stage from a three-foot platform midway in the first act, but ad libbed the rest of the scene on his knees or clinging to a car Shelly Winters.

Announce New Healing Substance... It Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort and actually speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was relieved promptly and gently relieved ... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, in every case a thorough check that improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissues. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a dangerful cause of hemorrhoids.

Communist Leaders in East Europe Trying to Find Way To Make Socialism Work

Problems plague leaders of the Communist nations of Eastern Europe. They are facing the task of granting more freedom and still maintain control of their countries. Gerd O'Regan, Associated Press chief of bureau in West Germany, reports on what is occurring in Eastern Europe in the following first of four articles.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

PRAGUE (AP) — Communism in Eastern Europe is in a state of upheaval. From the Russian borders to the frontiers of the West, Communist leaders are urgently seeking new ways to make socialism work.

Many old Communist ideas are being abandoned and some new ones adopted.

Communist thinkers no longer pretend their system is infallible. They are looking at their mounting economic and social problems and trying to find answers.

"If we can't build a better system than yours in the West, we have lost the game," an influential Hungarian said.

A Prague economist said: "You know, I spend sleepless nights trying to think up answers to our economic problems. If only we could find a way out."

LOOK FOR SOLUTIONS

The problem everywhere is to find solutions to the economic, political and moral crisis of two decades and, at the same time, keep the Communists in power.

Some years ago, the Communist regimes thought they had started making progress when they got rid of Stalinist police terror, gave millions of people a small taste of freedom and did something to improve living conditions.

But that has only made their problem more acute. Eastern Europeans now look at the prosperity of Western Europe and ask why communism lags behind. They push and press for more food, more comfort, for less control, for more personal freedom.

"We can't go back," a Czech official admitted. "We dare not use force again, like using police and telling people they have to tighten their belts.

TRAVEL PERMITTED

Here are some of the concessions the governments have made in the last two years to try to keep their people content:

1. They have relaxed the Iron Curtain to relieve the acute claustrophobia of 18 years' forced imprisonment behind their frontiers. Tens of thousands of Hungarians, Czechoslovaks, Poles and Rumanians now are travelling to the West. And the gates have been thrown wide open to Western tourists.

But millions still are denied passports to travel. It's mostly communism's new elite — the technicians and the bureaucrats —who get the hard currency they need to go abroad.

2. The Red regimes have let in more Western influences, more films, more music, more theatre, more Western literature. Most have stopped jamming western broadcasts. They are carrying out more cultural exchanges with Western nations. People are not afraid to talk to Westerners any more—except in Bulgaria.

ALLOW MORE CRITICISM

3. They have given more elbow room to their artists, writers and playwrights to criticize Communist evils. Political jokes circulate freely—except in Bulgaria where they are a crime. But Communist intellectuals still are knocked down if they get too far out of line.

The Communists are releasing political prisoners.

4. Finally, they have provided more consumer goods, more cars, more food, more housing, more amusement. But the cost of living is high. An average man still has to work a month for a suit.

Each country is trying to find its own solution to its problems. Czechoslovakia and Hungary are closing useless plants. Poland has fired workers and brought about an unemployment problem, which communism is not supposed to have.

Romania is going one way—more trade ties to the West. Bulgaria is going another — Closer ties to Russia.

Wednesday: Changes in Romania.

VETERAN HELD AFTER SHOOTING SPREE

Brooklyn Negro Section Scene Of New Violence

Police Fire at Looters, Two Critically Hurt

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Racial violence and widespread looting broke out in Brooklyn's Negro section throughout the night. Police bullets critically wounded two Negroes.

Harlem, meanwhile, had its first relatively quiet night in four days.

In Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant section police fired at looters. Dozens of store windows were smashed. About two dozen persons were arrested.

On orders from President Johnson, FBI agents began an investigation of the disturbances. Mayor Robert F. Wagner was back from a European vacation trip he cut short.

Acting Mayor Paul R. Screvane said the Harlem disorders had been incited in part by "fringe groups, including the Communist party." Wagner said he would look into the report of Communist influence. He also said he did not believe federal troops or the national guard would be needed to preserve order.

REPORT BURGLARIES

Police reported a number of burglaries in Harlem, the big Negro neighborhood in Manhattan. A few shots were fired by police to disperse looting gatherings. But there were no large crowds, demonstrations or anything like the widespread rioting in which one man was killed and more than 100 injured.

Brooklyn, the trouble started after a black nationalist street rally that drew about 500 persons. Firecrackers exploded in the crowd and many people scattered in panic.

More than 400 police moved in to quell the disturbance. They fired more than 150 shots in the air. Bottles were thrown. Subways were ordered to skip street stops in the area for a time.

The crowd broke up after an hour or two and police began reporting reports of looting throughout the section.

Police headquarters in Manhattan said that while teenagers hurled rotten eggs at 16 policemen, the Congress Of Racial Equality, which was picketing Tuesday night against discrimination in employment. The teen-agers, who live near the headquarters, shouted "Go back to Africa" and "Communists" at the pickets.

Lawyers Debate Loan Bill

By RONALD LESSEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons sounded like a bar convention Tuesday as lawyer MPs—and the odd layman—became embroiled in tricky constitutional arguments.

The upshot was that little progress was made on Bill C-410, authorizing the government to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 annually to university students and pay part of the interest.

The student loan debate enters its sixth day today, with discussion centring on the second of 28 sitnoses in the contentious measure.

The government accepted in principle 15 of 16 amendments suggested or introduced by the opposition, but strongly opposed a fourth.

EXPECT CHANGES

The following changes are expected to be brought in later in the debate by the government:

1. A section making it clear the bill does not conflict with the Quebec Civil Code and common law in the other provinces preventing others from signing contracts.

2. Authorizing credit unions and their French - Canadian counterpart, caisses populaires, to make loans to students.

3. Authorizing the commissioners of the Northwest and Yukon Territories to screen applications for loans from the North, instead of the northern affairs department.

All three amendments were proposed by Conservative MPs.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) moved a fourth amendment to ensure that the federal Parliament will not delegate some of its powers to the provincial legislatures.

Spurning Dead Salmon, Horsemeat Whale Breaks Fast on Flounder

VANCOUVER (CP) — The world's only captive killer whale has gulped down her first meal—a live flounder squirming on the end of a line.

The whale, housed in a partially submerged drydock, had previously spurned all attempts to entice her with dead salmon and 10 pounds of horsemeat. Her usual diet is live salmon and seals.

Meanwhile, a new note of excitement developed among the scientists concerned with the whale when it was suggested she might be an expectant mother.

The scientists estimate that between 30 and 50 per cent of killer whales held in captivity come pregnant, and the gestation period is about a year. This would mean that the whale wouldn't make an appearance until next May.

Scientists said that her eating the two-pound flounder was an indication they could entice her to eat a full diet and keep her alive in captivity.

Dr. Pat McGeer, a University of British Columbia neurochemist, said the biggest problem is how to get whales on a regular diet. To encourage her, vitamin B-12 pills will be fed to her daily in a dart.

Dr. Murray Newman, Vancouver aquarium curator who captured the beast, said Tuesday the whale's health is fine. His assistant Vince Penfold said the hunger strand in her back has healed over.

An aquarium team harpooned the whale last Thursday in the Strait of Georgia near Victoria.

Riots Mark Opening of Parley

American States Considering Strong Actions Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — The foreign minister of the Organization of American States considered today strong economic and diplomatic action against Cuba after a march of 5,000 Cuban exiles stunned the opening session Tuesday when rioting blamed on pro-Castro supporters broke out.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, voicing the United States request for strong action against Cuba, was among the day's scheduled speakers.

Venezuela is pressing the OAS, a grouping of all the Western Hemispheric nations with the exception of Canada, for complete sanctions against Cuba under the 1947 Inter-American treaty. An OAS investigating committee has supported Venezuela's charge that Castro agents planted a three-ton cache of arms in Venezuela to supply pro-Castro guerrilla.

CALL FOR BREAK

Colombia, Panama and Costa Rica introduced a proposal calling upon all members of the OAS to:

1. Break diplomatic ties with Cuba. Mexico, Chile, Uruguay and Bolivia are the only Latin American countries still maintaining relations with Cuba.

2. Suspend all economic trade with Cuba with the exception of foodstuff, medicines and medical equipment.

3. Suspend all sea and air links with Cuba. Transport necessary for emergency reasons of a humanitarian character would be excluded.

Venezuela supports the proposal and U.S. officials said the United States "wants to go along with Venezuela."

CLASH WITH POLICE

Outside the Pan American Union Building where the OAS ministers opened their meeting Tuesday, a clash of several hundred Cubans with police marred what had started out as a peaceful demonstration by 5,000 Cuban exiles who came here from several cities to urge OAS action against the Castro regime.

Aided by leaders of the march who charged that supporters of Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba had infiltrated the parade to cause trouble, police quickly restored order and the crowds melted away.

More than 400 policemen, some on horseback and motorcycles, helped quell the riot. Four Cubans and a policeman received hospital treatment and about 45 other Cubans were treated for cuts, bruises, exhaustion and heat prostration.

12 Republican Politicians Decline to Back Goldwater

NEW YORK (AP)—A dozen Republican politicians, including New York's two senators, say they can't support Republican nominee Barry Goldwater for president—as of now.

None bolted the party. None said he would campaign for President Johnson. Most said Tuesday they might back the Arizona senator if he clarifies or revises his views.

Senators Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating of New York announced their stands in separate press conferences.

One prominent New York Republican, state Senate majority leader Walter J. Mahoney, said he expected that "all Republicans will be able to support the Goldwater-Miller ticket as the campaign unfolds." Representative William Miller of New York won the nomination for vice-president.

But other Republicans said they are holding off support of Goldwater. They included Governor John P. Reed of Maine, state Senate majority leader William E. Conard of New Jersey, Senator J. Glenn Beall of Maryland, Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore, a former governor; and Representative James G. Fulton of Pennsylvania.

Fulton said he felt more akin to President Johnson than to Goldwater.

Senator Clifford P. Case of New Jersey said his mail is 20 to 1 in favor of his decision not to support Goldwater unless the Arizonan modifies his views.

McKeldin said he understood

UN Forces Want Freedom To Move Freely in Cyprus

NICOSIA (AP) — U Thant, United Nations secretary - general, has been asked to take immediate action to give UN peace-keeping forces complete freedom of movement on Cyprus, a top-level UN source disclosed Tuesday.

The source said the request was made because UN patrols are being prevented from observing the arms buildup on Cyprus by Greek-Cypriot forces. The 6,000 UN troops on Cyprus include 1,000 Canadians.

In New York Turkey charged the Greek-Cypriots are preparing "a fresh large-scale criminal assault" on the Turkish-Cypriot community.

Orhan Eralp, Turkish ambassador to the UN, made the charge in a letter to Thant. He also accused Greek - Cypriot leaders of trying to hamstring efforts of the UN mediator in Cyprus, Sakkati S. Tuomioja of Finland.

Greek Premier George Papandreou, in London for talks with British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Labor party Leader Harold Wilson, told a press conference the stopping of Turkish threats was "the only way to . . . move toward a peaceful solution" of the Cyprus problem.

He said he would exert all his "moral influence" to have the people of Cyprus co-operate with United Nations forces—if Turkey will do the same.

Lower Humidity Promised

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hot, humid weather blanketed southern Ontario for the fourth straight day Tuesday and some areas reported water shortages.

For the most part temperatures were in the high 80s throughout the area with the relative humidity around 60, described by the weatherman as "pretty high for a hot day."

The water shortages were reported in three municipalities in the Windsor area which had a record high 94 degrees Monday.

Sandwich West Township residents were restricted from watering their lawns between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Watermain pressure hit a new low in the residential section of Sandwich South Township. Only a trickle of water was coming through the mains to houses in the area. Lawn water regulations have been in effect in Sandwich South since early this summer.

Water pressure is also down in Tecumseh and the town's utilities office has received complaints from residents.

Northern Ontario was a bit cooler with North Bay and Sudbury reporting temperatures in the low 80s. Relative humidity was not as high in the north.

Sunny, warm weather was forecast for today with temperatures again in the high 80s but some relief was expected in the form of drier air. A few isolated thunderstorms may occur over extreme southern Ontario before the dry air arrives.

Exchanges Shots With Daughter Near Point Anne

J. Cummings Charged With Intent to Wound

A war veteran was charged on three counts today after a shooting spree near Point Anne last night that saw shots traded with his daughter.

In custody is John Wesley Cummings, a 48-year-old Canada Cement Company worker.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said Cummings has been charged on all counts with discharging a firearm with intent to wound. The charges involve shots allegedly fired at his daughter, son-in-law and son in a lethal melee that sent police tearing to the Point Anne Lane.

The charges carry a penalty up to 14 years, all told.

Cummings was arrested after a provincial police corporal grabbed him outside his home.

Time of the shooting spree was about 11 p.m. when a man appeared at the home of Howard Sowden, Cummings' son-in-law, with a .22 calibre rifle.

Earlier, Thurlow township police chief Jim Logue said, he had visited Cummings' home at the south end of the Point Anne lane, and taken the man's car keys. The chief drove to the Sowden house where Mrs. Cummings was visiting and left the keys with her.

Shortly after this, said the chief, he was hastily recalled to the Sowden home by Cummings' son, Wayne, 16.

Wayne, said the chief, had just had a narrow escape.

He was driving out of the Sowden driveway when a car pulled up and a man told him "to stop or he'd shoot. He didn't stop — so he shot," recounted the chief.

The bullet apparently passed through the automobile — and Wayne sped off in pursuit of chief Logue's cruiser.

Chief Logue immediately required provincial police at Belleville for help and cruiser patrols and officers from district headquarters in Kingston to the scene.

Meantime, back at the Sowden house there had been more shooting.

Chief Logue said the man fired three shots at the residence.

A shot also was fired at Mr. Sowden as he raced across a field to raise help.

At one point Mr. Sowden, it was reported, grabbed a light-silver rifle and fired back at the man.

After the incident, police descended on the Cummings residence.

Cruisers blocked the driveway where Mr. Cummings' car was parked.

As officers waited around the house, Mrs. Cummings and her daughter, Mrs. Sowden, returned to the house.

As he did so, Corporal Thompson stepped out and apprehended him.

Mr. Cummings served in an armored unit during World War II.

Less than two weeks ago he was involved in a car accident near his home when his automobile crashed in a ditch. At that time he was treated for minor injuries.

Hotel Annex Fire Set

An arsonist was at work in Belleville last night. Chief Gerald Vance of the Belleville Fire Department reported this morning that someone tried to set fire to the Hotel Quinte annex.

Earl Dickmeother, manager of the Chamber of Commerce discovered the blaze when he was leaving his office for a parking lot.

"I heard a crackling noise as I was passing the door" he said. "I turned and saw a small flame creeping through a crack. I notified the hotel desk clerk who turned in the alarm.

An alarm was turned in at 6.25 p.m. Firemen upon arrival found a door and door frame of the annex ablaze.

"When we arrived," Fire Chief Vance said, "we found the remains of a candle that had been placed on the doorsill and propped against the door of the Annex."

He said the fire was "definitely set," as candles don't walk.

To extinguish the blaze it was necessary to break down the door of the annex. The damage was reported light, amounting to only $50.

The chief said: "It certainly was a stupid thing to attempt this thing at all, especially in the daylight hours . . . It could have been a different story at night."

The case has been turned over to the Ontario Fire Marshall's Office for investigation.

Clean Weapons, Stay Alert, K's Message

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

WARSAW (AP)—"Clean our weapons, always keep our vigilance and stay on full alert," Soviet Premier Khrushchev told the Communist bloc Tuesday night after attending Senator Barry Goldwater and the Republican platform.

Khrushchev spoke at a celebration of Poland's 20th anniversary as a Communist nation as the United States and British ambassadors walked out in protest against attacks on U.S. policy by the Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Assailing the Republican platform as warlike, Khrushchev said it was adopted in San Francisco "in an atmosphere reminiscent of the Fascist (Nazi) gatherings in Nuremberg."

Ident Sukarno has vowed to crush the Malaysian federation, labelling it a puppet to perpetuate British colonial rule.

Rioting broke out Tuesday during a procession of 25,000 Malays celebrating the birth of the prophet Mohammed.

Chinese make up 42 per cent of Malaysia's 10,000,000 people. Malays 40 per cent. The Malays resent the strong Chinese hold on the economy. The Chinese resent the belief pre-dominance in the federal government.

Racial Violence Kills 8, Injures 341 in Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — A daytime curfew enforced by more than 6,000 troops and police restored quiet today to Singapore island after race riots between Malays and Chinese killed eight persons and injured 341.

Acting Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, who flew here from Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, announced the official toll from the violence Tuesday night at a press conference. He said 167 persons had been arrested on various charges.

Razak said the curfew will be lifted for 5½ hours Thursday morning to give residents a chance to buy necessities.

Singapore's streets were deserted except for patrols of soldiers and riot police. Earlier security forces with fixed bayonets pushed everyone out the streets who tried to ignore the daytime curfew.

During Tuesday night's fighting riots, mainly Chinese, attacked U.S. consulate car in which Charles J. Rogers, a diplomatic courier, was riding with his wife. Rogers was unhurt, but the Malay driver was cut by flying glass.

Nearly 100 riot police armed with clubs and tear gas guns were flown from Kuala Lumpur today to join 3,000 police and two battalions of troops in the effort to keep the violence from spreading up the Malay peninsula.

Singapore's general hospital said 41 persons injured in Tuesday night's violence were in critical condition.

Razak flew to Singapore and met with Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore.

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman, in Williamsburg, Va., prior to talks with President Johnson, expressed shock over the riots. He said he believed the racial outbreak resulted from communist or Indonesian attempts to stir up trouble while he was away. Indonesian Presi-

Vanier's Term Is Extended For Year, He and His Wife Will Welcome Queen, Philip

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen parties gave their unanimous will get a personal welcome approval to the from Canada's first French-Canadian governor - general, Georges P. Vanier, when she arrives in the fall.

Gen. Vanier, 76, whose five-year appointment was to have expired in September, has been granted a one-year extension, announced in the Commons Tuesday.

Immediately after the announcement, a Government-House spokesman said that Gen. and Mme. Vanier are to greet the Queen and Prince Philip when the royal aircraft lands at Summerside, P.E.I. on Oct. 3.

The Queen is to officially open the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre in Charlottetown the following day.

The governor-general and his wife now are spending their summer vacation at Tadoussac, Que. and will return to Ottawa in early September. Both were reported to be very happy about the extension.

Gen. Vanier, who was appointed in August, 1959, is not the first governor - general to have his term lengthened. Five others, including his predecessor, the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, were granted extensions.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons that the extension had been granted in recognition and of Gen. Vanier's dedicated and distinguished service as the Queen's representative in Canada.

MME. VANIER PRAISED

Mme. Vanier, who took over many of her husband's official duties when he suffered a mild heart attack in 1963, was warmly praised by Prime Minister Pearson who said:

"One of the happiest aspects of the extension of the term of Gen. Vanier is that it will mean the continued presence in Rideau Hall of Mme. Vanier whose grace and charm and warmth have so endeared her to Canadians."

Gen. Vanier has fully recovered from the heart attack and is in excellent health, Government House sources said Tuesday.

He still dispatched much of his official business during the Second World War. Since then, he has used a black walnut cane to help him get around.

Promoted to full general by the Canadian Army last January, he is one of six Canadian soldiers who have held that rank.

He has also served as a delegate to the preparatory disarmament commission of the United Nations, secretary to the Canadian high commission in London and as Canadian ambassador to France.

In June, the governor-general conferred the Canadian Conference on the Family, the most detailed study of the importance of family life ever held in Canada.

The conference, initiated by Gen. Vanier with the active assistance of his wife, resulted in the establishment of a new Canadian research organization, the Vanier Institute of the Family.

PARKED TRAIN STRUCK

CALGARY (CP) — A CPR locomotive being tested after repairs Tuesday rammed a parked freight train in southeast Calgary. Six men, members of both train crews, were taken to hospital for treatment but hospital officials said none sounded seriously injured. Two suffered broken collar bones and one had a crushed foot. Others suffered shock and bruises.

Visiting Quebec Students Taken On City Tour

With a city bus for transport, two members of the Hastings County Historical Society for guides and two members of the Y.W.C.A. Nursery for an escort, six French-Canadian girls and six Belleville girls toured the city yesterday.

The dozen girls are all exchange students. The 12 Belleville girls spent two weeks in Quebec earlier in the summer, as guests of the six Quebec girls.

The Quebec girls are now spending two weeks in Ontario. A total of eight high school students in the Quinte area are involved in the program, and a total of about 400 students in Ontario.

The tour was a condensed version of the architectural historical tour series presented by the Historical Society last summer. Starting from the Hastings County Museum, Mrs. Phillipa Faulkner's restored Victorian home on Bridge St. and the Susannah Moodie cottage on West Bridge Street.

Distinguished career as a soldier and a diplomat before his appointment, Gen. Vanier lost his right leg above the knee during the First World War. Since then, he has used a black walnut cane to help him get around.

Promoted to full general by the Canadian Army last January, he is one of six Canadian soldiers who have held that rank.

He has also served as a delegate to the preparatory disarmament commission of the United Nations, secretary to the Canadian high commission in London and as Canadian ambassador to France.

In June, the governor-general conferred the Canadian Conference on the Family, the most detailed study of the importance of family life ever held in Canada.

The conference, initiated by Gen. Vanier with the active assistance of his wife, resulted in the establishment of a new Canadian research organization, the Vanier Institute of the Family.

Kiwanians Told Of Problems in Educating Deaf

Mr. J. G. Demeza, the superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, was the speaker yesterday at the noon meeting of Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Demeza spoke on deafness in general and on what is being done for the deaf child, particularly here in Belleville at the O.S.D.

The basic problem in education of the deaf, according to Mr. Demeza, is that a deaf child when he enters a school such as the one here in Belleville is at first and 2000 words behind in vocabulary development. There is usually nothing wrong with the child's vocal organs. The problem stems from his inability to hear sounds and words and to imitate them.

This problem is being met by instructing and assisting the deaf child at an earlier age. "The goal in Ontario now," said Mr. Demeza, "is four years old." Some areas are also using visiting teachers. These trained personnel go into the home in the years before five and start the training process. Included is the outfitting of the child with a hearing aid. "These hearing aids", said Mr. Demeza, "have been beneficial to children from as early as one year old."

Mr. Demeza also told the Kiwanians that problems for those in deaf education are many times more numerous than in former years. Among these is the situation created by automation. Many of the jobs that the deaf were formerly trained for are now being taken over by computers and automatic machines. This problem is being met today by a greater diversified program of deaf education.

LOCAL PROBLEMS

Here in Belleville there are some immediate problems, according to Mr. Demeza. One is the nature of the 50-year-old senior dormitories. These building are on the communal basis and the hope is to convert them in the near future to facilities of a more private nature. Authorities would like to reduce the room occupancy, through renovation, from 20 to four students per room. Another problem is the gym. It is hoped this important part of the O.S.D. complex will be replaced within the next two years.

Mr. Demeza also touched on the topic of the deaf peddler. This is the individual who carries a card explaining that he is deaf and asking for assistance.

"This business is a racket," said Mr. Demeza, and "anything that Kiwanians as individuals can do to make it unsuccessful, and thus discourage it, would be most appreciated by those in deaf work."

In the course of his address, he also thanked the local Kiwanians for their help with the "Kinner Safety Campaign" and the driver instruction program.

Mr. Demeza was introduced by Roy Dulmage and thanked by Kiwanian Dick Lambers and by President Bob Prestione.

DEATHS

WALT, Barry Evan — At Lennox and Addington Hospital, July 21, 1964, Barry Evan Walt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walt, formerly of Foxboro, Ontario. Funeral Saturday.

BIRTHS

GALVIN — Mr. and Mrs. Ron Galvin (nee Ruth Hamilton) are pleased to announce the safe arrival of their daughter, Christine Ann, 7 lb. 4½ oz. on Sunday, July 19th, 1964 at Belleville General Hospital. A sister for Ronald Michael Jr.

IN MEMORIAM

PARKS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away July 23rd, 1945.

She wished no one a last farewell.
Or sent flowers to her grave,
She was gone before we knew,
And only God saw us weep.
Sadly missed by son Morris, daughters-in-law Verna and Ruth, grandchildren Diana, Jean Rose and Keith.

PARKS — In ever loving memory of a dear wife and mother Christie who passed away one year ago today, July 23rd, 1963.

If we had all the world to give,
We'd give it you again and more,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
A great deal of pain.
But all we can do, dear mother,
Is keep you in our prayers.
And leave behind tokens of love,
Which you took God away from us.
We like to think when life is done,
Christie's life has just begun,
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
Up there to welcome us.

Sadly missed by husband Sidney, sons Morris and Richard, daughter Marion, Alice and Evelyn.

PARKS — In ever loving memory of our dear mother Christie who passed away July 23rd, 1963.

Dear mother, you left us in silence,
No one knew you were to depart.
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you live with us.
As you always were before.

Lovingly remembered by daughters Marion, Alice and Evelyn and families.

BURNER — In fond and loving memory of my dear wife Ethel, who passed away on July 23, 1958.

The heartaches in this world are many,
But to lose my loving wife was the greatest of any.
If she could have spoken before she died,
These are the words she would have cried:
Weep not for me, nor sorrow take,
But love one another for my sake.
Her smiling face we cannot see,
A place left vacant in my heart that can never be filled.
Sadly missed by her children and grandchildren.
—Ever remembered and loved for always by your loving husband Carl.

READY — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mabel Ready, who passed away July 23rd, 1956.

No one knows how much we miss her,
No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered since we lost her,
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweet, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly remembered by daughter Ruth and son-in-law Norris and grandson Billy.

Fire Hazard High in Quinte District

Quinte area needs rain, and lots of it, according to the Department of Lands and Forests. Forest fire count for the year is 96 so far, compared with only 92 to the end of July in 1963. Forty-six of this year's fires have occurred since the beginning of July, compared with only 34 fires for the whole month last year. The woods are dry now, forest fire hazard is high, and there is no rain in sight.

Five fires are now burning, but under control in the district. Most recent is a small fire—less than a tenth of an acre — at Bedford, on Devil's Lake. The fire started yesterday, from a fisherman's camp fire. There's a half-acre fire at Effingham, northwest of the Mazinaw. Three-quarter acre fire at Hiltsfield, northeast of Flevna and another small fire at Olden, on Bass Lake. Biggest now burning around here is a four-acre fire started by lightning near Dog Lake in Storrington township. Like the others, this fire is now under control.

Hastings Third At Jr. Farmer Field Day

Hastings Junior Farmers were keen competitors in most events at the Quinte District Junior Farmer Field Day held at Morrow Park, Peterborough, Saturday, July 18th.

In the softball games, the Hastings girls' team was successful in its first game, but lost the second. In the track and field events in the afternoon Hastings Juniors picked up sufficient points to place third out of eight counties represented.

Bill Vermilyea won the half mile race and placed second in the 100-yard dash; Alan Hitchcon followed Bill in the 100-yard dash and placed second in the running broad jump; Elaine Mitchell placed third in the softball throw. In the boys' relay race, Hastings won easily, but was disqualified for entering more events than the rules allowed.

Russians Eye Alberta Stock

CALGARY (CP)—A group of Russian officials purchasing Alberta livestock to strengthen Russian stock is looking over animals on central Alberta ranches, Reuben Hemm, secretary of the Canadian Hereford Association, said Tuesday.

Mr. Hemm said the group, which spent most of the month in southern Alberta, will have completed selection of 600 head of Herefords by August.

Prowling Bear Bites Woman Taking Picture

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—Mrs. Frank Links, 34, tried out the oft-heard theory that if you remain motionless a prowling bear will merely pass you by.

It doesn't work.

"I didn't think it would harm me even when it started towards me. I remembered people saying you should stay motionless if a bear approached you, so I stayed where I was.

"I got an awful shock when the bear came right up to me and bit me on the leg."

Mrs. Links was released from hospital after treatment and returned to her home here, near Vancouver.

Ray Gunsolus Named to High Masonic Office

Ray Gunsolus, well known Belleville Mason, has been elected to the Board of General Purpose of the Grand Lodge of Canada, in Province of Ontario, A.F. & A.M. He will serve a two-year term.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Gunsolus is a member of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 123. He has held many important offices, including that of Grand Senior Warden in 1953, but his new appointment is the most important of all. His many friends here, particularly those who are members of the Craft, will extend him hearty congratulations.

LaMarsh Will Make Statement Later This Week

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday she will make a Commons statement later this week on developments at a federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

She was asked in the Commons by Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) whether the government as a result of the conference which ended Tuesday could announce its priorities as between a health plan and a pension plan.

"No," Miss LaMarsh said.

Eric A. Winkler (PC—Grey-Bruce) asked whether the government has decided to assume responsibility for health insurance coverage of the mentally ill and patients in tuberculosis institutions.

Miss LaMarsh said the conference had only concluded and that she would make a statement later in the week on "what was decided at the health ministers' conference."

An ingenious device for controlling weed growth named the Aquatic Harvester was demonstrated yesterday in the "jungle" of marine vegetation in Trenton harbor at the approach to the Trent waterways. Observers from both Canada and the United States expressed amazement at its ability to tackle the problem following the tests. The Department of Public Works at Ottawa, concerned about weeds in water routes across the country, ordered the demonstration.

Weeds from the Trenton waterfront south of the Legion Hall were dumped on the government dock after they were cut. Now Trenton's town gardener has another source of mulch and fertilizer to use in his work. Officials of four federal and provincial government departments watched the unloading of the harvest with interest.

Aquatic Weed Harvester Impresses at Demonstration

TRENTON — Weed control may no longer be a tough problem for authorities responsible for maintaining the approaches to the Trent waterways.

The aquatic harvester which was demonstrated for the federal government's Department of Public Works here yesterday seemed to impress everybody who watched the ingenious device tackle the problem with apparent ease.

Present for the first public showing of the machine in these parts were officials from four federal and provincial departments long concerned with the continuing heavy growth of milfoil in bodies of fresh and salt water throughout Canada. In addition there were observers from the United States watching, along with local officials and other interested people.

The device is not exactly new. It is a type of underwater mower which can be used to slash out weeds, algae and other types of aquatic plants. The clipper, placed at the end of a scoop, moves the plants four and a half feet below the surface, the scoop gathers them up and an endless chain belt carries them back to the stern of an odd - looking craft and dumps them in a hopper.

When the hopper is filled, the underwater mowing machine then makes contact with an amphibious barge, dumps its harvest and returns to its mowing. When the barge is filled the load can be dumped ashore.

It is estimated that the mower can cover eight acres of weed - choked waters a day. Rate of progress in the jungle - rich lagoon hall would be slightly slower, according to a representative of the company manufacturing the harvester. There are several thousand acres of weeds needing attention in this particular part of the inland system.

SEEK USES

It has been proven that aquatic weeds are useful as mulch and fertilizer and experts are now exploring the possibility of making the ground, dried plants into meal as an additive for chicken feed. One water plant contain three pe. cent Xanthophyll, a pigment that gives the yellow color producers want in the skins of broiling chickens.

At the National Zoo in Washington keepers are feeding 400 pounds of the stuff to the hippos daily. Researchers also believe it can be processed to feed pigs and cattle.

Meanwhile town gardener Bart Boers is especially delighted with the demonstration, for he now has several tons of the rich substance on hand.

Price of the harvester and its accompanying barge is in the neighborhood of $35,000. If it is acquired by the Department of Public Works it likely will be operated in the Quinte district the rem inder of the season.

Toronto Publishers Deny Pro Strike-Breakers Hired

TORONTO (CP) —Senior executives of the three Toronto daily newspapers sent telegrams to Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday denying they have used professional strike-breakers in their dispute with their printers.

Earlier in the day Mr. Pearson told Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg-North Centre) in the Commons he would be glad to look into a report that some professional strike - breakers from the United States have exacerbated the strike situation on the three papers.

The denials were sent by John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram, Joseph S. Atkinson, publisher of The Star, and James L. Cooper, vice-president and editor in chief of The Globe and Mail. Copies of the telegrams were sent to Mr. Knowles.

In phrasing his question, Mr. Knowles referred to "strike-breakers (who) have been decided entry from the United States to Canada to take part in this dispute."

Members of the International Typographical Union (CLC) walked off the job July 9, claiming they had been locked out when the papers implemented new work rules that had been agreed upon during previous negotiations.

At that time the representatives of the 680 printers still were disputing the matter of supervision of multi-purpose computers which the newspapers plan to install.

The papers have continued to publish since the strike using supervisory and non-union employees to carry out composing room tasks. Unions other than the ITU have remained on the job.

REPORT PROGRESS

Some progress was said to have been reached Tuesday as representatives of both the union and the newspaper management continued negotiations under the supervision of Louis Fine, chief Ontario labor department conciliator.

A department spokesman said that after meeting all day, the negotiators adjourned until 10 a.m. today.

"Some further progress had been made," he commented.

The ITU, in a bulletin to its members Tuesday night, said that "considerable progress" had been made in language dealing with the computer issue. But, the union said, other vital matters remain outstanding.

Hearing of an application for an injunction brought by Toronto Mailers Union No. 5, a subsidiary of the ITU, against The Globe and Mail was adjourned Tuesday to Thursday by Mr. Justice A. H. Lieff of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The union seeks the injunction to prevent the paper from hiring temporary mailing room help which it claims is a violation of its current agreement with The Globe and Mail.

A second issue of a four-page tabloid was being printed by the ITU for distribution to the public tonight.

EPILEPSY SUFFERERS

MONTREAL (CP)—One Canadian in every 200 is afflicted with epilepsy, a brain disease arising from abnormal "firing" of the brain's electricity, says Dr. J. Preston Robb of the Montreal Neurological Hospital. Anti-convulsant drugs can control up to 80 per cent of the cases.

Says UN Force Nations Hold Own Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Tuesday that there is a round of meetings going on among nations contributing to the United Nations force in Cyprus.

He said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that he met representatives of Ireland, Sweden, Finland, Britain, Australia and New Zealand Tuesday. There would be further meetings today and Thursday at New York.

Mr. Martin noted that Ireland has agreed to add 600 men to the Cyprus contingent.

Mr. Martin did not state specifically the nature of the meetings but they are understood to concern future action of the force in event of a continued arms buildup by Greece and Turkey in the island.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether any extra authority has been given the Canadian contingent. This authority had to have been unanimous. Mr. Martin said additional powers had been given the UN force in Nicosia about a week ago.

Dr. Ketchum Dies Tuesday

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Philip A. C. Ketchum, 68, of Port Hope, one of Ontario's leading educationists, died in hospital here Tuesday after suffering a heart attack.

Born at Cobourg, Ont., Dr. Ketchum studied at the University of Toronto and in 1933 received his master's degree from Cambridge University, England. In 1955 he was granted an honorary doctorate by the University of Western Ontario at London.

After serving 12 years as a member of the University of Toronto board of governors, he resigned in 1963 to become special assistant for discovery school affairs to Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president of the university.

Before moving to Toronto, Dr. Ketchum was headmaster of Trinity College School Port Hope, from 1932 until 1962.

Eisenhower and Goldwater

Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower has said publicly that Senator Barry Goldwater's words "would seem to say that the end always justifies the means." He has added "the whole American system refutes that idea and that concept."

On the surface that would seem like a definite stand on Goldwater's assertion that "Extremism is no sin if you are engaged in the defence of freedom."

Eisenhower, however, has left himself at least two "outs." Firstly, note the phrase "would seem to say." Secondly, it was emphasized that this TV interview was taped before he met Goldwater on Friday. Eisenhower had to take some stand, because Goldwater's defence of extremism was a direct answer to an earlier plea by Eisenhower to avoid extremism.

From Goldwater's home town in Phoenix, Arizona, comes a report that the Republican candidate is "counting on an active campaign boost" from Eisenhower. That is probably yet to it. Nothing in Goldwater's campaign to date suggests that he is so clumsy as to permit that statement to get publicity without having had some reasonable assurance the anticipated support would be forthcoming. And nothing in Eisenhower's record suggests he is not capable of eating his words. Moreover, as an extremely shrewd article by Harold Morrison of The Canadian Press pointed out on the day after Goldwater's nomination, Goldwater's policy seems akin to the "brinkmanship" of John Foster Dulles. When Dulles was Secretary of State, Eisenhower treated him as if he were blessed with infallibility. The difference between Goldwater and Dulles is largely a matter of language, a substitution of Goldwater's "my own country right or wrong" patriotism for Dulles' pious Presbyterianism.

If and when Eisenhower openly and, more important and less probable, steadfastly backs Goldwater, the lines for the coming election will harden. They are already taking form in another way, with the primaries for the presidential race of Alabama Governor George Wallace. Goldwater's formal statement on this development was non-committal. The Associated Press said that he "obviously was not unhappy." But a few days earlier Goldwater had said that Wallace's candidature would help him in the south, thus potentially Democratic votes away from Johnson, but might hurt him in the North, splitting the anti-Democratic votes there. Now, much will depend on whether Goldwater can capture those votes in the South, and they are probably numerous, which would have gone to Wallace had he run.

Johnson may yet need some help from liberal Republicans—and he will probably get it.

A Difficult Problem

From Toronto comes a cloak-and-dagger story of how two real estate agents master-minded the acquisition of land for a $125,000,000 building project. To avoid being confronted by exorbitant prices for small parcels of the total area required for the site of the project, they used numerous subterfuges, even going to the extreme of spending $75,000 to renovate a building which they had bought and intended to tear down.

This story calls our attention to a modern problem, the best utilization of space in our sprawling cities.

It is intolerable that the welfare of the community as a whole should be jeopardized by a few greedy landowners. For this reason, in most highly developed countries, governmental bodies have been given various powers of expropriation. This, though, can lead to abuses.

What is needed is some uniform and automatic means of preventing undue profiteering, while protecting property owners from arbitrary acts dispossessing them. The only method which appears feasible is to devise a system of taxation which would encourage owners to improve the buildings on the land they own or, if they have neither the money nor the desire to do this, to sell the land to those who want to build.

Any such a system of land taxation would inevitably be involved. But some possible alternatives really suggest themselves. One might tax the land at the owner's asking price, or impose taxes which bore a fixed relation to those which would accrue to the municipality if the buildings for which the land is needed were actually erected, or the tax could be based on the price offered, and refused. Any of these methods would have a tendency to encourage sales, or the better utilization of the land by the owner. If workable, any would be preferable to granting authorities the right to expropriate private property and then sell it or lease it for private use.

Taboos Keep Many Hungry

By W. D. of Canada

The various arable regions of the world include about 1500 million metric tons of crops, including all cereals, potatoes, pulses and oilseed. More than 3000 million head of livestock are raised, although not all of them for food (75 million horses); the world catch of fish is about 40 million tons live weight. All this feeds a population of about three billion.

About half the world's cattle belong primarily on wheat, barley, rye, corn, while the other half live on rice. The eaters are crowded into a smaller space, must cultivate intensively; India alone has developed about a thousand varieties of rice, each strain being adapted to special conditions of soil, temperature, rainfall.

Pork avoidance is strongest in the Middle East, where Moslems are in the majority but it is also rejected by Orthodox Jews, the Yezidi sect (Kurdish-speaking Arab tribe) Christian and pagan peoples of Africa.

Chicken has been an important source of protein in China and scattered Asia from time immemorial, but in parts of Arabia chicken and eggs are looked on with contempt as of sexual aversion. Fowl and their eggs are scrupulously rejected by nomad Touaregs in Africa also by the nomad Tuaregs in the Sahara desert.

Horseflesh was commonly eaten in Europe for centuries, still in Paris, Italy, Scandinavia, European countries and Russia. In large areas of east and south Asia and Africa, however, people avoid milk, which to them is as abhorrent as urine.

Religious taboos are vegetarian because Hinduism and Buddhism both preach that all animals have souls. The strictest are the Jain sect who wear a veil to avoid inhaling insects, shun eating roots because they might inadvertently consume some living thing.

The origin and psychology of food prejudices are astonishingly complex, sometimes lost in prehistory. The Middle East avoidance of pork has particularly puzzling inasmuch as historic remains show that the pig was for centuries the principal meat food-raising. Yet the time of—Herodotus (5th century B.C.), the pig was forbidden as some unclean. It was equally regarded as unclean by the early Jews although the Egyptians and other parts of Mesopotamia it was highly prized. In most parts of the Christian world pigs was ambivalent, part revulsion, and part reverence.

The aversion to beef of Asian peoples such as the Hindus is more easily explained because the bull and cow were for milleniia regarded as sacred animals. A variation of belief thus developed as a mark of high caste. Religious observance, a hypothesis supported by the fact that in India the lowest castes have no taboo on beef.

The Asian attitude towards horseflesh is also hopelessly entangled: Tibetan nomads shudder at the thought, yet their Mongol cousins relish the meat. The Japanese set horse meat without prejudice, so do the Chinese if fowl can get it.

Eating horseflesh was widespread in Europe for many centuries but early Christianity preached against the practice because it was associated with certain pagan rituals. Another theory is that the horse acquired a higher status as a social or domestic animals because of its close association with men in peace and war.

Dogs have in the western world become so entwined with sentimentality that it is now virtually impossible to discuss the psychologic bases of dog meat prejudices.

Yet dogs are freely eaten in many parts of Africa, East Asia and the Pacific islands. In areas where the dog was for many centuries regarded with great affection, it was often offered as a piece de resistance at banquets.

Significant is that the areas of the Old World where dog flesh is rejected are also areas where the dog has a tradition was strong, creating a close bond between man and dog; on other hand, many of the many groups (such as Moslems) declared the dog because it is a scavenger and therefore unclean.

The United Nations after the last war did much to break down food prejudices, particularly among children and the younger generation; hundreds of thousands were drink milk that was formerly taboo. Yet there remain millions who suffer from prejudices because they prefer rice to wheat, refuse dairy products and eggs, eat meat sparingly because of their meagre crops. The aggressive, since the war, have spent a double proportion of their allocations on educating people about food. Quipped one UN official sadly: "Education is stronger than the stomach."

Britain's Health Service

Hamilton Spectator

With Canada sociologically reading from the report of the Royal Commission on Health Services' report, it is interesting to take a look at along the road travelled by Britain's national health service during the past 10 years.

For the recommendations of the Royal Commission's half-million word report, which in practice now in use in the United Kingdom's scheme bear a striking resemblance.

The foundations of the British plan were laid by the pre-war Liberal administration of Lloyd George and subsequently broadened to include hospitalization and specialist services, which had been recommended in the so-called Dawson Plan.

It was not until 1942, however, that the modern British national health service took its present all - encompassing shape. The measure for the new service was introduced in the United Kingdom is worth comparing with the same measure which surrounded the introduction of the Saskatchewan Medicare plan.

In February, 1946, 80 percent of British doctors voted not to co-operate with the then Labor government over its proposed national health scheme. And they made clear why they were protesting: they did not want to become full - time salaried employees of the state.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan acted wisely: he assured the doctors that they would not become such employees — and amended the act accordingly. The doctors' attitude changed, and the British Medical Association voted to co-operate with the government. Some doctors who still didn't wish to go along with the scheme left the country.

* * *

Almost immediately, it ran into trouble. In its first year of operation, the plan cost the people a quarter of a billion dollars more than was originally planned. A dollar a week was originally paid by the worker, 8c cents by the provincial and another 8c cents by the government. But it was not enough; the health plan had to be and the public had to restore its vigor through heavier contributions.

In the first year of operation, the scheme cost some $1,200 million. Currently, the system costs the nation's purse $2,000 million. And, as the operating expenses have doubled, so have the contributions from citizens, who now pay about $2 a week.

Over the last decade, as a result, the national health service's defects have emerged, and measures have been taken to help prevent it being abused. They include a form of part-payment by patients for drugs and dental services.

* * *

There are 50,000 doctors in the United Kingdom. Recently, Dr. Alfred B. Davies, chairman of the general medical services committee of the British Medical Association, reported that "the vast majority" of the nation's doctors supported the national health system.

And he gave the United Kingdom's medical care program the bill of health. The claims on the debit side are small compared with those on the credit side."

Moving Prayer

Christian Science Monitor

A story is told of two small girls who were hurrying to school when a tornado alarm heard the school bell ring. In five more minutes a tardy bell would ring and both girls dreaded being late.

"Oh," one of them said, seeing how much farther they had to go and how little time was left, "let's stop and pray."

"Let's not stop now," the other girl said, who was fast as anxious to be on time. "Let's run and pray, instead."

So they ran and prayed, and they reached school on time.

Obeying Law Not Enough

Milwaukee Journal

It is a conviction of most motorists that reckless drivers are largely to blame for the high way slaughter, says Steve Pranmeier, editor of Traffic Digest and Review.

In non - fatal accidents, recklessness is unquestionably a factor. The Michigan Insurance Information Service finds that the probability of an accident increases in direct proportion to the frequency of a driver's violations.

A driver with no violations over three years has a one to 10 chance of being in an accident. A driver with five violations in three years has a five to 10 chance.

But Pranmeier notes that violation-free drivers have most of the fatal accidents.

Connecticut, a state with a thorough highway safety program reports that seven out of 10 drivers involved in fatal accidents within its borders each year have had no past traffic violations, eight in 10 have had no previous record, and 10 in 10 have had no more than one accident or violation.

What is the real explanation? Pranmeier thinks it's because so many factors are involved in fatal accidents—especially inattentiveness, errors in judgment and lack of driving skill.

He says drivers should train themselves into thinking they are safe because they are careful and obey all the laws. His advice is to obey the laws but also to practice defensive driving.

That begins with the conviction that every other driver on the road is a lunatic with murderous intentions."

A Psychiatrist Differs From a Psychoanalyst

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between a psychiatrist and a psychoanalyst?

My sister is in a very distressed mental state, and I have been told that a psychoanalyst merely talks and doesn't give any advice or treatment, while a psychiatrist gives advice. Please explain. — L. T.

Analysis is merely one of the methods used by psychiatrists. Not all psychiatrists employ it, as it requires long training. The psychiatrist himself has been psychoanalyzed.

Essentially, analysis is a long series of sessions. The patient talks about himself, what he has, what bothers him, what he thinks about other people — everything.

With intelligence, skilled guidance, and probably luck (who doesn't need an average amount of luck, anyway?) this process in time gives the patient a perspective of himself. He begins to see what really is troubling him. One such insight develops, it is possible for him to see how he can overcome his problems.

It is a long, slow process, and the cost making use of psychotherapy long before psychoanalysis was contrived. Robert Burns once wrote: "Oh wad some power the gittie gie us to see ourselves as others see us!"

That's a form of psychoanalysis.

Analysis is just a method, in depth, of exploring the art of psychiatry, and an analyst is a person who uses this deep and laborious method. It isn't easy.

There are, in some places, people called lay analysts, who feel that they can do "analysis" without being psychiatrists first. I know I'm laying myself open to arguments, but I doubt whether anyone should try to tinker with the human mind and emotions in this fashion without having, at least, the long training of a professional psychiatrist.

Now to get back to the original problem, if "L.T.'s" sister is in a very distressed mental state," it is not wise for L.T. to try to make the decision as to whether analysis is advisable.

Rather, her sister should be guided by a competent psychiatrist, whether or not she needs it. A good analyst is, first of all, a psychiatrist; a good psychiatrist, even if he doesn't use analysis, can distinguish between the patients who might benefit by analysis and those who would not.

And I might add this: Analysts (not to say non - analyst psychiatrists) have found that with work as it is, that you needn't be disturbed about not getting a brain tumor. If an analyst thinks analysis is not the answer, he'll say so.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman of 76 and have trouble digesting orange and tomato juice. In order to supplement my Vitamin C supply, I get some tablets of ascorbic acid. Is it safe to take one a day? — E. T.

It is safe enough because your body will simply discard any extra Vitamin C (ascorbic acid).

But it is wasteful. The recommended daily allotment is from 75 to 100 milligrams — and besides, you get some Vitamin C from your food.

Photography Aids Peace: Hogwash

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

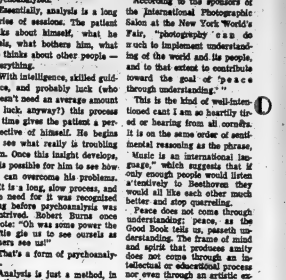
According to the sponsors of the International Photographic Salon at the New York World's Fair, "photography can do much to implement understanding of the world and its people, and to that extent to contribute toward the goal of peace through understanding."

This is the kind of well-intentioned cant I am so heartily tired of hearing from all corners. It is on the same order of sentimental reasoning as the phrase, "Music is an international language," which suggests that if only enough people would listen attentively to Beethoven they would all like each other much better and stop quarrelling.

Peace does not come through understanding; peace, as the Good Book tells us, passeth understanding. The frame of mind and spirit that produces amity does not come through an intellectual or educational process nor even through an artistic experience; it comes by genuinely wanting it more.

Viewing photographs of people from other countries may convince us that they are human, that they are useful, that they are subject to the frailties, dying or in many ways much like us. Most children of 10 already know this. Such knowledge, however, has never taken us one step further away from the perpetual fratricide of the human race.

We seem to forget that the earliest recorded instance of violence and murder is in the first book of the Bible, where Cain kills his brother Abel. Now Cain knew Abel well, even though he had no photographs of him. He knew, well, presumably, what Abel's parents. He could hardly call Abel an "enemy" and there wasn't anybody else around at the time.



He killed because of envy and jealousy and a sense of his own insufficiency. He killed because he was not content with himself and foolishly hoped that doing away with Abel would make him more like God. Until the slaying, the two brothers played chess together and listened to music together and went on camping trips together — and did all the things we are told will bring peace through understanding."

Peace begins in the heart — although, unfortunately, it must go on and form committees if it is to have any success — and consists of the right feeling toward one's self and toward others. And such feelings do not belong exclusively to any group; indeed, many whose hearts bleed for humanity, in the abstract, and who work for Peace, as a goal, are themselves full of envy and anger and self-righteous pride.

The medieval scholastics said that brotherhood could be achieved only by "turning the will toward God." Whether or not we believe in God, we must accept the key word of "will." There is no peace, and never will be peace, for the simple reason that we do not really want it.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Some steam disappeared from the speculative section of the stock market today, however, a handful of issues continued to trade actively.

Paglan was ahead six cents to $2.13 and sold in a $2.05 to $2.24 range. Evan Donaldson, Paglan president, said a drill hole on the company's property on the Ungava district of Quebec had yielded 404 feet of nickel-copper ore.

Windfall, which has yet to make an announcement on its drilling in Prosser Township near Timmins, dipped 10 cents to $4.55. National Exploration, another Timmins - area stock, gained ten cents to 67 cents in sharply reduced turnover. Tuesday it traded more than 4,000,000 shares.

Industrial took a modest loss. Algoma Steel continued to meet resistance, dipping ¾ to 74.

Golds were stronger. Dome advanced ½ to 30 with Dickenson and Hollinger 25 cents to 23.

Oil index, industrials were down .20 to 180.37, base metals .17 to 94.96, western oils .78 to 90.26 and the Exchange index .26 to 140.84. Golds were ahead .29 to 132.04. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,802,000 shares compared with 2,320,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

More than one-third of the volume was contributed by National Exploration which climbed 7½ cents to 45 cents and sold as high as 69 cents. National Exploration turned over 1,171,500 shares as rumors circulated that mineralization had been encountered in a drill hole on its property in Prosser Township near Timmins. However, the company has issued no assay results.

Windfall, the company which triggered the current speculation with rumors of a find on its property—also in Prosser Township—slipped 45 cents to $4.55 and sold as high as $5.00.

Norlex traded 479,500 shares and climbed 2½ cents to 20½ while Consolidated Negus churned through 703,097 shares and gained three cents at 82.

Paglan, which climbed from 39 cents to $2.20 Monday, eased three cents to $2.07 and sold as high as $2.24. The company president said that comercial nickel had been discovered on a property in the Ungava district.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines led industrials on a downward path with a loss of 1 to 42. Dominion

Doctor Says Sun Explosions Affect Heart

MANCHESTER (Reuters)—A French heart specialist told doctors at the British Medical Association science meeting Tuesday heart attacks might be linked with explosions of the sun.

Dr. Marcel Foumailloux of St. Antoine Hospital, Paris, said a survey in 1960 and 1961 showed attacks occurred more frequently during peak periods of cosmic ray radiation from sun spot activity.

"We found a peak (of heart attack incidence) between 24 and 48 hours after the cosmic ray peaks."

He said he had details of some 7,000 attacks during the two years, an average of two or three a day if spread out evenly.

"In fact," he said, "we would go a whole week without a single attack and then seven, eight or nine would come in a single day."

Foumailloux said he first suspected the rays worked by affecting blood clotting but now thought they altered glandular activities.

Bennett Pleads For New Bank

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Bennett told the Senate banking committee today there was a swelling geographic, economic and social reasons for issuing a charter for the Bank of British Columbia.

He told senators Vancouver is two-thirds of a continent away from the financial centres of Toronto and Montreal where four of the head offices of national banks are located.

The fifth such bank has its head office in Halifax which is closer to London, England, or Paris, France, than Vancouver, B.C.

"What would be the view of eastern Canadians if all the head offices of the chartered banks were in British Columbia," asked Mr. Bennett.

"They would not certainly feel their vital credit needs were not receiving first-class consideration and priority...

"I am sure eastern Canadians would not be fully satisfied with services provided from branches and regional offices subject to distant head office approval."

Slight Mistake

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Police Tuesday investigated a report a man with his hands tied behind his back and a gag over his mouth was staggering about on one of the greek's at London's Fairmont bowling club.

They found caretaker Ken Roberts hauling a rope-drawn roller. He wore a cloth over his lower face to keep flies away.

Save 25 Sailors On Burning Ship

NEW YORK (AP)—A French ore carrier towed a burning French freighter toward the Azores Islands today after rescuing the 25 crew members from lifeboats in the Atlantic.

The U.S. Coast Guard said there was no report of injury to any of the men on the freighter Marquette.

Fire broke out amidship on the Marquette Tuesday, the coast guard said. The vessel was still burning today.

Provincial Lotteries Aid For Medicare Gets Laugh

OTTAWA (CP)—The idea of provincial lotteries to help raise money for medical care insurance was reported Tuesday to have evoked nothing but laughter at the federal-provincial health conference.

Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was asked by reporters following the two-day closed meeting whether lotteries mentioned in the recent report of the Hall royal commission report on health services was discussed.

"I mentioned it," she said. "There was a laugh, and that was that."

Questioned further, Miss LaMarsh said she hasn't looked into the matter of lotteries. She added:

"My understanding is that lotteries do not produce anything like the amount of money that laymen think they do."

The Hall commission's report a month ago did not recommend lotteries but said that if any province feels strongly about financing health services that way, the federal government should be prepared to amend the Criminal Code to make it possible.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

SUBURBAN HOUSEWIFE DISCUSSES HER NEIGHBORS

Now that everyone's living out with present feeling that they outside more than inside, you are on constant display and only ...ost have to wear blinders wish they could pass out eye not to see what the folks next shields to everyone on their door are up to.

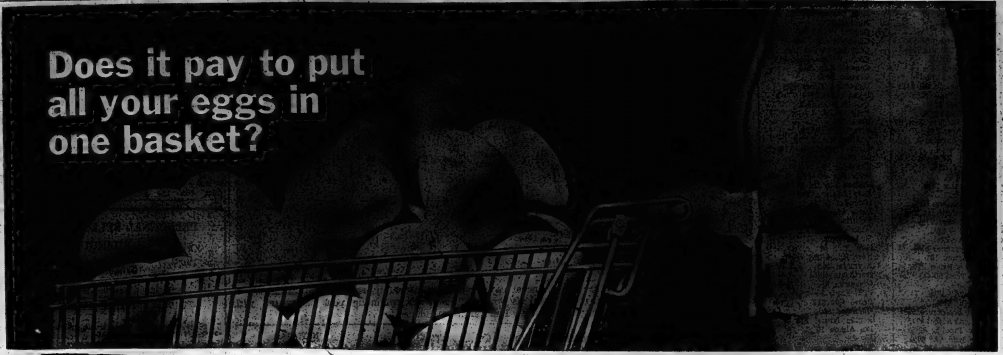
Some suburbanites we've talk- ...ducts knowing neighbors are watching you goof off, but every- ...one's eyes ready light up when you try to do some entertain- ...ing outdoors.

Let's say the neighbors are more tactless than nosy, but, no matter how you allist it, here are gripes common to many suburban areas.

High on the list of the most annoying neighbor to have around is the one who calls you over the back fence every time you stick your nose out of doors. This is either the housewife who wants to gossip when you want to collapse in the nearest chair and think of nothing, or the husband who has new remedies for crab grass! He goes into great detail when all the men of the house cares about is getting the grass cut at all.

Then, of course, there is the child guidance expert who mak- ...es a study of your children dur- ...ing vacation months. They are ...regressing some hostility if they are quiet and, if they make a big hullabaloo, you are being too permissive. Mother is only too happy when it rains, so the youngsters have to stay indoors and get on with their normal development without being "spied suspiciously."

WHAT'S COOKING?



The neighbor who pokes his head over the fence to see what is cooking is another who never would be missed if, fortunately, he ever moved away. If the barbecue is going, he gives advice about how to cook. If goods are present, he is always the one who "jokes" about how the host is known as "Promise Tom" by everyone this side of the K'chies. And he expects a friendly yak for that.

Then there is the neighbor who can't resist scooting over to "borrow "sugar" the minute she sees cars parked in the driveway. And the equally, shall we say, "inquisitive" neighbor who wants to know who is coming, the minute you start to shake a mop out the back door and begin mopping up the patio. Of course you know an invitation is the object, but it is strange that this is one of your dense mornings.

Of course the best solution is to build a privacy fence six feet high. But, then, by being so ...ery and discourteous, it would be just your luck to get new neighbors who are ten feet tall! And that is how things pop up in suburbia in summer.

Church Groups

VACATION SCHOOL

The closing demonstration program of the Vacation Bible School of the Alliance Church was held last Friday night when over 175 parents, friends and children gathered in the church sanctuary for this special occasion. It brought to a conclusion a 10-day Vacation School which saw an enrollment of 202. The theme of the school was "Making Time Count for Christ."

The program opened with the salute to the flag and the theme song led by Lloyd Kerr. This was followed by an accordion number by Miss Lisa Miller. The different departments of the school took part in the program. During the program, Miss Maureen Thompson and Mr. Lloyd Kerr sang a duet.

Fifty-five prizes were presented for perfect attendance and 46 for memorization of Scripture. Those winning the prizes for bringing the most to the school were Ginny Rodberg, Phillip Palmer and Iris Vardy.

Mrs. Sackville Palmer, director of the school, expressed her appreciation to all the teachers and helpers who had worked so hard during the two weeks of the school. After the benediction was pronounced, treats were given out to all the children present.

As the parents left the sanctuary, they were invited to view the attractive display of handwork in the foyer of the church.

U.C.W. Meeting

WHITE'S U.C.W.

The July meeting of White's U.C.W. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Jones with the president presiding.

Mrs. William Yateman took charge of the devotional service. Mrs. Ernest Curtis read the Scriptures and Mrs. Yateman gave a reading.

Mrs. Eric Jones acted as secretary. The registration fee was paid for delegates to attend the sessions at Albert College, July 30th to July 2nd. A pair of cups and saucers were presented to Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbon on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary and a letter of thanks was received.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Eric Jones for an afternoon meeting. Anniversary services will be held on Sunday, September 27th at White's Church and an anniversary supper will be held Tuesday, October 6th.

Mrs. Albert Jones was in charge of the study book, "The Word and the Way" under the headings, "What the Word of God Is" and "What Faith Is." Mrs. Yateman read the Scripture passages.

A cake donated by Mrs. Eric Jones was sold. Lunch was served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

It is a wise idea to buy steaks now and freeze them for barbecues later in the summer when prices are higher advise home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Package steaks in quantities to be cooked at one time, placing a layer of freezer paper between steaks so they can be separated easily when barbecuing. Wrap steaks tightly and freeze quickly at -10 degrees F.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Pit-Lieut. and Mrs. J. H. Pigden, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jo Anne, to Martin Patrick Halloran, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Halloran, R. R. 5, Cloverleaf Drive, Belleville. Marriage will take place August 22nd at 12 noon in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold James Holoway are shown cutting their cake at the reception which followed their wedding in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville. The bride was formerly Margaret Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bentley, John Street, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ann Holoway and the late John Holoway.

HOLOWAY — BENTLEY

St. Joseph's Church was decorated with blue and white delphiniums, red roses and white peonies in tall white standards for the wedding of Margo Ann Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bentley, John Street, Belleville to Harold James Holoway, son of Mrs. Anne Holoway, R.R. 4, Belleville and the late Mr. John Holoway. Rev. J. J. Buckley performed the ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Sister Mary Rosario and the soloist was Mr. Parks.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Mr. Thomas Bentley, Jr., and entered the church wearing a floor-length gown of French hand clipped Chantilly lace, fashioned in scalloped tiers with long sleeves, round scalloped neckline, satin bows at the hips, and a chapel train. Her headpiece was a crown of rhinestones with pearls, and a four-tiered veil of tulle, waist length. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Craig, R.R. 6, Belleville who wore a floor-length dress of mauve faille taffeta, round neckline, bell-shaped skirt and a headpiece of mauve daisy-shaped, of the same material as her dress. She wore a circular tulle veil and white accessories. Miss Frances Fox of Belleville was bridesmaid and the junior bridesmaid was Miss Beverley Wade, cousin of the bride. The bridesmaids wore dresses similar to the maid of honor in a yellow shade. Their flowers were mauve and yellow alternated in the centres.

There were four flower girls Vicki Ann Bennett, niece of the bride; Nancy Blaind, niece of the bridegroom; Brenda Sero, cousin of the bride; and Christine Cornell, niece of the bridegroom. They wore long white dresses made with a straight panel between the front and gathered at the hips and back. The first two girls wore mauve cummerbunds tied at the back in a bow with long ties that fell to the bottom of the dresses. mauve gloves and bolero, hats with pleated edges. The two later girls had yellow accessories. They carried baskets of baby 'mums styled the same as the bridesmaids.

Mr. Donald Holoway, R.R. 4, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom was groomsman, and the ushers were John Boyd and Robert Ellis, both of Belleville.

During the wedding reception in St. Joseph's parish hall a four-tiered cake with pink rosettes and doves holding double rings and candelabra decorated the bride's table. Friends of the bride poured tea. She received Mrs. Doris Garvin, Mrs. Clare Petrie, Miss Judy Henn, Mrs. Bruce Waverly and Mrs. Gloria Bentley.

The guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a floor-length dress of blue and grey faille taffeta, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom wearing a jacket dress of beige lace, brown accessories and corsage of deep yellow roses.

For a wedding trip to western points, including Kenora to visit the bridegroom's sister, the bride chose a two-piece tailored suit of pink wool flannel, matching pink overblouse of pink and grey, pink wedding ring hat made of pink wool flannel, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Evanville, Kildare, Consecon, Oshawa, Toronto and Corbyville.

Mr. and Mrs. Holoway will reside at 100 John Street, Belleville.

Before her wedding the bride was guest of honor at a pinecraft luncheon shower held at the Dabling Club with Mrs. Lois Bennett as hostess. Mrs. D. Garvin was hostess at a shower at her home with Miss Mary Craig as co-hostess. The bride was presented with a clothes hamper, vase and gift of money from her co-workers at Northern Electric, and the bridegroom was presented with sheets and pillow cases from fellow employees at Avon Jewellery.

BAGGIO REPLACED

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Rev. Sergio Pignedoli, Titular Archbishop of Leontium, arrived Tuesday night as the Vatican's new official representative in Canada. Apostolic delegate in Lagos, Nigeria, for the last four years, he succeeds Most Rev. Sebastiano Baggio, named papal nuncio to Brazil.

Bible Study Topic at Second Day of Conference for Leaders

The second day of the Bay of Quinte Conference School for Leaders, being held at Albert College, Belleville, was opened with an inspiring worship service, led by Mrs. C. W. Knapp of Brockville; for the Kingston Presbyterial.

During the continuing theme "The Reason for Living," Mrs. Knapp said in part, "It is evident that many people in our modern world have no real reason for living. They feel that what they do doesn't mean a thing . . . In contrast to this is the statement made by the Netherlands Prime Minister at a meeting of the Protestant churches during the last war, 'God makes your life valuable. Your relation to your Creator . . . .'"

Mrs. Knapp continued saying, "We were not created by chance. Surely God created us for a purpose . . . This convinction leads to the amazing thought that the final purpose of God 'depends upon the way each of us fulfills His will in our little lives.'"

BIBLE STUDY

Rev. Dr. Harviet Christie, Dean of Covenant College, continued the Bible study started yesterday. She stated that while the Christian may be aware of the common sense search for the meaning of life, he or she would search through the study of the nature of God, which is believed, by the Christian, to be the answer.

Speaking of the Bible as the chief means of the revelation of God's nature, she said that it was important to know how to use the Bible. She told how many parts of the Bible were written for various reasons and how the language used in it was often changed by the present day. She said it was necessary to have contemporary terminology to express faith so that it was related and understandable to others.

Miss Christie outlined some of the sections of the Old Testament as being history, including Joshua, Kings, Chronicles the books as the Law and the development of the Covenant, such as the pentateuch, probably written about the time of Solomon; the anticipated how God spoke through the poetry and hymns of the people, as in the Psalms; the fictional books, written to make a point, such as the books of Ruth, Esther and Jonah; the symbols and imagery which the Bible uses into consideration when the Bible was read.

Miss Christie said in part, "If we take the Bible as literally true, we are missing the whole point of what God is saying about Himself to us. Many things in the Bible, which we said about God, are there because of man's poor understanding of God. The story of Genesis is man's confession of his faith in God. It is by no means a scientific document, we are asking questions of it that never were intended for . . . It is necessary to realize that symbolism has been used in Genesis".

REPRESENTATIVE GROUP

The speaker concluded by saying that the question had arisen time and again, "If parts of the Bible are not true, how can we know what parts are true and what are not?" To answer this, she said "The passage of the Bible should be considered in the light of the moral structure of the time it was written, which should be compared with the moral structure of our times for a proper interpretation to be made . . . the prophets of the Old Testament can be of use to us, by comparing what happened to the children of Israel, if we follow in the footsteps of the moral chaos of that time.

During the day, study groups were held and plans were made for the presentation of programs later in the week.

The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Percy Chalmers, of Niagara Falls, sang several selections and some new songs were learned.

EVENING SESSION

At the evening session, Mrs. B. Garrett of Lindsay, gave another demonstration of Bible study methods. The "presentation method" was used and it was explained that the use of what one had, was all that was necessary in some cases. Skits would be prepared ahead of time, using Bible passages and having the members enact them. Mrs. Garrett directed the presentation of a Biblical drama using an incident in the life of Jesus. This led to a discussion of what the incident meant to the people of the day and also to what the incident should mean to Christian people of today. Mrs. Garrett closed with the quotation of Paul Tournier's "It is in the encounter with Christ that we can discover all our humanity, our youth, our freshness and our sense of personhood."

Literature available at the book stall was presented by Mrs. R. C. Walker, of Kingston, who is literature secretary for the conference. She was assisted by Mrs. J. D. McLean, Kingston. Mrs. Knapp gave a book review of the newly published biography by Rev. Hugh McMullen entitled "Darby of Bella Bella."

The address of Rev. Miss Watanabe of Japan, is reported elsewhere in this paper.

The vesper service led by Mrs. Ralph Ellis of the Kingston Presbyterial brought the evening to a close. Taking part were: Mrs. Vina Hall, president of the Presbyterial, Mrs. G. Nixon and Mrs. Glen Beatty, who gave a thought-provoking talk about discrimination in Canada.

LOHNES — SMITH

Rev. Edith Mainprize was the officiating minister at Centennial Free Methodist Church when Elsie Gael Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Belleville was united in marriage to Keith Edwin Lohnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lohnes, Frankford, Ontario.

Standards of pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church, and white satin bows marked the guest pews. Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Alfred Reed, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Lloyd Smith, brother of the bride.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father looked charming in a floor-length gown of satin with cathedral train, featuring a bateau neckline and long sleeves. Her chapel length veil fell from a coronet of pearl and aurors, and she carried a semi-cascade of pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Susan Gay of Belleville was maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Faye De Wolfe of Kingston. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Carol McCann, Belleville, and the flower girl was Miss Anita Smith of Brockville. The first three attendants were gowned alike in street length dresses of blue satin featuring fitted bells and gathered panels embroidered silk organza. They wore flowered matching headpieces and white accessories, and they carried semi-cascade bouquets of white 'mums and pink carnations. The flower girl wore a street-length dress of white nylon and bolero of lace, with white accessories. Her headdress was a crescent of blossoms and blue rosettes, and she carried a basket of blue 'mums with blue streamers.

Mr. Ross Lohnes of Brantford was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Garry Milley, Newmarket, Ontario and Mr. Stirling De Wolfe of Kingston.

A wedding reception was held at Centenary United Church where the bride's table was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers centred with a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by tulle and pink rosebuds. The bouquet of the bride, and bridesmaids completed the setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece dress of floral beige arnel with the matching accessories and corsage of talisman roses.

She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a pink rayon linen sheath with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white feathered carnations.

For a wedding trip to New York State, the Ottawa River Valley and the province of Quebec the bride wore a tailored suit of blue linen with white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Out of town guests were present from Toronto, Brantford, Belleville, Spring Arbor, Mich.; Kingston, Frankford, Carleton Place and Odessa.

Mr. and Mrs. Lohnes are residing at 442 Frontenac Street, Kingston.

Showers were given honoring the bride by church friends of Belleville Free Methodist Church with the hostess Mrs. Fred Kemp and co-hostess Miss Susan Gay; and by church friends of Kingston Free Methodist Church held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Hyland at a miscellaneous shower.

A presentation was made of a Kenwood blanket from the firm of Chartered Accountants of Kingston where the bridegroom is employed.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Anders Eklund — Hansen, Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Ellen, to William Jean Charles Ouellette, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ouellette, Windsor. Wedding to take place on Saturday, August 8, at R.C.A.F. Chapel, Trenton, Ontario.

* * *

* * *

Mrs. Gerard Couture, Lingham Street is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon May left for their home in Edmonton, Alberta after spending a few days in Belleville with his mother Mrs. Viola May; also brothers Bernard, Ivan and Leonard of Belleville, Orval of Picton, and two sisters, Mrs. Ronald Jones and Mrs. Vivian Ethier also of Belleville. All enjoyed a family theatre supper at Zwick's Island on Sunday.

* * *

A large number of ladies from the Alliance Church gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rodgers, Hallway St. to honor Mr. and Mrs. C. Fenton on the arrival of their chosen daughter, Diana Elaine.

The first part of the evening was spent in games led by Mrs. L. Lumley and Mrs. E. Yardy. Following this a decorated carriage was brought in by Miss Connie Vardy, laden with many gifts for the new baby. Mrs. Rockville Palmer expressed the best wishes of the group to Mrs. Fenton as the gifts were presented to her.

Those assisting the hostess with the serving of refreshments were Mrs. J. Large, Mrs. E. Vardy and Mrs. A. Whitmore.

LOHNES — SMITH

Rev. Edith Mainprize was the officiating minister at Centennial Free Methodist Church when Elsie Gael Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Belleville was united in marriage to Keith Edwin Lohnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lohnes, Frankford, Ontario.

Standards of pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church, and white satin bows marked the guest pews. Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Alfred Reed, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Lloyd Smith, brother of the bride.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father looked charming in a floor-length gown of satin with cathedral train, featuring a bateau neckline and long sleeves. Her chapel length veil fell from a coronet of pearl and aurors, and she carried a semi-cascade of pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Susan Gay of Belleville was maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Faye De Wolfe of Kingston. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Carol McCann, Belleville, and the flower girl was Miss Anita Smith of Brockville. The first three attendants were gowned alike in street length dresses of blue satin featuring fitted bells and gathered panels embroidered silk organza. They wore flowered matching headpieces and white accessories, and they carried semi-cascade bouquets of white 'mums and pink carnations. The flower girl wore a street-length dress of white nylon and bolero of lace, with white accessories. Her headdress was a crescent of blossoms and blue rosettes, and she carried a basket of blue 'mums with blue streamers.

Mr. Ross Lohnes of Brantford was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Garry Milley, Newmarket, Ontario and Mr. Stirling De Wolfe of Kingston.

A wedding reception was held at Centenary United Church where the bride's table was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers centred with a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by tulle and pink rosebuds. The bouquet of the bride, and bridesmaids completed the setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece dress of floral beige arnel with the matching accessories and corsage of talisman roses.

She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a pink rayon linen sheath with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white feathered carnations.

For a wedding trip to New York State, the Ottawa River Valley and the province of Quebec the bride wore a tailored suit of blue linen with white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Out of town guests were present from Toronto, Brantford, Belleville, Spring Arbor, Mich.; Kingston, Frankford, Carleton Place and Odessa.

Ann Landers

College Wives Let Hubby Do Some of the Work Too

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Your column covers an enormous range, but somehow you rarely publish letters from working wives of college students. Why? I can't believe they don't write. I know very well they have problems.

I no longer have a problem, Ann, I've got a heartache. After one year of college I married a boy who was bright and promising. He had a scholarship, but it wasn't enough for us to live on, so I quit school and went to work to put him through. He did four years in three, made Junior Phi Beta Keppa — went on to get his masters, then a Ph.D.

ANN LANDERS

For six years I worked eight hours a day as a receptionist and then I went home to wash, iron, cook, mend and scrub. Often I was up until 2:00 a.m. typing his papers and doing his research.

He's doing brilliantly in his profession now but I don't seem to fit into his life anywhere. I'm out of my depth with his intellectual friends. We don't speak the same language.

If you girls want to work to put your husbands through school, my advice is make sure you stay in school, too. Instead of working eight hours a day — work four hours a day and let the genius work four. He is growing and developing intellectually, make sure you are doing the same. I didn't and I'm — SORRY.

• • •

DEAR SORRY — Instead of just being "sorry" why not convert some of that self pity into positive action? Go back to school, stop feeling inferior and get into the ball game.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife and I have been married for 12 years and I can truthfully say we appreciate each other. Her mother, who lives in Topeka, was operated on for a malignancy two months ago. The surgeon told us immediately after the operation that her mother will probably not live more than another two months.

My wife is an only child and decided that she must stay at her mother's side until the end. We have no children and I agreed to co-operate and get along as best I can.

Now I resent my position. I have to take my laundry to the corner and I eat out every night. I hate being by myself. I know my wife is not having a picnic there, but I'm alone any way you look at it.

I feel a lot better after I put my bitter thoughts on paper. Don't you feel I'm entitled to blow my top and that she should be able to take it? Should I write to her and express my true feelings and consider it "therapy" for me? — SOLO.

• • •

DEAR SOLO — By all means, write. Get it out of your system. The meaner the letters, the better. But please mail them to me . . . not to her.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a college junior working my way through school selling shoes. I'm not exactly a Paul Newman but I wouldn't scare any little children, either.

The problem is I'm shy around chicks. It fractures me the way the fellows here get dates with no effort. They say exactly the right thing, and it works like a charm.

A certain girl (I will call her Miss 5 Double A) comes in almost every Saturday. She is always carrying some good books — the ones I've been wanting to read — so I know we would have a lot in common.

How can I get to know her better without appearing to be fresh? If you can come up with a good opener I'd be grateful. — CANAL BOAT EDDY.

• • •

DEAR EDDY — Next time "Miss 5 Double A" comes in tell her you are writing a telephone book and would like to include her number.

• • •

Confidential to TORTURED — A plastic surgeon is the answer. Save your money.

• • •

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help for the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WOMEN PHARMACISTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two women and 21 men were in the 1954-55 farm at the University of Manitoba's pharmacy course. Last term the course was taken by 20 women and 20 men. Most women who graduate in pharmacy go into retail work or to hospital pharmacies.

TESTS OVERDONE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Leona Mary Smith, pretty University of British Columbia professor, says she believes that although a student may have a high intelligence quotient it doesn't follow he will be a good pupil. The professor says IQ testing has been overdone in Canadian schools.

Bringing Up Baby

EDITED-CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. CHIN KINSEY, MOMMY OF 5

At one time or another, almost every toddler comes down with a minor misery that requires step-by-bed treatment. The big problem is how to keep a run-about happy in bed (when active amusements are denied him). Aside from favourite stay-put toys, TV or mother-stories, have you given thought to these suggestions?

- An old purse, filled with little treasures, for the important business of putting in and taking out things.
- Crayons and a brown paper bag to promote "artistic tendencies."
- A jolly game of "name and picture" at supper or bath time, followed by a surprise snack of a Gerber Fruit Juice.

Conveniences! Conclusions take on special magic when you offer eye-appealing trays. (Gerber Junior Foods are famous for appetizing colours). Appetites are encouraged delightfully, too, when you serve the foods your baby is fondest of.

• • •

For a luscious lunch, how about one of the tasty Gerber Junior Dinners? They're happy combinations of vegetables, meat and cereal, deftly blended for flavour interest and lightly seasoned to bring out the best in the basic ingredients. And, they're prepared with the purest of food values.

Have you treated your baby to Gerber Junior Vegetables and Chicken with Rice, Vegetables and Beef, lately? These two delightful combinations are especially popular with the high-chair set.

Important source from Gerber. "Improvement of processing methods to protect food values has always been a basic part of Gerber's continuing research program. Take Gerber Egg Yolks. Our technicians developed an exclusive method for processing egg yolks which reduces the cooking time. The happy result? Better preservation of food values than is possible with other methods — plus uniform consistency, improved colour and flavour." Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Missionary Methods Changed But Basic Needs the Same Speaker Tells UCW School

Dressed in a pale blue sari edged with a band of gold embroidery Miss Louise Scott, Reg. N., delivered the principal address at Albert College on Tuesday morning at the School for United Church Women.

Miss Scott is a graduate of Grace Hospital, Toronto, and of the United Church Training School. She has been a medical nurse for 30 years, and is engaged in public health nursing in India.

"We feel in Indian that mission work should continue," Miss Scott told the delegates, "but on a different basis with other denominations joining together. The methods change but the basic needs do not.

"Our work is not just a routine of seeing a child with malnutrition and giving it proper food. This is important, but we need to give more than technical skills. These people do not know how to use much of the equipment given them. They are still superstitious, but they are awakening to a new vision.

"The concern of the people in Canada has been most rewarding. Over and above the gifts sent to them, the feeling of Christian faith projects to the students and teachers."

STUDENTS TRAINED

Miss Scott told of incidents at the graduate school of Christian College at Indore, and the three schools of nursing in that area. The students who had been the object of prayer had shown a great response. They were trained for mid-wifery and received high school graduation from the college.

New buildings and equipment are being given, but the important thing was the total picture of the whole structure of the church built on Christian faith.

The late Prime Minister Nehru said that India must be given the choice of making her own history. Only 44 percent of the people are literate, and the problems are great. Miss Scott pleaded with the women to continue to support and pray for mission work.

Miss Scott was introduced by Mrs. Stanley Murray of Woodville, Dean of the School for United Church Women, who also expressed the appreciation of the assembly for the address.

There were 243 delegates registered on Tuesday morning, with many women from the area returning home each night. The others are billeted at Albert College where they have their meals and enjoy the other facilities, including the swimming pool, which was greatly appreciated in the sweltering heat of the past few days.

U.C.W. Meeting

STONE CHURCH

The July meeting of Stone U.C.W. was held at the hall on Wednesday last with a fair attendance, President Mrs. E. Demorest opened the meeting with a reading.

Mrs. H. Gray and Mrs. F. Tucker had charge of the Bible study for the afternoon.

Miss Pauline Tucker, a junior girl played two selections on her accordian, which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. F. Tucker had prepared an interesting discussion on "different faiths" closing her program by saying "we as Christian U. C. Women have something good to offer in this fast moving world today. After the business part of this meeting was complete Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Bushnell served lunch.

Amber Salad Won't Collapse

by Mary Moore

The salad mould I am giving you today is the answer to countless requests for a jellied salad that is different. Some of you girls complain that your jellied moulds collapse in hot weather. This mould is given some strength to withstand summer heat by additional gelatine.

WEDNESDAY
(Guests)

Dinner Menu

Baked Ham Slice; Chutney Sauce; Summer Succotash; Fried Eggplant; Mandarin Orange Sherbet (see Tuesday); Chiffon Cake; Coffee.

AMBER SALAD MOULD

2 teaspoons plain gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 lemon jelly powder, 1 chicken bouillon cube, 1 cup boiling water, ¾ cup cold water (second amount), 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup walnuts or walnuts pieces or blanched almonds or shredded almonds, (or use salad olives, chopping 1-3 cup sliced stuffed olives chopping them and including some of the bits of pimiento), 1 cup (well packed) finely shredded cabbage, 1 cup drained (well packed) pineapple tidbits, endive or watercress or inner lettuce leaves, mayonnaise.

In a medium-sized bowl soak the plain gelatine in the ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes. Add the lemon jelly powder and chicken bouillon cube, then stir in the boiling water until all are thoroughly dissolved. Then add the ¾ cup cold water and lemon juice. Dip out ¼ cup of jelly liquid into bottom of fancy 4-cup mould. In this arrange the walnuts or almonds to give you a pretty pattern when mould is finally inverted on serving plate. Chill until set. Chill remaining jelly mixture until softly congealed. Then to remaining softly congealed jelly mixture add the sliced olives, shredded cabbage, pineapple tidbits and pour over set jelly in mould. Chill until firm. When ready to serve, loosen edges of mould with tip of knife, then dip it in hot water for 5 seconds. Turn serving plate over it and carefully invert both. Carefully endive or sprigs of watercress or delicate inner lettuce leaves make a pretty border and crisp accompaniment. Pass mayonnaise with this moulded salad. Serve with sliced cold cuts and a variety of interesting breads for a mid-summer buffet.

NOTES:

1) As you can readily see your skill with decorating the bottom of the mould is the key to the finished attractive appearance of this mould. 2) If desired this jelly mixture would fill 6 or 8 individual salad moulds which could be used effectively on individual salad plates accompanied by sliced cold chicken or turkey and/or beef. Then they could be garnished with delicate greens and a pickled pear or peach or crabapple.

Taking Course

Ada J. Adams of Centre Hastings Secondary School is among the 335 teachers from secondary schools throughout Ontario who have been taking the Summer Refresher Course sponsored by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, at Lawrence Park Collegiate Institute in Toronto.

For diet conscious people the Foods and Nutrition Department at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, points out that fresh fruits and vegetables, so plentiful on Ontario markets during the summer, are low in calories and supply plenty of vitamins and minerals necessary for active living. Remember that you can often judge the number of calories just by looking at foods. Oil, Concentrated, greasy-crisp foods are very high in calories compared with watery, bulky, leafy foods.

Successful Living

Messy Home Cramps Nice Young Girl's Social Life

DEAR DORIS — Our house is a mess inside, so when a boy asks me out I never allow him to come inside. The outside of the house is very nice, but we cannot afford to get the inside re-done. I did not tell my mother, for it would make her feel terrible, and me also.

Most of the boys have beautiful homes, and if they ever would see my house, they would drop me right there. I keep saying in my mind "It's not my home they like, but me," but this does not help.

Could you please help me out? — HOUSE PROBLEM.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HOUSE — Nonsense. What they will dislike most is not being made welcome under your roof. Don't wait another minute to talk with your mother about serving a tasty snack when your favorite boy friend next brings you home.

If it would make you feel better, rearrange the furniture, polish the floors, cover the mark in the wallpaper with a framed picture or a calendar.

Fun and freely given hospitality can cut distance wall-to-wall broadloom for progress with the boy any time.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am a bachelor 35 and am going with a woman 42. I love this woman very much but she thinks I am too overpaxed for her.

I have never been fresh with anyone, so I'd just like to ask one thing: Can this be helped by an operation or any kind of drug? — LOVE FOR WOMAN.

• • •

DEAR LOVE—An experienced lover would be smoother with his smooching. Your schoolboy eagerness doubtless seems unnatural to a woman of 42.

You both need a better understanding of sex and just how people find normal fulfilment. I am sending you a list of books which can help.

An operation is unthinkable; likewise a drug. Unless a visit to your doctor (which I would strongly urge) reveals some abnormal condition.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I know a dear 91-year lady invalid and her daughter leaves her alone, locked in the house, sometimes over four hours that I know.

She has begged and cried not to be left alone. What can be done? — DISTRESSED.

• • •

DEAR DISTRESSED — There ought to be a law! A terrified invalid needs the same reliable care as a young child. Notify your public health department.

• • •

Confidential to FOURTEEN AND BAFFLED — The one you may turn to in this predicament is the child care worker at the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira Street.

Do not be afraid to talk to her, as she has helped other girls and understands how these things happen. She can even help you in telling your mother, although if you could bring yourself to break the news to her gently yourself first, this would be better.

• • •

(Doris can give you a new slant on your dilemma. Write to her.)

Mother's Helper

SOMETIMES it's necessary to take your small baby along when you go out for a brief lunch or a short visit. If so, you'll be wise to bring a 4-ounce bottle of juice or milk, in case of fussiness. It's small enough to go in your purse but big enough to take care of any between-feedings pangs.

Tunics Feature Fashions

FLORENCE (AP) — The big Florence high-fashion news for winter and fall was one word today—tunics.

Tunics in varied forms emerged as the common denominator of Tuesday's showings here. Enzo showed almost nothing but tunics with a shape that was slim, straight and wide-shouldered. Pleats were basic elements in the day's Carosa collection as well.

Simo's tunic coats showed so little skirt that experts groped for proportions finer than nineteenths.

Straight-suit skirts were often buic-layered only in front—with flat, wrapover, buttoned panels; or with short jutting aprons tucked into the side seams.

Pale candy pinks high-spotted a selection that was largely grey and camel.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

POINT OF ORDER

A disturbing thing is happening at graduation exercises. All through the presentations people are rushing up to the platform to take flash pictures of a particular graduate. When you get twenty or thirty of these interruptions it becomes most distracting.

Sometimes the flash fails to work, and the person who is making the presentation and the person who is receiving it stand with clasped hands and fixed smiles to the point of absurdity while the faulty flashbulb is removed and a new one put in.

It is understandable that pictures of an important event should be taken because that moment never comes again. But why not pictures before or, after the ceremony? I doubt very much that pictures taken in a hurry after that dash to the platform would turn out satisfactorily.

A few years ago this was just an occasional thing, but the idea caught on quickly and now it has reached the stage of the ridiculous, taking one's mind from the meaning of the ceremonies with distractions of flashing lights and movie cameras whirring.

If I were in charge of graduation exercises I would be tempted to ask that people refrain from taking pictures during the ceremonies, and that all pictures would be taken AFTER platform ceremonies were over.

This would not detract in any way from satisfactory pictures and would add a sense of propriety to the occasion that seems to be disappearing rapidly.

While on the subject of graduations we would like to suggest that the graduate who is chosen for valedictorian should be allowed to express his or her own ideas. A student who is ready for graduation is quite capable of putting his thoughts into his own words. An address written for him by a teacher or someone else strikes a false note and is immediately detectable. If the address is especially complimentary to the officials it leaves a sour taste for such self-laudatory expressions put into another's mouth.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSIONS

It is many years since excursion boats made trips from the Belleville harbor...to Massassaga Park or Twelve O'clock Point, but older people may recall them with nostalgia. They were called "Moonlight excursions," and they took passengers to Massassaga where a dance was given in the hotel that used to be there. I understand that the hotel was moved near Shannonville and is now called "Jim's Place." I have heard that it was moved across the bay on the ice, but I have not been able to verify this.

A band usually was on board the boat, and provided music on the trip.

Sometimes the boat trip was to Twelve O'clock Point and the dance took place in the pavilion which was an open air one and strung with Japanese lanterns.

Perhaps it is just in retrospect that these trips look so glamorous, but to listen to dance music coming over the water while a flotilla of canoes with young people paddled dreamily on the bay is a pleasant memory.

Sunday school picnics often went by boat to Twelve O'clock Point, and the boat trip was the best part of the outing. I expect those excursion boats have long since gone to their watery reward, and the cars now transport young people to the dances with much more speed, but somehow I feel with less glamour.

Romania Solidly Communist Despite Dealings With West

A new nation a Ism is sweeping Romania, now in the throes of a giant industrialization program. It has meant an easing of ties with the Soviet Union and a slight turn to the West. Richard O'Regan, Associated Press chief of bureau in West Germany, tells what it means to the people of Romania in the third and second of four articles on the situation in East Europe.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUCHAREST (AP) — When Communist Romania says no to the Soviet Union, it does not mean she is saying yes to the West.

Romania has gone farther in recent months in standing up to Russia than any country in East Europe. She has turned thumbs down on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's economic plans for East Europe. She has been kicking out Soviet cultural influences. But Romania remains as staunchly Communist as ever.

The Romanians have made a trade pact with the United States. They have cautiously let in many Western ideas, many technicians and much Western literature, music and ballet. But Communist party control here is tighter than in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland. There's absolutely nothing to indicate Romania is moving closer to Western political ideas.

Communist Chief Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej is drumming up national sympathies and the idea of "Romania for the Romanians"—far cry from Communist internationalism. But every step that Gheorghiu-Dej takes is clearly designed to win popular support for the Communist party.

In fact, Western diplomats here believe that Gheorghiu-Dej's entire policy of defying the Russians and appealing to nationalism has met with large-scale enthusiasm among Romania's 18,000,000 people. The Communist party, they believe, has become stronger than ever.

ANGERED AT RUSSIA

Romanians, a volatile Latin nation, are angered at Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and the "sea of Slavs" that surround their country. They believe the Slavs are trying to keep them a nation of peasants, just at a time when they are beginning to make industrial progress.

You can see the contrasts of an agricultural society growing into the industrial age as you walk through the narrow streets of the old quarter of Bucharest.

Black - moustached peasants in white tunics and fur hats pear curiously into store window offering portable tape recorders and plastic swim rafts.

Peasant women with headkerchiefs full of country produce gaze bewildered at young girls in slacks unloading trucks full of pink, plastic gasoline cans.

In the countryside sheplerds in long sheepskin cloaks and pointed black felt hats, tend their flocks under the pylons of Romania's extensive rural electrification program.

WANDER OVER BRIDGE

Gypsies in horse-drawn covered carts wander over modern highway bridges built to carry Western tourists to the Black Sea coast and hard currency to the state bank for use in Romania's growing trade deals with the West.

The Romanians have worked hard in recent years to achieve this progress.

Nowhere in East Europe are so many factories going up, so many apartment houses finished, painted brightly with gardens well kept.

Ploesti, the great Romanian oil centre 45 per cent destroyed by American, British and German air raids in 1944, now is completely rebuilt. On its outskirts, there are 4,000 new apartments and 2,000 new small houses.

For each of the last four years, Romania's industry has grown by 15 per cent—a record unequalled in the Communist bloc.

COULD BE POWERFUL

If this keeps up, some economic experts predict Romania could possibly become the most powerful industrial nation of East Europe within a few years, outstripping Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Germany.

It is possibly this that made Russia's leaders suggest Romania limit its industrial development and concentrate on raising food for the East Bloc.

"We saw no reason why we should revert once again to an agricultural nation," a Romanian official explained, "so we are going our own way."

Gheorghiu-Dej is going ahead selling a good deal of Romania's vast supplies of oil, bauxite and agricultural products in the West. He is buying complete industrial plants and Western know-how in exchange.

As a result, Soviet influences are on their way out and Western influences are coming in.

Russian has been cut out as a compulsory language in Romanian schools. Names of towns and places bearing Soviet titles have been changed. Soviet literary and cultural institutes have been closed or their activities reduced.

Bucharest is crowded with Western businessmen and their cars are mobbed in the old palace square by Romanians crawling under them and testing their springs.

The Voice of America and other Western broadcasts are no longer jammed and people crowd the movie houses to see recent French, Italian, British and American films.

But, despite this, no country in Eastern Europe is so completely subjected to a daily stream of Communist propaganda and agitation as is Romania.

None of the agitators is suggesting that the West has a better system than communism. But they are pointing to the fact that since Romania chose to go its own way, there are more consumer goods in the stores and there is more food available.

Borrows CPR Track Motor

KITCHENER (CP) — Paul Sandor, 34, was drinking beer the night of June 24 when he decided to borrow a track motor car from the former employer — the CPR.

He drove the motor car along CPR tracks from Guelph to Elmira and back to Arisa, a distance of about 30 miles. There police caught up with him.

Charged with mischief, he was fined $200 and costs or 60 days jail by Magistrate J. D. Ord Tuesday.

Charges of theft of the track car were withdrawn.

Suspect Board Made Deal With Paul Hall

OTTAWA (CP)—H. W Herridge (NDP—Kootenay, West) said Tuesday in the Commons there are suspicions in some quarters that the board of maritime trustees has made a deal with Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' international Union of North America.

He asked that the trustees appear before the Commons industrial relations committee to dispel such fears.

Labor Minister MacEachen said the trustees had decided it would not be in the public interest for them to testify publicly at this time on their operations. However, he would convey the wishes of MPs to the board.

Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister, said Mr. MacEachen continually stresses that the trustees are responsible to Parliament, not the government. Therefore he should emphasize to the trustees that they should not object to appearing before a Commons committee.

Mr. MacEachen said the board is not under the direction of the minister. He had always felt it might be desirable for the trustees to give evidence before a Commons committee but he had left this to the board itself.

Malaysia Wants New Jet Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury said Tuesday that he understands that Prime Minister Rahman of Malaysia is hopeful of buying new Canadair jet aircraft and not surplus planes.

He was replying in the Commons to Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) who said a London dispatch Monday said Mr. Rahman was interested in buying surplus jet aircraft in Canada.

Mr. Rahman will meet Prime Minister Pearson here next Tuesday. He will be in Montreal next Wednesday, where he will visit the plant of Canadair Limited, which makes the CL-41 jet trainer for the RCAF.

Satellite Communications System Elects Officials

WASHINGTON (CP) — Delegates from 18 countries to a conference on a global satellite communications system elected U.S. and Italian officers Tuesday to conduct their meetings.

The representatives unanimously chose G. Griffith Johnson, head of the U.S. delegation, as chairman, and Egidio Ortona of Italy, chairman of the European Conference on Satellite Communications, as vice-chairman.

The 18 countries are the United States, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, West Germany, France, Ireland, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The Soviet Union has expressed some interest in participation in the communications system but thus far has ignored suggestions that it join.

All 18 nations are members of the International Telecommunications Union and other members of the union are free to join the system at any time in the future, or use it by leasing channels.

The international union has 122 members, including most of the Communist bloc, but not Communist China.

It had been learned earlier in Ottawa that Canada is prepared to put up about $7,500,000 as its investment share in the global communications network.

Canada already has been making preparations for the day when telephone conversations will be beamed into space and relayed from a satellite to a destination half-way around the world.

A $5,000,000 ground station is being built at Mill Village, N.S., 20 miles southwest of Halifax. This expenditure is in addition to the $7,500,000 investment Canada is ready to make.

The ground station is being built by Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation.

Divorce Bill Motion Gets Senate Approval

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate Tuesday approved a motion by Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot (L—Quebec) that the government ask the Supreme Court of Canada to decide on the validity of a bill to amend the Marriage and Divorce Act.

The bill, already given first reading in the Senate, would give to a married woman the right to dispose of her own property without permission from her husband.

The bill affects only married women in Quebec, where their rights are limited by the Quebec Civil Code.

Senator Pouliot said later it was the first time such a motion had been passed in the Senate.

CAMPBELLFORD

Fine New Ball Diamond Sponsored by Kinsmen Club Will Be Opened on Friday

CAMPBELLFORD — The grand opening of the town's fine new ball diamond, equipped with the best in lighting, backstop and fencing will be held Friday evening, July 24, at 7.30 p.m.

Two excellent games have been arranged. In the first game Campbellford - Seymour Combines will meet CHEX mates of Peterborough, in the second game Campbellford-Seymour plays Frankford.

The new diamond is the result of the efforts of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club, which sponsored the project to mark its 20th anniversary. The club was chartered in 1944, with Forrest Dennis of Campbellford as the first president. Kinsman Dante Pace and Kinsman Graydon Bell are with Mr. Dennis, the only remaining charter members.

LOST OLD DIAMOND

For many years the ball diamond has been located on the high school property. This was a convenient location for baseball lovers to observe the games, particularly the older ones.

Earlier this year the high school board informed the executive of the ball teams that the ball teams must vacate the property by July, in order that the High School Board could proceed with plans for a sports and recreation field for high school purposes.

The decision created a serious problem, that of finding a location and preparing a field without asking the taxpayer for assistance.

The land was secured for a 20-year period from the Seymour Agricultural Society. Alex Linn, president of the fair board, gave freely of his time and assistance in bringing the deal to a conclusion. The lighting, backstop, filling and levelling will cost in the area of eight to ten thousand dollars.

Thomas (Tom) Holmes is chairman of the Kinsmen Softball Park committee. He has expressed his appreciation to Seymour Agricultural Society for donating the land to Seymour township council; to Seymour Council for its generous grant with machinery to level the grounds and a donation of $300 to Campbellford Municipal Council which also voted $500 to Campbellford Rotary Club, $100; to Campbellford Lion's Club, $100; and to all the ball teams for donations.

Others who contributed were Thompson Bros., who gave the use of their large float to move the bleachers; Jack Macoun who loaned loader and trucks; Wallace Stapley, trucks; Don Frederick, donation of top soil for the field; Mel McKeown, use of tractor.

R. Bannon Seymour Township Road foreman and many others who gave freely of their time.

The executive of the Kinsmen Club consists of president Gilders; 1st vice, Tom Holmes; 2nd vice president, Fog (1964-65) Dante Pace, three times president now Deputy Governor-Elect of Zone 1, Dist. 6 and executive members B. Collins, Gerald Locke, Ken Ellis, Chas. Vickers and Edgar Brown. These men with all members are to be commended on their major project.

There will be games every night throughout the summer.

The town league consisting of six teams plays every Monday and Wednesday evenings double-header games.

Tuesday and Thursday evenings the girls' teams play at 7.30 p.m., the second game of these evenings being a Seymour township league game.

Friday and Saturday evenings Seymour township junior and senior teams are play. Seymour township league has seven senior and four junior teams, the girls' softball league has four teams.

Guards, Dogs May Patrol Large Prisons

TORONTO (CP)—A. J. MacLeod, federal commissioner of penitentiaries, said Tuesday that all maximum-security prisons in Canada eventually will be patrolled at night by guards accompanied by police dogs.

Mr. MacLeod said in an interview that the practice was started about a year ago in the penitentiary at New Westminster, B.C., and has been extended to Kingston penitentiary. Next year, a third prison will get its police dogs, he said.

A specialist in police dogs in British Columbia taught about 35 guards at New Westminster how to handle the dogs and left three of the animals at the prison after the month - long course. He gave 50 guards the same course at Kingston and left four of his dogs there.

The dogs are rented from the B.C. man at an annual cost of $2,500. Mr. MacLeod said the dogs have discovered knives and other weapons buried in prison grounds and even sniffed out illegal brews being concocted in the shops.

Using the dogs on night rounds relieves other guards for duty inside cell buildings, Mr. MacLeod said.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, July 21, 1964

Prime Minister Pearson announced Governor - General Vanier's original five - year term has been extended to late 1966.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac - Temiscamingue) said Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) made a disgraceful attack on Quebec MPs Monday.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Mr. Fisher had again demonstrated his prejudice against Quebec.

Jean-Charles Cantin (L—Quebec South) said the government's student loan bill is in the interests of all Canadians.

Three amendments to the student loans bill suggested by the opposition were accepted by Finance Minister Gordon.

The Senate voted in favor of referring to the Supreme Court of Canada a bill by Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot to amend the Marriage and Divorce Act.

WEDNESDAY, July 22

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. to continue debating student loans. The Senate sits at 3 p.m.

Lawyers

Several Conservative and New Democratic MPs argued that a section of the bill would violate the constitution by shifting certain federal powers to the provinces.

CITE AGREEMENTS

Government spokesmen replied there are several precedents where one level delegated powers to another. Justice Minister Favreau and Mr. Gordon said the section is part of an agreement they had reached with the provincial governments.

Larry Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand), a lawyer who is parliamentary secretary to Mr. Gordon, said that Parliament has delegated such authority to "a subordinated agency" in the past. He said the provinces were sovereign in their own territories but the door to delegating duties to them from Ottawa was opened long ago.

Mr. Pennell cited federal law which requires the provinces to provide for custody of the insane, for preventing escapes from jails, and for regulating discipline in jails.

Mr. Brewin's amendment is expected to come to a vote today.

Romney said his campaign for re-election will concentrate on "state issues and problems." Earlier he had issued a statement saying he would be "happy to support" the national Republican campaign provided it was free of "hate-peddling and fear-spreading."

Agree Medicare Inevitable

But Lack of Money and Time For Planning Big Roadblocks

OTTAWA (CP) — Lack of money and time for planning emerged Tuesday as two formidable roadblocks on Canada's road to the kind of medical and health services envisaged last month in the Hall royal commission's report.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said after a two-day closed meeting with provincial health ministers that all were agreed that such a system is inevitable. But she added that some provinces are "pretty cautious," and all are worried about cost.

No conclusions were reached, indeed, Miss LaMarsh said it will take her own staff six to eight months to "break down" the 433-pound 500,000-word Hall report before she can decide what to recommend to the cabinet.

Next step, she said, will be for Ottawa to choose the parts of the scheme which it feels it can afford to share costs with the provinces.

"We hope to be able by early 1965 to develop a policy on how much of the plan we would be in a financial position to offer the provinces," she told a press conference.

WILL BE BASIS

The minister said this offer would be regarded as a basis for discussions with a take-it-or-leave-it proposition.

She said the provinces favor the Hall report's being implemented in toto — but they would prefer to tackle first.

The Hall report proposed a tax-supported national system under which everyone would be entitled to the full range of services by physicians, plus psychiatric treatment, dental care and eyeglasses for children under 18, and prescribed drugs with patients paying the first $3 per year for prescription. The scheme would even include maternity benefits.

The commission said the provinces would set these programs in motion, "phasing in" various services as they saw fit.

Meanwhile, other steps could be taken right away. Notably, Ottawa could start sharing costs of hospital treatment for mental and tuberculosis patients.

This latter, recommendation was accepted in principle by the provinces, Miss LaMarsh said. However, it would cost the federal government an extra estimated $53,000,000 a year beyond the $420,000,000 it is paying this year toward regular hospital insurance.

She said she gave the provincial ministers an indication that Ottawa would be willing to assume these costs.

Of the overall Hall commission recommendations, Miss LaMarsh said there was general agreement at a federal-provincial conference in "early 1965," though no date was set. She hoped the federal offer would be prepared by then.

Meanwhile, the subject is considered ripe for debate at the premiers' conference next month at Whitehorse, Alta., as well as at their meeting with Prime Minister Pearson at the fall federal-provincial conference scheduled for Charlottetown Sept. 1-2.

The Hall commission's recommendation for a federal-provincial conference on the health-services question within six months was viewed by the ministerial meeting here as "unrealistic and suspicious," Miss LaMarsh said. She had said earlier that before the program could be implemented, it would be necessary to await the proposed federal-provincial tax-sharing of tax resources in relation to constitutional responsibilities.

Veteran Ottawa Newsman Dies

OTTAWA (CP) — Thomas Green, 74, a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery since 1926, died in hospital Tuesday after a long illness.

Born and raised in Ottawa, he entered the gallery as a staff correspondent for The Canadian Press and remained with the national news co-operative for more than 10 years.

More recently he had been Ottawa correspondent for the Saint John Times-Globe and the Victoria Colonist and had worked as a free-lance writer on political affairs.

Demand for Furs Impatient, Prices Climb Bringing Hope Far North May Profit by It

EDMONTON (CP)—Substantial fur price increases in recent years have given hope to developing the Yukon and Northwest Territories as profitable trapping areas, says an Edmonton furrier.

William Levine, manager of Edmonton Fur Auction Sales Ltd., says the price of white fox has risen to $25 from $10 in the 1950s. Lynx prices have gone up to $15 from $3.

The demand for furs by the world's fashion centres has become increasingly "impatient" during the last six years, he adds. Even the common wolf and coyote furs are in demand.

Contrary to accepted laws of economics, quantity of production has pushed up demand and prices. An unprecedented volume permits fashion designers and manufacturers to produce "a line," he says.

Value of wild fur production in Canada in the 1962-63 season was $1,826,108, compared with $1,396,263 in the 1961-62 season. Value of ranch fur production was $2,594,762, compared with $2,064,205.

Mr. Levine says the centre of supply for the Edmonton market, now ranked third in Canada, is shifting north. Traditional western Canadian supply areas are being depleted and the vanishing white trapper has to some extent contributed to this shift.

The Yukon and Northwest Territories could develop into profitable trapping areas and experienced white trappers could make a good living there, he says.

During the slim years, Mr. Levine says, trappers left their lines and sought employment in business and industry. Now they are reluctant to return to the wilderness.

Now the Eskimo is turning to trapping and is receiving assistance from firms such as Edmonton Fur Auction Sales. The Eskimo is an excellent natural trapper and may eventually develop into a major supplier of wild furs."

In the over-all fur economy, mink ranching has become the strongest source of supply with about 60 per cent of the area's entire fur volume being supplied by mink ranches.

Accepting the challenge of foremost producer, the mink industry has come up with eight basic shades, compared with the one basic shade a few years ago.

Mr. Levine says most mink is sold on markets in Eastern Canada, the United States and Europe, where greater wealth permits more and more women to ask their husbands for a fur coat.

Perhaps in the future they will be asking for a topless evening gown with mink trimming, he adds.

Saboteurs Dropped in North Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese Air Force planes are dropping sabotage teams over Communist North Viet Nam and are training to extend their combat operations, the air force commander said today.

Air Commodore Nguyen Cao Ky told reporters at Bien Hoa airfield that Russian-made jets were attempting interception of the flights. He reported the North Vietnamese "have radar and very good anti-aircraft."

Ky said he has personally piloted a plane over North Viet Nam and that the raids continue.

"We keep very low and they can't hit us," he said.

The remarks were the first official statement that military operations are being conducted by the Saigon government directly against North Viet Nam.

The Communist Radio Hanoi repeatedly has broadcast announcements of trials of "spy commandos" captured in North Viet Nam. The latest trial reported was in April.

There have been unconfirmed reports during the last week of stepped-up sabotage activity by South Vietnamese agents in the form of mines and bombing around the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi, Vinh, Thanh Hoa and Haiphong.

SAYS HE PAID BRIBE — Amedee Bellemare of Shawinigan, Que., is seen entering a hearing of the Quebec legislature's committee on elections and privileges, where he testified that he paid Rene Hamel, now Quebec attorney-general, $1,500 in 1960 in return for a roads department contract. An opposition member, Yves Gabias (UN-Trois Rivieres), has sought Mr. Hamel's resignation over the accusation.

Lush Living Increases Diabetes

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Diabetes and its serious side disorders are on the increase with the help of lush living habits, the International Diabetes Federation was told repeatedly Tuesday.

The recurring message in reports by 3,000 delegates at the IDF's fifth triennial congress is that early detection of the disease—described by one doctor as an epidemic—is the key to curbing its ravaging effects on the heart, the kidneys and the eyes.

"Clinical and laboratory research indicates that the incidence of diabetes will rise as the world becomes more affluent," said Dr. W. J. H. Butterfield, professor of medicine at Guy's Hospital, London, England.

Questioning—the emphasis on heredity as a cause of the pancreas gland disorder, Dr. Butterfield said everybody nowadays is a potential diabetic and over-eating coupled with lack of exercise may soon make one in 20 persons in affluent societies actual diabetics.

He was supported in part by Dr. A. G. Steinberg of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, whose studies in genetics indicate also the susceptibility to diabetes is inherited and environmental factors—including a rich diet—must be present for the disease to take hold among adults.

SHIFT ATTENTION

With medicine now able to control once fatal diabetes through insulin injections, the diabetic drugs or diet, clinical attention is shifting to treatment of the complications of the disease, which can cause degeneration of blood circulation, kidney function and eyesight.

While research concentrates on why and how these disorders develop, the congress emphasize the importance of early detection of diabetics, even prediabetics, to prevent the decade of complications before damage is permanent.

A report, presented by Dr. Terence W. Anderson of the University of Toronto's physiological hygiene department said a person who develops overt diabetes between 15 and 39 may have been suffering from a latent form of the disease for 10 years or longer.

Police Keep Close Watch On Banks' Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Police are keeping a close watch on Hal C. Banks's home in suburban Pointe Claire after two futile attempts Tuesday night to subpoena the deposed president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and take him to prison.

A writ of arrest has been taken out against Mr. Banks by former Montreal waterfront power, still vice-president of the SIU of North America, to begin serving a 30-day sentence in Bordeaux jail for contempt of court.

The first attempt by bailiff Andre Landriau to serve the writ was rebuffed by a woman, apparently a housekeeper, who said Banks was not at home. Mr. Landriau then returned the 16 miles to downtown Montreal to obtain a Superior Court search warrant but when he returned Tuesday night, Banks was not in his home.

The writ was obtained by lawyers for the Upper Lakes Shipping Company, which had prosecuted Banks in a civil action for contempt of court. Banks was convicted of following SIU members to picket an Upper Lakes ship in Trois-Rivieres, Que., in defiance of a court order.

The former SIU boss, ousted in March by the federal board of maritime trustees in control of the union, is also awaiting an appeal of his conviction and five-year sentence after being found guilty of a charge of conspiracy to assault a rival union officer with intent to wound, main or disfigure.

Surgical Nightmare Solved?

Make Instruments Radio-Active, Suggests Doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) — That nightmare for all surgeons and surgical nurses —the fear of leaving instruments and sponges inside the patient after an operation—may be eliminated by an atomic-age technique.

Canadian doctors, it was reported today, have developed a seemingly foolproof method of tagging all instruments and sponges with a radioactive material so they can be detected at all times, even when hidden from direct view.

Time, according to a report in Medical Tribune, a newspaper for physicians, "A postoperative check of instruments and sponges may be made seconds before the closing of an incision . . . to ensure that none have been left in the patient."

The method was developed by Dr. Joseph Moody of Elliot Lake, Ont. He enlisted the aid of Professor Richard H. Tomlinson of McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., health physicist at the university's nuclear reactor establishment.

TAG SPONGES

Tiny quantities of radioactive cobalt—from two to 10 microcuries—are used to tag surgical sponges. A combination of radioactive cobalt and aluminum is incorporated in the rivets of surgical clamps.

The tell-tale radioactive signals from the surgical equipment can be picked up at all times by a special radiation detection instrument known as a scintillation counter.

"This device," Dr. Moody told a correspondent for the medical newspaper, "will not only safeguard against instruments forgotten in the patient but can be applied in other ways."

"For example, the tip of a radioactive needle that frag. ments might again be can be spotted, and instruments otherwise lost or misplaced could be located."

Still under study is the possibility of a layout in operating room teams from repeated handling of radioactive instruments.

Thant Calls Roundtable Conference

PARIS (Reuters)—U. Thant, United Nations Secretary-General, called today for a roundtable conference in Geneva to settle the Viet Nam problem.

In a French television interview, Thant said military methods "will not find a solution to the Southeast Asian problem."

Only diplomatic and political methods and a revival of the Geneva roundtable conference might achieve some results, he said.

Thant also said he was confident the United Nations could find a lasting political solution to the Cyprus problem. He said Russian opposition to the idea of creation of an international peace-keeping force continued "some positive features."

Men Who Quit Because of Heat Get Jobs Back

LEAMINGTON, Ont (CP)—Seven employees, who were suspended Friday when they walked off their jobs at the H. J. Heinz Company of Canada plant here because of the heat, will return to work immediately, a union official said Tuesday night.

The announcement by Fritz Bauer, president of Local 459, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC), followed a Monday meeting between union and management to discuss the suspension of the seven men, and other issues.

Mr. Bauer said action on two other proposals submitted during the discussion still is pending, but the men have been reinstated by the company and will return to work in any event.

The seven employees walked off their jobs in protest of sterilization area complaining they were sick from high temperatures. Their action left idle about 200 other employees who work the same jobs on different shifts.

Canadian Catholic Churches To Use English and French In Mass and in Sacraments

OTTAWA (CP)—Large-scale use of English or French, replacing Latin, in the mass and the sacraments in Canada's Roman Catholic churches was announced here today. Target date for the changes is next Jan. 1.

Most Rev. G. B. Flahiff, archbishop of Winnipeg and chairman of the board of the Canadian Catholic Conference, said the Vatican has confirmed the plan for the changes, approved unanimously by Canadian bishops at a meeting in Ottawa April 24.

The starting date of Jan. 1, 1965, was fixed to allow time to prepare necessary texts and to work out practical details of implementing the plan. It also gives the bishops time to return home from the third session of the Vatican council, scheduled to end about Nov. 30, to guide the workings of the changes in their own dioceses.

The formal ordinance defining the step is scheduled for enactment by the Canadian bishops this fall.

Details for bilingual or multilingual parishes — including those where the vernacular tongue is other than English or French—are to be worked out under the local bishop.

The Canadian plan is similar to one approved by the bishops of the United States, where it is expected to be in use by the end of this year.

In addition to the mass, the plan provides for use of English or French for baptisms, confirmations, weddings, the sick bed, funerals, benediction of the blessed sacrament, 40-hour devotions, blessing of candles on Feb. 2 (Candlemas Day) and distribution of ashes on Ash Wednesday.

It will also apply to various ceremonies in Holy Week, the whole procession of Easter Sunday, such as blessing of the palms and the Palm Sunday procession, blessing of holy oils and washing of the feet on Holy Thursday, and the Friday service and the Easter vigil.

In the mass itself, the "priest's part," the solemnly central act of worship, use of the vernacular—English or French — is approved for what is known as the "people's parts."

It extends a previous decision of the bishops on the use for reading of the daily selections from epistles and gospels in English or French, facing the people.

Parts of the mass to be read in the vernacular, in unison by priest and people, are the Gloria, the Nicene Creed, the Sanctus, The Lord's Prayer, the Agnus Dei and a prayer preceding distribution of communion.

Parts to be recited in the vernacular by the priest include a number of prayers: Introit, Collect, Gradual, Alleluia, Tract Sequence, Offertory, Communion and Post-communion.

Latin is retained for opening prayers at the foot of the altar as well as the canon of the mass. The Kyrie Eielson will continue in Greek "as a sign of love for the Latin rite."

Archbishop Flahiff's announcement emphasized that the texts received only provisional approval. They will be subject to revision due to possible future structural changes in the church's rites and after a preparation of a common text of all English-speaking areas of the world, expected to be completed in a few years by a nine-nation committee that began work last year.

In French-language parishes, correspondingly familiar French missals and texts will be used.

Are Army's Arms Locked Up So Tight Army Can't Get Them?

OTTAWA (CP) — Question: Are the army's small arms and ammunition now locked up so tight that the army itself can't get at them?

An army order issued May 15 to successful armoury raids in Quebec occurred in January and February—spells out how to safeguard small arms and ammunition. For example:

"Locks shall be of the endpressure rack and bar type. Where padlocks are used they shall be fitted to a steel-armored bolt or case-hardened staple. Bolts must be embedded firmly in the door jamb.

"Staples and hasps shall be secured by bolts and, following installation, the bolt threads shall be burred to prevent easy removal of the nut.

"Padlocks shall have a resist force-surreptitious attack rating of FS-2. Such a padlock is described in the Canadian Army Catalogue of Ordnance Stores under number 5340-21-109-8794."

Hunting up catalogue No. 5340-21-109-8794 to draw a padlock from quartermaster's stores appears near the end of a long list of instructions about how to keep weapons from falling into the hands of the Quebec liberation Army or similar sinister organizations.

To begin with, small arms placed in storage must be stripped of breech blocks, bolts and magazines.

"The detached portions shall be locked in a safe, vault, room, cabinet or other strongbox in a separate room which has the same standard of security as that in which the small arms are stored," says the order.

The safe, vault, cupboard, cabinet or strong box must be bolted to a floor or wall. The key must be kept in a secure place.

The material of the walls, ceilings and floors of the storage rooms "shall be such that entry cannot reasonably be gained except by a determined effort."

Each storage room shall have one door only and the door must be covered with sheet metal on the outside or, preferably, on the inside.

Doors shall be hung on at least three hinges that are not exposed on the exterior side when the door is closed.

Doors shall not have apertures, glass panels or transoms. Doors shall be doublelocked with the locks set approximately one - third and two-thirds of the way down the door-jamb. Where possible those now in use with inset locks which shall also be fitted to the inside of doors so that they can be locked when anyone is working in the storeroom.

"All windows shall be reinforced on the inside by No. 9 gauge steel chain link fencing, with mesh openings of not more than two inches, set in steel channel frames or the equivalent in a manner which shall prevent its removal except by forceful entry.

"Where existing steel bars afford protection against entry equivalent to the steel mesh specified above, their use is acceptable provided they have holding cross bars to prevent the bars being forced apart or pried open."

And so on.

DIVERSION — The Peace River flows through three 48-foot tunnels as it bypasses the former riverbed at Portage Mountain dam site in northern British Columbia. The tunnels were blasted 2,500 feet through the west side of Peace River Canyon and lined with concrete during an 18-month period. (CP Photo)

ALMOST READY TO ROLL — Thousands of steel rollers set on frames are prepared by workmen to carry a conveyer belt at Portage Mountain dam site in northern British Columbia. The three-mile belt will carry gravel from a deposit to a processing plant near the dam site. (CP Photo)

Peace Spells Power in B.C.

Work is under way on the Portage Mountain dam on the Peace River, the keystone in development of the northern interior of British Columbia. The power project's role in B.C.'s economic boom is described in this story.

By DAVE STOCKAND

PORTAGE MOUNTAIN, B.C. (CP) — The Portage Mountain dam is beginning to rise this summer, centrepiece of a huge platter of wilderness panorama and fountainhead of Peace River power.

Born in a cloudburst of controversy in 1961, the project in British Columbia's northern interior is moving forward on schedule.

"We're planning to catch the vanguard of the spring of 1968 and generate the first power later that year," says Bob Dundas, B.C. Hydro's resident manager at the site.

"We expect to get enough water in that runoff to drive the turbines."

Once the Portage Mountain powerhouse is going full till, after expenditure of some $700,000,000 and the filling of a 660-square - mile reservoir, it will have a power-producing capacity of 2,300,000 kilowatts—making it, boasts B.C. Hydro, the largest power plant in the western world.

And Portage Mountain is not the final power payoff on the Peace, which rises 300 miles west of here and wanders 1,000 miles through B.C. and Alberta before losing its identity in Great Slave River near Lake Athabaska as part of Arctic Canada's Mackenzie water system.

FORESEE DEMAND

A smaller dam with a 650,000 - kilowatt power plant 12 miles downstream from Portage Mountain is in the planning stage and preliminary surveys are quoted showing that another 900,000 kilowatts could be developed between this second dam and the B.C.-Alberta border.

One of the many government-printed publications beating the drum for Peace River power says B.C.'s annual growth of power demand has been about 10 per cent in the last decade—and at this rate all the Portage power would be in use in 1975. It adds:

"Let's be conservative — assume B.C. Hydro's power requirements will grow at a rate of only 6% per cent annually. At this rate, all of the power from Portage Mountain will be in use by 1979 and the power from the smaller dam by 1982."

Peace River development side by side with the building of storage dams within B.C.'s borders on the Columbia River will mean expenditure of more than $1,500,000,000 within 10 years—an amount twice the total Canadian share of the St. Lawrence Seaway cost.

Under the Columbia Treaty recently given Parliamentary approval, the U.S. will pay in advance the full cost of construction of storage dams in B.C. to provide additional Columbia power for U.S. consumers. Work is expected to start this fall.

Unlike the Columbia arrangement, the Peace project is power generation at the site. Work is scheduled to start next year on a transmission line to carry power 580 miles southwest to Vancouver and the populous B.C. lower mainland.

RIVER DIVERTED

Diversion of the river from a 2,000-foot section of its original course—a job completed Sept. 14, 1963—marked completion of the first stage of the Portage Mountain dam.

Now the river foams through the gaping giant's grin of three diversion tunnels while the dry section of the riverbed is made ready to receive the dam which, in its bulking bulk of gravel, sand and rock, will stretch 1¼ miles across the Peace River Valley.

Five hundred men wintered on the Peace and since then the construction force has grown to more than 1,000 men busy blasting, gouging, clearing levelling and burrowing. Peak construction year will be 1966 with 2,500 men employed on the dam, spillway, power - house and transmission line.

The backbone of construction is a conveyer belt three miles long, its thousands of rollers carrying fill to the damsite from the huge ridge of glacier-ground gravel which the early survey teams found so enticing.

Screening plants sort the fill to the right size for each of the dam's six sections and 100-ton-capacity vehicles—there isn't a wheelbarrow on the site—will distribute the material while weather allows. In this harsh land, fill can't be placed in the wintertime.

WORK BELOW

Engineers working from an enclosed corridor blasted across the dry riverbed will carry out deep grouting—sealing bedrock against seepage by drilling holes and pumping in cement—while the dam rises overhead.

B.C. Hydro says the $73,000,000 contract for the main dam, to the consortium of Peter Kiewit Sons Company, Al Johnson Construction Company and Dawson Construction Limited is believed to be the biggest awarded in B.C. history.

Some wielder of a slide rule has even figured out that the 60,000,000 cubic yards of fill needed to build the dam would build a wall 12 feet high and nine feet wide from Vancouver to Halifax with gravel to spare.

Portage Mountain's 2,300,000-kilowatt capacity will put it ahead of Grand Coulee in Washington State, now North America's biggest single power plant with 1,900,000 kilowatts.

There are many pieces to the Peace jigsaw puzzle

TOURIST SPOT

There is the tourist Peace, which is getting off to a sprightly start.

There is the public - image Peace, the project that wants to be loved.

And there is the political Peace, the part it played in the Social Credit government's take-over of the B.C. Electric power and transportation utility.

In less than a year more than 6,000 people have signed the visitors' book at the tourist lookout, many detouring off the Alaska Highway.

As the dam rises in view-blocking bulk, the lookout — known locally as "the premier's tearoom" after, naturally, B.C.'s Premier W. A. C. Bennett—will have to be moved still higher to remain a vantage point.

"It has been a great success," says Bob Dundas, who helped choose the lookout site in the knee-high snows of January. Despite its size the project is very concentrated. You can be a sidewalk superintendant in the grandest style."

CLEAR LAND

A crash logging and clearing program is going on in the reservoir area. Properly cleared the new lake will offer great recreational potentials.

But tourism is just a side-light, albeit an important one.

Premier Bennett says the Peace will provide abundant and economic power to stimulate and support rapid industrial growth in B.C. during the next 10 to 15 years—the current pulp - harvesting - site sweepstakes going on in the north-central interior is just one example.

In the government's concept - extra-high-voltage delivery, the first transmission line from Portage Mountain will form the backbone of a provincial power delivery network cutting south through the heartland of the province.

With the backbone in place, lower-voltage powerlines can be connected, extending like ribs to meet the power needs of more remote regions. Generators rated 230,000 kilowatts each will be added at Portage Mountain as the reservoir fills and power requirements increase.

Critics of the Peace contend that the Social Credit government shilly-shallied, obstructing international agreement that would have given first priority to development of the Columbia.

ISSUE ACADEMIC

Columbia power, the critics say, would have been lower-cost power and in many instances smaller regional projects would have been more practical than developing the Peace for markets not yet in existence.

Much of the criticism has become academic. Peace power was a major issue in last September's provincial election. Social Credit won again without even getting ruffled.

The Peace River project first was proposed in the 1950s as a bold venture into B.C. by Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

Wenner-Gren is dead now, his plans for vast development of the Rocky Mountain Trench no much deadwood. His name is rarely, if ever, mentioned in provincial government publications.

One of the reasons for the government's take-over of the B.C. Electric Company in 1961 was that the company refused to buy Peace power.

The Wenner - Gren interests had by that time been meshed, so far as the Peace was concerned, in the Peace River Power Development Company in which 13 British and Canadian firms held an interest. The company's plans and surveys were expropriated at the same time as the B.C. Electric take-over.

So, on a day to be set in 1968, the water will begin backing up behind the Portage Mountain dam. Puzzled, the moose, the deer, the black bears and the grizzlies, all the confused family of the smaller furbearers, will begin moving to higher ground.

The Peace, once a highway of the fur trade, will be a power river.

Tomorrow: Peace River project upsets old-timers.

Experts say 400,000,000,000 pounds of fish five times the present catch, could be caught annually without harming future supplies.

Would Locate Departments Outside City

ORILLIA (CP) — Ray Connell, Ontario's works minister, told a local service club Monday that some departments of the Ontario government should be located outside of Toronto.

He said he found humorous a suggestion by Lloyd Letherby, conservative member of the legislature for East Simcoe, that Queen's Park be moved to Orillia, but he said it did strike a note of reason as to the decentralization of government departments.

He suggested specifically that the department of mines should be located in Sudbury and the department of agriculture in Guelph.

Tribe, Angels Hoist Yankees To Top

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees have a couple of new helpers — a catcher who lost his job and a guy who hasn't had one for 10 days.

The Yankees trimmed Washington Senators 7-1 Tuesday night and wound up on top of the American League when John Romano powered Cleveland Indians to a 4-2, 8-5 doubleheader sweep over Baltimore Orioles and Vic Power came through with the big hit in Los Angeles' Angels' 2-0, 2-1 sweep over Chicago White Sox.

Whop Romano and Power, the returning vacationer, had completed their night's work, New York was in first place and the Orioles and White Sox were—temporarily at least—in the field.

That's where Romano was until his third homer of the evening triggered an eighth-inning Indian uprising in the eighth inning of the Cleveland-Baltimore nightcap.

The big inning set the Orioles reeling into second place, five percentage points behind New York.

RETURNS TO ACTION

Power was back at first base in the White Sox-Angels second game after an enforced 10-day layoff—the result of a run-in with umpire Jim Honochick in Los Angeles.

He came up in the seventh inning with two outs and cracked a bases-loaded single off Garry Peters that brought the Angels from behind and pushed the Sox into third place, one-half game off the pace.

Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 7-3 on Dick Stuart's three-run homer and Kansas City Athletics nipped Minnesota Twins 5-4 on Rocky Colavito's two-run double in other games.

Tom Tresh homered twice and doubled for the Yankees and Jim Bouton won his ninth game in 17 decisions with a four-hitter.

Tresh hit a solo homer in the second inning and connected again in the fourth with a man on. John Blanchard singled in two runs in the sixth and two more scored when Bouton's eighth-inning fly ball fell for a double.

Chuck Hinton's sixth - inning homer spoiled Bouton's shutout bid.

CHANGES POSITIONS

Romano caught the first game and drove in three runs with a pair of homers and a double. He went to the outfield in the nightcap and Joe Azcue took over behind the plate as the Indians stacked their batting order with righthand hitters against Baltimore southpaw Steve Barber.

Barber had a three-hit shutout until the eighth, when Romano led off with his 14th homer. Before the inning was over Woodie Held had hit a three-run homer and Romano had driven in another run with a single.

John Powell had three hits in each game for the Orioles, including a first-game homer.

The Angels' 5'5 Belinsky and reliever Bob Lee combined for a seven-hit shutout in the opener against Chicago. Felix Torres homered in the fourth inning and singled in the sixth, driving in both Los Angeles runs.

Jim Fregosi's first - inning homer in the nightcap gave the Angels a 1-0 lead but the White Sox came up with two runs on five hits in the bottom of the first.

Relievers Aubrey Gatewood and Bob Duliba blanked the Sox the rest of the way and Power's hit, following a pair of walks and a single by Bob Rodgers, provided the victory margin.

Stuart's 24th homer snapped a 4-4 tie at Boston and upped his league-leading RBI total to 94. Bill Monbouquette weathered two home runs each by Norm Cash and George Thomas for his third straight victory.

Colavito's seventh-inning double brought Kansas City from a 4-3 deficit and helped hand the Twins their sixth straight setback. He also singled in a run.

Phillies Break Slump

Williams' Homer Defeats Giants

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Gaylord Perry hasn't broken a bat in nine days. But Billy Williams certainly took a calculated risk when he left his lying around.

Williams shoved temptation just 60 feet from Perry Tuesday night when he dropped his bat at home plate and trotted around the bases after banging a two-run homer that provided Chicago Cubs with the runs they needed to whip San Francisco Giants 3-1 Tuesday night.

Perry, however, remained calm. The 25-year-old San Francisco righthander has kept his hands off enemy bats for two successive games now, but has been unable to do the same with the ball.

Since he smashed Nellie Fox's bat in a rage after losing to Houston Colts and was billed for the damage, Perry has been in two games and allowed five runs—all on homers.

Williams's homer, his 32nd, made the Cubs the latest entry in the National League pennant sweepstakes as they climbed over the .500 level with their fourth straight victory and eighth in 10 games, moving into contending position 7½ games off the pace.

GIANTS IN SLUMP

The Giants have lost seven of their last nine games and are a game behind leading Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies defeated Milwaukee Braves 6-3 for their fifth victory in the last 14 games.

Elsewhere, New York Mets dropped third-place Cincinnati by beating the Reds 4-2, Pittsburgh Pirates rode Jerry Lynch's grand slam homer to an 8-4 victory over St. Louis Cardinals and Houston edged Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 on Al Spangler's homer.

The Cubs struck in the fourth against Perry, now 7-7, when former Giant Joe Amalfitano doubled and Williams followed with his homer. That gave Bob Buhl his 12th victory against five losses although he needed relief help from Bobby Shantz and Don Elston.

Bobby Wine drove in two runs with a homer and single. Tony Taylor homered and rookie Mickie Allen stroked three hits as the Phillies slowed the Braves, who had won eight of 10 and 16 of their last 22.

Art Mahaffey, 9-4, started for Philadelphia but needed Jack Baldschun's relief help when the Braves loaded the bases with one out in eighth and the Phillies leading only 4-3 Baldschun got Hank Aaron to hit into a force play, then retired Joe Torre on a tap in front of the plate.

PROLONG STREAK

The Mets made it four straight victories over the Reds as Larry Elliot hit a bases-empty homer off Joey Jay, 4-8, in the second and walked before Jesse Gonder homered in the fourth.

The victory went to Bill Wakefield, who pitched 5 1-3 innings of two-hit relief after the Reds chased Tracy Stallard with two fourth-inning runs on a pair of walks and singles by Deron Johnson and Gordy Coleman.

Lynch smashed his grand slam off Ron Taylor in a five-run fifth inning that gave the Pirates more than enough to beat the Cardinals. Taylor took over for starter and loser Ray Sadecki, 10-8, after rain delayed the game 81 minutes.

Joe Gibbon, 7-3, needed relief help to win it after Mike Shannon hit a three-run homer for the Cardinals in the eighth.

Spangler's leadoff homer in the eighth broke up a pitchers' duel between the Colts' Bob Bruce and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

Bruce kept nine hits well spaced and stranded four Dodgers on third base as he brought his record to 11-4. Drysdale, 12-9, allowed only five hits.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

The Brobdignagians and Lilliputians of the wrestling ring join in giving the weekly mat fiesta at Memorial Arena a Gulliver's Travels touch comes Friday evening.

It ranges from the ponderous but extremely agile heavyweights to the scampering scallawags of the midget division.

Remember the Mighty Ursus (that's grimly in English, pardner) who boasts a terse like the mythical Atlas who toted the world on his shoulders? He's 300 pounds of brawn and muscle and is grandson of the native land of the tortilla and tequilla. The Mexican sensor is known to have broken a steel chain by the mere flexing of his massive biceps.

Ursus will toss his torso and tenacity at 290 pounds of granite-hard bone and sinew in the person of Chief Sunl Warcloud, a noble redskin with the fiery blood of forebears in his veins.

The Chief, a far cry from the wooden counterpart that used to designate cigar stores, is fast, tricky and will give the paleface "grizzly" the battle of his life, give or take a scalp.

In direct contrast will be those mighty atoms of the hemp hutch, a quartet of midgets led by the one and only Sky Low Low. The shock-headed, snub-nosed veteran of the pygmy pachyderms heads a quartet of miniatures that will give a show worth the price of admission alone.

Sky Low Low, no gentleman inside the ring, is partnered by another "across the tracks" pintsize, a countryman of the Ursus, Pancho Gonzalez.

Facing them and upholding the dignity of their division are Farmer Pete and Tiny Tim. This half of the total weight output of 360 pounds can scat and flea-hop over, on and under the ropes and ring with the best of them. Like their foemen they are accomplished wrestlers and have appeared here before with that monarch of the midgets, Little Beaver.

"But you ain't heard nuthin' yet."

How long does it take for a buzz-saw to cool off? If more than a week then look for fireworks come the main bout.

Roy Villmer, who would get the unanimous vote if he ran for president, was so hot with anger last Friday you could sear hamburgs on his torso.

The "Little Buzz-Saw" from St. Louis feels he was skullduggred out of victory by the wily but colorful peacock of Broadway Sweet Daddy Siki.

So much so that he demanded—and got—a return match with the "Village Beatnik" whom he left strictken and shorn of his prancing pride in a "no contest" decision.

The self-dubbed "Mr. Irresistible" knows this and he's got the clue. Villmer will be on the alert for repetition of surprise attacks like last week and the gentleman from Missouri is all set to meet trick with trick.

PULLING FOR YOU, DIT!

Sports desk phone calls requesting information regarding the condition of Dit Clapper, well known Boston Bruins great, who suffered a heart attack recently, testify to the popularity hereabouts of the former National Hockey League star.

Reports on his condition at this writing were favorable, saying he was "progressing." That's good news for all of us who know him well.

Peterborough's Hall-of-Famer has many friends here, made through many visits in support of sports organizations.

One of the finest sportsmen and athletes Canada has ever produced, Dit was always extra-generous with his time and efforts. He gave both willingly without thought of recompense.

As one of his Belleville friends told me, "Dit is the kind of guy I would like my son to grow up to be."

I don't know of a finer tribute.

Sportsmen of this city join with those of other places in wishing Dit a rapid and permanent recovery.

Dutchman Wins Swim, $5,000 Eas ily

Lumsdon Fourth

By BARRIE MARTLAND

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) — Herman Willemse just about tripples his annual salary teaching school in Holland by winning the annual Atlantic City swim marathon with monotonous regularity.

The 30-year-old teacher from Utrecht, The Netherlands, where he earns the equivalent of $1,400 in yearly wages, made his annual trip to this famed resort city Tuesday and left with $5,000—the fifth consecutive year he has won.

Willemse was like a man hurrying to plug a leaky dike when he broke his own course record for the 26-mile race billed as the "world" professional marathon swimming championship.

He plunged through the choppy but warm waters on the Atlantic Ocean side of Absecon Island—on which Atlantic City is built—and the inland bays to win by more than two miles over his nearest competitor, an Egyptian and a Canadian, who waged a tremendous fight for the runner-up spot.

Abdel Latif Abou-Heif of Egypt was second place by just the flick of a wrist over Montreal's John LaCoursiere. Abou-Heif got $2,000, LaCoursiere $1,000.

BREAKS RECORD

Willemse's time of 10 hours, eight minutes and 15 seconds in this 12th marathon topped by 23½ minutes the record he himself set in winning his first swim here in 1960.

To the cheers of hundreds of spectators and the hooting of pleasure-boat horns, the Dutchman crossed the finish 23 minutes and eight seconds ahead of Abou-Heif, a major in the Egyptian Army.

Cliff Lumsdon, a 32-year-old New Toronto hydro-repairman who won this race in 1956 and 1959, was fourth and won $800.

Since turning professional in 1946, Lumsdon has never finished out of the money.

Winner in the women's division was Mary (Marty) Sinn, a 21-year-old housewife from Ann Arbor, Mich. Her record-breaking time of 10:37:13 was worth $1,000. She also earned $300 for finishing seventh in the overall standings.

She broke the 11-07:25 mark for women set in 1959 by Greta Andersen of Los Alamitos, Calif., who was forced to withdraw early in Tuesday's race because of a kidney infection.

SEVEN DROP OUT

Nineteen swimmers—45 men and four women—started the race. Ten men and two women finished.

The other money winners were George Mezzatesta, Ocean View Area, $500 for fifth, Dicki Bojadzi, Yugoslavia, $300 for sixth, and Miss Misty Dawson, 21, of Toronto, who finished 12th but got $400 as the No. 2 woman.

German-born Kurt Plantikow, 30, an Etobicoke, Ont., fireman finished out of the money in 10th position as did Gene Clark of Weston, Ont., who was 11th.

Miss Schmidt struggled into the inlet to a cheering ovation from the crowd that had waited in the darkness for her to complete the course. Her freckled face was burned from the sun that broke through in late morning after a heavy fog reduced visibility to almost zero, and her eyes were puffed from wearing rubber goggles.

Unable to climb aboard the boat that had accompanied her through the inlet to a nearby pier, whose swim was described by one observer as being "a little dicey," she was lifted aboard. She said she was all right and "just tired."

Picton Man Seeks Olympics Team Berth

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Five pistol shooters and 13 small bore rifle shots will compete here Wednesday, July 29, for four places on the Canadian Olympic team.

The contestants won regional trials held at local clubs during the last six weeks. Two of the Olympic places will go to pistol shooters and two to riflemen.

None of the competitors in the three-position rifle shooting regional trials fired qualifying scores.

The pistol shooters entered in the finals are Gary McAlmon, Dartmouth, N.S.; George Kuttai, Battleford, Sask.; Art Lord, Brampton; Bill Hare, Ottawa, and Fernand Lapointe, Quebec City.

Small bore rifle shots who qualified are George Marsh, Toronto; Bill Sean, Kitchener; Ed Tilles, Hamilton; Mayer, Kitchener; R. A. D. Parker, Ottawa; Jean Parker; Deep River, Ont.; Carl Ouellette, Windsor, Ont.; Gerald Brewer, Toronto; Roy Pinney, Webster's Corners, B.C.; Gerry Findlater, North Burnaby, B.C.; Steve Johnson, Calgary; Arne Sorenson, Calgary, and Francis Trace, Calgary.

The Canadian match rifle, sporting rifle and pistol championships will be fired at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa from July 31 to Aug. 2.

FRUITFUL UNION

Frank Fontaine, Jackie Gleason's comedy partner, is married to former acrobatic dancer Claire Wakham. They have 11 children.

TORONTO (CP)—Host professional Gordon DeLaat thinks the wind may be the undoing today for many of the 202 would-be qualifiers for the 42nd Ontario Amateur golf championship.

And he doesn't expect many of the record field to beat the par 71 at the 6,455-yard Weston Golf and Country Club course.

"It depends on the weather," DeLaat said Tuesday. "A strong west wind affects a lot of the holes."

Sixty-four of the starters, who include five former winners of the championship, will qualify for the match-play rounds that start Thursday and end Saturday. Chief among them are five-time winner Mike Weiland of Toronto, current Canadian Amateur and Ontario Open champion, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, current world amateur champion, who has yet to win the Ontario title.

Other former winners include defending champion Bill Morland of North Bay, his brother Dave, Bruce Bradley of Oshawa, Ray Cole of Brampton and three-time champion Jack Nash of London.

The qualifying round will also decide Ontario's four-man Wilingdon Cup team to play in interprovincial matches.

Cheese Wallop Daubers

Belvedere Trounces City

Belvedere Hotel continued their Commercial 8 of 5 (8 of 11) League climb by trouncing City Hotel 12-4 for their fourth consecutive victory last night.

It was a second contest, Black Diamond Cheese collected an 8-1 decision over the Ter-Haar Daubers.

Belvedere jumped into a 4-3 lead in the first and were never harassed too closely. Junior Day pitched the victory, stopping the City boys on five hits. He struck out six and walked a pair.

D. Young started and lost, giving way to Dave Feeney in the fifth. They gave up 12 hits, fanned two and walked four. City took the ball around for seven errors.

J. Clapp drove in four of the winners' runs while Ryan and Hylle Bryant knocked in three with a home run and double. Ryan got a double and single, Lucas two hits, Ferry a double, Benn and McLeod a single apiece.

J. Martin belted a double and single, Mullins two singles and Rutherford a double for the losers.

The Cheesemen broke a 1-1 deadlock with three runs in the fourth and added a single run with four more in the sixth against Ter-Haar.

It was a battle of the brothers as Day pitching mounds Sonny Holloway hurled five-hit ball, striking out seven and walking two for Black Diamond. Don Holloway was the loser before giving way to Ron Stoner in the fifth. They allowed seven hits, struck out five and walked nine, eight of the walks were charged to Holloway.

W. Hannah clouted a bases-loaded triple and a single to pace the winners with the hickory. J. Gilby got two doubles, B. Cruickshank two singles and D. Archer one.

'To-Tell The Truth'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Two featherweights, each named Danny Valdez and each jealous of the other, battled for 10 rounds Tuesday night in what was billed as a climax to their feud.

Danny Valdez, 125, of Los Angeles was awarded a unanimous decision over Danny Valdez, 123¾, of Mexico City.

To avoid confusion, the Mexican Valdez was listed on the card as Daniel. His record now is 15-8.

Minor Baseball Results

Fountain Park nipped Sine's Shell 4-3 in Senior Minor Baseball action last night while in Tyke play Jaycees whipped the Yankees 17-11.

Jim Wood pitched two-hit ball for Fountain Park after his club got him a 3-0 lead in the first. Sine's made it close but Wood men on base in the bottom of the seventh inning. Wood struck out five batters and walked three. Ed Christopher was his catcher.

Brian Coughlin gave up six hits in handing mound duties for the Shell crew. He got off on third strikes and walked four. Gary McGillvary was his receiver.

Jim Cross led his own attack with a pair of singles. Bob Les and Dominic Tomaso each hit a double, Christopher and D. Wiley a single.

Terry Meagher reached three safeties for both of the losers' hits.

Robert Baker pitched the Jaycees to Tyke win, a five-hitter, with 10 strikeout victims. Tim Morgan was his batttery mate. Laurie Burnette and Robert Guest gave up 10 hits while striking out five Yankee pitching. They fanned nine and Jud Forester did the catching.

Coulson had a big night at bat for Jaycees, hitting a grand-slam home run and a pair of singles. Morgan also got three hits, A. Brown two, R. Baker a double and J. Stafford a single.

G. Fraser and J. Olaveson each had a double and single for the losers while J. Forester getting the other base hit.

It was announced that Saturday's regular scheduled games have been postponed since Belleville and Kingston will play a triple-header at Park Dale that day.

The Kingston-Belleville Tyke game is slated for 1.00 p.m., the Preswee for 3.00 and the Bantam for 5.00, all at Park Dale. Belleville returns to Kingston for a final triple-header on Sunday and it is Eastern Ontario Baseball Association qualifying play.

APPOSES BRUNDAGE

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—The Marquess of Exeter, 59, former British Olympic hurdler and president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, is the only candidate opposing Avery Brundage of Chicago in the write-in election for president of the International Olympic Committee. The sealed replies are to be opened in the presence of all 64 IOC members at Tokyo Oct. 7.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters

PUTTING STROKE ACCELERATES

Tempo is just as important in the putting stroke as it is in the full swing with a driver. In putting, the tempo should be smooth and it should accelerate.

Your putter should start back slowly and then gradually move faster through a stroke so that it is moving fastest as it meets the ball.

You cannot expect to putt well unless your putter is accelerating at point of contact. Only with this acceleration will the blade remain square to the target line throughout the time that it is moving the ball.

If your putts are erratic in their line, especially if you have a tendency to "pull" your putts to the left, I suggest you make sure that your putter is accelerating through the ball and that you are following through on the stroke toward the target with your putterhead.

First Stringers Start

Trimble Yields To Fans

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes said Tuesday he will start his first stringers against Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight.

He remained convinced that pre - season exhibition games have no more status than trial runs, but he presumably yielded to fans who pay regular-season ticket prices to see better efforts than last week's 35-7 loss to Calgary.

"The fans in Canada are going to have to understand that our fight with the NFL and AFL for players is dead serious," said Trimble. "Financially, it is simply impossible to keep pace with those leagues for top players.

"AFL teams are offering $15,000 to $20,000 a season. The NFL is considerably higher."

USED CANADIANS

The Alouette coach used inexperienced Canadian youngsters against the Stampeders and it cost the Als dearly, especially defensively.

"We must five these Canadian kids a chance to develop. And the only way to do it is in exhibition games."

The rookies will get another chance tonight, but Trimble will use the first portion of the game to study his mainstays.

George Bork will start at quarterback and newcomers Larry Tomchuck and Gerry Philp will man the ends. The backfield will consist of George Nixon, Nat Craddock, Dave Hoppmann and McGill star Willie Lambert at flankers.

Vernon Cole, obtained from Winnipeg after three years in the armed services, will back up Bork.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Highland Glen, a 40-to-1 chance, romped to victory in the second race and posted a win mutuel of $32.50 Tuesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

Owned by Ernest Woods of Orangeville, Ont., the nine-year-old gelding reached the winner's circle for only the second time in 13 starts this year, finishing three-quarters of a length in front of Brown Valley.

The 3-to-5 favorite, Ray Harvere, broke stride and finished last in the pace.

Highland Glen was the second half of a daily double worth $163.80. The first half went to Toral Account, owned and driven by Wilbert Hopkins of Milton.

Pierre Herbert, owned by Bill Herbert of London, sped to his second win in 13 outings in the featured eighth race, a mile pace for $1,000. The four-year-old raced to a personal speed mark of 2:05.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Highland Girl, a three-year-old filly, captured the featured $1,000 purse preferred pace at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday night going the mile in 2:05, the fastest of her career.

She paid $8.70 for the win over Wally B. Byrd, in second place, and Stormy Knight C.

A daily double of $17.40 was posted when American Pilot won the first for $7.20 and Jennine Jasper took the second to pay $4.50.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Ialone, a four - year - old filly which "walks funny" and is reluctant to be trained, wasn't reluctant in taking the lead in the second race at Fort Erie Tuesday and held on to win, completing a $220.50 daily-double.

Owned by Jim Langill of Montreal, Ialone walks like she has broken bones in every leg. She appeared so pitiful in the paddock, in fact, the veterinarians were considering scratching her from the race.

She made it to the post and raced the 6½ furlongs in 1.19 2-5 and paid a whopping $76.40, $27.00 and $22.70.

With Chris Rogers in the saddle, Ialone shot right to the front from the start and she simply raced away from her opposition. At the wire she was 3¾ lengths in front of Tiny Fruit and Secret Star.

In the featured seventh race, Ciboulette, one of the better three-year-old fillies in Canada, led from start to finish and defeated Famous Road and Forest Rover.

SOCCER STAR KILLED

LONDON (AP)—John White, star of the Tottenham Hotspur soccer team, was killed by lightning Tuesday while playing golf. His body was found under a tree on the golf course at Enfield in north London. Apparently he had taken shelter from a storm.

Coach Wins Front-Office Hassle

Lions' Wives Will Sit Pretty

VANCOUVER (CP) — The game of musical chairs, which left wives of the British Columbia Lions out in the wet and caused head coach Dave Skrien to threaten to quit, ended Tuesday.

The women will get seats equal to, or better than those they occupied in Empire Stadium last season.

Skrien touched off headlines when the accused general manager Herb Capozzi of "a deliberate attempt to undermine me" by moving the wives of players and assistant coaches from free seats in prime, covered positions to uncovered seats ranging from the end zone to the 30-yard line.

"I can't coach if I am undermined and I can only view this as a deliberate attempt by the general manager to undermine me. It may seem a small thing, tickets, but team harmony is being threatened and my authority is being challenged.

"If I let this go, I am dead as a coach. This will kill me in the eyes of my football players."

IS MISUNDERSTANDING

Clayton B. Delbridge, club president, said the incident resulted from a misunderstanding.

The wives' seats, previously scattered through several sections of the cavernous stadium, had been consolidated into one section, he said.

In view of the uproar, however, he would see to it that the wives were given seats equal to or better than those occupied last year.

Skrien, who said he would hand in his resignation to the board of governors at the club's annual meeting Tuesday night unless the situation was rectified, said he was satisfied.

Earlier, he said that after the 3-0 defeat by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an exhibition game Monday night the players were more concerned with the ticket situation than the game they had just lost.

Capozzi said he had no comment.

WON'T PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pitcher Jack Sanford of San Francisco Giants has been feeling fine since a 10-hour operation on his throwing arm Friday, but he will not play ball any more this year. Sanford said the doctor who performed the operation to remove a six-inch arterial block from his upper arm told him he should not pitch again this year.

SWIM CHANNEL

DOVER, England (Reuters)—Ten English schoolboys beat the English Channel Tuesday when they set a cross-Channel relay record. The Dendrons College team from Uffington, central England, reached Dover at 2 a.m. local time, 11 hours and 27 minutes after leaving Cap Gris Nez, France.

BOMBERS CUT FOUR

WINNIPEG (CP)—Four players were cut Tuesday from the roster of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, walloped 25-7 Monday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition against Ottawa. Coach Bud Grant announced the release of George Alexiatos, Ken Koering, Charles Smith and Ken Webster.

Two Crews, Sculler

Olympics Oarsmen Named

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—An eight-oar crew from Vancouver, a four-man crew from St. Catharines and a Toronto single sculler swept to easy victories in the Olympic rowing trials Tuesday.

A combined Vancouver-University of British Columbia eight defeated crews from St. Catharines and Toronto Argonauts in a four-mile time of five minutes, 49.8 seconds.

But a four-man crew from the St. Catharines Rowing Club pulled the upset of the trials by finishing three lengths ahead of the favored Vancouver - UBC four, covering the course in 6:17.4.

Alef Golfredson, 20-year-old Toronto electrician, posted a nine-length victory over Robert Sawlor of Dartmouth, N.S., in the slow time of 7:04.2 over the 2 000-metre distance.

All three winners were later recommended by the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen as representatives for Canada at the Tokyo Olympics in October.

NOT NAMED

The only winners not named to the Olympic team were in the doubles event where Gofredson combined with Toronto school teacher Bart Hildebrand, 24, for a two-length victory over John Orchard and Ray Gay of Hamilton Leanders. Their time was 6:52.0.

South Hastings Little League

Carmel carried the winning habit into the South Hastings Little League baseball playoffs last night, trouncing Cannifton Comets 17-3 in the first game of their semi-final series.

It was Carmel's 11th victory in as many games this season and one more will put the team in the loop's championship series.

Daimond Richardson pitched the victory, stopping the Comets on a single hit. That went to opposing pitcher Roydon Ritz.

Ritz was hit hard in defeat, led by G. Adams who hammered three triples. Horton got two three-base hits and Mike Mac clow had two doubles.

Second game of the series is at Cannifton Thursday evening.

Foxboro and Frankford are playing in the other half of the semi-finals.

LIFT SUSPENSIONS

SHEFFIELD (Reuters)—Suspensions of two British soccer players were lifted Tuesday in time for them to report for their club's first pre-season workout. David Layne and Peter Swan of the English League's First-Division club Sheffield Wednesday were named in connection with an allegation of soccer bribery and suspended three months ago.

Week's Recipe for Success, 'Try to Please Audience'

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence Welk, with almost 40 years as a popular band leader behind him and soon to start his 10th season as star of a high-rated television show, has an uncomplicated recipe for success:

"We try to please our audience," he explains simply. "We try to bring it some joy, happiness, relaxation and always to be in good taste—the kind of entertainment that should come into the home."

Every year, Welk says, somebody predicts that the time has come when "big bands" will at last make a comeback.

"Well, I differ from musicians' thinking today," he said. "There's a depression in the orchestra business — you don't find them in hotels, in ballrooms, restaurants or doing one nighters much any more. And I don't think the depression will be over until there's a change in the philosophy of the musicians.

"Generally, the modern musician plays from the heart—his own heart, but he's no judge what people want to hear. I think that my people could run a pretty good show without me, but I do think that I'm important just because I'm around to knock out some of those jazzy numbers.

STRESSES VARIETY

"Why is he playing this?' I'll ask. 'He likes it.' I'm told. Well, that's not a good reason. The real question is will the audience like it. A lot of the time I don't think it will."

Welk's tried-and-true formula for success is based on variety. Each of his Saturday night TV programs contains many musical ingredients: Clean, polished band music with a bouncy beat and the tune that is clearly recognizable. Dixieland; familiar songs from operettas and musicals; folk songs; modified rock 'n' roll; honky tonk piano; comedy songs; waltzes, even polkas.

"The ladies are my number one audience," said Welk, "and the gentlemen are my number two. We also have about five million young children in our audience. We are short on teenagers, but they are a problem. And I just can't afford to go after a teen-age audience and lose my regular one. I don't try."

The veteren orchestra leader is a calm-mannered, soft-spoken man born and brought up on a farm near Strasburg, N.D. The suggestion of a foreign accent that marks his speech comes from his parents who immigrated from Alsace-Lorraine in 1878 and settled in the black hills with other German-speaking families.

He is a devoted family man, living with his wife of 33 years, Fern, in a comfortable big home. His two daughters are married, and Welk proudly carries pictures of his five grandchildren. A son, Lawrence Jr., works for a recording company.

AT THE BELLE — Last Day — Elvis Presley's new song, dance and girl-filled comedy, "Kissin' Cousins", in which Elvis plays a dual role as a hillbilly mountain man and an Air Force officer. The comedy in Panavision and Color, is showing tonight for the last times, at the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Cement Company Expansion Program Well Under Way

PICTON (Staff) — Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company's seven million dollar expansion program got under way last week as drilling and blasting started for the footings of six concrete piers that will support the plants new 500 ft. long kiln.

The blasting was handled by a team from Robinson construction of Hamilton. General contractor for the job A. E. Rule Ltd., of Toronto, is clearing away the blasted rock and soon will begin erecting forms for the piers. The footings measure 20 x 38 feet and were blasted out of solid rock to a depth of four feet. Heavy rubber mats made of hundreds of tire slices were used on the various blast sites to contain flying rock.

The footing sites are located very close to the plant's two other kilns. In fact when the new kiln is erected it's centre will be only 46 ft. from the centre of the one next to it.

The kiln a huge rotating furnace for the fusion of sand and rock is being built in sections at Lachine, P.Q., and will be ready this fall for shipment to Picton. It is 140 feet longer than the two now in use at the cement plant.

The kiln will boost LOPC's production to 4.25 million barrels per year, this will make it among the five largest single cement plants in Canada.

Marmora Ore Trains on Move

PICTON (Staff) — The ore trains from Marmora to Picton began to move again on Monday after a two week halt due to annual holidays at the mine. Workers at the high shore dock took advantage of the lull in operations to overhaul the company's huge dock crane which is used in piling the ore after it has been received by rail from the mine. It is the first major overhaul the crane has had since its purchase some ten years ago. The crane is powered by electricity and can operate if only connected to a single power cable.

The pile of ore at the dock now totals about 200,000 tons and if lake boat shipping does not increase, Mr. Carl Johnson, superintendent, stated, there will be another holdover this fall. Two small capacity boats are due this week, the Westmount on Wednesday and the Port Madoc on Thursday.

County Cherry Pickers Swing Into Action

PICTON (Staff) — It's cherry picking time in Prince Edward County. Today Wednesday pickers swing into action on the Rutter orchards near Bloomfield. Soon some 100 to 150 pickers will be employed and more adult pickers can be used.

The orchards present a sight worth seeing, the branches of the well kept trees are loaded down with the ripening fruit. There is a fine crop this year, stated Ted Rutter. Last year there was about one third of the normal crop but this year it is about 75%.

While some of the cherries will go to the canning factories, most will be frosen at the Rutter cold storage at the West end of Picton.

This year there is a large crop of cherries throughout Ontario and growers are finding that the market is glutted by cherries imported from the United States. It is expected that until these imports are used up, the market for Ontario grown produce will be weak. A good crop is also reported by Keith Vandusen who has 25 acres in the same district.

Village Names Board Member

PICTON — Wellington village council has re-appointed Everett Robinson as representative to Prince Edward Collegiate Board.

Mr. Robinson tendered his resignation earlier and this was accepted by council and a letter to that effect sent to the Collegiate Board.

A week later, the Board secretary received a second letter announcing that Mr. Robinson had been re-appointed.

Family Gets Rabies Shots

While Mr. and Mrs. Gerald VanDusen or their two children were not bitten, there is always the possibility that infection could have occurred and Dr. R. H. Thompson is giving the shots as a precautionary measure.

Possibility of another case of rabies in the county is reported from Athol and South Marysburgh. The head of a fox has been sent away by Prince Edward Health Unit for examination. The "sick" fox was shot last Tuesday by E. Rorabeck.

The two townships are involved as it appeared to come from South Marysburgh and died after being shot on the line between the two townships. The Health Unit reminds that it is always wise to take notice when any animals act in an unusual manner or appear sick.

Wild Bill Tucker Has Scant Regard for Cody

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the boulevard—

Wild Bill Tucker has gone on shows for 13 years. His mane hangs white and stringy below his shoulders, his moustache is long and bushy, his goatee is goatee is longer than a billygoat's.

As he strides down Hollywood Boulevard daily in costume—western style tan gabardine suit, yellow silk shirt, black cowboy boots and stetson hat—he resembles everyone's conception of Buffalo Bill. Yet for Col. Cody he has scant regard.

"Talked to him once in San Francisco at the world's fair," said Wild Bill. "He was all right. Drank a lot in his later years. He was a good politician, I'll say that for him."

His was standing on a corner in a bus disguised some travelers. He greeted several and they said, "Hello, Bill," and would never tell the wiser. He resumed talking in his rambling, non-stop manner:

"Started with the big get-up of mine. It means something to 'em, something of the Old West. They talk to me.

"It makes me feel good to be around people. I'm 72 years old and I never felt better in my life. That's because I like people and I take care of myself. I eat good, sleep good and get loads of exercise."

SHAKES LIKE JELLY

He demonstrated some of his calisthenics. One consisted of flexing his arms and moving them rapidly from side to side. Another he admitted was nothing more or less than the shimmy-dance many consider it vulgar, but it's great for getting the blood to the brain and other vital organs.

His big frame shook like an aspic, but foot traffic along the crowded street took no notice. Wild Bill was born John William Tucker in Benton, Neb., where, he said, Wild Bill Hickok shot it out with the Mcnfies.

Bill got into show business in 1912 as an imitator and whistler, billed as Tommy Tucker. It was a pretty lousy act, as he recalled it. After war service as an air instructor, he followed a number of occupations in and sound the entertainment world. He developed talking sounds for movie cartoons.

"I can make any sound you name, from a hurricane," he said. He bent forward and inhaled deeply with his head below his knees, then he stood upright and with scarlet face emitted a whistling noise that sounded like a real rush of wind.

"Shucks, I wasn't no movie star or anything like that," he remarked. "But I can make more money now than I ever did before. Don't want to work, though. I got my army pension and my social security. That's all I need."

Women Make The Difference In Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — In Houston theatre, women make the difference.

Elsewhere, stage enterprise is mostly a male monopoly, with some damsel occasionally leading single-handed ventures.

But in Houston, there are two long-running theatrical entries and both are tributes to female drive and determination.

One is the Alley Theatre, which began in 1947 and now is getting ready for impressive expansion with the help of a $2,100,000 Ford Foundation grant. Undisputed mistress of the Alley is Nina Vance.

The other is Theatre Incorporated, 11 years old and proud of its talent - training accomplishments. Heading the undertaking is Mrs. Johnny George.

Although comedy — revivals of Broadway hits—has been the surest box office lure over the years, Miss Vance has maintained a high degree of artistic attainment by judicious interpolation of classics (The Three Sisters), serious drama (Long Day's Journey into Night) and avant - garde (Waiting for Godot).

The main emphasis at Theatre Incorporated, is on musical works such as Gentlemen Prefer Blonds, Irma La Douce and the recent highly successful showing of The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

"BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI"

William Holden launched his motion picture career in Columbia Pictures "Golden Boy." Truly one of the "golden boys" of the screen, an Academy Award winner and one of Hollywood's best-drawing boxoffice names, Holden stars at the Park Theatre with Alec Guinness and Jack Hawkins in Sam Spiegel's Academy Award-winning production, "The Bridge on the River Kwai," the Columbia Pictures release in Cinema Scope and Technicolor. "Kwai" was produced and directed by David Lean, winner of the recent Academy Award-winning "Lawrence of Arabia."

In "The Bridge on the River Kwai," which is released by Columbia Pictures, Holden plays an American prisoner who escapes from a Japanese jungle camp. He returns with two British commandos to destroy the wood-vital bridge built by British prisoners for their Japanese captors.

Holden won his Academy Award as "best actor" with his performance in "Stalag 17." Among his other highly successful films were "Sunset Boulevard," "Picnic," and "The Key."

"The Bridge on the River Kwai" is a superb motion picture that is well worth seeing again and yet again.

"Bridge on the River Kwai" continues until Saturday. One complete show starts at 8:00. Feature at 8:30. Continuous show Saturday from 1:00 p.m.

TV—Radio Column

Technique of Ridding Show Of Character Has Changed

Jerry Layton, producer of NBC's The Doctors, writes in the following column for vacationing Cynthia Lowry about the world of TV soap operas.

Written for the AP
By JERRY LAYTON

NEW YORK (AP)—Not long ago if a daytime serial actor found that he was required to say, "Doctor, I can't seem to shake this cold," he immediately called his agent. "Al, they're going to me the pneumonia treatment. Better line up some auditions. I'd say the funeral's set for two months."

He knew his part was soon to be written out of the show. But with this formula being done to "death," so did the viewers.

What do we do on The Doctors in place of the "pneumonia treatment?" We don't just kill him off. We introduce a new character to strengthen the dramatic balance. We overlap the two and then let the newer one take over in importance.

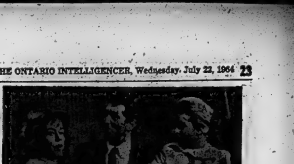
Only one of our original four leads is in The Doctors after almost two years. We found that our viewers preferred a man of definite authority as the hero. So we introduced a chief of staff.

BUILDS ROMANCE

The role of a lady psychiatrist posed story problems. We replaced her with a lady doctor who could logically work more closely with our new lead, and we built a romance for them.

Originally we presented a new half - hour drama every day. We found that viewers wanted to know more about our people, so we expanded to a full-length story every week.

As our audience became more personally involved with the cast, we even lifted the five-days - per - story restriction to make continuing dramas, in fact, a television novel.



EDEN ON TV

CBS has produced a documentary on Sir Anthony Eden, former British prime minister, to be shown later this year.

Wholesalers Combined in Price System

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten plumbing-supply wholesalers worked together to set a standardized pricing-system in Alberta between 1956 and the launching of a federal inquiry in 1959, the restrictive trade practices commission reported today.

The commission recommended to Justice Minister Guy Favreau that "steps should be taken to seek prohibition of resumption of collusive activities" by the wholesalers.

Named in the report were: Crane Ltd., Montreal; Emco Ltd., London, Ont.; J. H. Ashdown Hardware Co. Ltd., and Marshall Wells Canada Ltd., both of Winnipeg; Burgess Building and Plumbing Supplies Ltd., and Western Supplies (Calgary) Ltd., both of Calgary; Western Supplies Ltd., and Engineering and Plumbing Supplies (Edmonton) Ltd., both of Edmonton; Weston Canada Hardware Ltd., Lethbridge; and Barbe and Gibson Co. Ltd., Victoria.

The report said these companies all belonged to a trade association, known as the Alberta Heating and Plumbing Council, which they used to establish "a generally standardized system of pricing of wholesale plumbing supplies.

School Entrance Is Made Stained-Glass Masterpiece

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trucloads of broken glass and three years' work have given 450 students a vested interest in the windows of the MacDonald Elementary School.

And all because Gordon Polowy, 34, a self-trained art instructor, believed elementary school youngsters should be able to do more than use coloring crayons.

Since Mr. Polowy started teaching at the school the students have turned the main entrance into a stained-glass masterpiece, several other windows of the school have been reconstructed of stained glass and another has been built of coloured marbles brought in by the pupils.

"We've only had two broken windows this year," principal W. H. McLaren says. "Both of them were from kids playing ball outside and both of them came in to tell me."

"I don't mind when windows are broken by ball players."

Mr. McLaren says the art projects have given the students pride in their school and they are careful of the windows.

"But they're proudest because we have the best art work in the city," he says.

THREE PURPOSES

Mr. Polowy says the window project had a three-fold purpose: to build a distinctive entrance to the school, to build up the students' identification with their school and to develop their pride in doing good work.

People come into the school and wander up and down the halls looking at the art work.

"The whole community has become involved in finding stained glass so we can build more windows and I'm out almost every weekend hunting for it."

The students have turned the whole school into a gallery with stained glass creations, oil paintings, metal work and carving. Pupils who have left school bring their friends back to point out their contributions.

Mr. Polowy has been teaching art for 12 years without any formal training, says he hopes to return to university and get an MA in fine art.

Stan Laurel In Hospital With Diabetes

He's been there since Thursday—and no one is supposed to know about it. But somehow, 1,000 letters a day have come to the hospital from Laurel and Hardy fans.

West Valley Baptist Hospital in nearby Encino won't even admit that the English - born comedian is a patient. But Laurel himself, via the close friend, leaked the word so that he could publicly thank the thousands who have written him.

The friend said Laurel's wife expects to take him home to their Santa Monica beachfront apartment in a few days. Laurel has been a diabetic for 16 years.

Refused Pills And Medicine, Lived 100 Years

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mrs. Edmonia Collins of Lansville observed her 100th birthday Monday. Asked to what she attributed her longevity, she replied:

"Ever since I was a little girl I poured all the medicine doctors ever gave me down the drain. I planted their pills in my flower pots."

KALEIDOSCOPE — A student at MacDonald Elementary School in Vancouver prepares to clean a grouping of stained glass windows created by the students for the main entrance. A self-trained art instructor, Gordon Polowy, 34, started the project three years and many truckloads of broken coloured glass ago. (CP Photo)

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 23

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Seek harmony where you are employed - - where people congregate in connection with your efforts. Important to present favorable image. Higher-ups pay heed. Stay on your toes.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Deal with the abstract rather than insisting upon concrete answers. Many are not ready to make final decision. You cannot force these issues. Try to understand.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) You may want to believe what is not true - - in connection with an investment. Best to be cautious. You have something others need. Knowing this, play cards close to chest.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Be sure you understand current assignments, questions. If you leap at what appears to be a new opportunity....you are likely to "trip." Be thorough and careful.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Try to accommodate those who make unusual requests. May mean slight inconvenience. But you will feel sense of accomplishment. Day to give rather than receive.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You can now "get to bottom" of important questions. Your creative resources pay off. Day for vital changes, decisions - - especially those concerning opposite sex.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Questions of security home, family surge to forefront. Day to be versatile. Don't feel you must decide everything at once. Be calm and cool - - study facts before acting.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you have recently had disagreement with relatives, in-laws ..now is time to seek harmony. Make concessions .... display maturity. Realize energy utilized for anger is wasted.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) New ideas can result in money-making decisions. Key is being willing to express innerfeelings. No day for restrictions, holding back, or groundless fears.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Personal cycle continues high. Make appointments. Present formats, ideas, programs. Get persons in authority. Utilize charm to by-pass obstacles. Be sure of stabilizer.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) One you had confidence in.... may disappoint you. Be practical. Avoid "pipe dreams." Face facts as they exist. The sooner you set practical policy ....the better.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Many of your hopes, wishes fulfilled if you take practical approach. Means check budget. Get facts from expert. Take initiative in matters involving security.

If today is your birthday you are attractive to members of opposite sex, possess much creative ability. ...are attracted to writing and publishing.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Cycle continues high for Capricorn, Aquarius and Pisces. Special word to Libra: Be deliberate. Wait for answers before coming to any conclusions.

British Industry Is Strangling As Mail Piles Up

And Now It Is Sure Slowdown to Be Strike

LONDON (Reuters) — Union leaders of Britain's post office workers tonight rejected last-minute government wage proposals to avert a British postal strike set for midnight Saturday night.

The men, who have been on a slowdown for two weeks, were ordered by union leaders to strike and stay off the job until the government meets their wage demands.

CHOKED TO DEATH

"Industry is being slowly choked to death—a helpless witness to its own destruction," said Sir Richard Powell, director-general of the Institute of Directors.

The government may consider raising its offer of a four-per-cent wage increase to six per cent. The postmen want 10½ per cent. Basic wages average $21 ($59) a week.

WAS MEDIATOR

Earlier this month, Wilson played a ...ediating role in bringing the ... ...ment moves that helped end a technicians' strike which had blacked out Britain's commercial television network.

Already 45,000,000 letters are piled up unsorted in London and other major centres because of the slowdown.

Some are the lifeblood of the nation of 55,000,000 people—export orders, specifications, urgently needed instructions.

Mail contained 21,000,000,000 ($3,000,000,000) worth of bank change hands in British business every day — checks most of them go through the mail.

Export goods are lying on the docks because mailed documents have not reached the buyers.

Mail order firms are laying off workers. Bookies who operate through the mails—legal in Britain — are losing business. Thousands of government pensioners are short of money without their weekly cheques.

In some towns it is impossible to use a public phone because coin boxes, normally emptied by postmen, are full.

In most of southern England long distance calls are limited to six minutes. People are switching to phones instead of using the mails.

'Corpse' Was Rattle Seeker

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A woman looked at her window Wednesday and saw a man apparently stuffing clothes into the trunk of a car.

Michael Lambert, a mechanic, was explaining to police how he put a felt-tipped pen inside the trunk and drove him around the block to check a rattle in the trunk.

COMFORT FOR VICTIM OF HARLEM VIOLENCE — An infant is nestled between two women while a man and woman comfort weeping woman between them who was struck on head by debris tossed from a Harlem building. Police were herding crowd from a street during demonstration, into building behind group, when woman was struck. (AP Wirephoto)

Police Bullets Wound 4 Negroes In Brooklyn Rioting, Vandalism

NEW YORK (AP) — Police shot and wounded four Negroes as racial rioting, looting and vandalism raged in Brooklyn through the night.

Police said the Negroes shot were accused of looting.

Several policemen were injured during the city's fifth straight night of racial violence.

Police estimated 165 stores looted in the predominantly Negro Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. More than a dozen smashed store windows and ran off with anything they could carry.

Crowds of Negroes, jeering and hurling missiles at police, surged through the streets Wednesday night. Steel-helmeted police fired volley after volley over the heads of the roving bands to break up the disorder.

In Manhattan, 500 white teenagers pelted Negro demonstrators outside police headquarters. A police charge broke up the mob.

Harlem, however, was quiet—even quieter than on a normal summer Wednesday night, police said.

There were no riot arrests. No streets were sealed off in the Negro community where violence had flared for four nights in a row following the fatal shooting of a 15-year-old Negro boy by a white police lieutenant.

Fifty-four Negroes were arrested Wednesday night and early today in Brooklyn.

The violence erupted less than three hours after Mayor Robert F. Wagner made a television and radio appeal for peace and said: "Law and order are the Negro's best friend. The opposite of law and order is mob rule, the way of the Ku Klux Klan and the lynch mob."

The mayor, who interrupted a trip to Europe and flew home Tuesday, announced a program to end racial violence and promised increased efforts to end slum conditions, to recruit more Negroes for the police forces and to review charges of police brutality.

Wagner later told reporters that there is "some evidence" of Communist instigation of the racial rioting.

Seven Killed, 65 Wounded In Singapore Race Riots

CP from AP-Reuters

SINGAPORE — Chinese and Malays poured into the streets of Singapore for more racial battles today, causing at least seven deaths and pushing the official death toll up to 18 since the communal rioting began Tuesday night.

Hospitals reported 65 more injured were brought in after four hours of serious clashes, most of them during a morning break in the curfew for the low people to buy food. Three of the injured died today.

Conflicting official reports of the total number of injured in the battling ranged from 186 to more than 300.

Police, riot units and troops had hauled in 1,098 persons on curfew violation charges and another 196 were charged with unlawful assembly of rioting.

A senior army officer said "if the police and army had not moved so quickly it would have been a bloodbath."

More than 6,000 troops and police are patrolling the island. Local police and military units were reinforced Wednesday from Malaya.

The curfew in effect for 18 hours until 5:30 a.m., was relaxed somewhat in an apparent effort to prevent complete stagnation of the island's bustling economy. Beginning tomorrow, the new curfew hours will be from 5:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Federal Govt. Hopes to Submit Medicare Proposals Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes to submit proposals to the provinces next year for a nation-wide medical care program, Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons Wednesday.

In answer to a series of Opposition questions, Mr. Pearson also said the government would call a meeting of the provinces will be held as soon as possible to discuss recommendations of the royal commission on health services headed by Supreme Court Justice Emmett Hall.

But when Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) asked how much money the federal government is prepared to vote to a medical plan, Mr. Pearson said the question is "a little premature."

F. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, asked whether the government has accepted the Hall commission recommendation in view of Health Minister LaMarsh's statement Tuesday that the government hopes to have a medical care insurance program worked out next year.

"I would not like to go that far," Mr. Pearson said. "We hope to have proposals ready for submission early next year to the provinces."

Inter-American Parley Seen Ready To Approve Stiff Cuban Quarantine

Only Mexico and Chile Opposing Mandatory Break in Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Inter-American foreign ministers conference today headed for a final showdown with a majority reported to have already decided to vote for a diplomatic and trade quarantine on Cuba.

All six foreign ministers who addressed the conference Wednesday unequivocally supported Venezuela's demand for a stiff penalty against the Fidel Castro regime for its export of subversion to Venezuela.

Mexico and Chile are expected to oppose the mandatory break in relations but they are given little chance to change the indicated position of most other conferees.

Brazil continued efforts to find a compromise solution to avoid a split with Mexico and Chile while satisfying most other member nations.

State Secretary Dean Rusk asked the conference to impose sanctions on Cuba and urged a showdown to the extent required that "the full weight of the regional security system will be applied" if it persists in subversion.

WANTS ALLIES IN

Rusk also called on the free world countries of Latin America "into steps in the field of trade with Cuba." The United States has had only partial success in its own efforts to persuade its allies to cut off their trade with Cuba.

In his speech Rusk did not spell out the sanctions he proposed. But the foreign ministers have before them a resolution calling for all members of the Organization of American States to break diplomatic and trade relations with Cuba.

Venezuelan Foreign Minister Ignacio Iribarren Borges, in Rusk's presence, told the conference, said "the

Churchill Almost Falls Leaving House

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill stumbled and all but fell in the House of Commons Wednesday when he was leaving after listening to nearly two hours of debate.

The war-time prime minister, who will be 90 on Nov. 30, was walking from his seat with the aid of his cane when his left knee appeared to sag. He seemed about to fall over backwards.

But Sir Rolfe Dudley-Williams, C. servative MP, jumped forward from the front bench of the chamber and public galleries and caught Sir Winston's left arm.

Sir Rolfe and an attendant then helped Churchill out of the house.

Sir Winston, who has announced that he will not stand for re-election at the general elections this fall, has been almost a daily visitor to the House of Commons during the ...ing question time. He seems to enjoy the cut and thrust of this parliamentary repartee most.

Sheppard Extended

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard has outlasted the prosecution in another legal battle to remain out of prison and it appears it could be weeks or even months before he learns of his fate.

Sheppard won a new round Wednesday when a three-judge federal panel of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held his $10,000 bond—and his freedom—were valid until the court could decide if the U.S. district court order for his release would stand.

The court is not scheduled to meet again until October and Sheppard's attorneys said the earlier action would be possible.

Sheppard, central figure in one of the country's most publicized murder cases, headed with his new wife to their Cleveland home to wait until the legal smoke cleared.

His lawyer, F. Lee Bailey of Boston, said: "I don't think this case will ever be retried."

Prince Taken Ill At Camp

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuters)—Prince Charles, 15-year-old heir to the British throne and Prince of Wales, was admitted to a nursing home with pneumonia Wednesday. His condition was described as "not serious."

He came down with pneumonia after spending two nights camping with school friends on the Royal estate at Balmoral, where he was taken ill.

Two doctors accompanied the prince by car to the Watson Fraser Nursing Home in Aberdeen.

The headmaster of the boys' school, Gordonstoun, said the boys had been camping only since Monday and "I don't think the weather can have had much to do with it.

"It is just one of those things."

The prince's illness was announced by a Buckingham Palace spokesman in London, where his parents, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, are in residence.

New Clues Uncovered in Medical Quest

TORONTO (CP) — Groundbreaking research in Texas has uncovered new clues in the medical quest for the origin of diabetes and its attendant ravages, the International Diabetes Federation heard Wednesday.

Dr. Roger H. Unger described to the IDF congress work which suggests the onset of diabetes due to insulin disorders may be related to abnormal behavior in two body hormones.

Dr. Unger, chairman of this year's Lilly Award of the American Diabetes Association for outstanding research, is head of Texas Southwestern Medical school in Dallas which for the first time measured in man the substance glucagon. The group established that glucagon is a hormone with a major role in the regulation of sugar in the blood.

More recently the team has discovered abnormally high activity by growth hormone from the pituitary gland in the presence of blood sugar among persons with an inherited predisposition to diabetes but who are not yet diabetic.

Cypriots Ask British Leave Isle

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Greek-Cypriot members of the House of Representatives today unanimously adopted a motion that Britain's bases in Cyprus be withdraw from the United Nations peace-keeping force on Cyprus.

The resolution claimed British soldiers had behaved in a prejudicial manner and therefore were not contributing to the peace role which they joined the UN force.

The House postponed until Thursday a debate on proposals for the removal of two British bases in Cyprus and the withdrawal of Britain from the Republic from the Commonwealth.

These matters were to be considered in a new session, to be held today, calling for self-determination for Cyprus.

Seventh Day On Loan

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's proposed student loan legislation today goes into its seventh day of legislation argument in the Commons still caught up in constitutional arguments.

When the Commons rose Wednesday, the issue of the moment involved the democratic rights of Yukon residents. This was an offshoot of a debate about the territory's constitution, which grew from a subamendment proposed as the result of another amendment that developed from the bill itself.

The bill is intended to guarantee loans of up to $1,000 a year that students would get from banks to go through university or technical schools. An amendment introduced by the government Wednesday would allow credit unions, caisses populaires and credit societies to qualify as banks for this purpose.

Since the bill entered the Commons, most of the attacks have come from Quebec opposition members, who have argued that it represents a federal intrusion into the exclusively provincial field of education. Quebec has already announced it will not participate, but will take advantage of the cash equivalent.

The jurisdictional discussion was overshadowed Wednesday by a stiff argument over the method of selecting students and universities qualifying for loans.

VOTED DOWN

After a long debate, the Commons voted 56 to 27 against an amendment that would have the federal government designate the provincial authorities to do the selecting. This meant the selection would remain in the hands of provincial governments.

A government amendment then added that in the case of the Yukon and Northwest Territories the responsibility would rest with the territorial commissioners.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) proposed a sub-amendment that would have the federally-appointed commissioner in the Yukon seek "the advice and consent of the advisory committee on finance" before making decisions. This, said Mr. Nielsen, would bring elected representatives into the picture.

John Turner (L—Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George), parliamentary secretary to Northern Affairs Minister Laing, said the sub-amendment would have the effect of turning the advisory

One Way to Shorten Debate

Print Undelivered Speeches, Liberal M. P. Urges

OTTAWA (CP) — Some government supporters, and even one cabinet minister, seem to have a hankering for adopting the practice of living speeches by MPs printed in the Hansard record. Commons debates, whether actually delivered or not.

The idea has come up twice within the last 10 days, both times in connection with the impending resumption of debate on the government's proposed maple leaf flag.

Gerald Laniel, Liberal MP for Beauharnois - Salaberry, made the first serious suggestion last week in the Commons. It was applauded by his colleagues but left no stirry ground as far as the Opposition was concerned.

Undeterred, Mr. Laniel produced a written argument in favor of his idea, recommending that the Commons procedures committee study it during the course of its investigation into ways to streamline Parliament.

Initially Justice Minister Favreau, government leader in the Commons, called the idea "interesting." A few days later he seemed to espouse it by saying in the Commons that it might be a good thing if MPs carried all their speeches on the flag and took a vote on the issue the same day.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker jumped in as soon as Mr. Favreau commented on the idea being "interesting." He asked whether Mr. Favreau intended "such a ridiculous proposition (should) be considered in a parliamentary system carried on in the British tradition."

Mr. Favreau hastened to say it was really a matter for the procedures committee, not for the government.

Then along came Mr. Laniel's written argument in which he urged the committee to take it up. So far there's no sign the committee will do so.

Mr. Laniel argues that adoption of this practice, in use in the United States Congress, will save time and speed up Commons action, especially on controversial legislation such as the flag.

He says it won't interfere with freedom of speech since an MP could deliver his address if he wanted to or simply file it for printing in the Commons record, distributed daily to MPs and mailed to several thousand subscribers at five cents a copy or $2.00 a year.

Mr. Laniel figures debates would be shortened and repetitious arguments from the floor avoided, matters which he says sometimes drive MPs out of the House.

He also sees it as an opportunity for MPs to get their views on record if they were unable to complete their speeches within the time limit or really going to convince anyone except his own party with his arguments—that most MPs enter on a debate with a closed mind that no amount of speeches can alter.

Dr. Guy Marcoux, Social Credit MP for Quebec-Montmorency, had a variation of this. He suggested this week that the vote be taken on the flag debate and the speeches be delivered afterwards.

When Whale Gets Needle It Is Really King-Sized

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two scientists picked up a 12-foot syringe from a giant revolver Wednesday and plunged its four-inch tip into the side of Moby Doll, the killer whale.

Then they picked up a dart rifle and shot four times. Two of the pellets bounced off, two went in.

It was a test operation, performed from a basket suspended above the whale by a 100-foot drydock crane, to see how Moby Doll took her medicine.

Dr. Pat McGregor, neurochemist and the whale's chief physician since her capture a week ago, said Moby Doll now has 125,000,000 units of penicillin and 2½ grains of vitamin B inside her.

"We'll probably give her some more at both tomorrow," he said.

The penicillin is intended to clean up an infection around the wound made by a harpoon used to capture the 17-foot-long, 2½-ton mammal. The vitamins are to keep up her strength until she gets down to some serious eating, after several days of illness nibbling.

Thursday Moby Doll—so dubbed by Dr. Murray Newman, Vancouver aquarium curator—is to be moved to a new pen cranes, the harbor. The floating drydock in which she now swims will be towed there, Friday and Saturday.

Some scientists say Moby Doll may be expecting, though they have no way of confirming this. If she is and lives, a baby whale may be born next spring.

Killer whales got their name by preying on other mammals such as porpoise, seals and sea lions and even larger whales.

Heavy Rains Have Improved Crop Conditions in Ontario

OTTAWA (CP)—Heavy rains have improved crop conditions in Ontario, the bureau of statistics said Wednesday.

The bureau said in the fourth of its six telegraphic reports for the whole country that wheat harvesting is under way in southwestern Ontario and the crop is ripening rapidly in the rest of the province.

Spring-sown grain is making excellent growth and there appears to be sufficient moisture in most areas to bring it to maturity. Good yields are expected.

Corn and truck crops continue to do well and harvesting of sweet cherries is in full swing. The first cutting of hay is either completed or in final stages but wet weather has hampered storage.

Crop prospects remain below normal in most central, western and northern areas of Saskatchewan because of drought, the bureau said.

But crop conditions are being well maintained in Manitoba and in southern districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta, in western Alberta and in the Peace River district.

Recent warm weather on the Prairies has advanced crops rapidly and the bulk of wheat is headed.

Red Chinese Journalist Is Impressed

TORONTO (CP) — The first journalist from Communist China to take up residence in Canada says he is impressed by the high standard of living here.

Pu Chao-min, travelling with a large suitcase, an interpreter and a tape recorder, is visiting Toronto for two or three days before setting up his headquarters in Ottawa. He intends to stay a year and possibly longer.

Pu is a reporter for the New China news agency. He says his alms here are to report on Canada's development and promote understanding between Canada and China.

Worst of Worm Invasion Over

TORONTO (CP)—An invasion of army worms has resulted in crop damage across southwestern and eastern counties of Ontario, but the worst likely is past, a department of agriculture spokesman said Wednesday.

There were isolated cases of heavy damage to grain, but hail had also taken its toll of the crop this summer, he said.

The infestation, which has now reached epidemic proportions, was about as widespread but not so heavy as the 1955 outbreak.

Crop dusting and spraying was continuing, but as crops ripened the danger was likely to decrease. Army worms prefer a diet of younger grain.

Farming Must Face Pretty Hard Facts

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Agriculture Minister Hays said Wednesday night that the problems of eastern agriculture won't be solved unless some of the hard facts are faced.

Mr. Hays, speaking to the Prince Edward Island Liberal association, referred to a survey in which questionnaires were made by two non-government economists.

One thing probably the most disturbing point this survey made was its observation that about half the farmers in the areas studied, if provided with other suitable work and the necessary training, would leave farming altogether, to the benefit of themselves, the farm community as a whole and the national economy.

Mr. Hays said the survey, a report of which was recently tabled in the Commons, also pointed out that the poorer farms of today are the rural slums of tomorrow and since they provide a home for the uneducated and unskilled to the towns, are the breeders of future slum areas.

The minister said any long-term solution is going to take time and must involve close co-operation between the federal and provincial governments.

Delegate to Attend World Conference

Mr. Colin Wilcox, Redners-ville Road is leaving for Beirut, Lebanon on August 7th as a member of the Canadian delegation of YMCA and YWCA to the World Young Adult conference. Mr. Wilcox will spend the week of the meetings at the American University in Beirut.

Nearly 500 delegates representing 45 countries will attend with 27 from Canada and 46 from United States.

No communist countries will be represented. Discussion will be held on such topics as politics, religion, current problems of economics and segregation, the work of the United Nations, and other subjects of international interest. There will be observers as well as delegates present.

Make Progress In Newspaper Strike Talks

TORONTO (CP)—Louis Pine, chief conciliation officer with the Ontario department of labor, reported Wednesday that negotiations for the three Toronto daily newspapers and their striking printers made "considerable progress" during the day with respect to language dealing with the computer issue.

This was the fourth day of sessions in the labor department offices and the fourth referee in Mr. Pine to Progress toward a solution of the dispute. The talks resume today.

The question of supervision of build - purpose computers used in composing room work resulted in the breakdown of negotiations between the paper—the Globe and Mail, a morning newspaper, and The Star and The Telegram, evening papers and the International Typographical Union (CLC), representing 600 printers at the papers.

Rebel Forces Take Kindu

LEOPOLD VILLE (AP) — Kindu, capital of Maniema district in the eastern Congo, has fallen to rebel forces, it was reported Wednesday night.

Radio messages from Kindu's railway station, picked up in Stanleyville, said there has been fighting in the streets there. Other messages said the situation was extremely confused. The airport was closed, that Kindu's inhabitants were fleeing and that about 100 whites were awaiting evacuation. White family dependents were almost all evacuated some days ago when Kindu first was threatened by the rebels.

Prepare for Meet

A campaign was launched yesterday in Belleville by Jehovah's Witnesses for rooming accommodations for delegates to a convention to be held in Trenton next month, commencing Aug. 13.

Jehovah's Witnesses in Trenton have booked all available hotel and motel rooms there and made a house to house search for quarters in private homes as well. However, requests received to date are strongly urging Trenton facilities to the limit and the real rush is yet to come, thus the search for additional accommodation in Belleville.

Hold Man In Custody Without Bail

A Point Anne man arrested after a wild shooting spree Tuesday, today was remanded in custody without bail at the request of prosecution authorities.

John Wesley Cummings, 46, also was advised by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to obtain legal advice.

Cummings was charged on three counts of shooting a firearm with intent to endanger life after shots from a high-powered rifle were fired at his son-in-law and members of the Cummings' family on the Point Ame lane.

Their morning assistant crown attorney Tom Lally requested the Canada Cement Company worker be held without bail to facilitate psychiatric examination.

Cummings, who sat quietly in the dock during his brief appearance, said he was agreeable to any decision of the court.

The magistrate then advised to obtain legal advice immediately.

Noting the charges he told the accused: "These are very dangerous actions and there is a possibility of repetition at the present time and the court would feel very much happier if a psychiatrist examined you."

Cummings was formally arraigned on one count — shooting at Mrs. Ida May Cummings, 23. The other charges name his daughter, Nancy Fairchild Cummings and son-in-law Howard Sowden.

Welland Canal Normal Again

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) The Welland Canal went back into normal operation Wednesday after two power failures within 24 hours had blocked the waterway.

Lock 8 at Port Colborne was closed from 8:30 a.m. Tuesday until 2:30 a.m. Wednesday after an overcharge damaged a transformer and burned out fuses. Earlier the entire canal was closed by heavy rains and intermittent power failures.

Woman Stabbed, Charge Husband

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A 25-year-old mother of two was stabbed here Wednesday and police charged her estranged husband with attempted murder.

Mrs. Christine Greco of Niagara Falls was reported in critical condition after she was wound in the chest. Her husband, Angelo Greco, 30, also of Niagara Falls, had bail set at $10,000.

Police said they arrested him on the porch of his wife's home and later found a butcher knife.

Quebec Not Asking for More Than Rest

EDMONTON (CP) — Quebec is not asking for any more than the other nine provinces of Canada already have, Justice Minister Guy Favreau said in an interview Wednesday.

He said Quebec demands may appear shocking to the rest of Canada but only because the province "awakened abruptly" to its rights after the Duplessis regime ended.

He said for many years the other provinces chose to ignore Quebec, making the "evolution explosion" more surprising.

'Oopik' Nets Over $10,000 In Royalties

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Oopkik, the toy arctic owl with big eyes, has so far nearly netted $10,000 in royalties for the Fort Chimo, Que., Eskimo co-operative, the Canadian Handicrafts Union of Canada annual meeting was told Wednesday.

The money being made to increase Ookpik's value as a whimsical little creation of the North likewise means something in the Canadian economy as a symbol of Canada," Adelaide Sorvan, president of the CUC board of directors.

"It is intended that Ookpik will be used only in connection with high-quality merchandise and never in a promotional sense.

"The federal department of trade and commerce intends to use the Ookpik symbol in its trade fairs to be held next year."

80-Year-Old Lothario Is Divorced

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP)— Mrs. Magdalena Benscoter was granted a divorce from her 80-year-old husband Wednesday after she testified he once tried to use "girl friends to our senior citizens club."

Mrs. Benscoter, 72, said her husband of nine years, Virgil, not only philandered but boasted of his conquests afterward.

Benscoter did not contest the divorce, which was granted by Superior Court Judge S. C. Masterson.

can no longer be restrained." The leaders of clergymen, merchants and political figures—told police they can no longer be as restrained in their community of 500,000.

In Harlem, police raided the headquarters of the black nationalist group headed by Malcolm X in a hotel room. They said they seized a loaded rifle and more than 100 rounds of ammunition.

Mayor Wagner announced a nine - point program which, among other things, called for restraints against any abuse of power by police, close contacts between city officials and minority groups and stepped-up efforts to gipe out poverty. Wagner said jobless and hopeless youths are "the loose gunpowder of our time."

ORDER EQUIPMENT

Mill equipment worth $328,000 has been ordered by two major steel firms from Bertram Machine and Tool Co. of Dundas, Ont., a division of Levy Industries Ltd., the company said Wednesday. The Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., Hamilton, and the Algoma Steel Corp., Sault Ste. Marie, have ordered rail cars to transport molten metals.

BOLD SPACE

E. D. Smith and Sons Ltd., food products manufacturers, has embarked on a $1,000,000 expansion program at its plant in Winona, Ont. that will add 40,000 square feet to present facilities. Bulk of the new space will be used to make tomato and apple products, the firm said.

PLAN MEETING

Members of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada will meet Sept. 14-15 at Ste. Marguerite Station, Que., to discuss problems encountered since it's annual meeting in April and to hear reports of various internal committees, President Philip Moyes said. The GPMC is composed of senior management officials of makers of grocery products across Canada.

MAKE OFFERING

A secondary offering of 50,000 shares of Industrial Life Insurance Co. at $250 a share is being made by Trans - Canada Corp. Fund. It was announced today in Montreal. A syndicate of 36 investment dealers headed by J. L. Levesque and L. G. Beaubien, Ltd., is handling the offer, which is extended to Canadians only.

WANT TO MOVE

The industry department has been informed that nine industries employing a total of 1,265 persons want to move to depressed areas where they will qualify for special tax incentives, Industry Minister Drury said in a Commons return Wednesday for Fred Stenson (PC—Peterborough) that six of the industries are now located in Ontario and Quebec, two in Nova Scotia and one in New Brunswick.

Trent-Severn Low Water Talk Said Nonsense

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP)—A federal district marine agent said Wednesday the fear of low water navigation hazards, now keeping some pleasure boaters from entering Georgian Bay from the Trent-Severn waterway, is pure nonsense.

F. K. McKean of Parry Sound said in an interview some canal operators have voiced concern that boaters turning back at the waterway's western terminus might dampen tourist trade.

Mr. McKean cited a letter from one western tourist wanting to know if it would be safe to enter Georgian Bay from the Trent system in an outboard craft drawing a foot of water.

"This sort of thing is a lot of nonsense when you consider the leaky canoes up Georgian Bay's east shore was marked out to accommodate steamboats drawing nine or 10 feet of water," he said.

The only portion of the channel the transport department has had to discontinue this year is the 15-mile section from Port Severn, 24 miles northwest of Orillia, north to Honey Harbour, he said.

Boats entering the bay from the Trent system should now head out into Matchedash Bay and then turn north to pick up the channel at Honey Harbour, he said.

Marlene, Gabor Tangle In Night Club

CANNES, France (AP) Marlene Dietrich and Zsa Zsa Gabor tangled verbally at the Cannes Casino Wednesday night because Miss Gabor's personal photographer took took pictures of Miss Dietrich.

Miss Dietrich is singing at the Casino in the form-fitting gown with nearly transparent sleeves she wore last night club appearances. Her contract specifies no photographs during the show.

Beside Miss Gabor at Wednesday night's show was her photographer, his camera at the action position. Miss Dietrich made signs of protest and interrupted her act to ask him to stop his "extremely impolite actions."

Miss Gabor reacted angrily but finally gave in.

"All right, he'll give you the film," she said. "What do you think he could do with it? He couldn't sell it for a penny."

15-Year-Old To Face Murder Charge

PEMBROKE (CP) — A 15 - year-old indian girl from Golden Lake reservation, 36 miles south of here, has been charged with attempted murder.

Philip Leclair, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Leclair, was wounded in the head Wednesday with a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle.

The boy was brought to hospital here where he is reported in fair condition. The girl was taken to Renfrew County jail.

Witch Doctors Form Own Association

NAIROBI (AP)—Witch doctors in Kenya's Embu district have announced plans to form a "national association of competent witch doctors" to treat people who have been bewitched and to deal with thieves.

The move follows an anti-witchdoctor drive by Kenya members of Parliament and local authorities in the region which resulted last week in more than 300 self-confessed witch doctors smashing their magic gourds.

One old witch doctor told a public meeting: "I've killed 12 people, but now I've had enough. I'm packing it in because I've lost all my friends."

Informed circles here consider the new association will do a roaring trade detecting thieves.

The usual method is to place a live frog in the mouth of the suspect. If it jumps down his throat he's a thief. If it stays still, he's not.

Would Stop Stubborn Rush Towards Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday night his Conservative party is trying to stop "this headstrong and stubborn rush of the government" towards a maple leaf flag.

He charged that Prime Minister Pearson is trying to force Parliament to adopt his own personal flag design, holding the threat of a general election over the heads of opposition MPs.

Speaking on the CBC-TV network program The Nation's Business, Mr. Diefenbaker said the flag issue is being forced "regardless of the wishes of the people."

The Conservatives were urging a national plebiscite to let the people determine the flag.

Today collector Sherwin Stapley of Campbellford, the owner posed standing between the old and the new, would ask at least 10 times that amount for it.

SHADES OF PROHIBITION DAYS — Chicago gangsters getaway car carried rum runners on nefarious missions before police shot it out with them and confiscated their automobile. Now this 44-year-old antique is prized by owner Ron Fawcett of Whitby. It appeared with 30 other vintage models that finished the annual London to Brighton run yesterday.

Campbellford Car Oldest In Vintage Models Parade

TRENTON (Staff) — The oldest car with the vintage models visiting the village of Brighton yesterday belongs to a Campbellford collector. Owner Sherway Stapley regretted he was unable to take part in the London to Brighton annual tour after making the 250 mile trip eight years in a row.

Along side a current design of the same make his 1911 item exemplifies the horseless carriage days. Everything about it looks different in comparison. Everything that is except the price which the collector is reluctant to divulge. However, it is logical to assume that 53 years of seniority has added considerably to the value of his enviable possession.

All the vehicles in this year's tour finished without encountering serious trouble according to Ron Fawcett of Whitby official tour spokesman. George Elliott of Newtonville, however was competing to improvise in order to continue. He was travelling with the procession again after whittling a plug from a stick of wood to mend a leaking vacuum tank.

Considered an extraordinary prize Mr. Fawcett's 1920 Packard conveyed the impression the Whitby collector had borrowed it from the "Untouchables" TV series. The source he acquired it from at Ogdensburg, N.Y., told him the long racy roadster belonged to members of Al Capone's gang and was used by his rum runners as a get away car around Chicago during the infamous prohibition days. It packs a powerful twin-six motor under the elongated hood. It saw 12 years service with a fire department after the gangsters riding in it were captured and the automobile was confiscated by police.

The present owner has taken two and a half years to restore it to its original state.

Last night this year's participants, numbering 30, enjoyed their customary get together and banquet at Cobourg. They made plans for a colorful rally at Brighton next year.

RISE AND FALL

It took only about 30 seconds to reduce the Yugoslavian city of Skopje to ruins in the 1963 earthquake; it will take about seven years to rebuild.

Soviet Paper Says Tourists Smuggle in Religious Tracts.

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper has accused foreign tourists, including two Americans, of trying to smuggle religious literature into the Soviet Union.

One tourist of unidentified nationality mixed 300 icons and 1,000 religious medallions with pornographic material, the report said.

The Communist government news publishes scholastic literature and seeks to eliminate religion, although the Russian Orthodox Church claims that almost a quarter of the Soviet Union's 226,000,000 people are believers.

The report appeared in last Sunday's issue of Soviet Byelorussia, a newspaper published in Minsk, 430 miles west of Moscow. The newspaper reached Moscow Wednesday.

The report denounced Jehovah's Witnesses, accusing them of trying to work in Communist countries "against the idea of peaceful coexistence and peace in the world."

A person identified as an American businessman, was reported to have hid the Bibles in boxes that he imported.

Another American, identified as a woman, tried to import two copies "of anti-Soviet and religious books" published by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the U.S. state department, the report said.

An unnamed Swede hid religious literature in his car. This was called "an ideological sprout as dangerous as a shooting weapon . . . directed against the Soviet people."

Community TV Antenna Freeze Has Been Ended

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Lifting of the 6½-month federal freeze on the licensing of community antenna TV systems (CATV) was announced in the Commons Wednesday by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

At the same time, the government gave notice of plans to tighten CATV regulations to ensure that future systems are controlled by Canadians and operated without economic hardship to Canadian TV stations—present and future.

Under them, no CATV licences will be issued to companies in which Canadian ownership is less than 75 per cent. They must also have a Canadian chairman and two-thirds of the directors must be Canadians.

Applicants must satisfy the transport minister that the operation is unlikely to result in a Canadian TV station becoming uneconomic or "to inhibit the establishment of alternate television broadcasting facilities in Canada serving that area."

STATES AIM

Mr. Pickersgill made clear that this second regulation will be aimed at CATV systems proposing to carry American programs, thus draining off the audience of a Canadian TV station.

Windfall Drill Working Again

TIMMINS (CP) — Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. has moved a second diamond drill on to its Fraser Township property near here and the firm's first drill has resumed operation after a two-week breakdown, Mrs. Vicki MacMillan, wife of Company President G. A. MacMillan, said Wednesday.

The firm has drilled one hole on the property with cores not yet sent for assays. A diamond drill on the property broke down July 4 and did not resume operation until July 18.

Shares of Windfall on the Toronto Stock Exchange rose from a low of 31 cents in March to a high of $5.60 Tuesday on rumors of the company pulling a good drill hole. The stock closed at $4.90 a share Wednesday, ahead 15 cents on volume of 253,144 shares.

S. Viet Nam Denies Part In Attack

SAIGON (AP — Reuters) — The South Viet Nam defence ministry today dissociated itself from a statement made Wednesday by the commander-in-chief of the air force that his men were training for a possible attack on North Viet Nam.

A statement from the ministry said: "A general may have made a statement to some correspondents that the Vietnamese Air Force is now capable of counter-attacking the Communist military powers in North Viet Nam and that in order to end the ceasefire war carried out by the Communists it is necessary to prepare for military measures within the enemy's territory.

"The ministry of defence clarifies that the above mentioned statement is only the personal opinion of the military commander and does not reflect the policy of the ministry of defence."

The statement was issued at a military briefing at the defence ministry today.

TALKS TO U.S.

Earlier, United States Ambassador Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor conferred with the Premier Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Today's announcement contained no reference to another statement by Air Commodore Ky in which he said South Vietnamese commandos had been sent into North Viet Nam.

Communist China's new China news agency reported today that North Viet Nam had sent six letters to the international commission on Indochina alleging U.S. and South Vietnamese military "intrusion" of the demilitarized zone that separates North and South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, 22 miles northwest of here, Viet Cong forces carried out another of their ambushes against government units Wednesday night, dedicating two companies and destroying an armored vehicle.

KITTY TO WED

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Kitty of Gunsmoke is getting married. Announcement was made Wednesday that actress Amanda Blake will wed Arizona cattleman Jason Day Aug. 15. They met a few weeks ago on a blind date. It is the third marriage for the actress, who will return to the Gunsmoke television series Aug. 24.
